$100 Million Price Tag For Pension Hike

Personal Income Tax Raised One Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—A $100,000,000 increase in personal income taxes is the price tag on the proposed $16-a-month increase in the Canada old age pension.

The House of Commons got that news from the government Monday as it resumed its business following the two-month summer recess.

First item on the agenda, as expected, was a government measure to provide an immediate jump to $75 from $65 in the universal old age pension paid to persons aged 70 and over.

A preliminary resolution spelled out the financing method—most effective next Jan. 1 to four per cent from three per cent in the personal income tax levy earmarked for the pension fund. The ceiling on the annual levy per taxpayer by individual would be raised to $120 from $90, so that the maximum increase in the levy would be $30.

Health Minister LaMarsh said the cost of the $16 increase for the 360,000 pensioners will be $116,000,000 in a full year.

E. E. Winch, CCF—Kingston, parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Gordon, estimated the extra tax take at $100,000,000 in a full year and pointed out that the old age pension fund—already running a deficit from the last pension increase in 1959—would be in the black by 1965.

WELCOME INCREASE

Opposition parties welcomed the pension increase, though there were Conservative jibes that the government had done a "flip flop from its earlier decision against providing an immediate raise.

There was some criticism of the tax increase, however. New Democratic spokesman Stanley Knowles suggested that most of the tax load would be borne by corporations. Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapoint) accused the government of hitting low income groups the hardest.

But Conservatives had waived the rules to permit immediate debate on the pension resolution. Just the Conservatives balked at a request by State Secretary Pickersgill, government House leader, for approval of legislation before the House rose for the night so that the pension bill could be introduced. BRITAIN WELL ARMED BLANDFORD, England (AP) — Defence Minister Thorneycroft of the Conservative party, said Monday night Britain could unleash nuclear power 2,500 times the power of the bomb dropped at Hiroshima in 1945. "It is necessary to make any aggressor in the world stop and think," Macleod said at a Conservative rally.

Heads Urge French Use In Schools

TORONTO (CP)—The heads of universities in Ontario today recommended to the provincial government that students in high schools be exposed to more French as an integral part of their courses.

In a wide-ranging report submitted to the Ontario government's advisory committee on university affairs, the educationists also recommended that once the students graduate from high school they have a more varied form of education and training opportunities.

It opposed the current trend to "force-feed" more young people into the mould of the university whether they are fitted for it or not." Instead, there should be opportunities for advanced training that would suit the needs and abilities of students.

The report, entitled The Structure of Post - Secondary Education in Ontario, reviews the growth of the Ontario education system since 1870.

The report was prepared for the committee of presidents of provincially assisted universities and colleges of Ontario by its academic subcommittee with Dr. John J. Deutsch, vice-principal of Queen's University, Kingston, as chairman. Dr. Deutsch was recently appointed chairman of the new Economic Council of Canada.

NEW TYPES NEEDED

It also made the following recommendations:

1. That a new type of college be established in communities that want them for specializing in post-secondary and adult education.

2. Expansion of curriculums in existing provincial institutes of technology.

3. Better distribution of the highest-qualified teachers.

WORRIED ABOUT BRITAIN

BONN, Germany (AP)—Konrad Adenauer, a fortnight away from retirement as head of the West German government, told reporters Monday that Harold Macmillan should have quit the leadership of the British government a long time ago. Adenauer, 87, said he was worried about the situation in Britain—though he did not say precisely what worried him about it.

SWORN IN as new chief constable of Belleville city police this morning was J. B. McLauchlan (centre) taking oath of office with new deputy J. Clair Hayes while former chief, R. W. Probert, looks on. Brief ceremony took place before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Mayor Haig in city court room.

Algeria's Crisis Worsens

ALGIERS — Algeria's anti-government crisis worsened today after President Ahmed Ben Bella linked the Berber revolt in the abylia area of the northeast with reported Moroccan troop concentrations on Algeria's western frontier.

A call was issued for a mass demonstration of support to Ben Bella tonight in the Algiers Forum Square.

Ben Bella said Morocco was backing the Berber revolt which broke out Sunday in the abylia Mountain region east of Algiers.

The president told reporters: "Moroccan soldiers of (King) Moulay Hassan are 10 metres (yards) from the Algerian frontier . . . We know what it means. We fear nothing. We can defend ourselves."

Morocco has been demanding a portion of the Algerian-held Sahara and the relationship between the two governments has been stiff and frequently hostile. Ben Ben Bella declared that the purpose of the alleged concentration of Moroccan troops was to draw Algerian troops away from the abylia and to the frontier.

WILL SEIZE PROPERTY

The president also announced his government has nationalized two more European-owned hotels and a vegetable oil factory in Algiers owned by a Moslem. He promised to seize all European farm property in several days; an obvious bid for support from impoverished masses.

Ben Bella declared that the rebellion — in which no shots have yet been fired—aims at a moment "when Algeria is equally menaced abroad."

He said the Moroccan troop movements came after two rebel leaders, Belkacem, Krim and Belaid Ait Ahmed, made a trip to Tangiers, Morocco.

Ait Ahmed and Col. Mohand Ou el Hadj, the Berber troop leader in Kabylia, allied themselves Sunday with the anti-government clandestine Socialist Forces Front (FFS).

In retaliation Ben Bella dismissed el Hadj from his command and appealed to army troops and citizens to take orders from military chiefs challenging his regime.

FAIR WORK CONTINUES

MONTREAL (CP)—Robert F. Shaw, deputy commissioner general of the 1967 World's Fair, said Monday the first of two proposed islands in the St. Lawrence River for the fair will be completed before the winter. Mr. Shaw said dredging to enlarge St. Helen's Island will start within 10 days. Plans called for the erection of buildings and national pavilions on the proposed new part of St. Helen's Island. The still-to-be-created Ile Notre Dame would be used for an amusement park.

Britain Will Back Efforts For Overall Summit Meet

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Earl of Home today promised Britain's co-operation in talks with Russia that could lead to a summit meeting of all 18 members of the UN disarmament committee.

The British foreign secretary said in an address prepared for the UN General Assembly that he could "see some value in such a meeting," but said some points should be studied intensively at a lower level first.

Andrei Gromyko, Russia's foreign minister, called for the summit talks in a speech to the assembly Sept. 19, and said they should be held in the first six months of next year, possibly in Moscow.

Lord Home, in a 3,500-word speech today, praised Soviet "step by step" approach to solving East-West problems and said he hopes that next year "we shall be able to say that this session of the assembly marks the end of the cold war."

There were signs, he said, that might herald a "new chapter of co-operation" between the Soviet Union and the West."

He also made these chief points:

Record Crop, Wheat Sales Give Sask. Rosiest Harvest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A record crop and the unprecedented Soviet wheat purchase gave Saskatchewan the rosiest harvest in Canada.

The major wheat province will be the chief beneficiary from the sale which Trade Minister Sharp has estimated will bring each Prairie farmer an additional $2,000.

Elsewhere across the country, shows a Canadian Press survey, harvest yields were more spotty.

The Atlantic situation ranged from good in Newfoundland—potatoes, turnips, cabbage and blueberries—to so-so in New Brunswick where fewer potatoes than expected were harvested by grain and hay yields.

Quebec reports an indifferent year—grain off in yield and quality while the total field crop value will fall below the estimated 1962 gross of $167,894,000.

Ontario reports a better picture including a 1,800,000-bushel slice of the Russian wheat demand and a record fall wheat crop.

Manitoba and Alberta wheat demand and a record fall wheat crop.

Manitoba and Alberta, less fortunate in grains than Saskatchewan, nevertheless expect better-than-average yields while British Columbia has had another spotty crop from grain to fruits and vegetables.

R. W. (Bob) Carbert, secretary-manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, says Ontario has had a pretty fair year. Fall wheat yielded a record 42.1 bushels an acre and was harvested in good conditions.

Then a big surplus was cleared away by the surprise Russian order.

Oats yielded 53.9 bushels an acre, third highest on record, and barley hit a record of 45.4 bushels. Potatoes recovered from initial reverses. Fodder corn has been good and the hay quality and tonnage — although all crops ran two weeks behind last year's growing season.

Major Obstacle Hurdled By Socred Win in B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — From the federal government's standpoint one more major obstacle to the much-delayed Columbia River project has been hurdled by the re-election of Social Credit in British Columbia.

Informants here said today that problems still remaining are the price of Canadian power in the United States and the formation of a U.S. power-handling agency.

U.S. price proposals are described as within shooting distance of being able to pay for the construction of the three storage dams on the Canadian side of the International river. The method of financing the dam construction is an essential part of Premier Bennett's policy of developing both the Columbia and Peace Rivers for power simultaneously.

Prime Minister Pearson indicated in the Commons Monday that reappraisal of the treaty signed with the U.S. in 1961—although not yet ratified by Canada — is nearly complete.

All that was needed was a Social Credit victory—or a Liberal party balance of power with a minority Social Credit government—to ensure a clean-up by the federal, U.S. and B.C. governments, informants said.

The New Democrats and the Unions Nearer Pact

OTTAWA (CP)—Spurred by the imminence of government trusteeship legislation, Canadian and United States labor leaders are moving closer to agreement on a private pact to rid the Great Lakes waterfront of labor hoodlums, reliable sources say.

The informants say it is still not certain that behind-the-scenes talks between the Canadian Labor Congress and the AFL-CIO will produce a workable, effective union-sponsored clean-up of the strife-torn lakes problem.

But, they say, efforts for a non - governmental trusteeship are sharpening—just 24 hours before the Canadian government plans to ask Parliament for the power to clamp a federal trusteeship on five waterfront unions.

There were indications that the government may put its trusteeship law into effect—then suspend it while the trade union movement tries to clean up its own house on the great lakes.

WOULD ENSURE ACTION

This manoeuvre would leave the trusteeship law—unprecedented in North American labor history—hanging over organized labor to ensure a thorough cleanup by unionists.

The inner cabinet of organized labor in Canada—the eight-man executive committee of the CLC—meets today to consider the latest moves toward a voluntary union trusteeship.

One stumbling block is reported to be a demand by the Seamen's International Union of North America that its jurisdiction over Canadian seamen be guaranteed after the trustees have completed their task.

The SIU was expelled during the fledgling Canadian Maritime Union, an all-Canadian union set up by the CLC after it expelled the SIU of Canada for raiding.

Supreme Court Upholds BC Legislation

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia legislation making it illegal for B.C. unions to use union dues for political purposes was upheld unanimously by the Supreme Court of Canada.

The court, in a 4-to-3 decision, rejected an appeal by local 58, 501 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC) against a B.C. Supreme Court appeal Court decisions which also upheld the validity of the legislation.

The legislation, an amendment to the B.C. Labor Relations Act, forbids use of union dues for political purposes and requires a statutory declaration that a union is complying with this provincial law.

Liberals To Meet For Assessment

TORONTO (CP) —Liberal members of the Ontario legislature will meet Wednesday to assess the damage done the party by last week's provincial election and choose an interim House leader in place of fallen party chief John Wintermeyer.

Mr. Wintermeyer, who announced his resignation as Ontario Liberal leader following his personal defeat in Waterloo North riding, called the caucus of depleted party ranks. He remains titular head of the party until a full Liberal convention elects a successor.

Farquhar Oliver, member of the legislature for Grey South since 1963 and a former party leader, is a likely choice as interim House leader pending the election of a new party chief.

Mr. Oliver, 59, resigned to make way for Mr. Wintermeyer's election as leader in 1958.

Mr. Wintermeyer, 46, saw his political ambitions wrecked Wednesday when he lost his own reelection bid and watched his party's strength reduced to 23 in the enlarged, 108 - seat House from 32 in the old, 98-seat chamber.

MORE ILL LUCK

His misfortunes were compounded by death and serious illness in the family.

His wife Barbara, mother, Mrs. J. B. Delaney of Boston, died Sunday night. Mr. Wintermeyer will attend the funeral in Boston and return to Toronto in time for Wednesday's meeting.

His father, Ontario Investor Alfred C. Wintermeyer, 73, was taken to hospital in Kitchener three hours before the polls closed last Wednesday for emergency surgery on a perforated ulcer. He has been confined to a wheelchair since a stroke two years ago.

Hospital authorities in Kitchener described the elder Wintermeyer's condition Monday as good.

Among Liberals mentioned as possible leadership contenders, the name of federal Health and Welfare Minister Judy LaMarsh is expected to be bandied around.

Miss LaMarsh is reported to have said she does not think any party is ready to accept a woman as a leader and, in any case, she has her work cut out in Ottawa.

Standing Upped To 34 Seats, NDP Loses Three

Fulton, PC Slate Go Down to Defeat

VICTORIA (CP)—The Social Credit government of British Columbia was returned Monday with an increased majority.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett campaigned on a "Social Credit or socialism" slogan. His party took four seats from the socialist New Democratic Party which in turn gained one from the government.

The standings

Social redit	34	32
NDP	13	16
Liberals	5	4

At dissolution the standing was Social Credit 31, NDP 16, Liberals 3.

Monday night the polls had been closed only 90 minutes when The Canadian Press trend analysis indicated return of the government.

The sweep marked the eighth time in less than a year that voters in Canada's provinces have re-elected their governments.

E. Davie Fulton, former justice and works minister in the federal cabinet, was defeated along with his entire slate of 43 Progressive Conservatives. It has been 19 years since the last Conservative was elected provincially in B.C.

MINISTER DEFEATED

Recreation Minister Earl Westwood, who won Nanaimo and the Islands by 51 votes from the NDP in 1960, lost it to NDP candidate David Stupich by fewer than that Monday and asked for a recount.

Only Social Credit and the NDP put up full slates. The Liberals beat with 51. There were four Communists, one independent and one member of the Social Party of Canada. All of them were defeated.

There were 113 women in the field of 205 candidates and only one — Lois Haggen, NDP, in Grand Forks-Greenwood — was elected. Camille Mather in Delta and Margaret Hobbs in Revelstoke, NDP members in the last House were turned out in favor of Social Credit candidates.

The government party gained two Delta seats, one in Burnaby and the Revelstoke riding.

Premier Bennett won re-election in Okanagan South, a constituency he has represented for 22 years and said:

"The government and I are good opposition, that's what we'll continue to have."

Valachi Gives Mobster's Eye View Of 1930's Bloody Gangland War

WASHINGTON (CP)-(AP) — Joseph Valachi, whom Canadian police hope to interview privately, gives investigating senators today a mobster's eye view of a bloody gangland war back in the 1930s.

Valachi, who has not pried silence since he says he received the kiss of death — a death sentence — from Cosa Nostra's "boss of bosses," Vito Genovese, begins his second day of testimony before the Senate investigations subcommittee.

Subcommittee counsel Jerome Adlerman announced that the convicted killer and dope peddler would tell of a "gangland war for power and vengeance" that liquidated Peter Morello as the crime syndicate's old boss. The subcommittee said police testimony would back up Valachi's story.

Valachi has said that a secret high commission then took command of Cosa Nostra acting as a board of directors but that Genovese muscled in to become —as Valachi put it—"boss of bosses under the table."

Valachi also has disclosed that Cosa Nostra had spread into Canada through the Buffalo, N.Y., area "and all points" which puts crime operations in both Buffalo and Toronto area.

The Ontario Police Commission, headed by Judge Roucke Macdonald, was to interview Valachi on how much he knows about the operations of Cosa Nostra in Toronto. One of the Mafia, as it is also called, in Ontario.

The U.S. justice department said that their request for an interview with the mobster will be given full consideration. A spokesman noted that there is a heavy demand by police officials in many cities for private talks with Valachi.

Work of Artist Praised at Rotary Meet

A large number of Rotarians were present at Canadian artist Robert Hienman, from Ottawa, highlighted the dinner meeting of the Rotary Club of Belleville on Monday.

Mr. Hienman gave a brief talk on the characteristics of a subject and pointed out that he was a portrait artist. He described what an artist does in sketching a portrait, characteristics.

The artist proved his point by sketching such notable political figures as Nikita Khrushchev, Sir Winston Churchill, John Diefenbaker and J. F. Kennedy, pointing out the characteristic features connected with each.

To further illustrate his point, Mr. Hienman asked for someone from the audience to come, and Rotarians Ross Reid, Bill Hurst and Judge J. C. Anderson were his subjects.

As he sketched the subjects the artist described the points of character he was looking for and described each of his subjects. The results were remarkable.

The Canadian born artist served in the air force and during the war he painted and sketched everything he could get and when the war was over he was known as a "war artist."

Mr. Hienman lives in Ottawa and for some time drew cartoons of the political figures for the editorial pages of the Ottawa Journal.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Court Miller and thanked on behalf of the club by Rotarian Nick Mika. Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Adam Stalker.

Special guests present for the occasion were Mr. Hienman's wife, the former Joan Blakelee of Belleville, Mrs. J. Stock and Mrs. J. Campbell. They were introduced by Rotarian E. Freeman.

The meeting was chaired by President Ron Cass.

General Hospital Is Now Accredited Institution

The Belleville General Hospital became a fully accredited hospital early in September, Mr. J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Board of Governors, stated today.

"Granting of this status by the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation followed, recent intensive inspections' by the council into the hospital's facilities and organization," he said.

"The citizens of Belleville and surrounding area can take pride in this recognition of their community hospital. It means they can place full confidence for quality hospital care in the Belleville General, its staff and its facilities."

The meaning of full accreditation was explained by Hospital Administrator S. J. Johnston. He said this recognition by the Council assures the patient that high quality hospital and medical service is being rendered at Belleville General.

The Council's surveyor inspected the three major aspects of hospital operation, namely, administration, medical staff and nursing.

The Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation is an independent, voluntary, non-profit association formed to promote higher standards of hospital care in Canada, and is charged with the responsibility of accrediting hospitals which meet certain rigid requirements.

The inquiry into the hospital's administration included close inspection of the physical plant, methods of the governing body and of the adequacy of essential services. Quality standards must be established and maintained in such services as dietary, medical records, pharmacy, clinical laboratory and pathology, radiology and medical library.

The organization of the medical staff must be such as to promote good administration of the medical and para-medical services. Nursing standards and principles that professional nursing care be available for all patients at all times.

Dr. Gander, senior consultant, "the Belleville General Hospital meets or surpasses basic requirements considered necessary to assure a quality of hospital care which the Council can faithfully recommend to the public."

As of December 31, 1962, 337 hospital were accredited throughout Canada. Of these 107 were in Ontario. The Ontario figure represents less than 50 per cent of the hospitals in this province.

SETTLES TAXES

CHICAGO (AP)—William E. Maloney, ailing former chief of the 291,000 - member International Union of Operating Engineers, has settled a $750,000 income tax delinquency for $250,000, U.S. tax court records showed Monday. The assessment by the Internal Revenue Service covered taxes, penalties and interest on unreported income for 1940 through 1957. Maloney, 70, has been living on an $55,000 annual pension from the union since his retirement in 1958.

Will Supervise Visiting Hours At Hospital

Visiting privileges at Belleville General Hospital are being abused and action is being taken to ensure that visiting regulations are observed.

Board members at their last meeting were told that often many visitors had crowded into the patient's room creating conditions not conducive to the patient's welfare.

Other visitors have persisted in conversing with patients in rooms and engaging in noisy conversation.

It was pointed out that the hospital nursing staff is too busy attending to the needs of the patients to spend time supervising the activities of hospital visitors.

Accordingly, the hospital board has decided to engage a commissionaire whose duty it will be to help ensure that visiting regulations are observed.

Human Dignity Important in Business World

The first meeting of the season was held in the Pinnacle Room of the Quinte Hotel, the opening night is designated "Management Night" and was highlighted by a talk on the management of the participating companies. The new president, Ken Courroyer, was introduced by W. Gander the immediate past president. Mr. Courroyer introduced the executive members and followed by presenting Mr. Gander with a past president's pin.

Guest speaker was the Rev. Dr. Wm. F. March M.A. Dth. His theme was "The Preservation of the Dignity of Man in the Business World". Dr. March briefly outlined of speak on this subject having spent approximately ten years in business world having built two large churches for the Church of Canada in Lindsay and in Stratford he is now situated in Morrisburg. He is the author of two published books and is working on a third.

Highlights of Dr. March's talk were:

"He commenced by stating that the Human Dignity is the utmost importance in the business world. Satisfying human needs. Developing common sense of which there is far too little in the modern world. Not only is the world wide world divided into conqueror and conquered but in very recent history this has been carried to the point the fact of the creation of so called master race and inferior race. He said that in the old days the philosophy of life was to build up the industrious and to help others.

Economic growth has changed all this and today everyone is playing politics at it's lowest level of attempting to gull the public. This applies not only to governments who try to get elected by promises, but also by, example, advertisers who use misleading advertising to try to sell their products. He said that this has led to the lessening of human dignity by the creation of groups who look upon the rest of the human race as people to be gulled and deceived.

He said that where the business world is concerned an employee now looks as much to his employer as the employer does to the employee. A man who is not interested in whether his employer makes a profit has lost his dignity and self-respect, similarly and employer, who does not care whether he fires a man or not is in the same position.

He concluded that the maintenance of human dignity is an age old problem, let us all work at it with understanding and a respect for each other's opinions so that this will become a better world to live in."

MUST STOP PRAYERS

Superior Court judge ordered the Hawthorne, N.J., school board Monday to halt Bible-reading and prayers in classrooms, which it had continued despite a U.S. Supreme Court decision against such required observances in public schools. Judge Morris Pashman granted an injunction restraining Hawthorne from holding the religious exercises in schools.

Algerian Army Units Join Rebel Troops

ALGIERS—Units of the Algerian army today began joining the dissident troops of rebellious Col. Mohand Ou el Hadj. The colonel called for a decisive fight against President Ahmed Ben Bella's government.

A government officer in Tizi Ouzou, capital of the Berber area of Kabylia which is the nerve centre of the revolt, said most non-commissioned officers and men in the area have deserted.

Informants in Tizi Ouzou said all was quiet in the city and virtually all troops disappeared from the streets.

Small convoys were seen heading toward the mountains where el Hadj has been organizing his stronghold.

El Hadj called on officers and men of his powerful military region "to join us in our combat." Time is now come to come to engage in a decisive fight against the dictatorial regime."

GOVERNMENT QUIET

There was no immediate comment from the government in Algiers. It appeared to be quiet about the situation in the mountainous region, some 60 miles east of the capital.

Ben Bella sought to rally the Algerian masses against the threat to his one-man rule.

He announced a pro-government rally in the Algiers Forum tonight and called for mass attendance.

Ben Bella arranged to address the rally and businesses were requested to close one hour earlier to allow workers to attend.

Meanwhile, Ben Bella forces established a ring of steel-helmeted troops around the Kabylia area and set up checkpoints on main roads leading to it.

Ben Bella himself was in the area of the Berber revolt with reported Moroccan troop concentrations on Algeria's western frontier.

P.M. Declines To Table Pact For Ratification

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Monday declined to bring before Parliament for ratification the Canada-United States nuclear custody-and-control agreement signed by the two governments July 5.

He also declined in the Commons to make the agreement or the text of it public on the grounds that such action would contravene NATO and national security.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said the agreement be submitted to Parliament, particularly in light of the East - West nuclear test ban treaty.

Mr. Pearson said the agreement contained military details which would not be in NATO's or Canada's interest to make public.

IN MEMORIAM

RUMP — In loving memory of our father Louis Rump Sr. who passed away October 1, 1956.

His smiling way and pleasant face,
Are a pleasure to remember.
He had a kindly word for each,
And for the needy friend.
Oh dear one, we hope to meet him,
Some day, in heaven above.
But for him, he's found in the better land.
—Ever remembered by Albert, Vernon and Dan and Grandchildren.

HAIGHT — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Joseph Allen Haight, who passed away, October 1, 1953.

Time flies, the years quickly passing,
Though still we can't forget,
How he left us without saying goodbye,
He had simply forgotten,
His memory lingers yet.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by her mother, sister and brothers.

BULPITT — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Madeline Bulpitt, (nee Carter), who passed away October 1, 1947.

At night the world stars look down,
On a grave not far from here,
Where sleeps the one we love so much,
And the one we can't forget.
Her memory is a keepsake,
From which we'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by her sons Stanley and Harold, daughter-in-law, Thomas, Frank and Billy and sisters-in-law Evelyn, Audrey and Eila.

NDP Candidate Calls for Probe Of Election

CORALT, Ont. (CP) — Jack LaForge, defeated New Democrat Party candidate for Timiskaming in last week's Ontario election, called Monday for an investigation into alleged violations of the Election Act in this Northern Ontario riding.

He said in an interview he is submitting a brief on alleged infractions to the chief returning officer for Ontario. Further steps were being considered by the NDP.

Mr. LaForge, who placed third in the election behind winning Liberal Richard Taylor and Conservative Phillip Hoffman, said he is not making charges against any individual or group. Nor is he trying to upset the local election result, he added.

"However, we have a remarkable amount of information of a very serious nature and we intend to follow it up to the utmost for the benefit of all political parties."

SAYS BEER BOUGHT

He cited alleged irregularities in enumeration of voters and said the supporter of one candidate bought beer for patrons of a tavern while urging them to vote for that man.

An enumerator who assisted at the funeral of a friend two years ago listed the friend as a voter, Mr. LaForge claimed.

A man was sworn in as a voter in one polling division but remained on the voters' list in another division, he said. In another case, an attempt had been made to swear in ineligible voters.

Enumerators in one community compiled their voters' list partly or orally from information in municipal offices rather than from visits to homes, he charged.

Calling for "some kind of judicial inquiry," Mr. LaForge added, "If we allow people to break the rules we will get back to the bad old days of buying elections and democracy will go out the window."

Run Over By Tractor, Child Killed

TRENTON — Four-year-old Andrew McGlennon, one of the twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. James McGlennon, 19 Campbell St., Trenton, was fatally injured yesterday, when he was run over by the rear wheel of a back hoe tractor as he played at the side of the road near his home.

The accident occurred shortly before 1 p.m. at the corner of John and Campbell Sts.

The driver of the tractor was 25-year old Gordon James Pitchman, 147 Marmora St., Trenton. The tractor was being moved from one work site to another when the accident occurred.

The wheel of the heavy machine passed over the upper half of the youngster's body. He was taken to Trenton hospital by Rushnell Ambulance but was pronounced dead upon arrival by Dr. W. L. Griffiths.

The child is survived by his parents; a twin brother, Anthony; two brothers, Michael Jr. and James, 5, and a sister Jennifer, 14 months.

The McGlennons moved to Trenton from Scotland.

Ont. Department of Labor Intervenes in Dispute and Hospital Strike Averted

TRENTON—A strike by 74 workers at Trenton Memorial Hospital has been delayed, and possibly averted by the intervention of the Ontario Department of Labor. Workers were set to walk off the job at 7.30 a.m. today but agreed to at least postpone the strike when a last-minute commitment from the Minister of Labor, the Hon. W. R. Rowntree, to force the Trenton hospital board to arbitrate its dispute with the union if necessary was read to upwards 50 union local members at a meeting in Trenton last night.

It is doubtful if all the union members present at last night's meeting were in complete agreement with postponing the strike. Non-union members at the meeting and reporters were asked to leave the room while members of local 183 of the Building Services Employees International Union discussed a written committment from the Minister of Labor to "issue a statement in connection with the situation," "make further efforts to bring the parties together to resolve the matters in the issue," and, failing this, to "introduce legislation at the first opportunity in the forthcoming session of the Legislature to provide for final and binding arbitration of the dispute between Trenton Memorial Hospital and Building Services Employees' International Union, Local 183." After ten minutes or so of deliberation, international union officials and others were called back into the room and the workers' decision given.

The union local includes such categories as nurses' aides, nursing assistants, housekeepers, cleaners, orderlies and kitchen help.

International vice-president Albert Heaman told the local that the hospital board had made a committment to the Department of Labor and the Ontario Hospital Services Commission that no layoffs or dismissals would take place while the strike was held in abeyance.

CLAIM DISMISSED

The union local claims that two employees, Mrs. Audrey Passmore and Mrs. H. Duraffe, were dismissed without just cause by hospital administrator Miss Hazel Naudet last Tuesday. (Miss Naudet says that the women were "laid off" because there was no work for them at the present time. Workers claim that they have been replaced in their jobs.) Mrs. Passmore and Mrs. Duraffe say that they were "dismissed" and that there had been no criticism of their work previously. Mrs. Passmore had worked at the hospital for two years; Mrs. Duraffe for eight.

The case of the two employees has been taken before the Labor Relations Board by the union international, under section 65 of the Labor Relations Act, concerning unfair practices.

Union local members felt last night that any settling of the dispute, or delay in strike action, which did not include the two women was unfair to them. There was also voiced general agreement from the floor that no matter what government officials said, or what the hospital board promised, the matter would be delayed indefinitely or settled to the detriment of the workers.

Mr. Hearne told the union members that the union international would pay Mrs. Passmore and Mrs. Duraffe regular strike pay, retroactive to last Tuesday, until their case before the labor board was brought to a conclusion.

If the dispute with the board is settled by open negotiations, the re-instatement of the two women will be made part and parcel of the agreement. If the matter goes to forced arbitration, the union and the board must submit to rulings from the government appointees and the case for the two employees may not be included in the arbitrary settlement.

If the government fails to keep its promise to force the hospital board to negotiate or to introduce legislation to settle the dispute at the forthcoming Ontario government session, the workers may go out on strike the day after parliament adjourns—and with the blessing of the international body, says Mr. Hearne.

To those at last night's meeting who said, "I think we're being too fair," Mr. Hearne said, "We're not backing down. The government will be forced to keep its word. We'll put daily pressure on the department (labor) to see to that. We've reasonable people. We have complete public sympathy in this matter. The editorials in your local press, which reflect the feelings of the public, urge the government to force arbitration, and this has no doubt had some influences with the Minister of Labor."

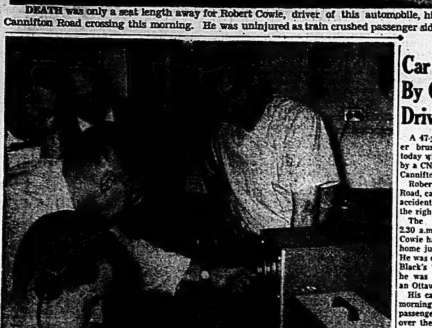
Car Rammed By CNR Train, Driver Unhurt

A 47-year-old Belleville truck driver brushed with death early today when his car was rammed by a CNR passenger train at the Cannifton Road level crossing.



Robert Cowle, 87 Cannifton Road, came unscathed out of the accident, as the train crushed in the right side of his automobile.

The accident occurred at 2.30 a.m. A minute earlier, Cowie had driven away from his home just south of the crossing. He was on his way to the nearby Black's Transport depot, where he was scheduled to take over an Ottawa-bound truck.

His car was hit by the early-morning Belleville - Toronto passenger, as it moved slowly over the crossing. At first, railroaders, fearing injury might have been caused someone in the car, called for emergency aid, and LaSalle Ambulance was sent to the scene.

The train was delayed about 30 minutes before police completed inquiries at the scene and the car was towed away.

Train conductor was Kenneth Wright. The accident was investigated by constables Ralph Petrie and Glen Jaques.

—African countries should not seek to change states quo with "wars of liberation."

Dealing with the proposed summit talks on disarmament by the 18 nations, which include Britain, Canada, the United States, France and Russia, Lord Home said:

"Balanced disarmament requires precision, and it is there that preparation is essential."

Certain objectives which he should be studied in advance in detail at Geneva and between governments, he said, should include:

Prevention of the spread of nuclear weapons; stationing observers on both sides of the Iron Curtain to minimize the danger of surprise attack, and progress on the first stage of a plan for general disarmament, including the abolition of some nuclear delivery vehicles.

Lord Home said he regarded the stationing of observers in key points in all the countries of the NATO and Warsaw Pact alliances, including Russia and uuoyidnthe old man went to the U.S., as "the most promising collateral measure which we can pursue, and I would hope that we can work out a plan for adoption.

Lord Home has been discussing this question with Dean Rusk, U.S. secretary of state, and Gromyko in backstage talks in New York. He was due to have lunch with Gromyko today and the three ministers are expected to have a further meeting later this week.

The British foreign secretary today welcomed "constructive passages" in Gromyko's Sept. 19 speech, saying his proposal that East and West should retain some missiles until the whole process of disarmament was completed seemed to remove an earlier Western objection.

Lord Home said it might be that "we are getting a little nearer to some star with the physical destruction of some weapons."

Communist theory might include the use of force, he said, but "the plain truth is that the nuclear bomb has made war us thinkable as an instrument of national policy or a means of propagating a particular doctrine.

Home said Red China might not agree "that she will learn as she gains nuclear knowledge that all her millions would not have her from annihilation if nuclear war were to break out."

He said if Russia stands by its word to convert the world to communism by building a more prosperous life for its people and succeeds, "then I for one shall have no quarrel with them."

"I may not approve Communist philosophy and practice but it will have won by fair means."

Lord Home, Gromyko and Rusk met for more than three hours in their second session in three days Monday night.

World Series Time

This is world series time. This is the time of year when some 60 million Americans and some hundreds of thousands of Canadians are infiltrated with a strange virus.

Time was when the first crack of October marked the greatest mortality rate among grandmothers, grandfathers and other close relatives of office boys and junior employees of business, industry and the professions.

With forced tears in their eyes and simulated sorrow they sought permission of the "boss" to pay their last tributes to the departed relatives. The boss, usually with a wise, sympathetic gesture, would grant the request—then phone his secretary to see if she had tickets for the game.

This, of course, happened only in the centres where the series was being played. It worked fairly successfully, too, in other parts of the hemisphere when radio came into being.

Nowadays, with the series games being brought into the living rooms in the United States and Canada the death rate of grandparents will likely reach a record high.

Actually the world series is an emotional climax for those baseball fanatics and others not so fanatical, who have followed the fortunes of their favorite teams since the opening of spring training.

This week the powerful New York Yankees, almost perennial world champions, meet a squad of ancient foemen, the Dodgers of Los Angeles, the former "Beloved Bums" of Brooklyn and the gone-but-not-forgotten Ebbet's Field.

From the canyons and outer fringes of Gotham will come the Yankee faithful to back the solid core of fans from the Bronx, the borough home of the champions.

From across the river will stream a surge of humanity, their loyalty to the Dodgers undimmed and unshaken by the turn of events that took their beloved club to the Pacific Coast. From the bistros and boîtes of Flatbush, from Canarsie to "Greenpernt" they will come to hurl insult and innuendo in the famed Brooklynese at friend and foe alike. For the "Bums" have come home to battle their most hated foemen, the Yankee Bombers of the Bronx in "mortal diamond combat."

Sentimental feeling across the United States and Canada is divided. Both the Yankees and Dodgers have their quota of fans in metropolis, smaller city, village, town and hamlet, and wherever baseball is known and played. In office, plant, shop, factory and on the farm fandom will be divided. On seasonal fans of the participating teams, the world series sometimes has far-reaching effects. Longtime friendships are sometimes stretched to the breaking point.

Neighbors have been known to attain a non-speaking status until the series has been decided. The long-time over-the-fence gossip periods of housewives have been known to terminate suddenly. The fever oftimes reaches the schoolage group and baseball loyalty has more than once resulted in out-of-class ficticuffs.

The world series octopus has another far-reaching tentacle. This is known as the "Pool Bug" which feeds on the chance-part of the make-up of the majority of humans. In millions of offices, plants, factories or wherever a dozen or so people are gathered, small slips of paper will be drawn from a hat or box and anywhere from twenty-five cents or less to much larger amounts will take their places. The next morning a lucky winner collects his reward. The process continues until the last game is played.

With the popularity of the great American national pastime spreading to all parts of the world, the famous series takes on an international aspect. In Japan the game is almost as popular as in the United States. In fact there is talk that in the not too distant future a real world series will be played between American and Japanese national champions.

We remember when covering the 1956 series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Yankees, the public address system announcer telling all and sundry that in the press box thirty-three nations "including Jolsey" were represented. Our flanking seat companions were Panamanian and Japanese sports writers. Both said interest in their countries was tremendous.

And so at least for some 60 thillion Americans and hundreds of thousands of Canadian baseball fans there will be a four-day, at least, and possibly a seven-day two-hour or more respite from the cares of the workaday, political, industrial world. There will be excitement, tension, argument and counter-arguments. Feelings will reach a high pitch according to the trend of victory. Then it will be over. Bets and wagers will be paid, friendships renewed and baseball "buffs" will again adjust themselves to normal life and its activities.

If Gordon Doesn't Get to Go Gordon's Got to Be Guided

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Parliament has re-opened, and, to the surprise of everybody except possibly Prime Minister Pearson, with disaster-starred Finance Minister Walter Gordon still on the firing line.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker who, just before Parliament recessed two months ago, called for Gordon's resignation "before Fall," now has hedged the bet.

"That though the going must be," he cracked, "Gordon has got to go, and probably will bring himself around to it before the New Year."

But as things are said to be shaping up behind Cabinet doors, it is not the finance minister who will have to "bring himself to it," but rather, the prime minister.

For ever since the political and economic catastrophe of the "Bungled Budget," a ghost written by inexpert experts from Bay Street, it has only been the prime minister who has stood between Gordon and the door to resignation and retirement.

After the "Botched Budget" had twice rocked the Canadian stock market, to the dismay of investors and irritated the Kennedy administration to the point of threatening economic reprisals, the only friend the bewildered finance minister had within the Cabinet was his old confidante of the years, Lester Pearson, prime minister, and fortunately for Mr. Gordon, the boss.

"GOOD FOR YEARS"

All other members of the Cabinet were so dismayed, even alarmed, by Gordon's budget bumbling which continues, even now, causing certain uneasiness in the national economy, that some of them were talking openly of his resignation being only a matter of time.

And by time, they meant weeks, even days.

But the prime minister, stubbornly loyal to old friends, dug in his heels.

Hadn't Gordon been the one who, in the darkest days of the Pearson career, just after his election to the party leadership, displayed the administrative savvy and drive in the rebuilding of the party and the refurbishing of its organization being only a matter of time.

And by time, they meant weeks, even days.

But the prime minister, stubbornly loyal to old friends, dug in his heels.

Hadn't Gordon been the one who, in the darkest days of the Pearson career, just after his election to the party leadership, displayed the administrative savvy and drive in the rebuilding of the party and the refurbishing of its organization being only a matter of time.

Gordon had stuck with him when he stood, almost alone, amid the ruins of defeat after the smashing 208-seat Conservative triumph of the 1958 election.

So now Pearson, in turn, was standing loyally by Gordon while just about everybody else including the Opposition, the stock markets, international security, domestic and foreign investors, certain segments within the Liberal party organization and even the Federal Cabinet were clamoring for his resignation.

"No," said the prime minister has smiled, unruffled amid the uproar, "is good for a good many years yet."

And the finance minister, so recently so overwhelmed by the "Botched Budget" debacle, has dug in as to be almost intimidated, now has begun taking the bit and riding back.

SAILS TRIMMED

With a convincing turn of indignation, he has announced he has "no intention of resigning," adding, a little tartly, that he didn't think there was anybody who had seriously suggested he should quit.

Further, he felt it was about time for the political wrangling of Parliament Hill to dig up something new to chew on.

And there the situation remains as the Commons buckles to its business.

Except . . .

. . . From now on, the finance minister is going to find his wings clipped

No more is he to be allowed a free hand in writing the Budget.

His first, it now turns out, will be his last solo Budget.

He and his Bay street Ghost Writers kept that one strictly to themselves, ensuring Budget secrecy as it seldom has been observed before and sprung it as a unhappy surprise on the astounded Cabinet.

Now, traditional Budget secrecy will be honored more in theory than in fact, with the Cabinet's Economic Policy Trade Minister Sharp, Production Minister Drury, Revenue Minister Garland looking over the finance minister's shoulder and even guiding his hand a little when he begins writing a new Budget.

And then there is always that . . . the Prime Minister, under pressure, just might buckle even yet, and let Gordon go — to another, if less important post, of course — using the finance minister's still uncertain health, naturally, as the reason.

Speed Is Status Symbol For Airlines

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The only disturbing aspect of an otherwise fine summer in the country was a new and menacing noise, heard overhead almost daily. This was sonic boom, which the natives and the city people who had fled from such reminders of "civilization" were grevously upset by it.

Our sonic boom was created by fighter planes from an air base some 200 miles away. This fearsome noise, I suppose, was bearable to those who believe that such maneuvers are a necessary part of America's defense program.

But now the government is promising to give us "SST" which stands for "supersonic transport" in the commercial field. To produce even a protype of such a plane, with a speed up to 2,000 miles an hour, will cost $1 billion. Nearly all the money, of course, will come from the taxpayers.

Do we really need such a project — except for the dubious reason of "international prestige"? Noise has already reached a highly objectionable level around airports; and supersonic planes can rattle and break windows for a 50-mile strip across the flight path. Why race into such a program until technology has at least found a way to eliminate or greatly diminish the sonic boom?

Besides, nobody in the public sector has made a case that at present jet speeds of 600 mph, our bodies already arrive before our minds and minds have caught up with them. Time spent in the air, in fact, is only a portion of the taxing travel schedule that faces most airplane passengers.

The great transport need today is for a reduction in terminal delays, in faster access to airports, in riding over the cumbersome process of parking, checking in, walking to gates, transferring from one line to another, excessive baggage pickup, and, most of all, speeding appropriate sums for research in how to beat the weather.

Everyone is agreed that what we can now cross the continent in four hours, but it takes longer to drive or taxi across midtown Manhattan than it did by horse in 1910. There seems little point in doubling the speed of our air speed — especially if accompanied by sonic boom — as long as ground traffic remains so grievously chaotic.

The majority of Americans, it may surprise us, have never flown in an airplane. They can't afford it, and they are afraid of it, or they prefer to make trips by auto. "Supersonic transport" would benefit only a few, and would not necessarily attract new passengers. Our national prestige, and our needs, would be far better served if we learned to cope on the ground, with safety, comfort, and speed.

Miss Donna Axum, of Arkansas, has been chosen Miss America of 1964. She is the fourth girl from the south to win the title in the last six years. Southern editors will have their own theories about the abundance of southern pulchritude.

Our theory is that southern cooking, particularly southern fried chicken, deserves the credit. To maintain Miss America dimensions most girls have to watch the calories. Southern girls find it easy to stay on a diet; they can't stand the southern food.

That's why so many of them measure approximately 35-23-35.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 1st, 1943.

Robebrs broke and entered the Swift Canadian Company plant on Station Street over the weekend and damaged three company safes in an effort to open them. Entrance was gained by forcing the boiler room window. Once inside the premises the robbers procured some company tools, including a sledge hammer. Armed with these tools the robbers forced their way into the inner offices where the dial knobs on three company safes, including the large one containing the weekend receipts, were knocked off the spindles. They failed to get to open any of the safes.

Leaving Stirling at a quarter to seven in the morning they arrived at their destination here on Gordon St. at 10.45 a.m. — not exactly four hours for the trip. This is fast walking being an average of about four miles per hour.

Why Russia Backs India

Montreal Gazette

The Soviet Union may have a practical reason for supporting India against China, in addition to a general wish to contain an unruly neighbor.

The Chinese aggression against India has been directed at the annexation of large border territories, claimed on a basis of historical right. But China has similar claims of considerable border regions of the Soviet Union, and there have a similar basis — that historically these are Chinese areas. And recently, China has not hesitated to mention these claims.

If Russia were to support the Chinese claims against India, it might be difficult for it to deny the Chinese claims against itself. Since it has no intention of giving up territory to China, India has a very good and practical reason for supporting India in its refusal to cede territory.

A further statement showed that Russia was thinking of its own border with China when it was as India's. For it accuses China of attempts "to appropriate individual sectors of Soviet territory," and says there were 5,000 border violations in 1962. India's border conflicts with China, although on a lesser scale, may be rather similar to those of India.

Luxury Item

Christian Science Monitor

Once a necessity for France, President de Gaulle has begun to look like a luxury. Since he came to power in 1958 rents have nearly doubled, and prices of 250 essentials have gone up 25 per cent. But wages, too, have risen at the rate of 10 per cent a year.

To Your Good Health

Weight-Lifting Not Advised for Reducing

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do you advise a man of 35 and in good health to start weight-lifting? I am 10 pounds overweight and was told this is a good method of reducing and toning up the muscles.

R. T. have also heard that weight-lifting can cause hernias and heck trouble. — R. V.

At the risk of drawing on my head the ire of weight-lifters, I vote against it, my philosophy being it's "better - safe - than-sorry."

Weight-lifting is a sport that should be started earlier in life. Then you can gradually acquire the necessary muscle development.

I have no doubt that plenty of weight-lifters never have either hernias or back trouble — but they are people who have learned the art gradually and well.

A stranger to weight-lifting, trying to do too much too soon, and without suitable instruction, is asking for trouble.

Besides, there's nothing extra-special about this sport as a form of exercise for weight. There are any number of other exercises that are easier to learn, safer for the home and more appropriate for a man of 35 who hasn't been in training for strenuous athletics.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the difference between a fistula and a fissure, causes and treatments of same. — C.

The answers are all included in my booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," Fissure, and Ithough fissures and fistulas are quite different from hemorrhoid they are all problems best handled by a proctologist. To receive a copy, send 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Molner: Like thousands of others, I still have a well and drink water from it. It was recently tested by the state health department and found to be safe.

I also have a water softener which takes out the hardness and minerals, mostly iron, calcium and magnesium, I believe. Does this remove the minerals which are beneficial to health? Does the softened water have a tendency toward constipation? — H. F.

Testing by the state applies only to whether the water is safe to drink. So continue to have routine checks.

Whether you drink "hard" or "soft" water makes no difference. The difference is in washing — soap, dishes, clothes, cetc.

The minerals which are removed are not in a form that can be utilized by the body, so there's no loss to you. Nor is there any effect on constipation. Many people with "softened" water have another factor in unsoftened water to drink, but it's solely because of the taste. Soft water is just as safe to drink.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 11-year-old son has a ruptured disc in the scrotum. I have taken him to three different doctors. They all say he must wait until he is older, but to wait until he is older. Do you think it is best to wait or go ahead at once? I fear that it will lead to cancer or anything serious? — Mrs. R. M.

You've been to three doctors, and all gave the same advice. Why try to second-guess them? If I were to examine the boy, I suspect my opinion would be the same. Incidentally, "wait-until-later" policy has been that best in such cases. No, waiting won't lead to cancer or "anything serious". But waiting may make it possible to do a better job when the surgery is performed.

Cannot Copy U.K. Methods

Toronto Star

Prince Bismarck, the story goes, once learned that a Balkan country was remodelling its forces along the lines of the Prussian army, and expected to become invincible as a result. Snorted the Iron Chancellor: "They can copy the Prussian drillbook, but they can't copy the Prussian sergeant."

We commend this tale to former Veterans' Affairs Minister Gordon Churchill. Mr. Churchill is now in Britain studying the British preventive party for ideas which can be used to revitalize Canada's own Progressive Conservatives.

The British Tory machine is indeed one of the wonders of the world, but its effectiveness is not based on any tables of organization or propaganda gimmicks which can be easily imitated on this side of the Atlantic. It is based on the labors of an army of devoted party workers who plug away year in and year out at the chores of politics — ringing doorbells, canvassing new arrivals in the riding, keeping in touch with old supporters and trying to convert wavering Grits and a few Socialists. They keep it up year in and year out, not just at election time.

Another factor in the party's successes is its network of active youth groups. Quite apart from their political effects, these are known as the best recruiting ground for the next matrimonial agencies, in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Churchill can recall devotion which sustains the Tories (and the Labor party, too) in very rare moments of gloom of any party. We simply do not take politics that seriously. Mr. Churchill can explain British pamphlets and manuals to his hearty content, but it will be of small use to us if he can somehow copy the British constituency worker.

Letters to The Editor

Why Not Build Disposal Plant?

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I would like to address this letter to the members of our City Council who are perennially looking for sites for the disposal of domestic garbage. If they will look through the files of the papers in the Digest or get the information from the office of the magazine, they will find an interesting article dealing with that subject.

It appears that several firms are willing to build plants if given a site and assured of an adequate supply of garbage and convert the same into fertilizers which in this territory should have a ready market. The garbage involves a matter of odor or taint and even if additional incentives were offered to any firm wishing to build, it would be more than off set by the employment of a number of people.

The site could be the present garbage dump situated on the east side of the Bay bridge road. It is close to the city and easy of access. It would still be used for at least some years as a dumping of earth and other solid fill.

The establishment of a processing plant would for a long time to come, relieve the city of looking for another garbage dump.

Teen Brothers Again Face Court Charges

Two teenage brothers, already on suspended sentences for earlier offences, were hailed into Belleville magistrate's court for separate offences today.

Grant Willshire, 19, on probation for escaping custody in Peterborough, was convicted of assault and remanded for sentence. David Willshire, also on suspended sentence for taking a car without consent, was fined $15 for having liquor.

Grant, noting he was already on good behavior, asked Magistrate T. Y. Wills for "one more chance."

"I have no power to give you one more chance," replied the magistrate. "You have broken probation. I can't suspend sentence — the law doesn't allow me to."

He remanded him for sentence next week.

Finlay David Willshire for the liquor offence, the magistrate noted the youth also was on probation.

"If (the police) want to take action for a breach, it is out of my hands," he told the younger Willshire.

Delegate Sees Centenary As 'Golden Opportunity' to Right Wrongs of Forefathers

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—The Community Planning Association of Canada Monday turned its attention from Info an Expo machine for community projects to mark Confederation's centenary in 1867.

The 500 delegates formed workshops to discuss, from regional viewpoints, what kind of projects should be undertaken and how they might best be financed.

An Ontario delegate saw the centenary as "a golden opportunity to right the wrongs of our slums and other civic blights. A Quebec group felt the centennial presents an opportunity for a nation-wide clean up campaign—an idea offered earlier Monday in the keynote address to the convention by Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie, president of the Canadian Centenary Council.

MIGHT GET TOGETHER

A Prairie and an Ontario group felt small communities might band together in communal projects—thus overcoming financial problems.

The federal government will pay one-third of provincially-approved projects for the centennial, provided the province and the sponsoring group match the contribution and the project is of a lasting nature.

Mayor I. C. Holton of Lindsay, Ont., reported his group will urge the Ontario government to establish a centennial body to give municipalities direction on such projects.

Guff and Guffaws

Blames Party

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP)—Dianne Mackeown, 25-year-old artist from Pittsburgh, arrived aboard the Queen Elizabeth Monday night blaming a champagne farewell party for her voyage to Britain.

"I had no intention of stowing away whatsoever," she said. "I went on board with only the clothes I was wearing and didn't even have a purse."

Miss Mackeown explained that she went aboard in New York to bid farewell to a Miss Cornelia Schwartz, travelling to Cherbourg. With her was Mrs. Carey, 29, of West Falmouth, Mass., and Mrs. Carey's 10 - month - old son.

"We all went to a champagne party," said Miss Mackeown. "We were all tired from being up the night before and flaked out and went to sleep.

"I heard no warning siren and I didn't wake up until the ship was three hours out to sea."

British immigration officials refused to grant permission to land and Miss Mackeown will go back aboard the Elizabeth Monday.

Mrs. Carey and her son left the liner in Cherbourg to fly back to the United States. Miss Mackeown said Her husband had cabled the fare.

Contact Lenses

ST. ANNE'S England (AP) —A leading British veterinary surgeon today advised tinted contact lenses for chickens.

"Chickens wearings rose tinted contact lenses are less flighty, more docile and much better behaved than those without them," said Dr. W. P. Blount.

He went further and asked: "If the tranquillizing effect of the lenses works on nearly tame farmyard hens, why not apply the principle to other farm stock, like a dangerous bull?"

Blount was reporting to a convention of chicken breeders on recent research in Britain and the United States.

To prove his point he produced a batch of tranquil hens gazing placidly at the chicken breeders through their rose-tinted lenses.

Gate Receipts Show Increase Over Last Year

CAMPBELLFORD — A combination of sunny skies and warm temperatures as well as a large list of entries combined to make Campbellford Fair one of the most successful here in many years.

Gate receipts totalled $1,987 on Tuesday afternoon representing an increasing of $300 over last year.

The harness racks attracted a large crowd of spectators, as did the chariot races, a new innovation in Ontario racing circuits. Two chariots, each drawn by a team of horses, competed. Both entries were from Markham, where two men, Henry Michell and Campbell Anthony decided to add a new form of entertainment to district fairs this year.

A total of 163 cattle were shown along with 71 horses and ponies. Judges said the entries in the heavy horse classes as well as the roadsters and carriage horse sections, were average or better, and grandstand patrons were entertained throughout the afternoon with steady parade of various types of horses passing before the judges.

Dr. Pauline Jewett, M.P. for Northumberland, officially opened the fair and stayed to watch the activities.

Money Grew On This Apple Tree

New Police Chief, Deputy Take Over Official Duties

The administration of Belleville police department changed hands this morning.

In a brief ceremony before magistrate's court opened, J. B. McLauchlan took the oath of office of chief constable, succeeding Walter R. Probert as head of the city's police force.

J. C. Clair Hayes, inspector of the department since 1943, and a veteran police officer, was sworn in as deputy chief.

The oaths were administered by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, with Mayor A. McLean Haig in attendance on the bench as the city's Chief Magistrate and member of the police commission by virtue of office.

For Chief Probert it was the termination of 21 years as head of the department during its present expansion. He first took the oath of office in Belleville in 1942, after service with the Trenton police force.

Chief Constable McLauchlan joined the Belleville department three years ago, after 17 years of postwar service with the Stratford force. During that time he was a leading executive figure in Ontario Police Association work. His major sphere of administration with the Belleville department up to this time concerned criminal investigation. When he assumed office the plainclothes branch was being expanded and his activities increased.

This morning's ceremonies were concluded in minutes. After Chief McLauchlan and Deputy Chief Hayes took their separate oaths, both were congratulated by Chief Probert, Magistrate Wills and Mayor Haig.

A group of Belleville citizens enjoyed a bus trip through northern Ontario, recently. Leaving Belleville and stopping at Tweed, Mazinaw, Eganville, and arriving at Algonquin Park, where dinner was enjoyed at the Lodge. The scenery was beautiful but due to a heavy snowfall the animals usually seen, remained in the woods. The group visited Bancroft before returning home.

Eskimo Wives Feed Hubbies Tasty Dishes

CHESTER FIELD INLET, N.W.T. (CP) — The housewife seeking dishes with a difference to add variety to her family's table may find something to her taste among menus gathered from the epicurean Eskimos of the Northwest Territories.

Raw caribou tongue is considered a choice morsel and generally reserved for an honored visitor or child of particular favor.

Or how about boiled caribou head?

This dish, loked upon with relish, is prepared in half a gasoline drum filled with water over a fire stoked with lichen, tark, a root herb that gives a tangy flavor to the dish.

Other favorites to stimulate northern appetites are "high" meat or fish or nerukka—the partially digested rumen of a caribou.

Ukkoserk—a large piece of "high" caribou liver is cooked slowly in a soft stone kettle over a seal oil lamp—also pleases Eskimo palates. The liver is liberally basted with caribou fat or, if available, seal oil.

Dried fish or pepsi with tiny squares of seal fat or nipko, which is dried caribou meat eaten with succulent pieces of fat taken from around the folds of the caribou's eyes or from the kidneys, are much sought after dishes in the North.

Few Frenchmen get as much pleasure from their snails and frog's legs as does the Eskimo from his own exotic dishes.

TROPHIES GALORE — Suzanne Fournier, 13, displays 26 trophies she won at highland dancing competitions in Canada and the United States. Dancing Highland Lassie Quits Counting Trophies

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP) — Thirteen-year-old Suzanne Fournier has won so many medals at highland dancing competitions that she's quit counting them.

"There are more than 200," she said, looking over her collection which fills a corner cabinet in per parents' suburban home.

She also has a dazzling display of 26 trophies won in Canadian and United States competitions.

Although her mother is of Scottish descent, it is Suzanne's French - Canadian father, Leo Fournier, who gets most excited when his blue-eyed daughter performs the Scottish dances with nimble palates. The liver is liberally basted with caribou fat or, if available, seal oil.

"If watch all her old movies on TV."

Suzanne already knows what she wants to be when tshe finishes high school.

"I'd like to be a clerk in the civil service like my sister. And of course, I'll teach dancing."

Suzanne tries dancing exams each year and expects to be a qualified teacher by the time she's 16.

AIDS WORK

Music piped into offices is said to inspire typists and stenographers to greater than usual efforts.

PRACTISES HARD

"Practice makes perfect," she says and that's exactly what she tells her friends when they try to inveigle her away to play.

"I guess mommy would make me quit my lessons if I didn't practise," she says, so she's made a schedule for herself.

Right after school she practises her dancing for 1½ or two hours, then she eats, does homework for about two hours and watches television or plays with friends.

The practising goes on wiiter and summer but twice-a-week dance classes are added to her winter schedule.

It all started seven years ago when Suzanne saw highland dancing at Ottawa's Central Canada Exhibition. She asked for and received dancing lessons as a birthday gift.

She was seven when she picked up her first medal at her first competition, held by the Caledonia Society of LaSalle, Que.

Three years ago she added tap dancing to her repertoire and this year she hopes to add ballet.

WANTS TO TEACH

Like her Grade 7 classmates, Suzanne has many interests. She likes to read mysteries and book about dancer. Lat winter books about dancers. Last winter she was in a musical play.

Her favorite dancer is Shirley Temple—the Shirley Temple of about 25 years ago.

An ideal kitchen helper is a toothbrush. It is especially handy for hard-to-get-at spots in egg beaters, food choppers, graters, etc.

WEDDING

McBRIDE — LaRUE

Baskets of pink and white gladioli and bouquets of white 'mums on the altar, formed a lovely setting in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church, recently when Mary Jane LaRue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford LaRue, Belleville was united in marriage to Ronald Edwin McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton McBride, Belleville. The Rev. J. A. Dunlop, minister of the church officiated.

Traditional wedding music was played which included the "Wedding March" and a vocal solo, "Wedding Prayer" was rendered by Mr. Tom Hinchey.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length sheath of white bridal satin highlighted with a flowing train outlined with appliqued roses. The bodice was enhanced with a bateau neckline edged with rose appliques. Her shoulder length illusiant veil of tulle illusion fell from a cluster of roses and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white 'mums and roses intertwined with English ivy.

The matron of honor, Mrs. T. Roberts, sister of the bride, of Carrying Place, and the bridesmaids, Miss Priscilla Wagner, Belleville and Miss Janet McClung, Trenton were similarly attired in pink dresses featuring full skirts. They wore matching pink shoes and their headpieces were clusters of roses extending over the forehead from the same material as dresses. Each carried a white basket of pink and white carnations and blue baby 'mums. The little flower girl was Miss Toni Roberts, niece of the bride, Carrying Place, who wore a pink frock and carried a tiny basket of pink and white carnations and baby blue 'mums. Master Wilson Cox, nephew of the bride was the nasty little ringbearer.

Mr. Richard Gates was groomsman, while Mr. Ron Cousins and Mr. Graham Stevenson were the ushers.

The reception was held in the hall at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church where the bride's table was most attractive, centred with a three-tier wedding cake decorated with pink roses and flanked with white candles in silver holders. Bouquets of baby's breath and forget-me-nots completed the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received, wearing a two-piece pastel yellow linen suit with matching shoes and hat, elbow-length white gloves and a corsage of white carnations and yellow roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, who wore a two-piece pale blue silk shantung sheath and jacket, with matching hat and shoes, white gloves and a corsage of white carnations and 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the Grey Rocks Inn, in the Laurentians, the bride chose a two-piece coral suit with matching shoes, flowered hat of varying shades of coral, white gloves and a corsage of white carnations and roses. Sterling silver jewellery completed her ensemble.

Guests were present from Watertown, Cornwall, Sudbury, Toronto, Kitchener, Montreal, Kingston and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. McBride are residing at 118 Gore Street, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Edwin McBride are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Mary Jane LaRue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford LaRue, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton McBride, also of Belleville.

Good Buys In Pork

by Mary Moore

The ease of preparation influences me in giving you two of the recipes for pork cuts today. Besides, a government bulletin informs me that the price of pork is lower this Fall.

I bought a slice of ready-to-eat ham steak and Eleanor bought a double boneless loin of pork. Both of us were impressed by the perfection of flavor and the ease of cooking them.

BAKED HAM SLICE:

Buy an uncorked or a ready-to-eat ham steak. One pound serves 3 generously. Place it on a shallow baking dish that will accommodate it. (I used a large deep pyrex pie plate.) With the back of a spoon spread ¼ teaspoon of dry mustard over it, being sure the narrow fat edge gets its share. Add enough milk to barely cover. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. I served ours with parsley-buttered carrots and lovely bright green quick-cooked Brussels sprouts.

(TUESDAY: (Guests)

Dinner Menu

Pouls au Riz (Poached Chicken Portions on Bed of Savory Rice and Tomatoes) topped with Rich Cream Sauce); Mixed Bowl Salad with 1000-Island Dressing; Lattice Grape Pie; White Cream Cheese; Tea.

ROAST DOUBLE LOIN OF PORK (approximately 3 lbs.):

Sprinkle the fat sides of the loins sparingly with salt, pepper and paprika. Place in roasting pan, fat-side up. Pour in hot water, and bake, uncovered at 325 deg. Fahr. about 2½ hours. If yours is a very thick double loin you may want to roast it for 2½ hours.

A loin like this is ideal with mashed potatoes. Pare medium-sized uniform potatoes and parboil in salted water for 20 minutes only. Drain. Three-quarters of an hour before roasting time is up place parboiled potatoes around roast, and turn them once or twice to be sure all sides are golden brown.

NOTE:

This double loin of pork is a good buy at around 69 or 79c per pound because it slices perfectly both hot and cold-making it ideal for the motherd who have school lunches to pack.

My daughter-in-law Margy is an expert at preparing shoulder roasts of pork. She makes ragouts of lamb and Chinese dishes with it to the delight of Pete, for these dishes are full of robust flavor — and are economical. The following Pork Ragout makes a dandy dinner for six.

PORK RAGOUT:

2½ lbs. lean shoulder pork, ½ up flour, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon margarine or shortening, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, ¼ bay leaf broken, 6 medium or 12 small white onions, 6 small potatoes, 1 cup turnip, diced, 1 box frozen green peas.

Cut the pork into 1½" cubes. To the flour add 1 teaspoon of the salt and ¼ teaspoon of the pepper. Dredge the pork cubes in this seasoned flour. Brown the meat in the hot margarine or shortening until golden on all sides. Just cover with hot water and add the remaining salt and pepper, Worcestershire sauce and bay leaf and cover and simmer 2 hours. Add all remaining vegetables except peas and cook until tender — about 15 or 20 minutes longer. To remaining flour add cold water smoothly, stir in till thick. Cook peas separately. Drain. Turn out onto centre of stew on platter.

MELROSE W.I.

A most successful meeting of Melrose W.I. was held last Thursday evening in Melrose Hall with Mrs. D. McLaren and Mrs. R. Badgley as hostesses. There was a splendid attendance and Mrs. M. Lanier, president, welcomed all, especially the ladies from Roslin and Belleville. During the business period an invitation to attend "Open House" at the County Home on October 10th was read and accepted and arrangements were made to furnish the required item for lunch. The leader of the girls' 4-H Club was notified of the dates for the training school on "The Milky Way" which will be held in Stirling. The delegates chosen for Trent Valley Area Convention at Club Canara in Belleville the last of October were Mrs. S. Genesja and Mrs. R. Hall. Mrs. R. Badgley, on behalf of Melrose W.I., made a presentation to a life member, Mrs. R. MacFarlane, who has moved to Belleville.

With the stage, Mrs. R. Fox, Convener of Health, took charge of the program which opened with community singing, followed with Mrs. J. McLarin at the piano. Mrs. Fox read a most interesting article on the crippling disease "Arthritis," which afflicts three times as many women as men. Mrs. R. Hall, Carleton followed with a humorous poem, after which Mrs. Genesja read a paper on self-helping on "Rearing the Child." Mrs. W. English read an informative paper on "Mental Health" by Dr. Hilliard.

Mrs. Fox introduced the speakers of the evening — Mrs. J. Marsh of the Cancer Society and Mrs. W. Donaldson who spoke on the Canadian Mental Health Unit.

Mrs. Marsh showed a film "Time and Two Women," which is a medical approach to the necessity of early diagnosis and treatment in cancer and stressing the need of constant vigilance of every woman in the care of her own body.

Following the film there was a period of discussion of the work of the Cancer Society and were told of a workshop where women gather and make dressings for cancer patients.

Mrs. McLaren thanked the speakers for their interest and friendly approach to two public items of health and presented them with tangible gifts.

Roll-call, "A Poison That Might be Found in the Home," was well answered and revealed a number of common items in that category. The lunch conveners served tea and refreshments and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

BETHEL - ZION W.I.

BETHEL-ZION — The September meeting of Bethel-Zion W.I. was held at the church hall with a good attendance of members and visitors from the neighboring Institutes.

It was decided that the Bethel-Zion W.I. would assist the CNIB in their annual fund raising campaign. Mrs. Don Sills, Mrs. Fred Wellman, Mrs. E. Wilkinson and Mrs. R. Robson will canvass this area.

Following the business meeting Mrs. Mariam Russell sang a solo.

"Time" was the subject of a paper given by Mrs. Lucille Kilty, district president.

Dorothy Batchelor, Home Economist with Poultry Products Institute, gave an interesting demonstration on how to make a turkey roll. During her demonstration she gave many helpful hints on buying and preparing poultry.

Dorothy Batchelor was thanked by Mrs. Roscoe Robson on behalf of those present for an informative and interesting demonstration.

Live to live, not live to eat was the subject of a paper prepared and given by Mrs. Gerald Tummon.

The evening concluded with lunch after which the ladies enjoyed a display of hand work that was brought by members.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

MAIL CALL

Question: I'm figuring out a budget for my forthcoming wedding, and have included all floral decorations for the church and the reception. My mother and several other relatives say this is not correct, that the bridegroom pays the entire florist bill, including bouquets and boutonnieres as well as decorative floral arrangements. Would you kindly let me know what I'm supposed to pay for? — C. M. E., Newark, N. J.

Answer: The bride pays for the floral decorations for the church and reception and, in most cases, pays for bouquets carried by her attendants. The groom usually pays for the bride's bouquet and her going-away corsage, boutonnieres for his attendants and both fathers and corsages for both mothers. Customs, though, do vary from one community to another, and sometimes the bridegroom pays for the flowers for the entire wedding party, although the bride still pays for the floral decorations. A local florist who specializes in weddings should be consulted about the current custom in your community, and will be able to advise you.

Question: My husband recently was promoted to an executive position. A secretary goes with his new job. Before this, he got help from the secretarial pool. My husband calls his secretary by her first name. When I have reason to speak with her on the phone, should I do the same? Since he's never had a private secretary before, I'm not sure how formally I should behave toward her. — Mrs. D. D., New York City

Answer: An executive may call his secretary by her first name. It's a common practice in many firms. But, regardless of company policy along this line, an executive's wife addresses his secretary as "Miss Smith." The same formality is observed with other members of the firm she may have occasion to meet or speak with over the telephone.

Park Dale H-S Hears Talk on Kindergarten

The first monthly meeting of the Park Dale Home and School Association was held last Monday evening with Mrs. Norma Reid presiding.

A short business meeting was held with nominations received and accepted for the 1st vice-president and recording secretary.

Mr. Bob Mott accepted the position for the former and Mr. Rob Ray the latter.

These gentlemen are replacing Mr. and Mrs. A. Arbuthnott who have been transferred to Bramalea.

The principal, Mrs. William Slack, introduced the teaching staff.

Mrs. Josephine Reddick gave the members information on oral French, which will be taught at the school, starting in October, after school hours.

Mrs. Reddick introduced Miss Betty Grills, the new kindergarten teacher, who gave a talk on "A Day In Kindergarten."

Miss Grills explained what the normal procedure was in the kindergarten class from the time a child arrives for school, until he leaves for home again. Miss Grills mentioned how much work has been covered so far with the children and what her aims are for the coming months.

Mrs. Ann Abbott from the Public Health Department, along with Mrs. Peters, brought the meeting up to date on what the Public Health Department does for children in the schools.

A film called "Frustrating Fours and Fascinating Fives," was shown and enjoyed by everyone present.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Reddick, program chairman, for a most enlightening meeting.

The room count was won by the kindergarten afternoon class.

The meeting adjourned and refreshments served.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

HOW MUCH DO YOU REALLYSPEND ON CLOTHES?

As many of our readers will remember, last spring we had an inquisitive column in the form of a questionnaire. It asked all sorts of impertinent questions concerning money, clothes and fashions. We were delighted with the response, as several hundred completed questionnaires were received. We have spent every spare moment since then, counting, tabulating and analyzing the results.

Our first conclusion is that there is no such person as the average Canadian woman. But enough evidence has piled up to reveal that we do follow set buying patterns and in our own illogical way, we use a general formula.

It is revealing to note that a time after time, the question concerning the number of pairs of stockings used during a year shows that we all feel that we have to spend too much money. Many thoughtful readers admit that they have their own method of selection, care and preservation of nylons. Most of these notes also, in a past history of quality buying, followed by the statement that high-priced hose erupted into runs just as quickly as unknown and less expensive brands. Not one reader admitted to paying more than $1.25 for hosiery and many showed a preference for "sale-priced" stockings. The general feeling in this part of the questionaire was that the high price of such thing as hosiery with a longer life than two weeks of regular wear.

MAJORITY PURCHASE LESS EXPENSIVE HOSIERY

According to published Canadian statistics, the average price of a pair of "brand name" stockings is $1.50, while the unbranded quality sells for $1.05. Very nearly 100 percent of our readers report that they never pay more than $1 a pair.

Another and surprising fact was that the majority of readers report that they are willing to pay almost twice as much for a foundation garment as they will pay for a summer dress. The average woman buys a summer dress for $10.26 to $12.98, but she will go as high as $25 for the necessary underpinnings. This good fashion sense has been the message of the foundation garment industry in its national advertising campaigns for years. Some readers confessed to having experimented with less expensive foundations, but they found these did not wear well or lacked the necessary support found in higher priced garments. Others say that they buy these lightweight, less costly foundations for summer wear only, while others report that they watch for the sales of brand name garments. This calls for planning and careful budgeting in order to take advantage of the bargains. But most of our readers seem to be adept at budgeting.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Non-Strikers Escorted Into Hanover Plant

HANOVER, Ont. (CP)—Non-striking workers at Hanover Kitchens (Canada) Limited were escorted into the plant by 16 provincial policemen in eight cruisers Monday, past lines of jeering union members.

Local 2500 of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) has been on strike at the plant since May.

Chief Frank Illingworth of Hanover police said one brick was thrown, but no damage was caused. Between 350 and 400 union members lined the route to the plant in the morning, then left for their own jobs at other plants in this community 35 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

No union members were near the plant when the non-strikers left Monday night under police protection, but neighbors jeered from their front porches, police said.

Hanover Kitchens has obtained five injunctions against picketing, and production at the plant has continued.

Of the 65 members who worked at the plant when the strike began, all but three are reported to have obtained other jobs. The union has 700 members in five other plants here.

CLOSE CAFETERIA

MONTREAL (CP)—The University of Montreal, locked in a squabble with the student body over the price of meals, announced Monday the university's main cafeteria will be closed indefinitely, effective today, following a breakdown in negotiations. The university increased the price of meals to 85 cents from 75 last Tuesday and most of the students refused to pay the additional dime.

Heads Urge

4. Residence to movements that would introduce junior colleges that would give university-level work.

5. Make the learning process more attractive to lessen the number of drop-outs.

6. Provide help for university expansion.

The question of greater use of French in high school was necessary "if it is desired to produce truly bilingual citizens," the report said.

It foresaw that students would have to be trained in the actual use of French rather than just introduced to the language.

"It is at least questionable whether the present system (under which no secondary school subject is taught in French except French) should be continued indefinitely; it causes the French - speaking pupils to lose their facility in their mother tongue and it fails to give the English-speaking pupils a real command of French," said the report.

What the university heads recommended to help take the strain off their overcrowded institutions would be called colleges of technology and applied arts. The new institution would be paid for by governments at the federal, provincial and community levels. The curriculums would be locally controlled with the assistance of provincial authorities.

Thus, the universities could continue their traditional function and standards without denying further education to "the thousands of good students whose aptitudes are different from those required for university work," Observise "if you make the universities do things that are not their proper function, you ruin their chances of doing properly the things that they alone can do," the report stated.

She Can Fill With Cotton What God Has Forgotten

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I enjoyed the letter from the flat-chested school teacher who "filled with cotton what God had forgotten." It was an amusing letter and seemed to make sense when I read it, but now I'm not so sure.

I'm a fairly attractive 18-year-old — another one of those whom "God has forgotten." I have been tempted many times to go to a lingerie store and buy myself an improved figure, but one thing holds me back. What effect would such deception have on a husband when he learned he had been tricked? Would he feel cheated and hold this trickery against his wife? I hope my letter doesn't sound too stupid to print. I really would like an answer. — READY FOR STUFFING.

DEAR READY — No real man would attach any importance to this whole cotton pickin' issue.

Go to the lingerie shop, Honey, and take care of what God has forgotten.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What can I do about a 46-year-old wife who thinks she's a teen-ager?

Our 17-year-old daughter is a sensible, popular gal whose friends, both boys and girls, enjoy congregating in our rumpus room. We are not objecting — in fact, we're happy to have them here, but I do believe that my wife should not hang around (wearing Capri pants and a low-cut blouse) the entire evening and behave like one of the kids.

My wife is an excellent dancer and is up on all the latest, but our daughter tells me she finds it embarrassing when her mother does the mashed potato and the horse, the rabbit, the monkey and the rest of those foolish dances.

My wife insists she is really chaperoning the kids without letting them know it. I would like your views on this. Thank you. — TWINKLE TOES' HUSBAND.

DEAR HUSBAND — Chaperoning my eye. Your wife is really reliving her girlhood and giving that 17-year-old a run for her money.

Parents should be at home when their teenagers entertain but they should not plunk themselves in the middle of the group and try to be one of them.

Mothers who are young in appearance, and lively hoofers as well, should make every effort to cut down the voltage in the presence of their daughters' boy friends. Often without realizing it, they are competing with their daughters and this spells deep trouble.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been married for 30 years to a man who is turning into an over-sexed alcoholic.

He drinks almost a case of beer every night and even more on weekends. When I tell him he is becoming an alcoholic he points to his work-record (he has not missed a day in six years) and insists that people cannot be alcoholics if they stick to beer and work regularly.

I admit it's amazing that his work-record is so good. I also find it amazing that he can be so amorous just before he passes out — which he does almost every night.

Is it possible that he is right and I am wrong? Can it be that a person who drinks only beer is safe from alcoholism even if he does pass out regularly? He says beer makes him feel good but he insists he has never been drunk in his life. How about this?—AGGRAVATED EDNA.

DEAR AGGRAVATED — Your husband is full of hops. Beer contains alcohol and a person can get knee-walking drunk on three bottles of beer or less — depending on his threshold of tolerance.

Beer drunks are especially difficult to help because they usually deny that they are alcoholics. And there is no help for a person who refuses to admit that drinking is a problem.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Standing

Valachi swore Friday he is out to destroy the syndicate because Genovese gave him the kiss of death and ordered him slain while both were serving sentences in the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison last year.

sweeping to victory in Cowichan-Newcastle, commented:

"There is obviously no stability in Social Credit government so we carry on until the next election."

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault won a close fight in North Vancouver and said later voters should "be of good heart because this is truly the beginning of a new day in this province."

He saw the fact that his party retained its five seats was an indication that the Liberals had been accepted as "the party of the middle way."

Mr. Fulton said:

"Nobody let me down; we were not ready. . . We started the fight only five months ago. The fight for good government continues and we will remain in the fight but it will take longer."

FOUGHT GOOD FIGHT

He fought a neck-and-neck battle through much of the night with Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi. It was a personal disappointment for Mr. Fulton to lose provincially the area he represented federally for nearly 20 years.

One of the strongest fights of the night was between Social Crediter Herb Capozzi, general manager of the British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference and Liberal J. Gordon Gibson in North Vancouver. Mr. Capozzi lost.

A second scoreboard was installed at Empire Stadium where Capozzi's team beat Calgary Stampeders 32-14. One gave the game score, the other the election returns.

Earlier forecasts were for a heavy vote but fewer ballots were cast Monday than in either of the two previous elections.

In 1956 Social Credit captured 46 per cent of the popular vote —a figure which fell to 39 per cent in 1960 but which climbed to 41 per cent in Monday's voting.

For the NDP (successors to the CCF party) the percentages were 28, 33 and 28 respectively. For the Liberals it was 22, 21, 20.

The Conservatives showed steady increases from three per cent in 1956 to six per cent in 1960 and 11 per cent this time.

Power was a top issue in the short, sharp campaign—so significant that Progressive Conservative organizations in Peace River North and Peace River South did not put forward candidates stating that they supported Mr. Bennett's announced policy of developing the Peace River hydro electrical simultaneously with that of the Columbia River.

Mr. Fulton had said he would have postponed Peace River development for the present.

Another prime topic during the campaign was the New Democratic Party's proposal for a $50,000,000 medical care plan.

Prominent names fell before the disapproval of voters.

In Burnaby, incumbent NDP candidate Cedric Cox was beaten by Social Crediter Charles MacSorley. At the earlier part this year was criticized within his own party for accepting an expenses-paid tour of Cuba from the Castro government.

John Norris, son of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, failed in his bid to take a Vancouver centre seat for the NDP; John Green, son of the former external affairs minister Howard Green, failed in Yale.

Mayor Bill Rathie of Vancouver, defeated on the Liberal ticket in the riding of Vancouver Point Grey, summed up the Social Credit victory.

"Well," he said, "I guess you don't shoot Santa Claus."

Major

Conservatives stood for a fundamental shift in the arrangements so that Canada's slice of the power would be retained by B.C. rather than sold.

The New Democrats also backed the so - called McNaughton plan — fathered by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton — that would have shifted the entire storage-dam sequence to boost power-producing capacity along the Canadian section of the turbulent river.

Mr. Pearson told David Pugh (PC — Okanagan - Boundary) Monday that only one or two details remain to be settled. He hedged on whether they might rate as important—or whether the Liberal pledge of "adjustments and clarifications" in the treaty with the U.S. are major. He himself thought they were, he said.

These changes will be packaged into a treaty protocol which the U.S. Congress must ratify. He also said one other matter remains unsettled between B.C. and the U.S.

The treaty and the protocol will come before the house of commons external affairs committee before any ratification procedure in Parliament, the government has promised.

MONEY CAN BUY HAPPINESS

Only a small amount of money will buy a great amount of enjoyment when it's used to buy a group portrait of your family. Chief Justice of Sask. Best After-Dinner Speaker

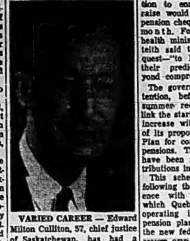
By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP)—Edward Milton Culliton, 57-year-old Chief Justice of Saskatchewan, offers a modest explanation for his popularity as an after-dinner speaker and the many requests over the years for him to serve as chairman of committees and campaigns.



"I'm one of those fellows who find it hard to say no."

But those who know the tall, spare, youthful - looking jurist are aware it took more than an acquiescent nature to earn him recognition in religion, politics, law and sports.

For whether his activity of the moment happened to be a meeting of a provincial curling executive, a gathering of Roman Catholic laymen, a term in the military or a scrum into the political trenches, he inevitably found himself in the forefront.

And when he was appointed chief justice last Nov. 23, succeeding Emmett Hall who was named to the Supreme Court of Canada, it was no surprise to those who had watched his career as a jurist.

Although his appointment to the bench in February, 1951, as a successful political barrister, he says he has never regretted the shift. "It's a great challenge."

VARIED CAREER — Edward Milton Culliton, 57, chief justice of Saskatchewan, has had a varied career in sports, law, politics and religion. He now serves on the boards of three Regina hospitals and is chairman of a provincial government law reform committee.

(CP Photo)

AMERICAN BORN

Born of Irish-Canadian parents in Grand Forks, Minn., April 9, 1906, he was brought to Elbow, Sask., when his parents moved six years later.

He graduated in law from the University of Saskatchewan in 1926 and two years later was admitted to the bar, setting up practice in Gravelbourg.

Among his most celebrated cases were his defences of Jack Dockendorf, a 16-year-old farm armed robbery of a Weyburn Security Bank at Codette, Sask., and Joseph Pallemont, charged with murder in the shooting of his brother-in-law. Both were acquitted.

Edward Culliton was first elected to the Saskatchewan legislature in 1938 as a Liberal for Gravelbourg. At 29 he was the youngest member in the House.

Re-elected in 1938, he was taken into the cabinet as provincial secretary under Liberal premier W. J. Patterson. He later served as provincial treasurer.

In 1939 he married Katherine H. Hector of Gravelbourg. They have no children.

He resigned his cabinet post in 1941 and joined the Royal Canadian Artillery, rising to the rank of major. During his service with the army he was attached to the judge advocate branch in London.

SOUGHT LEADERSHIP

After discharge he returned to provincial politics but was defeated by 46 votes in his old riding in the 1944 election. Two years later unsuccessfully sought the provincial Liberal leadership when Walter A. Tucker, Saskatoon member for Rosthern, was named to succeed Mr. Patterson.

He won his old seat back in the 1948 election and two years later became his party's financial critic and whip.

During this time he was active in the church and last September was honored by the Vatican when he was named Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory.

He was chairman of the Saskatchewan Golden Jubilee celebrations in 1955, the University of Saskatchewan golden jubilee in 1959 and the Saskatchewan subdivision of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in 1961.

He now serves on the boards of three Regina hospitals and is chairman of a provincial government law reform committee.

On May he was elected chancellor of his alma mater, a month after the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Curling Association elected him its president.

CUT SAFETY COST

TORONTO (CP) — A plan to make auto seat belts available to all municipal employees at cost has been approved by suburban North York Township council. The council also ordered all township-owned vehicles be fitted with seat belts.

Unions

The CMU has only about 500 members on lake ships while the SIU claims about 15,000 members, with about 7,000 actually at work.

While the feud between the SIU and the CMU lies at the heart of the dispute, there are other issues at stake—including the extent of U.S. union control in Canadian labor.

DENOUNCED SIU

After a year-long inquiry, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris denounced the Seafarers' International Union of Canada and its controversial leader, Hal C. Banks of Montreal as a "state within a state" that terrorizes shipowners and seamen and threatens the economy of Canada.

The judge proposed a government trusteeship over the SIU and also over three other trade unions and the marine section of a fourth as the only way to oust the corrupt influences he exposed in his massive report to the government.

His finding received support Monday in a personal statement issued by Claude S. Crowe, a former history professor who is research director of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

Mr. Crowe, who played an unsung role in uncovering much of the evidence and many of the witnesses during the Norris inquiry, fired a sharply-worded blast at AFL-CIO leaders.

He charged that they are threatening the independence of Canadian labor by their actions in the marine labor problem.

SAYS HALL 'UNDESIRABLE'

Mr. Crowe issued a five-page statement with the authority of CBRT Vice - President Elroy Robson in which he opposed Paul Hall, boss of the SIU of North America, as "every bit as undesirable" as the Seafarers' International president, the American-born Mr. Banks.

"The activities of Paul Hall and actions inspired by Hall are damaging, perhaps irreparably, the international union movement in Canada," he said.

He warned that Mr. Hall's continued activity could precipitate a "sudden nationalist conflagration" which would be "most damaging to the labor movement generally and to the interests of all Canadian trade unionists.

Labor Minister MacEachen met Monday with the top officers of the CLC for a two-hour conference on the situation.

"I'm still intending to go ahead Wednesday with the threatened legislation," Mr. MacEachen told reporters after the meeting.

"Nothing solid has developed yet that would warrant any change in plans.

Mr. Gordon said there has been "some discussion on a possible private solution "but nothing has been finalized."

$100 Million

on the resolution continues today.

Mr. Pickersgill urged fast action to ensure that the $10 raise would be in the October pension cheques issued late this month. Former Conservative health minister J. Waldo Monteith said the government request—"to help them out of their predicament" was beyond comprehension.

The governments original intention, before the Commons summer recess, had been to link the start of the $10 pension increase with the inauguration of its proposed Canada Pension Plan for contributory, portable pensions. The increase would have been financed from contributions into the new plan.

This schedule was changed following the Sept. 9-10 conference with the provinces at which Quebec said it will be operating its own provincial pension plan and doesn't want the new federal plan.

MUST SEPARATE

Miss LaMarsh told the Commons it was evident that the $10 boost in the universal old age pension had to be separated from the proposed contributory Canada Pension Plan. Otherwise residents of a province outside that plan would benefit from contributions from other provinces.

The Commons got no indication of how soon the government will be proceeding with legislation on the Canada Pension Plan.

Prime Minister Pearson said that will depend on decisions taken by the provinces concerned, especially Ontario which has legislation on the books for its own pension plan.

Miss LaMarsh said the government "sincerely hopes that the Canada Pension Plan will be instituted before too long."

PCs SCOFF

The pensions debate produced some partisan heat from Conservative ranks.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker scoffed at the "conversion" of the government to his party's call last July for an immediate pension boost.

Mr. Montelth said the government had booboed and was "trying to cover up with what should rightfully go to the elder citizens.

Conservative Miss LaMarsh, who made numerous politically-flavored speeches about pensions during the Ontario provincial election campaign, limited her comments to a speech mainly to a plain-facts outline of the situation.

Mr. Knowles, NDP member for Winnipeg North Centre, praised her self-restraint.

He urged her to "get the chip off her shoulder as to where the opposition lies to a proper pension plan." The opposition came from outside Parliament.

Mr. Knowles also urged Miss LaMarsh to try "a little wooing of the Ontario government" instead of continuing her "sledgehammer tactics."

Mr. Benson entered the debate to defend the rise in personal income taxes as the most equitable way to pay for the pension increase.

The NP for Kingston and right-hand man to Finance Minister Gordon argued against an increase in the other taxes now earmarked for the universal pension fund—a three-per-cent sales tax and three-per-cent income tax on corporation profits.

Mr. Benson said the June 13 budget extended the sales tax into new fields—building supplies and industrial machinery —while corporations were already carrying a heavy tax load.

WILL ABIDE BY DECISION

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canadian Life Underwriters Association members are content to abide by the decision of any full-scale inquiry into the pension and welfare needs of Canadians, says Reginald L. Kayler, general counsel for the 11,000-member association. Mr. Kayler was here Monday visiting life underwriter groups from Kent and Essex counties and informing them of the implications of the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

Marriage Between Races

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am going with a boy of the opposite race. His mother doesn't like me at all and she says our children will be hurt. We feel it is too far in the future to worry about our children.

We also feel that if our love is as strong as it is now then our children will learn to face the problems we now have. What do you think about this?

We plan to go to Hawaii to live, as my boy friend wants to be a cook and feels Hawaii is the place.

Doris, we also want your advice on how to face the problem of our constant quarrelling over little things. —MILLIE.

DEAR MILLIE — Will your children honor your union or resent their uncertain status? Think about this — now! I can't decide for you, except to say that marriage between persons of similar race and background carries enough hazards to keep counsellors and family courts overworked.

Has it occurred to you that there is a connection between your quarrels and the tensions you are living under? My private letter to you discusses this.

DEAR DORIS — Could you please give me the names of two or three careers which are much in demand for girls, and do not require university? — AVERAGE STUDENT.

DEAR AVERAGE — Nurses can take training in a hospital, after high school, with pay increasing as they learn. Teachers of kindergarten or public school need just one year at teachers' college. There are physiotherapy courses which take just two years of specialized training.

Secretarial courses, training for telephone operators or for telephone service representatives is available to girls with secondary school education. Then there is a broad field for saleslades, if your talents go in that direction. Want any more?

DEAR DORIS — Ten years ago on a visit to New York City, U.S.A., I met and married an American. Two years later I came back to Canada and never returned to the States. My husband wrote and told me he had divorced me six months after. I have remained here. Shortly after hearing from him I remarried. Two years after my second marriage, I received news from my Husband No. 1 saying he was setting up residence in Las Vegas to divorce me and not to contest the divorce.

Now my problem is this:

1. When I married Husband No. 2 I know now I committed bigamy, but since I have papers to prove I'm divorced from No. 1, am I still bigamous?

2. I have four children. What happens to them if marriage No. 2 is not legal, as I don't want to remarry anyone?

3. Is it wrong to remain in this house with the children and raise them if this marriage is not legal, or better to get a stranger in as housekeeper and leave? Husband No. 2 says to do what would make me happy — stay or leave! — BIGAMIST OR NOT?

DEAR B. OR N: —

1. Can you prove you married H. No. 2 in good faith? Bigamy implies deliberate deception.

2. They have no legal status — which is grossly unfair to them — and may make life difficult later.

3. You mean pull out and leave the children? It may be more legal but is certainly less right, morally. What is the impedient to marriage to their father now?

Confidential to WORRIED — Either your friend is jealous or she is a busybody. Don't trust her with your secrets. I doubt if her stories will disturb your 18-year-old boy friend — but has it occurred to you that both he and she are too old for you?

3 Million African Tribesman Of Transkei to Rule Selves

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

PONDOLAND, South Africa (AP)—About 3,000,000 African tribesmen of Transkei move into a human display window of limited self - government of white-ruled South Africa this fall.

There are picks around that can smash the window—tribal rivalries, indifference to politics, hostility to the central government, economic problems.

But Premier Hendrik F. Verwoerd's white government is set on giving the Negroes a taste of self-rule. The aim is to try to sell the world on the idea that South Africa's apartheid (race segregation) policy will work.

Much of the administration in Transkei will be turned over to African civil servants next month. State elections will be held in November. A limited self-governing state will be in operation by Christmas.

Transkei — it already means "across the (river) kei"—is a pleasant land of fertile mountains on the eastern coast of South Africa. Its area is 64,000 square miles, about four times that of Southern Rhodesia.

FORM TRIBES

The people are the Xhosa, divided into numerous tribes with age-old rivalry.

The people know little about self - government because the chief's word is law—at the present times.

There are more than 800,000 Xhosa men and women registered for the legislature elections in late November.

The Africans, however, will find much has already been decided for them. They will elect only 45 of the 109 members of the legislative assembly. The other members will be 64 tribal chiefs, automatically elected. Critics say these chiefs are nothing but white government stooges.

Further more, President Charles R. Swart of South Africa can veto any act of the legislature.

RETAINS CONTROL

The South African government retains control of defence, foreign affairs, roads, railways, ports and immigration. Six white government administrators will head various departments and assist in training Africans for state jobs.

Transkei will have its own flag and anthem and the official language will be Xhosa.

Political turbulence centres around the scores of tribal chiefs and hundreds of headmen — all having their own views on how the state should be governed.

Four paramount chiefs form the political nucleus of the new black government. Powerful leaders of the major Transkei tribes, they all seek the swag job of chief minister in the new government.

Will Soon Start Gouging Zinc, Copper, Gold and Silver From Three Mines

By JEAN-JACQUES MARTEL
Canadian Press Correspondent

MATAGAMI, Que. (CP) — A multi-million-dollar mining development carved out of the evergreen wilderness of northwestern Quebec is about to swing into production.

By mid-October, men and machines are to start gouging zinc, copper, gold and silver from three mines.

It will mark the climax to a five - year drive to push the frontier far enough back to permit exploitation of the mineral deposits of Matagami Lake Mines Ltd., Orchan Mines Ltd. and Noranda.

Where virgin forest stood in 1958 there now is a brash boom town boasting indoor plumbing, juke boxes, electricity and a population expected to exceed 5,000 when the mines reach full production.

Matagami, 400 miles north-west of Montreal, has highway and rail links with the outside. A 118-mile highway was built north from Amos, Que., for $3,000,000 under the federal-provincial roads-for-resources program. The CNR built a 60-mile link northwest from Kiask Falls at a cost of $3,000,000. Hydro-Quebec strung transmission lines 135 miles north from Pandora, Que.

HUGE INVESTMENT

Noranda's investment to bring the three new mines to the production stage has been estimated at approximately $50,000,000.

Main - product of the mines will be zinc, although copper will be mined along with some gold and silver. About half the zinc output is expected to go to Europe and the remainder to the United States.

Mills at the pithead will crush and grade the ore and reduce it to concentrates. The zinc concentrates will be carried by train to Valleyfield, 30 miles southwest of Montreal, where a new Noranda refinery will convert them into metal. Copper, gold and silver concentrates will go by train to Noranda for treatment at refineries there.

The new mines and the refinery at Valleyfield are expected to provide new jobs for 1,000 men.

SEE WIDE PROSPECTS

And veteran-residents of the north are saying the opening of the new mining town is only the beginning. Already prospectors are moving north from the town to Waswanipi Bay.

Some look on the town as a potential site for a pulp and paper mill because of huge forest reserves nearby. Others say the area's streams could supply additional hydro-electric power.

While talk of mining dominates the town's conversation, education and politics are other subjects.

A modern school has been built at Matagami for both French- and English-speaking children. The school's director is Abbe Paul Bernard, a missionary priest in the area for several years. The schools are between the Protestant and Catholic school commissions of the area have been described as an example for the rest of the country.

The town will soon be called on to elect its first council. The present council was appointed by the Quebec government. The mayor is Mastai Lemieux, a land surveyor who was a pioneer in the area.

BOOMING TOWN — Modern homes dot the streets of Matagami, Que., a mining town that has come to life in the last five years. Income Tax Explained

A column designed and written for the working persons, who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Dept.

A large number of taxpayers each year are mixed up in their dividend and interest income, when it comes to claiming the $20 per cent dividend credit which does not apply to interest. A Canadian dividend is the income received from common or preferred shares of stock issued in any company that pays taxes to Canada. Interest is received from bonds, mortgages, debentures, loans and savings bank deposits. A Canadian company must pay a tax on its profits before a dividend is declared. Therefore the money the stockholder receives in dividends has already been taxed by the government. To avoid taxing this same money again after it has been received as a dividend by the stock holder, a credit of 20 per cent of the dividend received may be deducted from the gross tax on the taxpayers return.

Should this tax credit exceed the tax payable, it cannot offset the old age security tax included in the gross tax. The taxpayer is always liable for the old age security tax which is the lesser of 3 per cent of the taxable income of $80. There are a number of Canadian companies that do not qualify their stockholders for this 20 per cent dividend credit. The company may have its headquarters in Canada but its operations are in another country, therefore it pays its taxes in the country where the income is earned.

Examples of such companies are Brazilian Traction and International Petroleum. When you are in doubts as to the qualification of your dividends for the 20 per cent credit, you should check with your nearest Income Tax Office or write to me, as I always have an up-to date list.

Question No. 1 — Why does the Income Tax Dept. always delete my claim for 20 per cent dividend credit on International Milling Co.

Answer: This is not a corporation which pays taxes to Canada.

Question No. 2 — Is the 20 per cent dividend credit, deducted from the amount of dividend received or from the Income Taxes?

Answer: A dividend credit is deducted from your Income Tax payable. It is only depletion allowance that is deducted from the dividend itself. See a following article on this subject.

New Zealand's Relations With Britain Have Been Cooling in Last Few Months

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand's relations with Britain have been cooling markedly in the last few months. The critical mood now prevailing runs deeper than occasional outbursts of indignation in the past.

The spirit of disillusion was expressed recently by New Zealand Prime Minister Holyoake when he warned the country might face profound political changes in its relations with Britain and other members of the Commonwealth.

Many Commonwealth nations, he said, view with profound misgivings Britain's likely association with the European countries. Cores of attachment binding certain countries to Britain had begun to fray.

"There is a point beyond which an international association cannot be adapted, beyond which the relationship becomes so attenuated and so elastic as to provide no cohesiveness or sense of purpose."

Such sentiments from a New Zealander in ministerial counsel to say the least. The British connection has always been the whole basis of New Zealand policy.

FOLLOWED BRITAIN

New Zealanders have prided themselves on being "more British than Britain." An earlier prime minister summed up the country's policy in the phrase: "Where Britain goes we go; where she stands we stand."

The British application to join the European Economic Community jolted New Zealand feelings, but even so the country continued to base its approach to the question on complete faith in British assurances that New Zealand's vital interests would be safeguarded.

Now that faith is dissolving. Trade discussions since the failure of the British approach to the EEC have not been reassuring.

A butter quota system was approved earlier this year as a safeguard against a glutted on the British market and in return for this protection New Zealand agreed to relinquish the remaining Imperial preference on butter.

But New Zealand feels Britain has administered the agreement since then to its own ends, instead of to check dumping. British refusal to agree that any breach of the spirit of the agreement has occurred has led to further recriminations.

ASKS QUOTA

Against this background, British pressure for a quota system for meat imports has had an even less sympathetic reception.

New Zealand meat interests maintain the purpose of the British request is to ease support payments to domestic farmers and any benefit to New Zealand would be decidedly incidental. They claim New Zealand interests would be submerged as in the case of the butter agreement.

New Zealand sees all the British moves as evidence of continued determination to shape the British agriculture system so as to make it more acceptable for eventual entry to the EEC. It feels Commonwealth ties are being pushed increasingly into the background.

BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT LABOR COUNCIL

CHARTERED BY CANADIAN LABOR CONGRESS

TO ALL MEMBERS OF AFFILIATED UNIONS:

At this time of year I would like to convey a message to all members of Organized Labor in Belleville and District, on behalf of the Belleville United Appeal.

The Executive Members of the Belleville and District Labor Council wholeheartedly endorse the the work of the United Appeal. We urge the Members of Affiliated Local Unions to give a warm response financially and morally to this worthy appeal.

Once a year our community is asked to give generously to assist those health, welfare and youth guidance organizations who so ably help to make Belleville and the surrounding areas the fine place that it is in which to both live and work.

We can never assess the value in a monitory sense of building character in youth, of helping the sick, those who are bedridden with arthritis, the blind who walk in a dark world, the people of communal disasters, etc. We who are fortunate to have steady employment at a decent living wage and are of sound body, should be only too happy to give freely to such a worthy cause.

You, the Members of Organized Labor have been generous in past appeals of this nature, we can do even better this year so let us help to raise the needed $85,000.00 necessary for next year's operations. We urge you to use the payroll deduction plan wherever this is possible.

With your support, the twelve agencies which constitute the Belleville United Appeal shall be able to fulfill their responsibilities for the ensuing year of 1964.

Fraternally yours,

LEO LUCCIOLA,
Acting President,
Belleville and District Labor Council,
Canadian Labor Congress.

Red Marriage Ceremonies Impress Mayor

TORONTO (CP) —Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton said Monday Canada's civil marriage ceremonies are "deplorable" compared to those conducted in the Soviet Union's marriage palaces.

Miss Whitton was giving her impressions of the Soviet Union, which she visited for 13 days last June, to members of the Toronto Women's Canadian Club.

The marriage palaces give dignity to the exchange of vows and "combine the dream of the church and social workers into one," she said.

A couple must apply for a marriage license at least a month before they hope to be married and are then interviewed by the palace staff of social workers who, after consultation with the parents, set a definite date for the wedding. City officials take an active part in the ceremony, giving it even more dignity, said Miss Whitton.

HAVE EQUAL STATUS

She said she was impressed with the equal status given women in the Soviet Union—they manage factories, sweep city streets and do many other jobs done only by men in this country.

More than 53 per cent of Russia's professional people, including 30 per cent of the engineers and 74 per cent of the doctors, are women, she said.

In the political field, women serve as city councillors, reeves of villages and on the Supreme Soviet, the central governing body.

Canada "should apprehend the strength of the immense Euro-Asian power now in renaissance," said Miss Whitton.

She said the cult of communism, which is taking its place beside Islam and Christianity, is shifting its attack from one of military force to an attack on men's minds.

NEGRO FINED

CLEVELAND, Miss. (AP)—City Judge Carmon Valentine Monday night found Cleve McDowell, expelled negro student at the University of Mississippi, guilty of two traffic violations and fined him $36. McDowell, 21, was arrested early Sunday and accused of speeding in a 35-mile zone and of driving without lights.

AUCTION SALE of used heavy construction equipment yesterday at the H. J. McFarland Company site north of the city drew buyers from all over Eastern Canada and Northern United States. How Prominent Candidates Fared in B.C. Election

VICTORIA (CP)—How prominent candidates fared in Monday's British Columbia general election:

Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett easily won his fifth electon victory in Okanagan South constituency.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black was the first cabinet minister returned, his election coming little more than an hour after the polls closed.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter was returned in the farming riding of Similkameen.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, a prominent figure in power controversies in the province, won re-election in Fort George riding.

Davie Fulton, who left federal politics to lead the Progressive Conservative party in B.C., lost to Highways Minister Phillip Gaglardi in Kamloops.

Earle Westwood, recreation minister in Premier Bennett's government, was defeated, the only cabinet minister to go down. The result in Nanaimo and the Islands riding produced the only New Democratic party gain from Social Credit.

Robert Strachan, New Democratic Party leader who led an opposition of 16 members in the last legislature, won re-election easily in Cowichan - Newcastle riding on Vancouver Island.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who is also minister of trade and industry, was returned in the big three-member constituency of Point Grey.

Ray Perrault, who has led the B.C. Liberal party since 1959 and led a five-man group in the last House, was returned in North Vancouver.

John Green, son of former veteran federal external affairs minister Howard Green, went down to defeat in his first political try in Yale riding. He ran as a Progressive Conservative.

Frank Calder, first Canadian of Indian descent to be elected to the B.C. legislature, retained far-northern Atlin seat for the New Democratic Party.

Pearson Says No Demand Shift Ministers

By EN ELLY

OTTAWA (CP)— Prime Minister Pearson categorically denied Monday night that there is any basis of fact in reports that Liberal MPs are demanding he shift Finance Minister Gordon and Health Minister LaMarsh to other posts.

A statement from Mr. Pearson's office about the reports said:

"I have already denied, and I deny now categorically that there is any basis of fact in these reports."

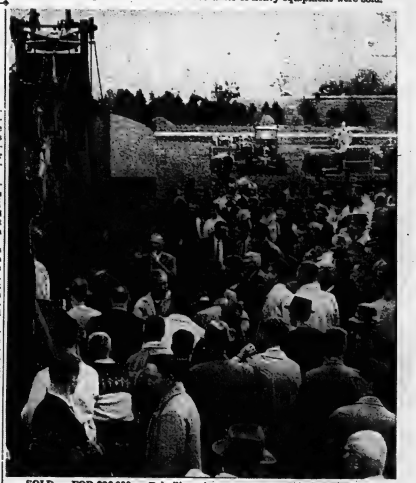
The reference to a previous denial arose as a result of a comment made by Mr. Pearson after a morning cabinet session. At that time, he said it did not look as if anybody's head was going to fall because of a weekend caucus meeting of Liberal MPs.

Reports that the two ministers were under heavy fire sprang from the weekend caucus conference at which informants said the cabinet was given "brutal" criticism by Liberal backbenchers.

The reports were drawn to Mr. Pearson's attention as he left a cabinet session.

CALLS IT 'UNIQUE'

"The Liberal caucus had a most useful and valuable session," he remarked. "In cabinet this morning we have all been discussing it and agreed how valuable it was to have this unique kind of meeting.



"We thought it was a most productive and helpful meeting and that it will strengthen the good relationship between the cabinet and the ministers.

"That doesn't look as if anybody's head is going to fall because of this meeting."

Reporters later suggested that his statement neither confirmed nor denied the reports and Mr. Pearson's office issued the new statement.

Mr. Gordon got into hot water in the Commons earlier this session after his first budget.

Miss LaMarsh ran into trouble on the Canada Pension Plan with Ontario, Quebec and the insurance companies.

SOLD — FOR $26,000 — Rebuilt mechanical shovel worth around $60,000 new, is knocked down for $26,000 at yesterday's equipment auction. Sale was conducted by Forke Brothers of Lincoln, Nebraska, with five family members taking turns at auctioneering.

The first Belleville municipal bridge of the post war era — the CNR overpass on North Front Street — is getting final grooming in readiness for official opening ceremonies scheduled for October 10th. View of the new structure is seen looking west along tracks.

Wide four lane roadway of the new CNR railway overpass on North Front Street is in direct contrast to the narrow two lane long obsolete structure it replaces. Paving of the bridge approaches and bridge deck is now underway. Fourteen North Front Street homes were razed to make way for bridge approaches.

Construction Companies Sell Used Equipment at Auction

The second-hand machine age came to Belleville yesterday in Ontario's most costly auction of the year.

Thousands of dollars changed hands every few minutes in on-the-block bidding as construction companies across the province offered used equipment for sale at the H. J. McFarland Construction Company yards.

The event drew buyers from six provinces and five U.S. states, ranging as far west as Oregon.

Close to 290 pieces of road building equipment, ranging from bachoe buckets to mammoth earth movers kept the bidding going steadily for nearly seven hours.

The display, marshalled in uniform rows across the McFarland property bordering Highway 401, looked like an empire-builder's dream. However, the crowds it drew didn't allow for any sleeping as far as the auctioneers were concerned. Neither the auctioneers themselves allow the bidders to dawdle.

On hand to conduct the mighty disposal sale were among North America's expert salesmen in the field - - Forke Brothers, of Lincoln, Nebraska, a firm that has been auctioning equipment around the continent since 1921.

Using portable loudspeakers, the auctioneers moved rapidly down rank after rank of construction machines, with a crowd always swarming on their heels.

CANTEEN OPERATING

Fast, but fair, they carried on from 9.30 a.m. into the late afternoon, with the sale.

The fairness was carried all the way down to the company's catalogue which meticulously listed each piece of equipment and its condition, even breaking it down in spots to the condition of separate parts.

Mobile canteens set up on the field early in the day so that would-be buyers could stay throughout the auction without leaving for refreshments.

The crowd, however, was expected. From early morning two police officers were stationed at the entrances to keep traffic flowing smoothly. Despite intermittently heavy traffic caused by the nearby junction of highways 401 and 14, there were no accidents.

Ferry Loaded With Cars Sinks in River

MIDLAND, Pa. (AP)—A ferry boat loaded with cars sank in the Ohio River today after being struck by a tow boat in heavy fog, Midland police said.

Police said there were 10 cars on board the ferry carrying commuters from Midland to Shippingport and all but one person aboard had been accounted for.

Police did not know how many persons were on board at the time of the collision.

A boat from the Montgomery Island dam was on the scene quickly to aid in the rescue.

Prepaid Dental Care Expected In Few Months

TORONTO (CP)—One of two pilot projects aimed at testing the feasibility of prepaid dental care can be expected in Ontario within a few months, Dr. Wesley J. Dunn, registrar of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario, said Monday.

Dr. Dunn told a joint conference of the Ontario Public Health Association and the Ontario branch of the Canadian Institute of Sanitary Engineers that the plan would be non-profit and under-written by dentists in the same manner as Physicians Services Incorporated provides medical care by doctors.

The college is trying to set up a group of dentists who could be incorporated under Ontario legislation allowing for the establishment of prepaid health plans.

Dr. Dunn described the task of setting up a prepaid dental scheme as far more difficult than establishing a health plan. It is nearly impossible to measure expected demand for dental treatment as a basis for premiums.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Yankee fans are said to be depending on the Bronx Bombers' lethal weapon, the home-run sometimes administered to a leading farmer when it is most effective—the ninth inning—to bring home the world series bacon.

Dodger adherents pin their hopes on the good flippers of Koufax, Drysdale et al to tame the Bronx bludgeons and with timely clouts and speed on the bases wrench the title from the proud Gothamites.

Bad news for the guys whose pool ticket numbers are in top figures is the expert opinion that the series will not produce any big scores because of the fine pitching of both the Yankees and the Dodgers.

This opinion, pins the world series records, give the peelers with the lower numbers the edge. The record states that more series' games have been won before the fifth inning than after it, not counting overtime games.

Here are some more series records facts. There have been 30 extra-inning contests, the longest one, 14 innings in which the 1916 Red Sox beat the Dodgers 2-1. Most world series runs are scored in the fourth inning, but don't ask why.

The longest and shortest world series games, by time, were played by the same teams, the Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs, whose 1908 entries clipped off one game in 85 minutes and whose 1945 representatives went three hours, 26 minutes to a decision (12 innings.) The longest nine-inning game was 3:36, a 21-run affair between the 1936 Yankees and Dodgers.

The team that won the second game usually was it all (35 out of 23 until 1963) but suddenly the charm reversed itself and in only one of the last seven series did the second-game winner take it all.

A team that gets bobbled, once win to three, has a handicap that has been overcome but twice in a seven-game set—by the Pirates in 1925 and the 1958 Yankees. And no team ever won the series after losing the first three games in a seven-game deal.

Smallest crowd—only 6,210 saw the fifth game of the 1926 series at Detroit—and television not invented yet. Pepper Martin's five stolen bases in the seven-game 1931 series are most talked about but the Cubs' Jimmy Slade stole six bases in five games in 1907. Walter Johnson had to wait 18 years after he broke into the majors to play his first world series.

Only two players have stolen home in the last 57 series—Monte Irvin on Allie Reynolds' high pitch in 1951 and Jackie Robinson on Whitey Ford in 1955 —but nine in all have done it. None, however, with the winning run in the ninth.

Earliest world series was played in September 1918 on account of the war and the latest, October 25, 1911, on account of rain. Only two clubs—the 1910 and 1913 Athletics—ever went through an entire series without a change in their starting lineups. But the 1947 Yankees and 1961 Reds used 21 players in the final games—and lost anyway.

Quotable Quotes:—In Texas they say a pitcher never runs out of gas; that's heresy. They say he's out of oil . . . The Phillies' Don Hoak has a way to stop the Dodgers' Maury Wills from stealing bases: "Just wait" the man in front of him!" . . . The Angels' Rocky Bridges took one look at six-foot-six Steve Hamilton and gasped: "He's the only man I've seen who can look down on a fly ball."

Asked the difference between the two major leagues, Cincy's Joe Nuxhall wryly observed: "In the American League I noticed the parks are built differently—I could see the ball land there after I threw it."

A broadcast of a Houston game startled fans who weren't aware the Colts also are known as the .45's for the announcer proclaimed: "There are .45 players on first and third. That's better than the daffy Dodgers did in the old days at Ebbet's Field. There have been three tie world series games: Cubs-Tigers, 1907; Red Sox-Giants, 1912, and Yanks-Giants, 1922—12, 11 and innings respectively.

Bob Cleroux Retires From Ring

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob Cleroux of Montreal, 25-year-old Canadian heavyweight champion, announced Monday he is retiring to devote full time to a business career.

Cleroux, badly beaten by Zora Folley in his last fight, said he has accepted "a sound business offer."

"It is better to make certain of a business future with a good salary than to go along with boxing which is an uncertain way of making a living."

At one time Cleroux was ranked among the top 10 heavyweight contenders.

Here's The Odds on The Series!

NEW YORK (AP)—The Broadway odds favoring the New York Yankees were 7½-5 in man-to-man betting on the World Series Monday with Whitey Ford of the Yanks a 5-5 choice over Los Angeles' Sandy Koufax in Wednesday's opening game at Yankee Stadium.

The price against the Yanks sweeping the Dodgers in four straight was 10-1. The odds against a Dodger four - game sweep were 25-1.

Koufax Said OK, Will Pitch ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Yankees Favored 7½-5 Over Dodgers

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The odds favoring the New York Yankees by 7½-5 returned to normal today as did the reports on the temperature of Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' brilliant left-hander who will pitch the World Series opener at Yankee Stadium Wednesday against Whitey Ford.

The odds began to fluctuate as rumors flew that Koufax, who posted a 25-5 record during the season, had come down with the flu. When the Dodgers arrived in New York late Monday night, Koufax said he never had the flu, only a slight cold.

"It's all over now," said Koufax.

Dodger Manager Walter Alston, asked about Koufax' cold, said briskly:

"Tell them he'll pitch."

While Alston was expressing no doubt about his pitching ace, he was concerned about third baseman Ken McMullen.

FULLER RESTRICTED

McMullen pulled a hamstring muscle last Thursday and has not played since. Alston thinks the youngster will be able to start but if he cannot, Jim Gilliam will switch over to third base and Dick Tracewski, a light-hitting, good-fielding reserve, will open at second base.

"Even if the muscle pull is healed," said Alston cautiously, "McMullen will have been out five or six days and may not be in shape we'd like. And whether the leg will stand up is something we'll have to wait and see."

Alston also was highly vexed with the pitching performance of veteran left-hander Johnny Podres — the probable second game starter — against Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night. The 30-year-old left-hander, who shut out the Yankees in the final game of the 1955 World Series, was pounded for eight runs and 12 hits in two 2-3 innings. Included were two home runs.

"I wanted him to stay in five or six innings to get the work since he hadn't pitched all week," said Alston. "I left him in until it got so embarrassing I had to take him out."

The Dodgers' late arrival enabled the Yankees to engage in a long workout during which Ford, lefty Al Downing and right-hander Jim Bouton took long turns pitching. The trio is expected to start all the games, even if the Series goes the seven-game limit.

NAMES PITCHERS

"Ford and Downing will pitch the first and second games here," said Yankee Manager Ralph Houk at the end of the workout. "It will beBouton in the third game in Los Angeles."

Unlike Alston, Houk has no player problems.

"The club is in the best condition it's been all year," Houk said "Mickey Mantle is running better than at any time since he got hurt and Roger Maris' back doesn't seem to be bothering him now."

There had been some talk that Houk might decide to pitch Bouton, his young 21-game winner, in the second game instead of Downing, who was hit hard in his brief relief against Minnesota Saturday.

Houk said the scouting reports on the Dodgers confirmed what everyone knows—that the Dodgers are built on speed and pitching.

"PITCHING SERIES"

"Everyone figures it's going to be a pitching series," he said, "and they could be right. But you never know. It may go the other way.

"Last year because of the Giants' power, everybody figured it would be a hitting Series and it turned out to be a pitching Series.

"This Dodger team cannot hit with the Giants of 1962 but we're not underestimating them. The Dodgers have fine hitting, great speed, good pitching and a better defence than we heard."

Best In Eastern Conference

Jackson Top Passer, Carrier

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It isn't hard to pick the outstanding offensive player in the Eastern Football Conference if statistics are a guide.

Russ Jackson, Ottawa Rough Riders' Canadien-born quarterback, not only is the best passer in the east but the best ball carrier—at least on average gains a carry.

Jackson's outstanding play is one of the big reasons why Ottawa sits atop the EFC standings with a 5-3 record when the team was an almost unanimous pre-season pick for last place.

He has completed 80 of 142 passes for 1,551 yards—an average gain of 10.9 yards. And on 39 carries, he has rushed for 225 yards—5.5 yards a carry.

George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes is the rushing leader in total yards with 634 on 129 carries which makes him by far the busiest ball carrier in the Big Four. His average carry is 5.4 yards.

Moe Racine, Ottawa's talented place - kicker, still leads the scoring race with 46 points four better than teammate Dave Thelen and Dick Shatto of Toronto Argonauts, who have seven touchdowns and 42 points apiece.

Thelen also moved up in the rushing department during the last week. The Ottawa fullback is second to Dixon with 482 yards on 81 carries.

In punting, young Gino Bercetta of Montreal has booted 70 and averaged 42.0 yards — almost two yards a punt further than Joe Zuger of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Dave Mann of Toronto.

Czech Star Signs With Maroons

CHATHAM (CP) — George Kren, 25-year-old centre who defected to Switzerland while on a tour with the Czechoslovakian national team, is the second player to sign with Chatham Maroons of the International Hockey League.

Chatham manager Gus Mortson signed the forward Sunday after seeing him at the Toronto Maple Leafs' training camp in Peterborough.

Kren skipped the Czech team Dec. 31, 1962.

The first player to sign with the Maroons was Sudbury native George Uuitalo, a right winger.

Roaring BC Lions Stampede Stamps

Saskys Edge Bombers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Not since the club's inception in 1954 have the British Columbia Lions roared with such authority on the Canadian football scene.

The Lions opened a three-point lead in the Western Football Conference Monday night with a 29-14 triumph over Calgary Stampeders. In another WFC battle at Winnipeg, the hardrock Saskatchewan defensive unit sparkled again as the Saskatchewan defeated the Blue Bombers 13-10 to tie Calgary for second place.

British Columbia made it three straight over Stampeders with a brilliant passing attack spearheaded by quarterback Joe Kapp, who clicked for three touchdowns with speedy end Mack Burton.

More than 32,000 fans in Empire Stadium watched the action and kept an eye on the B.C. election results flashed on a second scoreboard.

One man torn between two duties was Herb Capozzi, genial manager of the Lions and a Social Credit candidate in the election. Capozzi's party swept back into power, his Lions were ferocious — but he lost in his first political attempt.

KICKS 5 POINTS

In addition to Burton's outburst, the Lions got a touchdown from Pat Claridge—again on a pass from Kapp—and a field goal, four converts and a single from rookie Peter Kempf.

Quarterback Eagle Day and fullback Lovell Coleman scored touchdowns for the Stamps and Garry Robinson booted both converts.

The victory gave Lions an 8-3 record and 16 points. Calgary and Saskatchewan have 6-4-1 records. Winnipeg now is in fourth place with 12 points, eight ahead of Edmonton.

The game opened up early in the second quarter as Coleman charged 50 yards through centre to set up Calgary's first touchdown, a two-yard sweep by Day.

Lions nullified that score two plays later. Nub Beamer returned the Calgary kickoff to the Stamps' 49 and Kapp then hit Claridge on the sidelines with a touchdown pass.

SET UP TD

Willie Fleming broke loose for 42 yards to set up the first of Burton's touchdowns, a 27-yard pass at the goal line. The convert gave Lions a 15-7 halftime lead.

Burton's other scores came on a six-yard toss in the third quarter and a 16-yard pass in the fourth.

Stampeders scored one touchdown on their all-out drive in the fourth quarter. Coleman made the one-yard dive after a series of pass completions by Day.

Day completed 18 of 30 passes for 190 yards, while Kapp rolled up 333 yards on 19 completions in 32 attempts. Stamps smashed for 178 yards on the ground to British Columbia's 129.

At Winnipeg, the fabulous Roughrider defence finally yielded a touchdown—the first in five games—but it was the defensive team that won the ball game.

Halfback Dale West intercepted a Winnipeg pass from Kenny Ploen in the first quarter and returned it 80 yards for the touchdown.

SPOILS RECORD

The villain who spoiled the amazing Roughrider defensive record was fullback Roger Hagberg who scored Winnipeg's lone touchdown. George Flem ing booted a field goal and a convert to complete the scoring.

Martin Pahl was a kicking machine for the winners—booting singles of 77, 67 and 37 yards with the help of a wind at his back. He averaged 50 yards on his 12 punts.

Other Saskatchewan points came on a fourth-quarter field goal by Reg Whitehouse.

Bernie Faloon had 27 first downs to Saskatchewan's 10. They rushed for 224 yards and passed for 184 while Roughriders made 118 along the ground and only 76 through the air. Ploen, Hal Ledyard and Dick Thornton were good on 12 of 22 passes while Ron Lancaster and Frank Morocks completed seven in 12 attempts.

Kenmors, Galt Undecided On Series

OBA Senior finalists, Belleville Kenmors have finally learned who their opposition will be in the titular series but as yet not much else has been decided about the series.

Galt will supply the opposition in the championship affair, having ousted Campbellville in their half of the semi-finals.

The Belleville club would like to play a three-of-five series while Galt is said to favor a two-of-three affair. This matter is under discussion at the present time.

An effort will be made to have two games played this weekend, possibly in Galt Saturday and back here on Sunday afternoon.

The Belleville club has already announced plans to play their home game early, likely at one o'clock, so it will not interfere with the telecast of the World Series game from Los Angeles later in the day.

Length of the series and definite playing games are expected shortly.

Softball Game Series Washed Out

The second game of the OASA Juvenile "A" semi-finals, between Galt and Belleville, was washed out in Willowdale last night and shortly after the entire affair was a thing of the past.

Elmer Woods, sponsor of the Woods - Horlock team, said: "We have called the whole thing off, the boys are not interested."

Thus Belleville forfeits the series, actually for the second time, and Galt will enter the Ontario finals.

GOING CHEAP

WEST SHEFFORD, Que. (CP)—A two-storey brick school house built exactly 100 years ago has been sold in the village of West Shefford for $1, to be used as a town hall. Local children now attend schools in nearby Waterloo.

Jones, Chatham To Play on Neutral Field

Belleville Jones Motors have withdrawn their protest of the second game of the OBA Juvenile "A" championship series with Chatham, it was announced here this morning.

Jones won the first game in the 2-of-3 set here 3-1 but lost the second game in Chatham 6-2. The third game was to have been played in Chatham this coming Sunday but plans have been changed.

Dave Bell, OBA convener from Western Ontario has ordered the third game to be played on neutral grounds, with neutral umpires. The Belleville club was not too happy with the officiating in the Chatham game.

Efforts are being made to have the deciding game played in Campbellville this weekend. A definite announcement is expected shortly.

Chuvalo Scared Clay Will Duck

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo, former Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, fears that Cassius Clay will back down on a promise.

Clay, the No. 1 contender for Sonny Liston's world crown, said he would sign to meet the winner of the Chuvalo-Mike Dejohn fight last Friday at Louisville, Ky.

Chuvalo won the brawl on a majority decision but fears Clay now may change his mind.

"I am scared he won't take the fight," said Chuvalo, who is awaiting word from Clay at his Toronto home. "Although, before I beat DeJohn, he said he preferred to meet me because I was rude about his small arms."

Feeling with Clay for a prefight publicity picture, Chuvalo felt Clay's biceps and quipped: "See, you must be a welterweight."

Clay, who had predicted Chuvalo or DeJohn would fall in five rounds, threatened to lower the prediction on Chuvalo when the Canadian bruiser minded his manners.

IS CONCERNED

Chuvalo's concern is understandable. His largest take in a fight was $22,500, when he lost his Canadian title to Robert Cleroux at Montreal.

He figures to earn as much as $125,000 in a fight against Clay in Clay's hometown of Louisville. Because of his brawling style over DeJohn, Chuvalo is somewhat of a villain in the eyes of Louisville fight fans. With a good percentage, Chuvalo could clean up.

How would he fight the Louisville Lip?

"Crowd him," said Chuvalo. "He likes to box. I don't think I know how to fight him. I saw him on TV against Archie Moore, Harold Johnson and Alex Miteff. Best way to slow him down, or anyone else for that matter, is hit him in the body."

The league schedule will open on Monday, October 7. No games will be played on Thanksgiving Monday.

The executive elected for the season consisted of: President, J. Davidson; 1st vice president, B. Storms; 2nd vice president, D. Epstein; secretary, D. Andrews; treasurer, G. Blaind.

Works Edge Firemen 3-2, Lead 3-1

The Public Works moved to within one victory of the Inter-departmental softball league championship last night by nipping the Fire Department 3-2.

The Works lead the four-of-seven final three games to one with the next tilt scheduled for CNRA Park, Wednesday evening, at 5:30.

Last night's game was a tight one with the Firemen leading until Gord Green slammed a home run to make it 3-2 in the sixth inning. The winners shoved home the deciding run in the seventh and final frame.

Both clubs played good ball, collecting just five hits apiece, with the winners making one error and the losers two.

Gary Reid struck out four while pitching the win. Green was his catcher. George Woodhouse and Al Ryan formed the losing battery, Woodhouse langed three.

Gord Green's homer was the big blow for Public Works. Other hits went to Coates, Pierce, McIlvoy and Lacey.

Lyle Wannamaker rapped a pair of doubles in defeat with other safeties going to Grant Parks, Harry Dmford and Al Ryan.

TO REALIGN LEAGUES

NEW YOR (AP)—Commissioner Ford Frick said Monday that a preliminary study of realigning the two triple-A baseball leagues pointed toward 12 teams in the International League and eight in the Pacific Coast League. Each team operated with 10 clubs in 1963. Frick said no firm decisions have been made.

Lions Face $250,000 Damage Suit

DETROIT (AP) — Former tackle Gil Mains of the Detroit Lions brought a $250,000 damage suit Monday against the National Football League club, a hospital and the team physician, alleging improper treatment of a knee injury suffered in 1961.

Mains, who also played for Toronto Argonauts in the Canadian League, also sued the Lions for an additional $15,000 for salary allegedly due him for the 1962 season.

The suit named Detroit Osteopathetic Hospital and Dr. Richard A. Thompson, team physician, as codefendants with the football club.

Mains hurt his left knee in a game between the Lions and the San Francisco 49ers Oct. 1, 1961. He claims he is crippled permanently.

Pay $85,000 For Five Yearlings

TORONTO (CP)—J. Louis Levesque of Montreal spent $85,000 Monday as he purchased five of the 18 yearlings sold at the annual yearling sale at E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm here.

Levesque bought one of the two yearlings which sold for $25,000, top single price for the day. Each yearling was sold for prepriced at $50,000 and thrice at $35,000.

Levesque's $25,000 buy was a bay colt by Victoria Park out of Bright Flash. Victoria Park is Canada's greatest money winner and was 1960 horse of the year.

Five of Victoria Park's offspring were sold, including the other $25,000 purchase by Allen Case of Todmerden, Ont. This was a bay colt out of Ivy.

A total of $252,500 was realized with a record average price of $14,531. Previous record of $13,607 was set last year.

SWITCH COACHES

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians released pitching coach Mel Harder Monday and announced he will be succeeded by Early Wynn next season. No reason was given for the switch. Harder, 53, had been with the Indians since 1927. Wynn, a 43-year-old right-hander, joined the Indians in May after he had been released by Chicago White Sox.

Tiny Hermann, Place-Kicker In Football for 50 Years

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Tiny Hermann is without a football job this fall for the first time in half a century.

The place-kicker and convert specialist from Halifax, a former RCMP fingerprint expert who displayed the most highly touted toe in Canadian football history, has laid aside his cleats for the last time. His was the foot that so often in the 1930s salvaged victory from looming defeat or Ottawa Rough Riders.

Now 57, Charles Bismarck Hermann is a successful insurance agent here.

He relinquished his final football post, as coach of Ashbury College in suburban Rockcliffe Park Village, at the end of last season.

"He is a figure that will be remembered," the students wrote in tribute in their school magazine on his retirement.

"He could, and often did, work miracles with weak or indifferent material. . . . How many times, in all weathers, have we seen his towering, monumental figure on the fields at practice hours, blasting, demonstrating, encouraging, while his bellow made the panes rattle in the upper windows."

OWES TO SPORT

Tiny's approach to moulding Ashbury into a powerful football unit reflects his own philosophy.

"A successful sports personality has a responsibility, an obligation, to pass on the knowledge accumulated over the years," he said while relaxing beside a newly-installed swimming pool in the back garden of his West End home.

"That's why records are always being broken. Someone has learned from another what he had found out by hard experience.

"If I had the physical capacity today that I had at 18 plus what I now know at 57, no doubt my own achievements would have been more notable."

Still a fit 280 pounds with a stubby moustache adorning a friendly smile, six-foot-three inch Tiny modestly reviewed the career that won him a trunkload of trophies as a champion track and field athlete and all-Canadian all-star in both English-style rugger and Canadian football.

STARRED IN TRACK

"Memories fade," he said, "but I like to remember when a sports club in Glace Bay chipped together in the hard depression days of 1932 and found $50 to send me to the Canadian athletics championships at Hamilton."

Then on detachment duty with the police in Cape Breton, he more than amply repaid this act of faith and generosity. At Hamilton, he mounted the gold medallist's rostrum as triple winner of the hammer, shot and discus events.

His athletics' prowess, however, has been overshadowed in the public eye by his football career, which began at the tender age of seven at King's College School at Windsor, N.S.

There, he learned English rugger and the art of kicking converts and field goals from every angle. Later, he was on the Maritime championship Halifax Wanderers team.

As a lieutenant commander in the navy in the Second World War—he commanded various escort vessels in the submarine-infested North Atlantic—he returned to his native Nova Scotia and helped put Canadian foot ball on the map there. Organizing a squad of former Big Four men then in service uniforms, he was in the HMCS Stadacona team that thought enough of itself to challenge for the Grey Cup.

PERSONAL PROWESS

Tiny's personal introduction to Canadian football was at the age of 27 in 1933 after being RCMP fingerprint laboratorian in Ottawa. It took two or three years to master what amounted to a brand new game for him but by 1936 he was an all-Canadian inside wing with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four.

Sports writers wrote of Riders' surviving on "a prayer and a kick" as Tiny's place-kicking squeezed a series of vital, narrow victories for his club. His neat half-step forward to propel deadly accurate soccer kicks between the goal posts won him the league's scoring title in 1937.

By this time editorial writers were urging that Ottawa take out a steel insurance policy on Tiny's toe and an anonymous poet wrote:

"O) Powerful Tiny Hermann toe,
A mighty digit thou!
To thee, our grateful thanks we owe."

Even the game officials sang his praises. Said Herc Crichton: "Hermann, with all his size, is one of the cleanest players in the game."

COSTLY MISCUE

Not all Tiny's kicks found their mark, of course. One that missed was a much-publicized boot that might have sent Winnipeg Blue Bombers down to defeat in the 1939 Grey Cup final, in which Winnipeg defeated Ottawa 8-7. With Ottawa, he was in three Grey Cup classics, in 1936, 1939 and 1940. In 1936 they lost to Sarnia, when there was no east-west final. They beat Toronto Balmy Beach in another all-eastern Grey Cup in 1940.

After the war, Tiny took up coaching here, at Carleton College, St. Patrick's College, Nepean High School and for the last 10 years at Ashbury College. From this standpoint, he makes this appraisal of modern football:

"It's better played and better coached, and the athletes are much better trained than we ever were."

He now runs his own insurance business with the basement of his home serving as an office. Also in the Hermann household are his wife, Loretta, daughters Carolanne, 19, and Phyllis, 17, and dog Skippy.

Also early risers, he eats two soft-boiled eggs and coffee for breakfast as part of a rigorous diet; does not drink nor smoke.

For exercise, he takes dips in his pool, gets out regularly on golf courses and in winter sweeps up district tilles on the curling rink. Top curler in the city of Ottawa Somplid this year, one of his pet projects now is a curling rink at the scene of the Canadian curling championships in 1967.

Red Hickey Quits

Frisco Loses Game, Coach

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Red Hickey is out, Jack Christiansen is in but the question still remains the same: Can San Francisco 49ers win in the National Football League?

Hickey, the fiery redhead who starred at Arkansas and played end for Los Angeles Rams, quit Monday in the wake of a demoralizing 45-14 loss at the hands of Minnesota Vikings.

Hours later Christiansen, out of Colorado State and a six-year pro with the Detroit Lions' defensive secondary, was named in Hickey's place.

Christiansen joined the 49ers in 1958 as coach for the defensive backs, the same season Hickey took over as head man, relieving Frank Filchock. Hickey had been a 49er assistant and an assistant with the Rams.

Hickey said he had considered the move for a couple of weeks "unless we started winning." But the loss string grew to 10 straight—two from last year's regular campaign, five in the pre-season this year and three regular season's games this year.

"In this game you either win or move on," Hickey declared . . . "It was either quit or put them in the embarrassing position of having to fire me." Hickey said he left the 49ers with amicable relations and he had no immediate plans.

President Vic Morabito emphasized Christiansen's appointment was for only the remaining 11 games this year.

See Bumper Salmon Run For Fishermen in 1964

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Confidential memo to anglers: Don't let your husband go fishing for Atlantic salmon next summer. You might not get him back until fall.

Federal fisheries scientists, stated by this years' successful increase in the Atlantic salmon run, are looking to 1964 as possibly the best year for salmon fishermen since they began keeping accurate angling records in 1948.

Dr. V. L. Pritchard, director of conservation at fisheries headquarters here, says that barring some unpredictable occurrence at sea, next season's run of adult Atlantic salmon that have spent two years at sea may be one of the finest in recent memory.

Such salmon weigh between 10 and 20 pounds. Considering that this king of game fish has fighting energy equal to its weight in dynamite, the incidence of fishing widows could reach awesome levels.

HEAVY SMOLT RUN

The bright outlook is based on this evidence:

In May and June, 1962, abnormally large numbers of smolts moved out of the prime salmon rivers into the sea. Smolts are baby salmon (four to seven inches) that have spent two or more years in fresh water after birth, in New Brunswick's famed Miramichi River alone, more than 2,000,000 ocean-bound smolts were counted.

Salmon grow at fantastic rates in salt water. Some return to the rivers to spawn as grilse, four to seven pounders. Others stay out two to five years, reaching 40 pounds and more. These are referred to as large, or adult, salmon.

This year's big catch was expected to be up 25 per cent from 1962 on the basis of a normal grilse return from the 1962 smolt movement. Instead, it has jumped more than 40 per cent. When final figures are in, the Maritimes catch may top 50,000 fish compared with the 32,000 landed last year. Newfoundland reported 30,000 salmon caught with almost a month of the fishing season still to go. That topped the modern record of 28,000 fish set last year.

CONDITIONS PERFECT

Grilse have come pouring up the Miramichi dam on the Southwest Branch of the Saint John River in New Brunswick, fisheries men counted 30,000 salmon upbound through the fish ladder by Aug. 15 and by Sept. 5 this year the count reached 4,912.

On the Miramichi, the June grilse count at one station was 1,000 compared with 181 the preceding year. The June angling catch on the Miramichi system was 10 times higher than in five of the two previous Junes.

What happened?

"The smolts obviously ran into perfect conditions at sea," Dr. Pritchard explained. "All though the salmon's sea life is still much of a mystery, it must be assumed that the 1962 smolts found abundant food and low predation."

Past records show that a high grilse return is almost invariably followed by two or more plentiful years of larger fish. Thus 1964 prospects are excellent.

ADVISED BY SCIENTISTS

This year's salmon revival, after four near-disastrous seasons, is the first big payoff in a crash program of salmon management by federal and provincial fisheries scientists. Without the program this rich fishing might never have recovered from the ravages caused by forest spraying, mining pollution and dam development.

In the 1954-60 period particularly, forest spraying destroyed and water pollution from mines killed millions of baby salmon in the rivers of New Brunswick. The Maritimes angling catch plunged from 50,000 in 1953 to 23,500 in 1960. The 1962 Miramichi gave up 45,000 salmon to anglers in 1958; only 14,000 in 1960.

Now the strength of the DDT spray has been reduced by half, mining wastes are being better treated or diverted, fishways have been made around dams, hatchery work increased, spawning beds improved and controls clamped on such fish-eating birds as the merganser duck.

These steps have increased the survival rate of the baby salmon in the rivers, fishways more are reaching the sea to eat their way towards the spawning rivers which calls them back to their native streams.

Thomasburg Wins Int. D Softball Title

THOMASBURG—The Thomasburg softball team has captured the OSAA Intermediate "D" championship by completing a two-game sweep over Electric this past weekend.

Thomasburg, playing the best ball of the season, nipped Electric on the latter's diamond 4-3 last Saturday. Earlier, the champs had topped the visitors 5-4 at Marlow.

This marks the first time that the crown has come to this area and the proud Thomasburg players are no strangers to glorious. The team is coached by Jim Jennings.

Eldon Gray pitched fine eight hit ball to earn the 4-3 victory, firing third strikes past 15 Electric batters.

Burton Sherry slammed a home run on Thomasburg's behalf while other offensive leaders were Terry LeSage, of Tweed, and David Calvert.

Both clubs played errorless ball throughout.

Each player on the Thomasburg team was presented with an official OSAA championship crest.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—In an impressive tune-up for Saturday's $10,000 Princess Elizabeth Stakes, Jean Lewesque's mare Cibouelette came through with a two - length win over Conn Smythe's Bay Jesus Jewel in Woodbine Racetrack Monday. In third place was Windfields Farm's Lady Champion.

The 6,401 fans on hand followed the dark bay daughter of Chop Chop over the finish gate at odds of 7-to-1 and Cibouelette returned $16.80. She was ridden by Keith Robinson of Minnedosa Man., who was scoring his second victory of the afternoon.

The winner's time was 1:28.4 on a slow track and she and the runner-up lost for Jewel in their final prep for the 1 1-16-mile Princess Elizabeth Stakes, the season's top test for three-year-old home foaled fillies to be run here Oct. 5.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON
VARIEGATED TANAGERS

Some people will tell you that you have to go south to see brightly colored birds. But what about our blue jay, cardinal and scarlet tanager? Surely they are bright enough! We can find the jays in their suitable surroundings from Newfoundland to Alberta all year round. Cardinals are residents wherever found — which, for Canada means southern Ontario. But they are moving up and taming out to some extent in recent years. Scarlet tanagers (the male the brightest possible red) are summer residents from the Atlantic to Saskatchewan.

However, the startling red, offset by black wings and tail, is the plumage only of the adult male in spring and early summer. Adult females at that time are a soft green with grey, ash wings and tail. She is as inconspicuous as he is conspicuous. But once they start their moult in preparation for their migration flight to South America, their appearance changes. Finally, he reaches the stage when he is inconspicuous while she, strangely enough, looks somewhat brighter than heretofore.

SELDOM DISTINGUISHABLE

The sex of young birds is seldom distinguishable. For example as you know, a male baby robin begins to show a pinky breast while his little sister does not. Immature rose-breasted grosbeaks can easily be divided into little boys and little girls, the young males having a pink suffusion on the breast and under the wings. Likewise, the sex of immature scarlet tanagers can be told, the males having black wing coverts.

The late summer moult of the scarlet tanager is worthy of note. In changing over from brilliant red to soft green, little patches of the new plumage appear here and there mixed in with the scarlet. This gives the bird a harlequin appearance.

SIMILAR, YET DIFFERENT

One day in early August an adult male perched on our woodpile in the extreme early morning. Then we saw several other birds in the most astonishing colors. We could not be sure what they could be — they were similar, yet different. Bringing out all the bird books we could muster we began to sort out ages and sexes. They were all scarlet tanagers.

We need not have hurried, because the flock of about 25 stayed in the neighborhood for several days, scattered over trees and bushes.

What puzzled us most was the light wing bars on many of the birds. Scarlet tanagers' wings are said to differ from western tanagers and orioles in that they have no wing markings. Then we read in the "Audubon Bird Guide" by Richard H. Pough, that juvenile scarlet tanagers, before they moult into their immature plumage, have two conspicuous yellow wing bars.

No wonder we were confused in the mid-moult period between males, females, adults, juveniles and immatures!

Husband Fails In Attempt To Poison Wife

HAMILTON (CP)—A 25-year-old Hamilton man was remanded one week in custody for a pre - sentence report after pleading to administering poison to his wife during the weekend.

Donald Doran purchased 60 grains of strychnine of sulphate (rat poison) Sept. 25, Detective Gordon Haines told the court. He said the accused signed the poison book with his own name and address at a Hamilton pharmacy.

He said Doran then went to his wife's home in Stoney Creek, where she has resided since their separation three months ago.

Doran took his wife for a drive to a Hamilton restaurant, where he pleaded with her to go away with him and make a new start. When she refused, they quarrelled and Doran bought two drinks, put the rat poison in both on his way back to the car.

His wife said her drink was bitter and he walked with it, scraping the bottom of the top of the paper cup and returning to offer it to her as if it were a new drink.

She tried to throw her drink out the window and some spilt on her slacks, detective Haines said.

Frightened, his wife agreed to go away with him the next day and he drove her home. Her mouth and throat were burning and she vomited.

A doctor treated her at her home and she has made a complete recovery.

Lively Scenes From Old Bogart Movies Excellent

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—"Unique, unforgettable, powerful and exciting" were only a few of the adjectives used Monday night to describe Hollywood portrait of the late Humphrey Bogart.

The half - hour NBC show, composed of lively scenes from old Bogart movies, newsreel film and some home movies, was the first of a new series.

Hollywood and the Stars.

The basic appeal of the program is its nostalgia. The film clips are woven together with considerable skill and wit. Shrewd use of vintage material gives much of the show a freshness worn off in frequent movie reruns on television.

The narration by Joseph Cotton was reverent but slightly high-flown and never caught the frank, earthy quality of Bogart.

At one point, however, the narrator wisely let the pictures make their own point. It was a newsreel account of Bogart's funeral in 1957. Before the camera walked, one after the other, three of Bogie's good friends—Errol Flynn, Gary Cooper and Dick Powell.

NBC starts its exclusive coverage of the World Series Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. EDT with a 15-minute pre-game show followed by the big event. Thereafter, the series will be covered on the same time schedule when th games are in New York, and at 3:30 p.m. EDT when the series moves to Los Angeles.

Montreal Canadiens cut seven players Monday, then proved they kept the right ones by whipping Providence Reds of the American Hockey League 7-3.

In the only other exhibition game involving a National Hockey League team Monday night, Toronto Maple Leafs had to settle for a 3-2 tie with Denver Invaders of the Western Hockey League.

The Canadiens led 2-1 after one period and broke the game open with four in the second. The teams traded goals in the final period.

Bernie Geoffrion and Gilles Tremblay each scored two goals for Montreal, and Jean Beliveau, Jacques Laperriere and Dave Balon each added one.

A crowd of 2,500, small in the AHL.

Denver's vast new coliseum, watched the first game of professional hockey in the city.

Bobby Baun and Dave Keon scored for the Leafs, who twice blew one-goal leads. Gary Collins and Mike Marcetta scored for Denver, Marcetta's coming on a Toe-Blake-type with less than three minutes to play.

The Canadiens assigned six players out of camp to minor league teams. Goaltender Cesare Maniago was sent to Buffalo Bisons, winger Keith McCreary to Hershey Bears and defenceman Ted Harris to Cleveland Barons. All are AHL teams.

Three players were assigned to Omaha Knights of the new Central Professional Hockey League. They are defenceman Brian Watson, right winger Claude Larose and centre Red Berenson.

Billy Carter and Wayne Hicks were loaned to Quebec Aces of the AHL.

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

George Knudson says "it isn't too hard to make ends meet" on the pro golf trail.

By that, the Winnipeg-born golfer doesn't want Canadians to get the idea that a pro from this country can go to the United States and pick up some easy money. It's still a tough proposition and Knudson admits he still hasn't "got it made."

Knudson now is an assistant pro at the Toronto Oakdale club and he was there the other day before taking off for the U.S. again to resume his shooting for the big money, he admitted that "golf has been good to me."

But the bespectacled 27-year-old shotsmith, who has won an unofficial $10,830 on the tour this year, added that the Canadian player faces big problems around the circuit.

BETTER TRAINED

"I'd say about 90 per cent of the Americans on tour started out by getting golf scholarships in the U.S. We in Canada haven't had that sort of competition and it is pretty tough for one of us to trade shots with these guys."

Knudson, who made his first bid for the big money in the winter of 1959 and became more or less a regular last year, says he "hasn't a clue" about the total amount of money he has picked up on the trail.

"It costs me up to $300 a week to live while I'm on the tour. Sometimes, if I take my wife along with me, it could go to $350. But, as I say, it isn't tough to make a buck."

He said that other pros "don't go around getting advice to newcomers on the circuit."

"I've watched the other fellows play and have readjusted myself." He makes about 20 to 25 tournaments a year and hit a big payday this month at the Canada, Ore., when he sank a 45-foot chip shot in a sudden-death playoff with Mason Rudolph to win the $4,500 first-place money in the Portland Open.

SECOND VICTORY

That brought his earnings close to $5,000 in just three weeks. Earlier in the month he had won $385 in the Salt Lake City Open and $150 in the Seattle Open.

The Portland victory was his second on the tour. In December, 1961, when he was a rookie in with the big boys, he made the headlines in Canada with a first-place showing worth $2,800 in the Coral Gables, Fla., Open. He's had some fairly profitable paydays since then.

He cleaned up $2,633 in the San Francisco International Open last January and has a second-place tie and then collected nearly $6,000 during a swing through the Caribbean, a jaunt that isn't listed on the U.S. Professional Golfers Association official money-winning list.

No wonder he plans to keep at this sport as long as possible. It is much more profitable than staying home and trying to straighten out club members' books and slices.

Maury Wills of Dodgers To Be Trouper After Series

At the Park

Melville's Mutineers on Deck in 'Billy Budd'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— "When you're in baseball, autographing is an art," said Maury Wills, shortstop for the National League champions, Los Angeles Dodgers.

Wills was in the office of his manager autographing copies of his book, It Pays to Steal.

"A ball player has to learn how to write his name on anything," he said. "You have to sign every size of paper; some kids tear a piece into small bits as each one can get an autograph. Signing a baseball is an art in itself."

Signing autographs is one of the fringe areas of a big leaguer's life. Wills, the fleet base stealer, is appearing Oct. 10 on Eddie Adams' ABC show, playing Casey at the Bat as it might be done in Kabuki style. Next month he and his folk singers co-star with Jane Powell for the Desert Inn at the Sahara in Las Vegas.

WON IN TRADE

"I'll play banjo and sing," said Wills. "I started playing the ukulele when I was in minor league ball in Spokane. A fellow ball player had one and wanted a transistor radio, which was a perfect for getting hits in one game. When I won it, I traded him for the ukulele."

When Maury stepped up to the majors, he graduated to the guitar and then the banjo.

"I used to play it on the bus after we got to know me," he said.

Would he like a show business career when he finishes baseball?

"I don't think so," he said. "I've been in baseball 13 years. You get so that you yearn to take the kicks (he has five) out to fish on the weekend or see a baseball game yourself on Saturday night. If I got into show business, I'd be leading the same gypsy life."

Unemployment Insurance Queries and Answers

(Supplied by the Unemployment Insurance Commission)

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you.

Q. I am working only part-time for my regular employer who insists on keeping my insurance stamp book. I have also a good chance of getting other temporary or casual work. How can I get insurance stamps from other employers when I do get work with them?

A. If you are employed in insurable employment by more than one employer, you may apply for and obtain an additional insurance book from the Commission's local office for presentation to your second employer. This book will bear the same unemployment insurance number as the original.

Q. Recently I was given an increase in my monthly salary which makes my yearly earnings more than $5,460 a year. The increase was retroactive for six months. My employer deducted unemployment insurance contributions from my pay during that six month period. Can I get a refund of those contributions?

A. No. Your yearly earnings did not exceed the wage ceiling of $5,460 per year until the actual date you received the salary increase. Therefore your employment was insurable during the six month period covered by retroactive salary increase.

Q. Why do people who are drawing benefits have to answer personal questions on the forms, in the office, and then again when an investigator from the Commission calls around at the house? For instance, if my wife is not living with me, I think that is my own business.

A. It would appear from your question that you are claiming the dependency rate of benefit in respect of your wife.

Questions asked at the time you filed your claim (which you may consider personal, are necessary to establish your entitlement to benefit. This information is held in strictest confidence.

The main purpose of interviewing a claimant at home is to verify that he is residing at his given address, that he is unemployed, capable of and available for work and fulfilling all conditions for entitlement to benefit.

If you are claiming your wife as a dependent and she is not residing with you, it is necessary to ask questions concerning her whereabouts and to what degree you support her in order to arrive at a decision concerning your entitlement to the dependency rate of benefit.

Q. An inspector from the Unemployment Insurance Commission called on me a while back, and showed me a paper filled out by my former employer as to the number of days I had worked and the amount of money I had earned while I was claiming benefit. The information the employer gave was not correct. I realize now I should have declared my earnings, however small they were, but what I should like to know is, what protection do claimants have against wrong information given the Commission by employers?

A. If you do not agree with the information furnished to the Commission by your employer regarding your earnings and number of days worked you are given the opportunity to explain why you disagree during your interview with the inspector.

Any records you have kept concerning your earnings and days worked should be made available. The inspector will then interview the employer and make a detailed examination of payroll records, cheque stubs, time cards, etc. in order to obtain the correct information.

Ben Bella Braces For Diplomatic French Storm

Nationalizes All Land Of French Settlers

CP from Reuters-AP

ALGIERS—President Ahmed Ben Bella braced for a diplomatic storm from France today after nationalizing immediately all the land still held by French settlers in Algeria.

Ben Bella's announcement of the nationalization move Tuesday night before a cheering crowd of 100,000 persons in the Algiers Forum served to rally hungry peasants in defence of his regime, torn by an insurrectional movement in Kabylia.

But Berber mutineers manned cannon on Algerian mountain ridges, vowing to defy Ben Bella even at the cost of civil war.

Col. Mohand ou el Hadj, military commander of the anti-Ben Bella uprising, told reporters he would like to avoid a clash but would not hesitate to fire if fired on.

WATCH REBELS

Newspaper men travelling to the Kabylia area east of Algiers saw mutinous troops haul Chinese-made cannon up the mountainsides while infantry soldiers were digging in.

Tractu disturbed by the insurgents called on the rest of the army to join their movement to rid the country of "fascism."

Ben Bella ripped into the rebel appeal for an armed revolt against his "dictatorial" methods and also rejected charges his brand of socialism would lead to chaos.

"Dictatorship is known by its methods," he told the huge Algerian crowd Tuesday night. "It has camps and cremation ovens. We do not have that in Algeria.

"Dictators live in palaces far from the people, but Ahmed Ben Bella lives among you, in the bosom of the people. Only little phrases would liken—that of a militant Algerian, and I shall always be a militant among you."

He added: "From this minute not a single hectare (2½ acres) belongs to foreign settlers."

He appealed to local officials to carry out the nationalization "honestly and conscientiously" and said the European farmers were authorized to take their personal property.

GET CROP VALUE

The nationalization measure affected about 1,500,000 hectares (3,705,000 acres), he said, and French colonial settlers would be repaid the value of the crops planted on the land.

Last April, the government took over 1,000,000 hectares and 500 businesses abandoned by French settlers in their exodus from Algeria following independ-

Sharp Lays Policy On The Line

NEW ORLEANS (CP)—Laying Canadian policy firmly on the line, Trade Minister Sharp said Tuesday his government is determined to reduce Canada's huge current-account deficit and this means reducing the heavy adverse balance with the United States.

"In other words, Canadian producers must enlarge the dimensions of a small share they now have of the North American market," he said in a major speech to the annual convention of the Farm Equipment Institute.

The problems of both countries are serious, he said.

"But there the similarity ends. Except that they are both causing great concern, the external economic positions of our two countries are as different as chalk is from cheese."

Canada was the world's largest debtor nation. The U.S. was the world's largest creditor nation; its international assets were growing year by year.

RUNNING BIG DEFICIT

While the U.S. has been running a current-account surplus of up to $3,000,000,000 a year, Canada's deficit had averaged about $1,000,000,000 a year over the last 10 years. These deficits had been financed by large imports of capital.

Mr. Sharp said the American problem is that its big surplus has not been equal to the enormous volume of investments and aid abroad. The result was a big increase in foreign holdings of U.S. dollars and some gold losses.

Canada sympathized with this U.S. problem and the desire to check the gold outflow.

In fact, the minister said, Canada has been contributing to U.S. reserves in recent years. He said he made this point because it "seems to be assumed

Pension Debate Boiling

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons debate on the government's proposed $10 pension increase, fast developing into a major political fight, enters its third day today with the legislation still not introduced.

Argument Tuesday over the preliminary resolution centred mainly on opposition efforts to have the government improve on its $16 boost to $75 monthly in the universal pension paid to all aged 70 and over.

But there were side issues that kept the pot boiling.

The resignation of Health Minister Judy LaMarsh was demanded by Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC — Soliette-L'Assomption-Montcalm) over statements attributed to her in a Toronto newspaper—and denied by Miss LaMarsh.

The final half-hour of the sitting developed into a shouting match ot the question of what the Liberals is dicer didn't promise o. pensions in the last election campaign.

TAKES DAYS TO PASS

State Secretary Pickerguill, in a bid to move things faster, commented as the House rose that the united Canadians would be "edified"to learn that the opposition was taking almost three days to pass the pension-boost resolution.

Once the resolution is passed, the pension bill itself must be introduced and approved by the Commons and Senate. The government's goal is to get it in time for the extra $10 to go into late-October pension cheques.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker proposed an amendment urging the government to consider making the raise retroactive to April 1—date of the election that brought the Liberal government to office.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette submitted another amendment that would have the pension begin at age 65 instead of 70, with means-test old age assistance payments starting at age 60 instead of 65.

The chair ruled both amendments out of order and the rulings, on appeal, were sustained.

TUESDAY, Oct. 1, 1963

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's motion to make the $10 old age pension boost retroactive to April 1 was defeated 111 to 90.

Real Caouette (Creditiste—Villeneuve) moved that the pensions be paid at 65 instead of 70 but it was rejected 172 to 14.

Health Minister LaMarsh denied, through a newspaper that Quebec's pension fund plan might lead to a Nazi-like control.

Louis Joseph Pigeon (PC—Assomption—Montcalm) said he was quoted among the minister's denial and she denied it.

Labor Minister MacEachen introduced a resolution to bring in legislation today for a trusteeship over maritime unions.

The Senate sat briefly to pay tribute to the late Senator Clarence Emerson who died last week in New Brunswick.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 2

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue debate on the old age pension boost. The Senate sits at 3 p.m.

GETS FIVE YEARS

TORONTO (CP) — Trumpet player Bernard Rowe, 41, was sentenced Monday to five years in prison after pleading guilty to wounding his estranged wife, Irene, with a shotgun blast that struck her in the shoulder. Rowe pumped the gun on himself, impairing his eyesight and tearing away most of his nose, but wounded his wife, a night club hostess.

Valachi Continues To 'Sing'

Hood Describes Gang Warfare Gory Assassinations of 1930's

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — Mobster Joseph Valachi continues today to trace the family tree and murderous growing pains of Cosa Nostra.

The convicted narcotics dealer and killer has been bringing the Senate rackets subcommittee up to date with a sometimes - bewildering narrative of strange names and aliases, alliances and blood oaths.

Valachi spent most of Tuesday telling of assassinations and gang warfare in the 1920s and 30s, when hoodlum killers carried their machine-guns in violin cases.

"This is my doom . . . what I'm tell you now," the 60-year-old hoodlum said grimly after relating how he was sworn in with a knife and gun before him, his finger pricked to draw blood and a piece of paper burning in his hand to remind him that he too would be burned to ashes if he broke his oath.

Senator John L. McClellan, Arkansas Democrat, announced his Senate investigations subcommittee has "two or three more murders" from the past to question Valachi about before returning to discussion about present-day crimes.

Judge Bruce Macdonald, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, said Valachi's testimony Tuesday was interesting in what it disclosed about New York underworld operations, but it shed no new light on the Cosa Nostra or Mafia operations in Ontario.

Judge Macdonald said he will confer with Attorney - General Kennedy Thursday to arrange

Canada's Trade Surplus Continues to Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's world trade position remained buoyant in the first eight months of the year with the country's trade surplus continuing to increase.

The bureau of statistics reported today that the trade surplus in the January-August period totalled $173,600,000, in sharp contrast with a $90,000,000 deficit in the same period last year.

At the end of July the trade surplus—excess of exports over imports—was $138,100,000, compared with a $131,600,000 deficit a year previous.

Exports in the first eight months of 1963 were up 6.5 per cent, while imports declined fractionally.

The trade balance is likely to continue to show improvement during the fall season—period when the country's trade position

Home and Gromyko Fail To Agree on Many Issues

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Britain's Foreign Secretary Lord Home and Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko discussed a full range of East-West issues at a two-hour meeting Tuesday but there were no concessions on either side, British sources reported.

The meeting took place after Home, in a policy speech to the United Nations General Assembly, accepted a Soviet proposal for an 18-nation summit meeting next year—provided careful spadework is done first.

Informants said the Home-Gromyko meeting, for the first time in current big three meetings in New York, went into depth on various disarmament possibilities that could follow the partial nuclear test - ban treaty.

Gromyko for the first time gave raised the Soviet proposal for a radical reduction part between NATO and Warsaw pact countries.

This led to the Berlin issue, because the West wants guarantees for West Berlin as part of any non-aggression pact.

Gromyko repeated Russia's suggestion that Western troops in West Berlin be replaced by

Make Bid To Break Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—Last - ditch efforts were expected today in a bid to break a stalemate in trade union talks aimed at averting government trusteeship over five marine unions in Canada.

The 11th - hour manoeuvres will likely continue even while Parliament debates a government measure to establish a three-man board of trustees to take over "management and control" of Canada's maritime transportation unions.

A resolution preceding the actual trusteeship legislation moves on to the Commons order paper today—without any debate, unless the government seeks unanimous consent to deal with it.

However, Labor Minister MacEachen is expected to report in the Commons on the Canadian-United States efforts to find a private, voluntary substitute for the government trusteeship.

Informants said Tuesday night that no definite proposal has been advanced that would —in the eyes of Canadian labor leaders—guarantee a thorough cleanup of labor lawlessness on the Great Lakes waterfront.

LAWS OUT CONSPIRACY

The Canadian Labor Congress was reported to have laid out specific conditions which must be met in any union-sponsored trusteeship — conditions that would guarantee the autonomy in the Seafarers' International Union of Canada proposed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris to the Canadian government.

So far, the AFL-CIO—and in particular, Paul Hall, an AFL-CIO vice-president who heads the 15,000-member SIU of North America—has balked at accepting the guarantees sought by the CLC.

Labor sources still held hope for a last-minute solution that would meet the views of the CLC, the Canadian government

State Troopers In Birmingham Arrest 3rd White

'Step in Right Direction' Says Chief Investigator

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A third white man has been arrested and more than 100 sticks of dynamite were found hidden in a wooded area in the continuing investigation of racial bombings.

John W. Hall, 36, of suburban Gardendale, was charged with illegal possession of dynamite Tuesday. He posted bond—set at $200—shortly afterward.

Robert E. Chambliss, 59, who was arrested Sunday by state investigators, also was free on $200 bond on the same charge. Chambliss posted bond shortly after a habeas corpus hearing in circuit court.

Charles Cagle, 22, of Birmingham, who was arrested with Chambliss Sunday, remains in jail on a charge of illegal possession of dynamite. A habeas corpus hearing for Cagle has been set for today.

Col. Al Lingo, commander of the state highway patrol, said the state investigation has found 133 sticks of dynamite in a wooden crate and 2½ sticks lying nearby in a wooded area in North Birmingham, just outside the city limits.

HIDDEN BY BUSHES

He said the dynamite had been hidden in some bushes. Lingo hailed the discovery as significant in the investigation of bombings.

"We are stepping in the right direction. We are making progress."

Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, former Birmingham minister and president of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights, charged that the investigation appeared to be "a sham on the part of law enforcement, in an effort to soothe the national conscience and placate Negroes."

Shuttlesworth issued a prepared statement criticizing the investigation shortly after a circuit court jury—which included three Negroes—found him guilty of parading without a permit on Good Friday and fined him $75. Judge George Wallace has added a term of 90 days to the fine. Shuttlesworth's lawyers appealed the sentence and he was released under $2,500 bond.

In his statement, Shuttlesworth noted that his bond was $2,500 while that of the three men charged with possession of dynamite $200.

"Where are the FBI and the federal experts brought in—and what part did they play in this?

Henchman Of Trujillo Lost Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — Arturo Rod Espaillat, former right-hand man of slain dictator Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic, has lost his last legal manoeuvre to escape deportation from Canada.

The Supreme Court of Canada in a majority judgment Tuesday rejected an appeal by the 41-year-old former head of Dominican security forces against a July 17, 1963, deportation order.

In a four to one judgment, the court ruled that Espaillat is a member of a class of persons prohibited entry to Canada as landed immigrants. When he arrived in Canada he was not in possession of a valid visa obtained outside this country and his passport did not contain a medical certificate, the court said.

The majority judgment was signed by Chief Justice Robert Taschereau and Justices Douglas Abbott, Wilfred Judson and Ernest Hall, upheld earlier decisions by the Ontario supreme and appeal courts.

Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright dissented. He said Espaillat should have been permitted to apply for a visa and a medical certificate because he had been in Canada legally for some time before he applied for status as a landed immigrant.

DOESN'T APPLY

The deportation order does not apply to Espaillat's wife, Ligia Fernandez, a daughter, Ligia Maria Arturo Arturo Jose and Rafael Alberto. All reside in Ottawa.

Espaillat said in an interview that his wife and family will remain in Canada and that if the order is made effective, he plans to return to the Dominican Republic to open an import-export business with Canadian merchants. He also said he plans to apply for Canadian soon on the last days of the Trujillo regime.

The Espaillat case now will be placed before Immigration Minister Favreau for a decision on whether he is to be taken now that the deportation order has been ruled valid by the courts.

L. paillat told a press conference Tuesday night that it would be "my death warrant" if Canada ships him back to the Dominican Republic. However, he said Monday that he now is not afraid.

Oliver Once More or Sopha? Liberals Debate Leadership

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal members of the Ontario legislature, along with a few defeated members, met today to discuss the leadership of the convention of the fall party to choose a successor to John Wintermeyer, defeated party leader.

Mr. Wintermeyer resigned after his party lost ground in the Ontario election a week ago. He was defeated in his home riding of Waterloo North.

Farquhar Oliver, member of the legislature for Grey South since 1926 and Mr. Wintermeyer's predecessor as Liberal leader, said earlier he is not likely choice to serve as interim house leader.

However, Elmer Sopha, re-elected member for Sudbury, said before the meeting that he would like to have the leadership in the house. He said he would plan for the job nomination, but "if nobody else does it, I'll speak for myself."

On hand for the meeting were 14 re-elected Liberals, six new members and five defeated members, including Mr. Wintermeyer, Leonard Quilty of Renfrew South and Gordon Innes of Oxford.

Arthur Reaume of Essex North, Murray Gaunt of Huron-Bruce and Robert Gibson of Kenora, all re-elected, were not present while the meeting started with Mr. Wintermeyer in the chair.

Party members welcomed included Richard Taylor of Timmins, Stanley Farquhar of Algoma-Manitoulin, Donald Patterson of Essex South and E. C. Sargeant of Grey North.

45 Topnotch Labor Men Being Groomed for Cabinet If Macmillan Is Defeated

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — If Harold Wilson becomes prime minister his Labor government will have a new look.

"We're all tired of seeing this country pushed around," Wilson has proclaimed. "We need to get Britain firing again on all six cylinders, instead of idling on two or three."

Wilson, 47, has shaped a "shadow cabinet" which would form the core of a Labor administration if Harold Macmillan's Tories are beaten. About 45 party topnotchers in all are being groomed for other posts in a government that needs 70 ministers and deputies.

APPEARS MODERATE

Collectively Labor's team presents an image of middle-of-the-road respectability, with little of the fiery socialist rhetoric of their crusading yesterdays.

Individually, the leaders give an impression of technical competence and high intellectual achievement. Their whole emphasis, in the pre-election period at least, is moderation. The election must come by October, 1964, but could be called earlier by Macmillan.

Wilson, dogged by a leftist reputation, has perched himself warily on the point of balance between the party's left and right.

Labor supporters argue that in the world of Kennedy, Khrushchev and de Gaulle, Wilson's intellect, experience and background qualify him to lead. He knows the loneliness of the top-drawer misery from his own track days at Oxford as well as from his 18 years as a member of Parliament. In public he stresses his ordinary origins and tastes. He prefers beer to champagne.

Wilson has seen to it that Labor's right, left and centre have places in the party high command. Five key men flank him. They are right-wingers George Brown, 48, and Patrick Gordon Walker, 55, middle-roaders Douglas Callaghan, 51, and Denis Healey, 46, and 32-year - old Richard Crossman, who is a master-mind of the left.

Brown is Wilson's deputy—as he was Hugh Gaitskell's before his old chief died last January. The hasty, emotional Brown is a former trade unionist and salesman, rose to the heights as a labor union organizer. Wilson's strength in union affairs, agriculture, mining and defence qualifies him to be more a sort of overlord of the home front.

Gordon Walker, shadow foreign secretary, comes from the upper middle class. He lectured in history at Oxford and served in prime minister (now lord) Attlee's post-war Labor cabinet. He says he wants to remove a lot of the humbug he sees in British diplomacy and will begin by rationalizing British-American relations. The illusion of a special relationship which he says Macmillan has fully fostered has offended France, West Germany, Italy and other allies.

EYES TAXES

Callaghan was a tax collector before serving with the Royal Navy in the Second World War. He was a junior admiralty minister under Attlee and now is prospective chancellor of the exchequer with ideas for streamlining Britain's tax system.

Healey, specialist on defence and foreign affairs, was one of the first European socialists to urge a political disengagement of East-West forces in middle Europe. His promptings led first Gaitskell, then Wilson, to conclude that Britain no longer can afford a nuclear-power status.

Crossman's philosophic training and Protestant temperament have given him a rebel's reputation. He was an outstanding student of political philosophy at Oxford. Wilson has made him shadow science minister with a mission to turn Britain into "the pilot plant of the world." His job would include expanding the British education system and increasing the flow of technicians.

Short Course In French Now Opened

When the night school prospectus calls it "conversational French a short course," it isn't kidding. The course will last just three months, until the teacher's wedding.

Teacher is Miss Elizabeth Mohr and her wedding is Dec. 7, in Ottawa. She went through high school in Ottawa, four years of university in Toronto, then spent a year at Lyons, in France. She returned to Canada in August, just in time to move, with her parents, from Ottawa to Belleville. No time to take a regular teaching job, she is teaching the conversational French course at B.C.I. Tuesday and Thursday and at Moira Monday and Wednesday. Has too many students at B.C.I. (39 in the class, and she says 30 is plenty), for conversational French and to talk some of them into taking the Moira course, not yet filled.

Teacher misses Ottawa.

But the teacher isn't the only visitor to Belleville involved in the course. Lynne Tutty, 17, an English lass who has signed up, she'll stay with the classes as long as she is in Belleville, which will probably be until her father comes over.

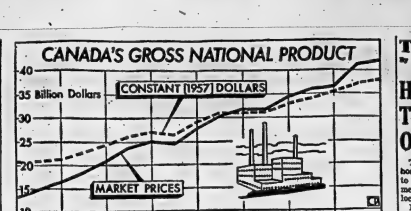
From Ottawa, Buckinghamshire, Lynne finished the equivalent of high school recently, and went shopping with her mother. The pair spent three days in New York, then came up to visit Lynne's aunt and uncle, Mrs. and Mr. Drury Denyes, two weeks ago.

Lynne's mother went home last week but Lynne will stay on. Her father is expecting to come across on business soon, and Lynne will probably return with him. Until then, she's signed up for the French course, even though she has had six years of French already. "I'm a bit of a sut on grammar," she admits. She comments. On her return to England, she will begin a combined secretarial and language course, specializing in German.

Valachi Lied On Death Toss Says Attorney

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn District Attorney Edward S. Silver said Monday Joseph Valachi lied when he testified that police guards threw Abe (Kid Twist) Reles to death from the window of a Coney Island hotel.

Valachi told a Senate subcommittee in Washington that Reles was thrown from a fifth-floor window of the Half Moon Hotel to keep him from divulging information about Murder, Incorporated, the killer-for-profit mob that was a scourge in Brooklyn more than 20 years ago.



Valachi, pressed for details Tuesday, said that all he knew about Reles' death was what "the boys" in the mob said.

Silver, an assistant district attorney when the case was reviewed by a Brooklyn grand jury in 1951, said Valachi's testimony was "a lie."

He referred to a presentment (report) handed up by the grand jury, which found that the death of Reles, a gangster, was an accident while he was trying to escape.

Negro Section in Birmingham Called 'Dynamite Hill' and Patrolled by Volunteer Guards

Bombings in Birmingham, Ala., since the Second World War have led to calling one Negro section Dynamite Hill. Here is a look at the hill by Don McKee, Associated Press staffer who has spent two months in Birmingham this year covering the tense racial situation there.

By DON McKEE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Dynamite Hill is patrolled at night by a hundred Negro volunteer guards.

It is a quiet neighborhood—except when a bomb goes off.

Thirteen bomb blasts have shaken the residential area since 1947 when it began changing from a white to a Negro section.

The hill has felt nearly one-third of the 43 bombings in this bigger Alabama city during the last 16 years.

Policemen and volunteers guard the hill—and many other places in Birmingham.

Special guards watch Negro churches. Many carry walkie-talkies.

Policemen drive state cars not duty at three newly integrated schools and at the homes of five Negro children attending these schools. Homes of integration leaders are under constant surveillance.

Guards are posted at the city's three Jewish churches.

This is Birmingham, 1962.

Four church - bombing fatalities. Three other deaths in racial violence, scores hurt, heavy property damage.

TEN BLOCKS LONG

And they call it Dynamite Hill, an area roughly 10 blocks long, several blocks wide with crowded U.S. Highway 78 running along its foot and white Birmingham - Southern College almost within shouting distance.

The downtown stores are about a mile away.

"My family's very much upset," said Arthur D. Shores, a Negro lawyer and a resident of Dynamite Hill. His home was bombed Aug. 20 and Sept. 4 and he has spent $11,000 on repairs.

"My wife talks about moving; she wants to leave Birmingham," said the 50-year-old lawyer. His daughter, 17-year-old Barbara, said she will not live in the city after finishing college.

"I'm not the least bit nervous," Shores said. "I just get mad as hell. These bombs hit and you can't see anybody to fight back."

The hill got its name from the 10 bombings between 1956 and 1962 during the transition from white to Negro residents.

CAUSE CASUALTIES

Not until the second bombing of the Shores home was anyone hurt. Mrs. Shores was seriously injured and a Negro man was shot to death in disorders following the blast.

Two Negro boys were shot to death that day; more than a score of persons were hurt in the blast and other violence.

In the bombings, churches have been targets seven times.

Temple Bethel, one of Birmingham's white Jewish churches, was the target on April 28, 1958. A bomb made of 25 sticks of dynamite failed to go off.

Now there are special guards at all Jewish churches, day and night.

Some Western Powers Balk At Footing Bill

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Plans to keep a UN force in The Congo were endangered today as some Western powers balked at footing the major part of the bill if poorer countries received a further cut in their share.

The General Assembly's budgetary committee scheduled debate this afternoon on proposals to raise $19,200,000, which Secretary-General U Thant estimates is needed to keep a protective force of 5,350 men in the country until June 30.

"We are prepared to assume our share of the cost," a Western delegate said, "if it is based on the formula developed at the special assembly last spring.

"But if there is any idea of raising the 55 per cent foregiven for some smaller nations to 80 per cent, then we are going to have to reconsider our position."

SETTLE FOR LESS

The spring assembly authorized appropriation of $33,000,000 to finance the force until Dec. 31. All nations were assessed on the basis of their regular UN assessments for the first $3,000,000 but 85 "economically less-developed" nations were allowed to settle for 45 per cent of their normal rate on the $30,000,000 balance.

With the Soviet bloc, France, Belgium and South Africa refusing to pay anything, this meant 17 nations had to make up the balance. The United States covered 37 per cent of that.

A number of African and Latin American nations are pleading poverty and are hinting that they should pay only 20 per cent of their normal assessment rate toward the proposed additional cost.

"We won't listen to the poverty plea," said an American spokesman. "They will come in and pay a fair share based on the formula agreed on last spring."

THREATEN SANCTIONS

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — New Zealand's opposition Labor party said Wednesday it will introduce trade sanctions to stop France from carrying out nuclear tests in the Pacific if it wins next month's general election. Party Leader Arnold Nordmeyer said in a speech here: "New Zealand should be prepared to forego trade to drive home her disapproval.

The Initiatory Degree was conferred on three candidates by the Belleville degree team.

After some well chosen remarks and compliments by the visitors and other members, all retired to the upstairs hall for lunch to complete a very enjoyable evening.

Draft Decree Subject of Ecum. Council

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Vatican ecumenical council met today to discuss the draft decree "de ecclesia" on the nature and structure of the Roman Catholic Church.

The subject of Christian unity was a key part of the first chapter of "de ecclesia" which the council could overwhelmingly to accept Tuesday.

Today's discussions were expected to launch a full-dress examination of the decree's four chapters.

The decree deals with the nature of the Roman Catholic Church, the authority of its bishops, the role of the laity and other key problems.

Taking part in the great church assembly were more than 2,000 Roman Catholi bishops from around the world.

ORDER OF MERIT

The order in which the assembly will take up the next four projects on its agenda was announced after the vote on "de ecclesia."

The first project will deal with the Virgin Mary. Next comes a discussion of a draft decree on bishops and the church government.

Then comes a draft decree dealing in detail with the role of the laity, followed by a draft decree on ecumenicism — the Roman Catholic Church's dialogue with other Christian churches.

But first the bishops must complete their dealings with "de ecclesia." They finally have proposed 372 amendments to the draft and more may be in order.

The consensus among the bishops was that the draft presented "a good foundation on which to build," a church spokesman said.

The council's debate on the clauses and amending of the draft is expected to take several weeks or longer. The council may be close to its second adjournment, on Dec. 4, before it gets the draft into its final form for approval.

Hospital Bd. To Hold Meet On Strike Issue

TRENTON — The Trenton hospital board will meet tonight to consider the latest developments in the situation at the local institution.

Monday night, the non-nursing staff at the hospital, members of Local 183 of the Building Services Employees' International Union, agreed to call off a strike scheduled for 7.30 a.m. Tuesday. The strike may have been averted and at least is postponed until the workers see what action comes out of the intervention of the Minister of Labor, the Hon. Leslie Rowntree. Mr. Rowntree has committed his department to find some means of getting the board and the union together to thrash out differences of opinion on salary schedules, working conditions and other points.

If the two factions can't be brought together under conciliation, the minister has promised to introduce legislation in the fall session of the provincial parliament to force arbitration on the issues. The decision of the three-man arbitration board would be final and binding on both parties, and the report and terms of settlement is unpopular with the rank and file of the union.

Should the meeting tonight open discussions fail and should the minister fail to bring the matter to arbitration, the union local threatens to go on strike the morning after the legislature prorogues.

It is thought that a statement will be issued by the hospital board following tonight's meeting.

Ice-Making Machine in Gardens Started

TRENTON—On Tuesday, the ice-making machinery in the Trenton Community Gardens arena was started up and by afternoon an ice surface was starting to form. Arena manager Ronald Johnston expects to be skating by the weekend.

The first hockey game of the season is scheduled for Oct. 25, and this will see the Peterborough and Oshawa Junior A teams in action.

There is an off chance, says Mr. Thorton, that a Globetrotter game might be secured in before the 25th as the RCAF team starts practices this week end.

NO EQUIPMENT

In magistrate's court in Trenton on Tuesday, Rober. Beattie of Trenton was fined $10 and costs in the liquor control act, Mrs. Earl (Lillian May) Cornwall of Parham, Ont., and a son, Clarence Russell Orrill at home.

Mr. Beattie was apprehended on July 13 in a 10-foot aluminum craft on the Bay of Quinte. Safety equipment missing was listed as one lifebelt and life. He was charged under the Small Vessels Regulations' Act.

PREPARE BROCHURE

Trenton area motel and hotel owners and other businessmen have been asked to get orders for advertisements for a brochure being prepared by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce by Oct. 8, as it is planned to have the pamphlet printed and ready for distribution by Jan. 1.

The brochure will be placed in service centres on Highway 401 next spring.

By this advertising the chamber hopes to lure motorists down into the town next summer.

Businessmen complain that the service centre restaurants cut into their trade last summer.

Hurricane Said No Threat To Land Areas

CP from AP-Reuters ...

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad—Hurricane Flora roared over the central Caribbean north of Venezuela today, menacing shipping lanes but posing no immediate threat to any land areas.

The centre of the storm, packing top winds of 124 miles an hour, was placed 155 miles north-northeast of the Dutch island of Curacao this morning.

The U.S. weather bureau at San Juan, Puerto Rico, said Flora was moving steadily westnorthwest at 16 m.p.h. across open seas. By mid-day, the hurricane should be 250 miles south of Santo Domingo, capital of the Dominican Republic, the weather bureau said.

Flora, the season's sixth tropical storm, swept across the island of Grenada in a destructive rampage Monday. It was described today as "well organized and dangerous."

FLAKES DEATH TOLL

Reports from reconnaissance aircraft indicated the hurricane had not diminished in strength since causing the death of at least 17 persons and injuries to hundreds on the island of Tobago, part of the fledgling Trinidad-Tobago nation.

Medical officers warned of the danger of a typhoid epidemic as shivery islanders collected water from muddy pools. A mass inoculation program will begin Thursday.

An aerial survey today showed that 75 per cent of Tobago's coconut plantations had been destroyed.

NOT ANOTHER ONE ! ! ! — The Portland, Ore., Zoo got its fourth baby elephant in 18 months. The first one born in April, 1962, was the first to survive in the United States in more than 40 years. Here the ponderous mother Thy Hoa (Vietnamese) wraps her trunk protectively around the new calf (left), a bleary eyed, not-so-little female. The smaller elephant (right) was born to Pet and weighed 155 pounds. They're cousins, both offspring of the bull Thongiaw. Neither of the new arrivals have names yet. The first two were named Packy and Me-Tu.

Equal Voting Between Groups Is Compromise

By JOHN WARREN

EDMONTON (CP) — A three-page resolution that could be the answer to a French - English controversy which had threatened to break up the organization was presented to the National Federation of Canadian University Students congress here Tuesday night.

The resolution was basically a compromise between earlier proposals by the federation executive and by representatives of three French - speaking universities. It was drafted by a committee headed by NFCUS President Dave Jenkins of Edmonton with representatives of nine universities.

Mr. Jenkins said the resolution calls for equal voting between the two cultural groups on certain fundamental issues such as the constitution. On other matters, voting would be based on student population.

A seven - man commission, made up of the president and three representatives from each cultural group, would be set up to determine which were fundamental issues.

SEPARATE ENTITIES

"There was no problem in recognizing the two groups as separate linguistic and cultural entities," said Mr. Jenkins following the emergency meeting of the specially-formed committee. The committee met most of Tuesday.

"The recognition of the two cultural groups is carried in practice by holding two caucus meetings—French and English —in two different rooms during some parts of the congress," he said.

These caucus meetings would be limited to discussion of items that pertain to the particularist cultural and linguistic group, Mr. Jenkins said.

He said the most difficult bundle met at the emergency group meeting was "that of the fate of the students from the English-speaking minority group in Quebec."

The proposed resolution "provides for co-operation between the English and French university students in Quebec during their approaches to the provincial government," Mr. Jenkins added.

"This solution turned out to be desired by both the French and English students."

The federation represents about 115,000 university students in 41 educational institutions.

Morning Cup of Tea Is One Symbol U.K. Colonialism Still Left in South Africa

By WILLIAM FARNSWORTH

BLANTYRE, Nyasaland (AP)—The Union Jack may be coming down over large stretches of Africa, but one symbol of British colonialism still waxes strong—the early morning cup of tea.

Those hollow - eyed foreign diplomats and trade commissioners who furtively stifle yawns at the conference tables of emerging African governments have not been carousing or even chasing accounts. It's the ritual, predawn drumming on the doors of their hotel rooms that leaves diplomats in British Africa bleary-eyed.

Promptly at 6 a.m. comes the thunderous tattoo. The sleepy visitor, fearing that at least the hotel must be on fire, staggers to unbolt the door. He is swept aside by a white-clad, be-fezzed steward, whose white teeth flash in a smile as he announces: "Morning, bwana, tea." He thumps the metal tray on the bedside table with a nerve - rending crash and sweeps out.

CAN'T BE STOPPED

The shattered guest creeps back under the blankets, gazes at the teapot with jaundiced eye and drops off for two more hours' sleep—while the cup that cheers grows cold.

Wearing dark glasses and toying with a breakfast of black coffee and a roll, the foreign visitor decides to put an end to the indecent early morning ritual.

At the reception desk he finds a little book with the legend "Morning tea times." In bold capitals beside his room number he writes: "No morning tea."

That night he composes himself for sleep, a smug smile on his face. Peace until at least 8 a.m., he thinks.

But as the local chanticleers loosen up their vocal chords for reveille, the slumbering foreigner is blasted out of bed by an unholy tatoo on his door. This time he knows the hotel is not on fire, so he pulls the blanket over his head and tries to sleep. But the tea tray crashes on the table inches from his ear.

THROUGH WINDOW

Lifting a corner of the blanket he sees the broad back of the African steward vanishing through the door. The man turns and smiles—"Morning, bwana, your tea. I couldn't wake you so I came through the window."

This time the guest gives verbal instructions: "I said no morning tea, please. No, I don't want coffee instead, or orange juice or anything—just let me sleep."

That night the visitor locks the door, barricades the windows, plugs the keyhole and disconnects the telephone.

Next morning the pounding on the door resumes. The guest takes no notice and when the din abates, sinks into sleep. Two hours later, refreshed, he emerges triumphantly from his room—and steps into a tray of cold tea outside his door.

Damages Award Of $52,000 Given Man, Son

NORTH BAY (CP)—A Val Albert, Ont. man and his 12-year-old son were awarded damages totalling $52,000 Tuesday during the fall sitting of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The action was brought against Marcel Blouin of Val Rita by Albert Simard and his son, Fernand, 12, who was permanently paralyzed from the waist down following an accident July 20, 1962, in which his bicycle was struck by a car driven by Blouin.

Mrs. Justice N. V. Fraser of Toronto awarded the boy $40,000 and Mr. Simard $11,868.69 for special care, hospital treatment, specialists, trips to Toronto, accommodation and meals.

Pravda Shows Interest in Moon Effort

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda today implied interest for the first time in President Kennedy's call for a joint U.S. Soviet effort to land men on the moon.

Soviet papers have not yet commented on the proposal, made by the president at the UN General Assembly 12 days ago.

Today Pravda carried—apparently in full — an article by American columnist Walter Lippmann warmly supporting the proposal.

The newspaper headlined Lippmann's comments "a sober approach."

Sultan Hurls Duel Challenge At Minister

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—An Indonesian sultan has challenged Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman to a duel for "trampling on the Indonesian coat of arms," the Indonesian government - run news agency Antara reported today.

The agency said that Sultan Pawiewang Prang Makmoar in the Celebes, had walked angrily into newspaper offices in Makassar carrying a newspaper picture of the Tunku stepping on the Indonesian eagle emblem.

The emblem, the agency added, had been torn from the Indonesian Embassy in Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian capital, during a recent anti-Indonesian demonstration.

Britain Begins Evacuation of Women, Children

CP from AP-Reuters ...

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Britain began the evacuation of about 140 foreign women and children today from the huge Shell Oil refinery centre at Balikpapan, in Indonesian East Borneo.

Indonesian Air Force planes flew the evacuees to Jakarta, where Royal Air Force planes were waiting to take them to Singapore.

The evacuation was arranged because of strong Indonesian feelings against Malaysia and the British-sponsored federation of Malaysia, which includes former British territories in North Borneo. British women and children left Balikpapan from Jakarta after mobs sacked the British Embassy and burned a number of British homes.

Foreign Minister Subandrio said today President Sukarno has given instructions to "maintain security" in the capital and several other cities because of internal danger from counter-revolutionaries.

Set Bad Example

French-speaking separatists in Quebec are getting to be an insufferable nuisance.

We are not referring here to FLQ terrorists —that type of thing is more than a nuisance, it is an outrage.

We mean, instead, some of the more extremist appeals and charges voiced by the French-Canadian nationalists.

For instance, the separatists demonstrated at Montreal last Saturday against the teaching of English in French-speaking elementary schools. A resolution protesting against similar instruction in English was recently passed in the Lac St. Jean district.

Here in Ontario we are just getting around to attempting to teach French to children at an age when they are best able to learn it—which means as early in their school years as possible. We are having trouble with our own home-grown bigots, and with those who, while not bigoted, are over-concerned about costs. These two groups may well retard, if they do not completely stall, a development which could be of inestimable value to our young people, making them fluent in a second language and vastly expanding their horizons and the possible scope of their experiences, whether when travelling or when delving into the treasure-house of world literature at home.

By taking precisely the same stand against the teaching of English in Quebec elementary schools as the Francophobes take against the teaching of French in Ontario public schools, the separatists are making it impossible to increase the growth of understanding between English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians.

Come to think of it, though, that is probably what they want. A growth of understanding, made possible by the spread of bilingualism in both provinces, would doom the separatist movement.

Spend Money to Save It

Next month the U.S. plans to airlift an armored division to West Germany. This is expected to cost $20,000,000. The U.S. administration believes the demonstration will be worth the price. It should prove to the allies of the U.S. that it does not have to station large ground forces in a potential battle area in order to be able to guarantee it will get there fastest with the mostest.

There is just one trouble with this theory. Successful airlifts depend on adequate airfields. In undeveloped lands where limited wars may be a possibility, airfields are not likely to be adequate. In regions where such airfields exist, the objectives of any war are likely to be important enough to make a limited war unlikely. In a nuclear war an armored division in the air might well prove safer than an armored division on the ground. Landing in Japan, would be to invite disaster, in the form of missiles with nuclear warheads.

The new technique, therefore, would be virtually useless in any major war. It thus does nothing to alter the status quo, since armored divisions right on the scene would be virtually useless, too, when the nuclear shooting started.

Paradoxically enough, the method may still achieve the task assigned to it—that of reducing U.S. expenditures on troops stationed overseas. Those governments which find comfort in the presence of U.S. ground troops in the face of their importance in the event of a nuclear war, ought not to find it too difficult to obtain similar comfort from the fact that they could be rapidly flown in to play the role of an additional target for missiles.

The Golden Years

During the last four years, according to a Canadian Press brief, Englishman John Blackshaw has canoed 120 miles down a German river, climbed a 13,000-foot mountain in Switzerland, and won a dance competition on roller skates. Sounds like an impressive record for four years.

Then comes the news that the man is 80 years old. That explains everything. At that age, he must be retired, and he has time for the sports denied to youngsters.

Love all God's creation, the whole and every grain of sand in it. Love every leaf, every ray of God's light. Love the animals, love the plants, love everything. If you love everything, you will perceive the divine mystery in things. Once you perceive it, you will begin to comprehend it better every day. And you will come at last to love the whole world with an all-embracing love.—Dostoyevsky.

Strictly Personal
Science Tales Must Broaden Their Horizons

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The arrival of a new book on my desk, "Spectrum II," edited by Kingsley Amis, the British novelist, reminds me that the once-despised field of science fiction has come of age in the last few years.

Looked down upon in the past, as the lowest form of pulp writing, sf has gained considerable stature since so many of its "wild" fantasies have been not only duplicated but exceeded by modern science.

Yet, as a literary genre, science fiction is not doing pretty much in its intellectual ghetto, not because of the quality of the writing (which often is quite high) but because it does not deal with central human problems—only with technical and social ones.

What touches and interests and moves people is the relationship between human beings. The highest fiction, drama and poetry deals not with "movements" or historical processes, but with the curious interlacings and fracturings of human hearts. We are concerned with the innermost recesses of ourselves, with the roots of our being, whether we know them or not.

When science-fiction takes earthlings to another planet, the inhabitants usually are either humans in disguise or subhumans, in either case, the new planetary setting adds nothing to self-knowledge.

Scientists are now convinced that the ESP (extra sensory perception) phenomenon in the universe. And with three trillion other galaxies in the universe, it is highly probable that something resembling human life exists elsewhere than on this earth. Even educated religionists now admit this possibility — Father Thurston Davis, editor of "The Catholic Mind," recently said in a speech that "there well may be, and probably are, men in the airy seas around other suns, intelligent beings like ourselves or perhaps superior to our blundering race."

The challenging task for science-fiction today and tomorrow is not to imagine new techniques for space-travel, but to write individual and three-dimensional beings" might be like and how they would interact with us. The task is to get out of our selves psychologically, and not just astrally.

The human brain uses only a fraction of its power. What other powers do we have? Have other races succeeded in developing their emotional infantilism, as we have? What do we love, rage, greed, envy, mean to humanoids who have developed in a different environment? There is a vast opportunity to explore the potentialities of "intelligent beings," and only if science-fiction boldly grasps this chance will it escape from the narrow confines of its milieu.

Nehru Keeps India Free

Ottawa Journal.

Prime Minister Nehru, for whom decisive action does not come instinctively, has surprised India with the speed and thoroughness with which he adopted a plan to revive his Congress Party. Some of the most senior men in his ministry were transferred from the government office to work in the party itself.

The shake-up inevitably has quickened criticism of Mr. Nehru's party performance. It is easy to point up the failures; the meandering foreign policy; failure to make any headway over settlement of the Kashmir dispute; the old battle against poverty.

The opposition leader recently told the Indian Parliament people were beginning to feel that they had lived better under British rule.

But before the performance of Mr. Nehru is demeaned, the extent of India's problems and Mr. Nehru's achievements should be remembered. The London Economist noted not long ago, "In did the means of existence of numerous than the combined total populations of all Africa and South America."

Mr. Nehru has kept this human mass familiar with democratic institutions. The fundamental fact about India, as the Economist also pointed out, is not the failure of the Nehru's party but that parliamentary government works at all.

Most of the newly developing countries after independence have been reduced to one-party states, while a military or personal rule. Pakistan's constitution was suspended in 1958 while a period of adaptation of parliamentary government was devised.

Yet in the elections have been regular, free and orderly. Ministers of government still submit themselves to the ordeal of answering daily questions in parliament. The press in India has pressing economic restrictions; India's freely represents a whole spectrum of political opinion.

Despite poverty, the overwhelming problems from India's diversity of tongues (how simple Canada's two language problem must seem to an Indian) and difference in religion, the country has held together with stability for 16 years.

Mr. Nehru's political character in general are important for many reasons, other than the risk of renewal fighting. If he were speaking in medical terms in terms of preventing disease, because that is what he asked me about.

Have I made the answer clear? I hope so — because no more that girls (and boys) of 14 understand this, the less venereal disease we are going to have among those of 16, 17, 18 and older.

To Your Good Health
Venereal Disease Spread By Sexual Intimacy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

'Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 16-year-old girl who wants to know more about venereal disease. I have read about it in the library but I don't understand why it apparently only happens to unmarried people. I asked my mother and she wouldn't tell me.

My counselor in school is a man so I couldn't ask him. — A. R.

Well, I'm a man, too — but maybe I can answer your question.

Venereal disease, like others, isn't limited to people who are, or aren't married. For all practical purposes, it is transmitted either by sexual intimacy or, in some cases, it is congenital, meaning that a baby gets it because a parent has the disease.

And a married couple, neither of which has the disease and remains faithful to each o'her, won't get it — or, to be more precise — the chance of contracting it is so small that we can virtually ignore the possibility.

Venereal disease is largely spread by those who are sexually promiscuous — out of the trouble — and this is cause for great concern — is traced to youngsters who are sexually active. If this shocks you, all I can say is that it shocks me, too. But it is so.

If this "pool of disease" has been spread among teen-agers, it is time we began speaking plain facts to them.

I feel confident that you are a lot more read in the library, but it is my suspicion that your idea about venereal disease being only "only to unmarried people" came from something written by somebody who was trying in a nice and polite or "delicate" about the problem — a writer who took it for granted (or pretended to) that all married people behave in ideal fashion.

They don't. A precocious high school girl may get married but that doesn't mean she automatically becomes moral and faithful. She is what she is.

However, I don't mean that a girl (or boy) may be promiscuous in the teens and not, presently, learn that sexual thrills are not a arbitrary rule, but is the result of sound reason.

Fidelity and character in general are important for many reasons, other than the risk of venereal disease. If we are speaking in medical terms in terms of preventing disease, because that is what you asked me about.

Have I made the answer clear? I hope so — because no more that girls (and boys) of 14 understand this, the less venereal disease we are going to have among those of 16, 17, 18 and older.

Bit Skimpy On Details

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Oh for the simpler days!

Read, for example the complement of foreign news carried by the Halifax Reporter one hundred years ago:

"We have late news by the Persia at New York. Lord Clyde died on the 14th. Nothing decisive about Prince Maxmilian accepting the Mexican crown. There was growing belief that the war on the Potato question would be avoided."

If the despatch was a little short of such necessities as detail, background information and analysis, it had one virtue: it left readers told Nova Scotians of the day all they needed or wanted to know about the "outside" world. Indeed, the readers should have felt overwhelmed: one could assume (although not entirely without doubt) that The Halifax Reporter believed its subscribers knew about the mysterious Lord Clyde to measure the significance of his death "on the 14th" for themselves.

In any case, the account of Europe's doings ended, and with it, a marvel of "tight" writing: "Nothing else worthy spoken of, but rarely seen, these days."

So little seen, indeed, that the writer has been impressed who recently gave up reading The New York Times because the paper had published one offered food for thought. Certainly, the story was worthy of note not because the man's predicament was rare, but because he was honest enough to complain about it.

There is no argument, of course, with detailed accounts of world events; they are increasingly necessary to an understanding of a truly complicated age.

There is this one difficulty, however. When does one find the time to read more than a small fraction of them?

While we do not know we are confident that we would not be satisfying our readers' curiosity by publishing a paper consisting the following information:

"Parliament was recalled sooner than expected. The Dunn international exhibition of paintings opened in Timbuctoo. Thirty - four - year - old grandmother gives birth to quintuplets in Vesuvius."

Which is a summary of sorts of the front page of The Chronicle-Herald of recent date.

New Worry For Unions

New York Herald Tribune

If organized labor is not worrying about automation, it's worrying about overproduction. Why? Because, as one official of the United Auto Workers confidently shrouded, as in the Zip Code, in a number) put it: "All the things we've fought for, the corporation is now giving the workers." And this, a collection of AFL-CIO and W. official decided, is what's wrong with unionism today. The worker is being given so much, he's bored with the union, whose ostensible job is to get things for him.

So the union is confronted with its problem and is doing goodies the worker doesn't even know he wants and then getting him excited about it. This is the charge that is so often leveled at Madison Avenue — that it creates desires for industry to fill. It is also what a number of Left-wing parties in highly developed countries have faced.

We imagine that the unions will find something to justify their existence. But we can hardly let our pens bleed because the average worker does not spend all his spare time shouting "Solidarity forever," or burning with a gem - like flame for some distant goal. There is enough imperfect society for us to be done in this highly imperfect world without fighting the battles of the nineteenth century all over again — or scurrying around looking for undiscovered jobs.

Non-Painters Best Critics

BBC London Letter

If an artist can stand critics at all, he might be supposed to prefer the opinion of those who knows a lot about painting. Not so. In the course of British pioneer L. S. Lowry, who for over fifty years has been reflecting the individualism of the industrial life of the North of England, where he lives. Interviewed recently in the Radio Times Magazine from the North program broadcast in the BBC General Overseas Service, Lowry made it clear that he had often invited the comment of those who know little or nothing about painting. He said: "I like a particular notice," he said, "of people who don't paint. Because they seem to go to the fundamentals. You see, they are not bothered about technique, and after all, technique is only a means to an end. They don't know anything about the technique. But they can tell whether you're getting it or not. The most helpful in my opinion than people who paint. Particularly, children. Because grown-up people don't mind what they say, and they say what they like. They are very observant." He had once, he said, asked the advice of a maid, who knew nothing about painting, and probably cared nothing, on a picture he had painted during the first World War. She had told him firmly that what it needed was a red spot pointed towards the bottom right hand corner; in fact, two buses. He had painted them in and that had made the picture absolutely right.

Lowry's advice to young people starting to paint was to "paint what they want to do and paint it as they see it and they can . . . If they want to stay in their own district all their life, let them stop in their own district all their life." Speaking for himself, he was not a great believer in going to artistic centre and looking at pictures. It might do good in some. "But for me, I'm not interested in a lot of pictures, I get on with my own as well as I can."

Smokers Get Innings

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The world of propaganda is a wonderful place, sometimes even an amusing one.

For some time now, we have been treated to the picture of the smoker as a shaking neurotic incapable of giving up the habit — a slave to a habit he was bound to die early and painfully in the grip of an ugly cancer. In short, the Hollywood picture of Dorian Gray would do him justice.

This warning, however, we are in receipt of a communication from New York. Entitled "The Insider's Newsletter," it claims that research people in England have discovered, presumably after careful examination, that the smoker is "more flexible psychologically, takes part in more activities and is more extroverted personality, and seems to score addresses."

In addition, writes the taller, huskier, broader in the chest and slimmer in the face than non-smokers." In short, the handsome Mr. Gray before he was caught up with him.

Strangely enough, these unnamed English testers have not been deaf to a peripheral issue in the smoke - or not - to-smoke controversy.

One of the major complaints of the anti-smoking forces is cigarette company advertising designed to underline the "glamour" of smoking. Big game hunters, race car drivers, bon vivants — all tall, hunky and broad in the chest — are prominently displayed as smoking fans, to the vast annoyance of medical associations and parents who object to the theme as dangerously misleading, not to say influential.

What our English friends seem to say, with certainty, is that, whatever the dangers of smoking, the habit is unquestionably tied to the basic question of "manliness" or virility.

Which should cause apoplexy in a lot of anti-nicotine crusaders.

P. M. Macmillan Moves Back to Downing Street

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan moved back into No. 10 Downing Street today after a three-year exile while the residence of British prime ministers was rebuilt.

Macmillan has been carrying on his official duties around the corner at Admiralty House since construction firms took over No. 10 in August, 1960.

The construction men also rebuilt the adjoining No. 11 and No. 12. No. 11 is the official home of the chancellor of the exchequer and No. 12 is used by government officials of the House of Commons.

Canada's

tion is traditionally strong. By the end of the year the surplus should be the largest in a decade.

In 1962 Canada had a trade surplus of $82,000,000, compared with a surplus of $125,000,000 in 1961. The previous eight years showed an unbroken succession of deficits.

Much of the improved trade position is attributed by government officials to the devaluation and pegging of the Canadian dollar's exchange rate in May of last year.

Total exports during the January - August period rose to $4,398,200,000 from $4,129,400,000 a year earlier. Imports eased .1 per cent to $4,222,800,000 from $4,227,460,000.

The trade picture for the January-August periods of 1963 and 1962, in millions of dollars:

Exports	1963	1962
United States	$2,356.1	$2,470.3
Britain	660.7	596.0
Other Commonwealth	262.2	207.8
All others	918.2	855.2
Total	4,386.3	4,129.4
Imports
United States	3,918.9	2949.2
Britain	344.7	392.2
Other Commonwealth	232.6	198.1
All others	726.5	687.8
Total	4,222.9	4,227.4

The month of August produced a trade surplus of $32,800,000 little changed from $33,900,000 a year ago. Exports rose .5 per cent to $557,700,000 while imports advanced .7 per cent to $524,900,000.

Exports in the January-August period were up 2.5 per cent, 10.3 per cent to Britain, 26.6 per cent to other Commonwealth countries and 7.4 per cent to all other countries.

Exports to the U.S. fell 2.4 per cent in August to $317,500,000 from $325,500,000 a year previous and imports declined 1.6 per cent to $327,200,000 from $342,800,000.

Shipments in the months of British Preference rose 10.6 per cent to $85,500,000 from $85,700,000, while imports increased eight per cent to $48,100,000 from $52,200,000.

The month's exports to other Commonwealth countries were up 21.7 per cent to $33,800,000 from $27,800,000, and imports jumped 47.6 per cent to $40,800,000 from $27,700,000.

August exports to all other countries rose 13.8 per cent to $120,800,000 from $106,100,000, imports advanced fractionally to $98,800,000 from $98,700,000.

Bugs in Boiler

TORONTO (CP) — Leopold LeCouteur, 62, whose wife thinks he has got "bugs in his boiler" because of his marathon lake and canal excursions, paddled his canoe into Toronto Tuesday after a 26-day trip from Ottawa.

The deeply - tanned, greyhaired adventurer, who calls himself The Lone Voyageur, has paddled through about 20,000 miles of waterways in 40 years.

"I've got nobody to please but myself," he said. "My wife thinks I got bugs in my boiler but doesn't object to the trips."

Mr. LeCouteur paddles his 12-year-old 15-foot canoe most of the day and sleeps on an air mattress under it and a tarpaulin at night.

Today Mr. LeCouteur, a paint factory supervisor, loads his canoe and equipment on a bus for his home in Sturgeon Falls, Ont.

Looks for Cure

GLASGOW (AP) — The city zoo is looking for a cure for a homesick lion called Rikki. It has failed with the regular cure for depression in lions: Lionesses. Rikki spurned five of them.

A zoo official explained that Rikki, age five, was brought up as a pet by John Walton, an English farmer. Last spring Walton switched to a smaller farm with nervous neighbors. Rikki had to go.

Since then Rikki has lain sad-eyed and forlorn in a corner of his cage. He roars viciously if any keeper goes near — and seems happy only when Walton gets time to visit him during weekends.

in some quarters" that the flow of U.S. capital to Canada has been one main cause of the U.S. loss of gold.

Mr. Sharp said that in effect, Canada has been contributing about $250,000,000 a year to help the U.S. meet its deficit with other countries.

JUSTIFIES STAND

Mr. Sharp said this explains why Canada feels justified in urging that all Canadian securities—not just new issues—be exempt from the proposed U.S. tax on American purchases of foreign stocks and bonds.

"It is difficult for us to understand why this penalty should be imposed upon the movement of United States capital to a country like Canada which is in no way responsible for the difficulties that gave rise to the tax proposals," he said.

"To put the matter bluntly, the threat represented by the proposed interest equalization tax has reinforced Canadian determination to reduce the current account deficit to a minimum and to work towards the point where we are running a surplus and beginning to pay off our external obligations."

Tony Fredo Is Named City Editor

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The appointment of Tony Fredo as city editor of The Evening Review was announced today by W. Bruce Leslie, editor and general manager.

A member of The Evening Review editorial staff since November, 1952, he was named district editor in 1956. Mr. Fredo, 30, was in the journalism course at the Ryerson Polytechnic Institute, Toronto, before joining The Review staff in 1951. He received honorable mention in the spot news category of the Western Ontario newspaper awards.

Nikita at Peak of Power But at Bottom of His Luck

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev, well along in his 70th year, finds himself today probably at the peak of his power and at the bottom of his luck.

Two major catastrophes in one year would mean the end of a head of government in many another country.

He has seen his cherished Communist camp break in two, with the biggest population on the other side.

He is faced with perhaps the worst crop year in the Soviet Union since the Second World War despite glowing promises that things were getting better and the outlook was secure.

Soviet readers knew today how bad their wheat crop was. Khrushchev told them in a speech published five days after it was delivered.

TELLS OF GRAIN BUYS

For the first time, he told his people he had to buy 6,800,000 tons of wheat from Canada and another 1,800,000 tons from the United States. He didn't say how much it had cost in that Soviet commodity even more scarce than wheat—gold and dollars. But abroad it was calculated at more than $200,000,000 and probably nearer $700,000,000.

Tons of Soviet gold have been dumped on the Western market to raise the money. Those details were not published here.

That the two crises have caused much head - shaking among the Soviet people can be surmised from the amount of press effort expended to defend the government's position.

Daily articles blame the Chinese for the break in the Communist camp. The Chinese criticism clearly shaken the confidence of many a Soviet citizen who had been led to believe that Soviet Communist party leadership always was right. The Chinese have said it isn't all right and these accusations have been published in the Soviet press because they could hardly be hidden any longer.

BLAMES WEATHER

Then came the wheat crisis. Just how bad it is may not be known for some time. In his speech Khrushchev went to great pains to explain that it was dirty weather that did it—a bad winter, followed by a late spring and a dry summer.

He told what remedies had been decided upon—a massive increase in fertilizer production and more money spent on irrigation. To Soviet citizens long waiting for more money to be spent on a better life, the revelation of a cruel crop shortage comes as a shock.

A report is going about that an increase in the price of bread may come next.

In Russia, bread is half of each meal. A price boost won't go down well.

State Troopers

is this the best the nation can expect of the combined efficient forces of the federal, state and local law agencies!" Shuttlesworth said.

He warned that "the cup of the Negro's patience runneth over." He did not explain the statement, but it was noted that Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who delivered a four-point ultimatum on Negro demands in Birmingham, the leader last week-end, said that the decision on resumption of demonstrations would be up to Shuttlesworth and his organization.

Shuttlesworth was the leader in a vote at a Negro rally two weeks ago in favor of a massive march on Montgomery, the state capital. There has been little talk of the proposed march in the last few days, but Negro leaders have not publicly abandoned the idea.

Presidential advisers Kenneth C. Royall and Earl Blaik planned another round of conferences with local Negro leaders today. Informed sources said the two men, sent to promote racial harmony, were nearly ready to report to President Kennedy.

Mother's Rushing Things

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am 13 years old and my mother wants me to look and act like I am 17 years old. She gives me light clothes and wants me to wear my hair like a big fat hat. She gives me a girdle, nylons, etc., etc., and she wants me to wear them. She also gave me shoes with heels on them. She wants me to wear lipstick and make-up.

Other girls my age say that I am lucky to have a mother like her. Of course I love her very much because she is my mother, but I don't want to grow up so fast. She even arranges dates for me and gets an appointment for me at the beauty salon.

Others look at me like I am a freak or something from space. What can I do to make her understand I am 12. — TWELVE.

DEAR TWELVE — Quite a switch. Usually the trouble is the other way around. I agree with you that there is no point in trying to grow up abnormally fast.

Why don't you bring one or two of the other girls home with you some time for dinner and let her look at the way they dress? Then explain to her that you want to be one of the crowd; you are going to enjoy growing up but don't want to take it all in one jump.

DEAR DORIS — My husband is a very good provider and father, but I feel neglected in some ways. For instance, we were eight years married last week. I bought him some gifts.

Now don't think I want something back, but if he only said something. In my family a birthday was always a special day. Everybody congratulated you, and my father always remembered us when he prayed at the table.

I can't remember when my husband said something nice, like "darling" or "dear". The only kiss I get is when he goes to work, and most of the time it is I who kiss him.

Don't start thinking this is another marriage going on the rocks. The funny thing is that I am still crazy about him and I show it. But I wish that he would show it too sometimes. — WARMHEARTED.

DEAR WARMHEARTED — A certain Lady Cholmondaley (pronounced "Chumly") said: "The waste of life lies in the love we have not given." I paraphrase that to read: "The waste of love lies in the kisses we've withheld!"

Don't ever think your man wouldn't miss your warmth. Keep on making something of your birthdays, and your children's, and his. Add the prayer at table, and a happily sung "Happy Birthday to You!" Then quietly, and in your own room at night, tell him of your need.

DEAR DORIS — Could you please recommend any books on editing, putting together a magazine, how to go about publishing one, or how to find somebody to publish it for me?

We are already busy finding material, writing etc., but since we have never done anything like it, some books along these lines would be most helpful.

If we should really be successful, you will receive one year's subscription free. — ANXIOUS TO GET STARTED.

DEAR ANXIOUS — This is your Cold-Water-Throwing Friend. If you haven't done it, don't do it. People have lost their shirts over trying to publish a magazine.

The only possible exception might be a periodical on a new and growing interest, published by an established firm which knows the market. In case you want word of mouth from one who knows, I am sending you the name of an experienced Canadian publisher to talk to.

(If it's a career, or a courtship, or a cantankerous mate you need help with, ask Doris — through a letter to this newspaper.)

Turkeys Will Be Cheaper, Eggs Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Housewives can look forward to cheaper turkeys for Thanksgiving this year.

However, a monthly bulletin, issued Tuesday by the agriculture department, indicates a continuing short supply of eggs.

Summary of shopping prospects for October:

Turkey: All weights will be in ample supply with prices slightly lower than last year.

Eggs: Supplies will continue tight; high prices for grade A large may make smaller eggs the best buy.

Apples: An abundant crop with prices lower.

Potatoes: Smaller crop, but little change in price.

Beef: Supplies of good and choice beef better than last year.

Pork: Plentiful supplies, prices may drop, with specials on hams and pork roasts likely at thanksgiving.

Lamb: Good supply, price cheaper than most other meats.

Veal: Price likely to ease downwards.

Broiler chicken: Plentiful, prices becoming seasonally lower.

Cheddar cheese: Record production; second grade white cheddar in good buy with prices about 10 per cent below first grade; attractive cheese displays during Cheese Festival Month.

Mrs. Bertha Mom Whyte Runs Orphanage in Nigeria

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — In a remote village in Nigeria a Canadian woman is struggling to bring relief to orphaned children after two similar endeavors in her own country failed to satisfy authorities.

Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte had her home for children near Bowmanville, Ont., closed by officials in 1959 because of health regulations. A second home for children in Summerland, B.C., failed the following year when she was unable to obtain a licencee.

Now Mrs. Whyte, who says God has instructed her to help those in need, heads an orphanage training centre and ambulance service at Alyetoro in Nigeria's Kobba province.

Her village is far from any large centre and is without telephones, cars, electricity or running water. A small hospital with a doctor and two nurses is 14 miles from the village.

Saldou does a day go by when her "ambulance" isn't called out to take sick people from surrounding villages to the hospital.

She describes her ambulance as an old pickup truck "on its last legs." It is covered with a tarpaulin and a door or similar makeshift serves as a stretcher.

LEAD VILLAGERS

Her orphanage, Whytehaven Missions, houses 22 babies. The training centre is a community project, founded and supported by an advisory board of Kabba province chiefs and a working committee from the village.

The committee forms work bands, provides supplies and licences to villagers on their duties. Its objectives are to care for orphans and train them as leaders and supervisors to help establish agricultural and child care projects in other villages.

Mrs. Whyte says her most urgent needs are a dispensary and its equipment, a van to be used as an ambulance, medical supplies and seeds to grow fruit, nuts and vegetables.

New Mother Honored at Baby Shower

A most enjoyable time was spent at the home of Mrs. Gerald McCaw (nee Jane Thompson), Church Street, on Monday evening when approximately 24 friends were present to honor Mrs. George Balazs on the arrival of a baby daughter, Paula Jane.

The evening was spent in fun and fellowship during which time a baby picture contest was conducted by the hostess, with the winners being Mrs. Carolyn Emerson and Mrs. Pat Boots.

After the unwrapping of a lovely assortment of baby gifts, the honored guest expressed sincere appreciation to everyone for their kindness.

Refreshments including dainty sandwiches and pineapple squares were served by the hostess and her assistant, Mrs. Norman Babcock, sister of Mrs. Balazs.

There was a moment of silent prayer in memory of a departed member, Mrs. A. Goodfellow.

A letter was received from Holloway Street U.C.W. extending an invitation to attend their bazaar and tea in October.

Mrs. George Osborne expressed thanks for cards received at the time of their bereavement.

Mrs. S. Elliott expressed thanks on behalf of Mrs. Gamsett who is convalescing at the Belleville General Hospital.

LOTS MORE SUDS

Few things point up the difference in modern and older housekeeping as much as the laundry habits. For generations Monday was the sacred washday, and the efficient housekeeper had her laundry on the line soon after daybreak. I recall two women I once heard discussing a third who happened to be an English wartime bride. One said, "She is a nice girl, but not much of a housekeeper. Her wash is fever on the line before ten o'clock."

Nowadays any time of the day or night and any day in the week, including Sundays is wash day. The young housewife tosses the laundry in the automatic washer at ten at night if she wants to. Then she can put them in the dryer and go to bed, and next day do her ironing.

The coin operated laundries are busy places at all hours for those who not own automaties, and the surprising thing is the number of men who do the laundry. Even children of about ten or eleven years old handle the chore with ease.

A man of about sixty, one of nine children, was describing washday when his mother was alive. He said she got up at 4 a.m. on Monday mornings, lit the fire, and filled the washboilers with water from the pump. These wash boilers had copper bottoms. She shaved off "Sunlight" soap with a knife and added it to the water. Then the clothes were put in the tub and brought to a boil, while his mother stirred them with a stick made out of a saved-off broom handle. Everything was wrung by hand, rinsed and hung out on a clothesline that was propped up with a forked pole. Too often this proved a weak support. One children dragged in the dirt and everything had to be rinsed again. We wonder if anyone would trade for the good old days?

PASS THE SODA

The humble box of baking powder has more uses than just mixing with sour milk to add to a cake. In the summer it is fine for making a paste with a little water to take the itch out of mosquito bites, or the sting out of bee bites. It de-odorizes garbage pails, and is excellent for washing the interior of refrigerators, after defrosting. Some men use it for cleaning and polishing fishing lures, and it is supposed to remove rust. In fact, it is a versatile item on the kitchen shelf. About a half inch of baking soda in the bottom of the ashtray in the car will prevent that cigarette butt from continuing to burn and smoulder in the ash tray.

A DOG'S LIFE

Patches is a black and white dog with a shaky family tree, proudly owned by five children. She was dropped from a car when she was just a puppy, along with four other puppies and then the car speeded away. She was taken in and given a home and repaid it with love and devotion to all the family.

This summer she was taken to the pet show at the Belleville shopping plaza. She was washed and brushed and joined the other canines in the parade.

The whole family was delighted when she won second prize for having the most spots. The first prize went to a Dalmation which was pretty tough competition. The only thing that dimmed her triumph was that they were the only two dogs in the "spotty" class.

Patches won a can of dog food, a hand puppet, and a red ribbon around her neck. The red ribbon around her neck read, 2nd prize in cat show — and that is pretty good, when you're a dog.

WEDDING

McKEE — CAMERON

Bridge Street United Church chapel, Belleville was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Bunty Beatrice Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cameron, Belleville was united in marriage to Robert Gordon McKee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKee, Belleville. The Rev. Harry M. Davis, minister of the church officiated at the double-ring ceremony before a background of yellow gladioli and tinted green mums. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Alec Gordon, church organist rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mrs. Manly in her renditions of the "Wedding Prayer" previous to the ceremony and "Today O Lord" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father Mr. William Cameron was dressed in a full-length bridal gown of silk organa over taffeta fashioned on princess lines featuring a fitted bodice with scoop neckline accented with lace appliques. The waistline was also enhanced with lace appliques. Her scalloped finger-tip veil of nylon tulle outlined with pearls was held in place by a double tiara of aurora borealis sequins and pearls. She carried a white Bible crested with red sweetheart roses with cascading white streamers knotted with love-knots.

The maid of honor Miss Patricia Mulholland, Belleville, was dressed in floor-length gown of yellow nylon over taffeta featuring a lace bodice enhanced with a circular neckline and short sleeves. The skirt was accented at the hem with lace panels gathered at the waist with two bows. The bridesmaids Miss Judy Robson, Miss Marilyn Tweedy and Miss Barabra Eggleton, all of Belleville were identically attired to the maid of honor, but in green. All wore headdresses consisting of a satin velvet bow with short veil, white satin shoes and short white gloves. Each carried a cascade bouquet of white and tinted yellow and green 'mums. The demure little flower girl Miss Heather Carr, Belleville, dressed in a tinted frock of yellow nylon gathered at the waist, and the bodice enhanced with short sleeves, accented with a tiny basket of white and tinted green 'mums. The ringbearer, Master Scott Cameron, of Belleville wearing a 'charcoal grey suit carried a white satin pillow with rings attached.

Mr. Gordon Cameron, Belleville, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom while Mr. Robert Doogan Jr., and Mr. Larry Soules, and Mr. Morley Cameron, of Belleville were the ushers.

The reception was held in the parlors of Bridge Street United Church where the bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake, misted about the base with 'mums and flanked with tall branch candelabra. Rose bowls of white, green and yellow baby 'mums centered the guests tables lent colorful accent to the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests, dressed in a beige and brown sheath with nylon three-quarter length duster, accessories and a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a three-piece pink suit of Cohama "Risque" boucle with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations with ivy and pink bow.

For the wedding trip to points east the bride chose a two-piece powder blue dress of rayon and cotton brocade with white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Belleville, Deseronto, Warkworth, Brighton, Kingston and Toronto.

A miscellaneous shower honoring the bride was held at the home of Mrs. Lyle Tweedy, with Miss Marilyn Tweedy as co-hostess, and at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. S. Mulholland with Miss Patricia Mulholland as hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee are residing at 484 Victoria Street, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robert McKee, Kingston, are shown cutting the cake following their recent marriage in Bridge Street United Church chapel, Belleville. The bride is the former Bunty Beatrice Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cameron, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKee, Belleville.

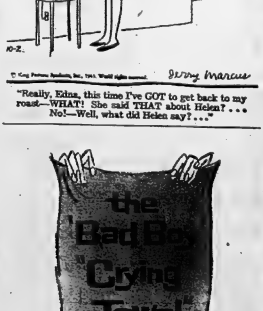
FROM THE MAIL BOX

Dear Pegg Rogers: I have a very expensive Italian leather handbag with saddle stitching that I have not used for over four years because the handle is broken. I have found a repair shop where I can have it fixed. I was all set to have this done when a friend pointed out that this bag is old-fashioned. She says that this year's purses are quite different in shape although I have not noticed the change. She tells me that handbags change in fashion and silhouette just as often as coats and dresses.

Once she mentioned it, I began to notice a few smaller purses around, but I also see some larger bags in the store windows. I even saw a travel type bag of grained leather, with two metal clasps on the top at each side. I can remember my mother carrying one of these bags when she and my father went away on a trip fifteen years ago.

My friend tells me that each season there are fashion changes in all clothing. Is this true? Signed — Miss J. L.

Dear Miss J. L.: Your friend is right about seasonal changes in all style items, but she is mistaken about your leather handbag. You have a perfect example of the ageless classic. How could you wait four years before having it repaired? Get it done right away and use it for at least another four years.



The changes your friend was talking about in handbags, is the trend toward smaller, more delicate bags to wear with dressier coats and suits. You will need — and you probably have — such a handbag now. But you will get far more wear out of your Italian classic, which is meant to be used every day. (By the way — what did you carry in it? Its handle should not break unless you loaded it unmercifully.) The travel bag your mother used on her trip fifteen years ago is still in fashion. Many businesswomen have at least one of these bags in constant use.

FASHION CHANGES

The fashion changes in basics such as foundation garments, gloves and jewelry are made every season and should really be called improvements. Foundation garments vary in silhouette with the season — this year the emphasis is off the waistline. (Overblouses and a shift dresser concentrate on the shoulder and hipline.) Improvements in the fabrics used, have led to the introduction of pantie girdles of all lengths.

This season's newest gloves are silk-lined leathers of varying lengths. Here is a European favorite that most of us could not afford up till now, as they used to retail for over $30. But now, quality gloves of this type are being produced in Canada, at considerably reduced prices. The most practical are the eight-button length. The new sportive look in dresses, suits and coats seems to call for tailored jewelry. Chains of new, improved lightweight metals and pearls go with this sportive look. Everything that is part of the fashion scene, including cosmetics, changes each season. Most, but all, of these changes are improvements.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers in care of this paper.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

New leaders of Belleville and Napanee Brownies and Girl Guides were introduced to the aims of Guiding, last week at a special training for new and inexperienced leaders, which was held at the King George School.

The basic training is to be followed by five more in the series, conducted every Thursday evening, by Belleville Division trainers, Mrs. Diana Settle and in the absence of Mrs. Joan Watkis, Mrs. S. Sharman.

Last week the meaning of the Guide promise and law, when applied to adults was stressed and the characteristics of each age group were explained, with games pertaining to these groups taught. The training concluded with a singsong and coffee was served.

Although each training is a continuation from the preceding week-integrated Guide personnel and prospective leaders are invited to attend future trainings.

The Experts Say

Good Model Must Have Self-Confidence, Poise

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — Young girls who dream with stars in their eyes about glamorous modelling careers should think twice.

"You can make a career out of it but it's tough," says Joy Davies who runs a modelling and charm school here.

Even in this city, one of Canada's leading fashion centres, there are only about 10 girls who can earn their living from this work, she says.

There are fewer opportunities in most other Canadian cities.

Miss Davies says few jobs are available for Canadian models partly because Canada's largest mail order companies import models for their catalogue work.

"And when they do use Canadian girls, they just use them for slips and girdles—New York girls charge about $80 an hour for modelling lingerie, while in Toronto the rate is only about $30."

Miss Davies says there is no magic formula for becoming a model—"you don't have to be beautiful; you don't even have to be pretty."

The most important characteristics of a good model are self-confidence and poise, both of which can be learned.

TRAINING YOUNG

"The training is almost as rigid as that of a soldier."

Besides doing exercises constantly to keep her figure trim and her body graceful and supple, learning to apply makeup and dress well, a model must get lots of sleep to keep up with the hectic pace.

Photogenic models in particular must look after their health — "when you are five-foot-seven inches tall and weigh only 115 pounds, it's easy to become too down."

Initially, a girl hoping to make a full-time career of modelling must do a lot of "freelancing" and must take many second-rate jobs at low rates of pay both for experience and for making contacts and becoming known.

At this time, remaining a lady at all times is "a constant problem," Miss Davies says. Many men expect to have a good time as well as look at new clothes.

Unless they do television commercials and other advertising jobs, the amount women offers models here little work.

HAS GOOD POINTS

"Only in New York can a really good model get her full talents developed."

Although modelling has many hardships, it also has some good points. Often it can be a stepping stone to other jobs in fashion buying and design. And many actresses began their careers as models, says Miss Davies.

And those models who do become well - known and established can work until they are 50 years old and longer if they keep their figure and health, says Miss Davies.

She says all the girls who come to her school to continue their education as long as possible because she has seen so many become discouraged and find themselves without training for other careers.

Egyptian Women Play Active Part in Country

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egypt's women, who for years have been the most emancipated in the Middle East, today are playing a more active part than ever in the life of the country.

Without any loss of feminity, they are daily making inroads into what were formerly male domains.

Artificial barriers, which for centuries have separated the two sexes in Egypt, are collapsing as women occupy more and more key jobs in the government, factories, research centres and universities.

Their emancipation has culminated in the appointment of the country's first woman minister, Dr. Hekmat Abu Zeid, who holds the portfolio of social affairs.

It was only in 1907 that, for the first time in the history of Egypt, two women became members of the now-defunct national assembly. A year later, their numbers increased to eight.

This year, some 200,000 women are members of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's political national front which embraces people from all walks of life.

POLYGAMY FADES

Polygamy, one of the chronic sociological problems in the Middle East, is gradually dying out as a result of social reforms won by constant pressure from feminist organizations.

In the countryside, where two-thirds of Egypt's population live, polygamous traditions are being discarded following large-scale education programs for both men and women.

Latest statistics show that today, only seven in every 1,000 husbands have two wives and only three in every 1,000 have more than two.

Women in Egypt constitute 30 per cent of the active labor force. They have already proved their efficiency in government work, industry and public life. About 30,000 women are employed in factories.

There are also 7,000 nurses, 1,000 women in other medical jobs, 500 women lawyers, 200 women journalists and 4,000 women shops or run them.

More than 80,000 girls have received military training.

Peach Desserts

by Mary Moore

The peach growers tell me that there will be little peaches for a while yet so I am encouraged to give you two recipes I worked on so we can extend the peach season to its limit.

The recipe for Coffee Bavarian Cream may be made, of course, during the winter for your guest meals, using other fruits as a garnish. The recipe for Sabayon Sauce which I served over fresh peaches and ripe Bartlett pears last night, may be used over any dessert where a soft custard-type of sauce is appropriate.

COFFEE BAVARIAN CREAM (with peaches) (serves 8 to 10):

2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 1 cup boiling water, 1 can (15 oz.) sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated), 2 cups very strong coffee (cold), 1 cup heavy cream sweetened sliced fresh or canned peaches.

In large bowl, sprinkle gelatine on cold water and soak 5 minutes. Add boiling water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add sweetened condensed milk and coffee. Stir until well blended. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Whip cream; fold in. Pour into 6-cup mould, preferably fancy, that has been rinsed in cold water. Chill. When set, unmould. Serve with sliced peaches and additional whipped cream.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Fort Ragout (see Tuesday); Generous Tossed Green Salad; Cherry Upside Down Pudding; Brown Sugar Sauce; Coffee.

BLANCHED PEACHES SABAYON:

Allow two whole ripe peaches for each person to be served. Blanch them in boiling water for 2 minutes to loosen the skins and ever so slightly cook the peaches. After the two-minute blanch, dip each peach in cold water and slip off the skin. Place 2 on each serving dish. Have ready Sabayon Sauce: To serve 6 in top of double boiler mix together 2 egg yolks, 6 tablespoons sugar, and 2 tablespoons cream or milk. Stir over hot boiling water until creamy and coats spoon and has thickened. Slowly stir in ¼ cup cooking or table sherry until it is hot and thickened. You must stir it constantly. Remove from heat and stand top of double boiler in pan of cold water and chill, stirring occasionally. Spoon over prepared fruit and, for a delicate touch, sprinkle top of each peach with a few grains of granulated sugar.

NOTES:

1) For fun I added half of a pared and cored ripe Bartlett pear to each one of our dessert plates and poured some of the sauce over. It was good on the pears too. 2) There are many variations of Sabayon Sauce: a) You may fold in ½ to 1 cup heavy cream, whipped. b) Instead of the sherry use half as much of a liqueur such as curacao or cointreau or Grand Marnier. c) To increase the amount of sauce use 1 egg and 2 yolks instead of 2 yolks.

This sauce is delicious on steamed puddings — especially Christmas Plum Pudding.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR M. Q.?

Can you properly find your way around a buffet table? Test yourself and see:

1. When do guests start serving themselves?
2. Should women sit down and let the men serve them?
3. What is the order of service?
4. May guests take any seat they want?
5. When does one start to eat?
6. Is salad put on the dinner plate or taken separately?
7. May a guest go back for seconds?
8. May guests help themselves to coffee as well?
9. Where are used plates put?
10. Do guests help clear away dishes?

Answers:

1. When the hostess announces dinner, guests should immediately start filling up to the table to help themselves. If a first course is served at pre-arranged tables, guests go to the buffet table while tables are being cleared.

2. They may, but most women usually help themselves, and correctly so.

3. It generally goes like this: first the dinner plate, then the main dish, sauce or gravy — if any — vegetable, possible salad, rolls, then knife, fork and napkin.

4. At a very informal buffet, yes. If there are pre-set tables, the hostess may indicate where guests should sit.

5. As soon as one is served and seated. It's not necessary to wait until everyone is served.

6. If tables are pre-set, the salad may be on the table along with silver and napkin at each place. If not, and salad is included in the buffet, it may be placed on the dinner plate.

7. Yes, and without waiting to be asked.

8. If indicated, yes. Often, though, the hostess may have it served by a waitress or do the dessert, herself, from a tray in the living room.

9. At pre-arranged tables, the hostess or waitress clears them away before coffee and dessert are served. If guests eat informally in the living room, plates are deposited on nearby tables for clearing, or on a special table that may be set up for this purpose.

10. A few might help a hostess clear things to the kitchen if she needs help and is willing to accept it.

Pension

by votes of 111 to 90 and of 122 to 14.

On the first appeal, Mr. Diefenbaker's Conservatives were supported by Mr. Caouette's Creditiste group and New Democrats—not enough to offset the Liberals plus Robert Thompson's Social Credit group.

On the second appeal it was the small Creditiste group plus two Conservatives — Eugene Rheaume (Northwest Territories) and Drummond Clancy (Yorkton) — against the rest of the Commons.

DON'T OPPOSE INCREASE

Throughout, there was no opposition to the pension increase itself. That question was ignored in much of the debate.

But there was strong criticism of the personal income tax increase proposed to finance the added payments—a rise next year to four per cent from three in the tax rate earmarked for the pension fund. The limit on an individual's pension tax payment would rise to $120 from $90.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals had given a flat election pledge that their promise of a $20 pension increase would not mean higher taxes.

Mr. Thompson said the extra tax would mean real hardship, and suggested that the government instead should tax retained corporate profits.

Mr. Caouette said the tax increase was the exact opposite of the Liberal election pledge.

Much of the heat of the debate developed during a late evening speech by Elson Woolliams (PC — Bow River) who said the Conservatives had forced the Liberals into making the $10 pension increase now instead of waiting to link it—as originally planned — with the posed contributory Canada Pension Plan.

He said Liberal backbenchers were seeking the resignation of Miss LaMarsh when Prime Minister Pearson was really to blame.

CHALLENGES SPEAKER

Miss LaMarsh challenged Mr. Woolliams to produce one piece of evidence to support his claim there was a Liberal election promise of an immediate $10 pension increase.

Mr. Woolliams read such a promise from what he said was a Liberal election document.

Mr. Pickersgill then got the floor and attempted to read from two documents in his hand. Conservative MPs kept interrupting him on points of order.

Chairman Lucien Lamoureux, presiding over the debate, tried in vain to get the debate back on the tracks.

Finally the adjournment hour arrived before Mr. Pickersgill could make the point he was striving for.

BECOMES REPUBLIC

LAGOS (AP) — The Federation of Nigeria converted itself into a republic within the British Commonwealth Monday under the Presidency of Nnamdi Azikiwe, former governor-general. The switch came three years from the day that this West African nation of 40,000,000, Africa's most populous, gained independence from Britain.

Crofton

CROFTON — Mrs. E. Crook was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Hutson on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Aitken and boys of Belleville called on Mrs. W. J. Gray on Sunday.

Mrs. Lawrence Creamer of Wellington spent Monday with Mrs. D. B. Hutson.

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mrs. Harold Cross and family in the death of a husband and father. A number from this street attended the funeral in Picton.

Mr. George Hutson spent the weekend with his daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sharp, at Roslin.

Mr. Charles Gray and Bill of Deseronto were Saturday guests of his mother, Mrs. W. J. Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hutson and family of Belleville were recent guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hutson.

Mrs. S. C. Clement of Hamilton called on Mrs. E. Crook on Sunday afternoon.

Ben Bella

ence in July, 1962.

Ben Bella said the French government, which imprisoned him during the bitter guerrilla war leading to independence, could still co-operate with a free Algeria.

But he said Algeria needed more French teachers and technical advisers, not French settlers who draw a profit from the land and who might be regarded as potential enemies of his regime.

Ben Bella hinted to reporters a week ago he would nationalize remaining French property. But he said at the time this would occur only if France conducted more nuclear tests in the Sahara.

The situation in Kabylia still was confused. Neither the government troops nor the dissidents showed inclination to fight. But weapons were in position and the Berbers vowed that no one was able to smash their resistance.

FREIGHTER SINKS

LE HAVRE, France (AP)— The 4,606-ton Norwegian freighter Ronda sank in port Wednesday after a collision with the 8,103-ton American freighter Lucille Bloomfield. The crew was rescued. The American vessel was only slightly damaged and continued on her voyage to Antwerp, Belgium.

some kind of permanent Canada-U.S. machinery that would enable Canadian officials to explore fully the connections between Cosa Nostra and crime in Ontario, which Valachi says exists.

"What we would like to do is to set up some form of permanent liaison between our commission and the U.S. department of justice on this entire investigation."

MAY NEED NEW LAWS

The subcommittee has indicated the aim of the hearings is to draw public attention to the racketeering activities and to explore the possible need of new laws to battle organized crime.

Valachi has told the senators he wants to destroy Cosa Nostra through his testimony because it exploited rank-and-file members as himself and has marked him for execution as an informer.

He has named Vito Genovese as Cosa Nostra's dominant power and linked Genovese's name with bloody gang wars for power.

Genivese is serving 15 years at Leavenworth, Kans., federal prison as a narcotics racketeer.

Valachi swore Genovese and Thomas (Tommy) Eboli, Salvatore (Lucky) Luciano lured another New York gangster, Giuseppe Masseria, to his "death mail" in a Coney Island, N.Y., restaurant to set him up for gang war execution.

Luciano, who was described in the past as one of the leaders of the vice and narcotics rackets, was deported after the Second World War and died in Italy last year.

STILL UNSOLVED

A recess came before Valachi had a chance, however, to describe the actual murder of Masseria which the New York authorities list as unsolved.

Masseria was slain April 20, 1931, in a war with another mob headed by Salvatore Maranzano, himself a later victim of the war.

Valachi told of accepting without question "contracts" for murder, including the slaying of James Catalda, also known as Joe Baker, on Feb. 3, 1931.

Six bullets cut Baker down as he walked toward his office. Valachi said the actual killing was done by Salvatore (Sally Shields) Shillitani, Nick Capozzi and a Chicago mobster known as Buster who looked like a college boy and carried a machine-gun in a violin or guitar case.

6th Sidney

SIDNEY — Several families attended the funeral of Mr. Earl Bonisteel in Frankford United Church Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McInryn, Marmora were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edson Sine.

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

Mrs. Atton Sine was hostess for the September meeting of Scott's United Church Women with 11 ladies attending.

The president, Mrs. Carman Frost opened the meeting and conducted the business, following which Mrs. George Pollard conducted the program. She told about taking a trip during the latter part of the summer through the northern part of Southern Ontario via Bancroft, Maynooth, Pembroke, Smith Falls, Kemptville, Prescott and home which inspired her to have the program as one of praise and thanksgiving. Her topic was "The Earth is Full of the Glory of God." Several readings following up her theme were given by various ladies.

and the AFL-CIO in the United States.

The CLC's eight-member executive committee considered the situation Tuesday and adjourned until next Monday. This was interpreted to mean that there is no concrete solution in immediate prospect.

A CLC spokesman said, without elaborating, that "certain proposals" are under consideration.

The government trusteeship would involve the SIU of Canada; the marine section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers; the Canadian Maritime Union; the Canadian Merchant Service Guild and the National Association of Marine Engineers.

Together, the five unions represent some 21,000 Canadian sailors, marine engineers and dock officers on Canadian ships.

PENSIONS COME FIRST

Mr. MacEachen has said he plans to proceed with the trusteeship legislation today, but Government House Leader J. W. Pickersgill told the Commons Tuesday night that today's debate would begin with the government's pension resolution.

Meanwhile, William J. Smith, president of the 22,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, said he met Tuesday with the CLC's executive committee.

"I was told nothing and I don't know what's going on," he said in an interview. "An air of mystery surrounds this whole affair."

He reiterated the CBRT's opposition to any private union trusteeship and indicated that his union would defy a move by the CLC and the AFL-CIO to impose trusteeships on the CBRT's marine section.

The Canadian Brotherhood, arch-foe of the SIU for years, wants a full cleanup of the SIU as proposed by Mr. Justice Norris, including the ouster of Canadian SIU President Hal C. Banks and his chief lieutenants, a thorough reform of abuses in the SIU and a free decision by Canadian seamen on what future union they want as their bargaining agent.

The 1964 Rambler "American" features complete styling change in exterior and interior. Revenues Up Golf Club Members Told PICTON — The annual meeting of the Picton Golf and Country Club took place at the clubhouse Saturday night with an attendance of sixty.

Another successful season was reported. Club secretary, W. C. "Bill" Simpson said revenues for the year were up $1,023 making 1963 a record year for receipts. The increase in green fees to an all time high accounted for this condition. Expenses were down $536 in spite of the fact that an extra $1,000 was paid on the club's mortgage.

Membership decreased slightly as no junior girls played golf this year. New memberships dropped one from last year to 117. The number of members also totalled one less than 1962 with 35 new members to 35 members altogether in 1963.

The secretary's report was preceded by a welcome from outgoing president Joe Short who paid tribute to the directors, and various committees as well as to the individual members who by their actions have built a reputation for friendliness at the Picton club.

An Evening In Hawaii Banquet Theme

PICTON — Once again, mayors and ex-mayors of Lake-on-the-Mountain resort returned for the weekend as special guests of Hugh and Bernice Primell. This event is always looked forward to with great expectations, as much planning and work make it an unusual treat for those privileged to enjoy it.

Guests began arriving on Friday evening and those having farther to travel came on Saturday morning, but all were there for the highlight of the occasion which is the banquet and party on Saturday evening.

Flaming tiki torches flanked the doorway, as the guests assembled and were greeted in true Hawaiian fashion by their hosts as they placed brightly colored leis about their necks. Indirect lighting, soft Hawaiian music and waving palm trees gave the dining hall a real south sea atmosphere. Individual quet tables were covered with straw matting and each place set with banana leaves. Place cards were miniature trees holding a beautifully colored Hawaiian scene. Tall glasses containing "Mai Tai," a favorite Hawaiian punch, made delightfully refreshing, filled with crushed ice and topped with a tiny floating orchid. The tables were centred with hats woven from palm leaves, and filled with orchids and fruit and surrounded by colorful leis. Serivettes, place cards, and favors were designed directly from Hawaii for this party.

The sumptuous banquet, served by pretty girls in grass skirts, continued to carry out the evening's theme. Hors d'oeuvres, pineapple, fruit cocktail, special drinks made from native recipes, preceded the main course of "Teri Yaki" — a wine-marinated sirloin beef which was most delectable. Coconaut cream pie proved a concluding treat. The banquet was especially prepared under the careful direction of Chef Wilfred Frenette.

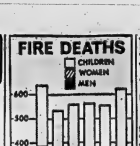
Special greetings and short after-dinner speeches were given by Wes Bloodell, Syracuse; Al Pearce, Hugh Primell and Jim Reid of Syracuse.

The minutes of last year's banquet were read by Mrs. Ralph Peck, Parry Sound and a short business period was conducted.

Bernice and Hugh were the grateful recipients of lovely gifts and suitably replied. Bernice was also wearing a beautiful orchid corsage, a gift of Toronto friends.

The guests were to reassemble in Hawaiian costume at ten o'clock in the restaurant. This area, too, had been completely transformed. Indirect lighting, colored patio lights and a large yellow moon looked down on waving cocoanut palms. A bubbling mountain stream cascaded through ferns and flowers into a lovely pool below. A grass shack, with roof of thatched palm leaves, covered the soda fountain section. Fish net, pineapples, tropical fish and Hawaiian music were all used effectively here. A program of singing, dancing and skits provided much fun and entertainment. All too soon came the time to bid "Aloha" and bring to a close another memorable reunion.

CONNECT PIPELINE



WARSAW (AP) — Welders have connected the Polish and East German sections of the "friendship pipeline" which by the end of the year will carry Soviet oil to the outskirts of East Berlin. The linkup Tuesday marked completion of the 402-mile Polish section.

Plaque Will Be Unveiled On Tuesday

PICTON — On Tuesday, October 8, 1963, commencing at 7.00 p.m., the historic court house and gaol at Picton will be commemorated by the unveiling of a provincial plaque on its grounds. This plaque is one of a series being erected throughout the province by the Department of Travel and Publicity, acting on the advice of the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario.

Tuesday's ceremony is being arranged and sponsored by the Prince Edward Historical Society, whose president, Mr. Darrell Taylor, will act as program chairman. Dr. G. F. G. Stanley of the Royal Military College, Kingston, will represent the province's Historic Sites Board. Among those taking part in the program will be: His Worship Harvey J. McFarlane, Reeve of Prince Edward; Mr. Norris Whitney, MPP (Prince Edward-Lennox); His Honor Gerald E. Phelan, County Judge and president of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society; Mr. Donald Reid, Warden of Prince Edward County, and Mr. Gordon P. Wallanday, Q.C., of the Prince Edward Historical Society.

The plaque will be unveiled by the Honorable Fred M. Cass, Q.C., Attorney-General of Ontario.

Prince Edward County, which has historical associations dating back to the days of the French regime, Champlain, will set up as a separate county by Lieutenant-Governor Simcoe's proclamation of June 16, 1792. This document, which divided the newly-formed province of Upper Canada into nineteen counties, designated Prince Edward at the tenth. It was named in honor of Edward, Duke of Kent and Strathearn, the fourth son of King George III, who had been posted to British North America in 1791, and who, for the next few years, had visited Upper Canada. However, until the 1840's the counties were merely geographical and electoral units.

Start your 1964 Flower Garden off now with a planting of Darwin Tulips.

Tall, stately, brilliantly - flowering Darwins may be planted any time this fall in the beds you've had annuals in. They will bloom next May and every May for years to come. Meantime the same bulbs may be planted to annuals for the balance of the season.

Tulips (and other Dutch Bulbs as well) are extremely easy to grow . . . just punch a hole and set the bulb in. No problems with weeds, bugs, cultivation or even watering.

UN troops, and Home repeated the Western stand that they should be stationed in East Berlin as well.

Gromyko planned to meet separately with Rusk Saturday or Rusk today and on Thursday all three foreign ministers are to meet together. Home also was expected to see President Kennedy in Washington Friday before returning to London.

External Affairs Minister Martin, who met and entertained here last week, conferred with both Home and Rusk Tuesday and scheduled a meeting today with Secretary - General U Thant. He was to leave later for Montreal.

Martin said he was optimistic that at least one disarmament step—the banning of nuclear weapons from outer space—might be accomplished at the current assembly session.

ELECTRIC RANGE

* The Findlay Infinite Broil Control also eliminates the need to change the position of the broiler rack for conventional broiling. You simply dial the heat required instead of changing the position of the broiler rack.

Just place your roast or fowl on the rotisserie, set Infinite Broil Control as instructed in manual...everything else is automatic. Your meat or fowl is ready when you want it...juicy and tempting, with little or no loss in weight. The secret is slow cooking under constant, gentle radiant heat...no on-again off-again heat that causes moisture and flavour loss. AND—your oven is clean... the slow, even cooking provided by the Findlay Infinite Heat Control eliminates greasy "spatter"...no messy clean-up job. Inspect the new Findlay E31 Electric Range at your Findlay Dealer and you'll soon see why it belongs in your kitchen.

Conservative MP Rejects Denial of Health Minister Despite Rules of House

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP Louis-Joseph Pigeon called Tuesday night for the resignation of Health Minister LaMarsh because of statements attributed to her in a Toronto newspaper.

Earlier, Miss LaMarsh had denied making the statement.

Mr. Pigeon rejected her denial, despite the insistence of Liberal house leader Lamontagne that under Commons rules Miss LaMarsh's denial must be accepted.

Mr. Pigeon's remarks for Joliette - L'Assomption - Montcalm, said he has more faith in the statements of newspapermen than in the statements of Miss LaMarsh.

The disputed report, in The Globe and Mail of Sept. 27, quoted Miss LaMarsh as having said the hospital insurance fund planned by the Quebec government might lead to a form of "provincial socialism like Nazi Germany's.

DENIED MAKING IT

Asked about the report during the day's question period, Miss LaMarsh said the question gave her the opportunity "to declare that I have made such a statement at any time to anyone."

Mr. Pigeon raised the issue during later debate on the government proposal for a $10 increase in old age pensions.

Miss LaMarsh quickly interrupted him to repeat her denial, but Mr. Pigeon insisted. Then Secretary Pickersgill said the minister's denial must be accepted as the statement of fact.

Following the supper adjournment, Mr. Pigeon returned to the issue. Miss LaMarsh was out of the chamber and returned to her seat at the time.

He called it a "dangerous declaration" that was harmful to Canada's reputation.

Miss LaMarsh should resign for having used such language, Mr. Pigeon said.

SAID RECORDED

He said the interview reported in the newspaper had been recorded on a tape recorder, and he read part of the quotation attributed to her.

The report quoted her as saying a large investment fund in Quebec would be "socialistic and Nazi German, and not much free enterprise."

At one point Chairman Herman Batten said Mr. Pigeon should accept Miss LaMarsh's denial, and asked him not to refer to the issue further.

Mr. Pigeon continued, however, and Liberal members made no further attempt to stop him.

Miss LaMarsh made no immediate reply following his speech.

Chief Coroner Not Allowed To Hold Inquest

TORONTO (CP) — The future of an inquest into the death last August of a 66-year-old suburban Rexdale woman, who had allegedly been treated with an anti-cancer serum, was left in the air Tuesday night.

Dr. Morton Shulman, chief coroner for Metropolitan Toronto, was prohibited earlier in the day from continuing the inquest into the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Ellen George.

Dr. Shulman convened the inquest for the third time but was then discharged the jury, apologizing for wasting its time.

He said: "This inquest has been quashed on a legal technicality—legal matter, I should say."

He recommended that Dr. Donald G. Bunt, the first coroner to view the body, restart the inquest in the near future.

Dr. Bunt said later he would seek legal advice before making a decision.

BASED ON ACT

The court order was sought by Dr. Thomas J. Glover on the basis of a provision in the Coroners Act which prohibits a coroner from intervening in an inquest that has been ordered by another coroner. Dr. Bunt had originally ordered the inquest.

Dr. Glover was chief witness when the inquest opened Sept. 3. He was cross-examined at length about the injections he said he gave Mrs. George in the back for her breast cancer.

Dr. Glover testified he had produced the serum from horses which he kept for that purpose at Shanty Bay, Ont.

Dr. Shulman said if Dr. Bunt reopened the inquest, testimony previously given could not be introduced.

He said he would not assist Dr. Bunt or attend the inquest, adding that any information he might have could be given by other persons.

Company Wants Suspension of Tolls Permanent

HAMILTON (CP) — Steel Company of Canada Ltd. has urged that the current suspension of tolls on the Welland Canal be made permanent and that there be no increase in tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

In a brief submitted to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, the company urges that tolls not be reimposed on the Welland Canal in an attempt to recover past or future capital costs.

"Industries situated on Lake Ontario stand to profit from the fact that while all other Great Lakes may be transitted on a toll-free basis, tolling on ships and cargoes are collected for entry into Lake Ontario.

"Reimposing tolls on the Welland Ship Canal would once again make Lake Ontario the only one of the five Great Lakes which vessels could neither enter or leave without the payment of such charges."

The company said that in its view "this would constitute most unfair discrimination against the two Canadian steel producers on Lake Ontario—Steel Company of Canada and Dominion Foundries and Steel —which are producing 60 per cent of all steel made in Canada."

IS CONCERNED

The company's brief said it is also concerned with what happens to the level of tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway and it realizes that the tonnage in seaway traffic below the estimates upon which the toll structure is based "poses a difficult problem for the authority."

"But we firmly believe that to attempt to meet the situation resulting from failure of seaway revenues to meet amortization and other charges by raising tolls would be self-defeating," it said, "for it is our belief that any increase in the present level of seaway tolls would be against the best interests of Canada."

Meeting Makes No Headway On Strike Issue

TORONTO (CP) — A meeting Tuesday between management and labor ministers from Canada) Company, Hanover, Ont., and Labor Minister Rowntree made no headway in settling a 4½-month old strike.

Geoffrey Hall, national representative of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) said the union was not invited to the meeting.

The labor minister's office said the company delegation was "still considering its position" when it left the office.

A request to have the government intervene in the strike was made during the meeting.

Mrs. Daisy McCutcheon of Lions Head, Ont., and Mrs. Anita Petitpas of Moncton, N.B., indicated that if they expected real trouble they wouldn't be going along.

Grain Ship Carrying Extra Coal, Rations

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—The grain ship John Ericsson sailed Tuesday for Chicago, where a sister ship encountered the troubled waters stirred by an international dispute involving rival unions, shippers and the governments of Canada and the United States.

The 390 - foot coal - burning steamer, making its first voyage this season, officially is exempt from none of the violence-spiked trouble that kept the grain carrier Howard L. Shaw tied up in Chicago for almost five months under a dockers' boycott.

"We'll get along all right," said the Ericsson's master, Captain Robert (Roy) Burke of Toronto.

However, he added that his ship is carrying extra coal and rations.

The Howard L. Shaw, like the Ericsson operated by Upper Lakes Shipping Company, was harassed by gunfire and dynamite during its vain wait in Chicago to take on grain.

REFUSED TO WORK

The International Longshoremen's Union refused to work the Shaw in a boycott supporting the Seafarers International Union in its dispute with the rival Canadian Maritime Union, which replaced the SIU as bargaining agent for Upper Lakes crews.

The SIU, like the ILA, is affiliated in the United States to the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations. But in Canada the SIU was expelled from the counterpart Canadian Labor Congress, which backs the year-old CMU.

The Canadian government plans to introduce legislation Wednesday to bring unions under government trusteeship.

The trouble was discussed during the weekend in two separate meetings involving top U.S. and Canadian officials—Prime Minister Pearson and U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Cleveland and the labor ministers of both countries in Boston.

Meantime, the 33 - member crew of the John Ericsson—including two female cooks—showed no signs that they fear trouble in Chicago.

Mrs. Daisy McCutcheon of Lions Head, Ont., and Mrs. Anita Petitpas of Moncton, N.B., indicated that if they expected real trouble they wouldn't be going along.

Premier Roblin Challenges Delegates to Make Positive Moves for Greater Safety

WINNIPEG (CP) — After two full days hearing of traffic problems engendered by the ever-increasing growth of suburban city areas, the Canadian Good Roads Association had its pace changed Tuesday night.

The pace-changer was Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin who challenged delegates, as representatives of government, industry and citizen groups, to make some positive moves toward greater highway safety.

Premier Roblin said the problem of highway traffic safety is the "intensely personal" responsibility of every one.

He also said he would like to see compulsory automobile safety checks and greater emphasis on high school driver training courses as extra-curricular activities brought into the province.

SUBURBAN PROBLEMS

During the day reports dealt mainly with problems being uncovered in traffic engineering and planning as a result of the tendency to suburban living today.

J. Philip Matheson, president of the CGRA and public works minister for Prince Edward Island, said it was anticipated that by 1975 the annual national expenditure on roads would reach $1,750,000,000 and that of this about 60 per cent would be spent on urban traffic facilities.

Prof. John McDougall of the Queen's University School of Economics, suggested that there was a need for greater participation in payment for facilities by users of the facilities and said radical changes in thinking were necessary to find answers to the problem.

He suggested a system of specific charges against highway users by a means of paying for the highways and of keeping peak traffic flow to a minimum.

He said the tendency of motorists to respond elastically to improved roads makes it necessary to explore what can be done by special charges to let costs fall on those who create them.

He suggested the use of an electronic toll system at specific peak periods on specific congested stretches of highways as a means of meeting the burden, and perhaps discouraging use.

Ben Bella to Need All Skills To Solve Nigerian Problems

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ultra - modern skyscrapers in Algiers and Oran cast long, ironic shadows across a backward and near-bankrupt landscape.

President Ahmed Ben Bella, now confirmed as autocratic leader of a one-party state, will need all his considerable political skills to solve the monumental problems of Algerian reconstruction.

Ben Bella, a chubby, boyish-looking 47, seems determined to handle the situation alone. With a mood of high optimism—according colleagues in exile, his "cabinet" consists mainly of ex-army officers of dubious political ability. Ultimate power in all policy matters rests with the president.

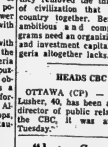
The brand of socialism with which he proposes to lay the foundations for a new Algeria has Western observers both puzzled and hopeful. He seems obsessed by nationalization as a cure-all—nationalization of former French-owned land, of Algeria's few industries, of shops, newspapers and even restaurants.

BASICALLY SOCIALIST

The program is basically Communistic, but the Communist party is outlawed — probably because of its associations with the pro-Soviet party in France which failed to support the revolution.

Although Algerian propaganda media eulogize "friends and comrades" in China, Russia and the Eastern bloc countries, Ben Bella is determined to be no satellite of either East or West. His prime political model is Castro's Cuba.

Moreover this independence of mind has discouraged closer relations with neighboring Morocco and Tunisia — a threat that was much played on in the first said days of freedom.



Yet the fact remains that without massive aid from France, the United States and, more recently, Russia, some 1,500,000 Algerians would probably starve this winter. For all his dreams, the president is pitifully dependent.

Land goes untilled, machinery for textile mills lies uncrated on the docks because there is no capital or know-how to assemble it, budget deficits grow wider and the cost of living goes steadily up.

When the French left Algeria they removed the thin shellac of civilization that held the country together. Ben Bella's ambitious and complex program is need an organizing ability and investment capital that Algeria altogether lacks.

Two Vancouver Families Swap Children

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver families have swapped children.

It all started when sisters Lyn and Elaine Jonasson just couldn't seem to get along and shattered the calm of their home with quarreling.

Elaine, 15 and a year younger than Lyn, discussed the problem with her best friend Linda Strohmeier, 15, while they were walking home from school. Linda admitted that she too couldn't get along with her older sister, Carol, 17.

So they came up with a solution.

Elaine would move in with her friend Linda and Carol in with Lynn.

Both sets of parents gave the idea their blessing.

"It seems to be working out very well," Mrs. G. W. Jonasson said. "It has been a week in operation now and all four girls seem happier.

"Don't think I want to get rid of Elaine. I love her very much, but if she wants to live with her friend I am not going to keep her tied to my apron strings."

Mrs. Jonasson said she has has known Mrs. J. Strohmeier 18 years and that your ideas on raising children coincide.

"We will continue to assume responsibility for our youngest daughters, even though they are not living with us. We shall deal with school problems and fit them out with clothes."

All four girls think the idea is great.

"We shall keep the arrangement until Christmas, and if all goes well, until the end of the school year," they said.

Must Accept Regime That Ousted Bosch

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Leaders in the Dominican Republic say the country will be bankrupt in three months if the United States and other American nations do not accept the regime that ousted President Juan Bosch.

"From a psychological point of view, maybe we'll last only one month," a high-level government official said here in an interview. "Our opinion will deteriorate if we fail to get diplomatic recognition and you might see an uprising in three days. Then we'd get a military dictatorship or a Communist takeover."

Officials in the provisional government, businessmen and foreign diplomats agree that the Dominican future rests in U.S. hands. No one consented to be quoted by name.

Dr. Jose Antonio Bonilla Atiles, ambassador-designate to the United States, flew to Washington Tuesday in an attempt to get the Dominican Republic ravished back into the family of western hemisphere nations and win restoration of $50,000,000 a year in U.S. aid.

Government and business leaders attributed the dismal outlook primarily to the cutoff of substantial private investment funds and U.S. aid programs after the military coup a week ago.

Fate of World's Fair May Be Symbol of Canada's Fate Planning Bd. Told

QUEBEC (CP)—When Michel Chevalier talks about the Montreal world's fair, he invests a flickering possibility with dazzling and alluring probability.

The 39-year-old Montrealer, who has world fair fever in his blood, sees the Canadian World Exhibition as a procession of world culture through Canada in 1967:

La Scala of Milan, the Paris Symphony Orchestra, the Moscow Circus, the Senegalese Dancers, the Scots Guards . . .

Getting away from the pavilions, exhibits and amusements that will draw millions of visitors to Montreal for the centennial project, he sees this aspect as one that will have an effect on all Canada.

Named after a great-granduncle who built Montreal's previous world's fairs in Paris during the 19th century, Mr. Chevalier was a member of the Montreal fair's originating group.

MAY BE SYMBOL

He told the Community Planning Association of Canada Tuesday, at its conference here, that the fate of the exhibition may be a symbol of Canada's fate.

The alternatives to a first-rate fair were a second-rate flop or a cancellation.

At present, the exhibition executive was awash with problems. The whole country, everyone concerned, even foreign exhibitors, would be $600,000,000 —ranking it as the fifth fair of Canada's existence as an undertaking.

Yet Canadians persisted in looking upon it as a Montreal rather than a national project. Doubt about the exhibition as an affair on Canada's balance of payments had been expressed.

The exhibition corporation had three parents — Ottawa, Quebec and Montreal — and the interplay of politics created difficulties. The fair administration itself had to recognize "the two officially recognized cultural or language groups."

If the exhibition was cancelled, "or worse, deteriorated into a jumble of mediocre quality . . . it could become the mirror of all the tensions and misunderstandings, hates, fears and regressions which divide French- and English-speaking Canadians."

If successful, it might do the opposite, becoming "the mirror of the best we can achieve in helping create a new meaning for this country."

Real Caouette Named Leader Of One Group

OTTAWA (CP) — Le Ralliement des Creditistes, with 13 members of Parliament headed by Real Caouette who recently broke away from the federal Social Credit party, announced parliamentary appointments following the group's first caucus Tuesday.

Mr. Caouette will be parliamentary leader.

Le Ralliement announced it would hold a regional meeting Sunday in Chicoutimi, Que., in the home riding of Maurice Cote, one of the six Quebec Social Credit MPs who remained with Robert Thompson, Social Credit party leader.

Le Ralliement suggested a delegate be held at the meeting, presided over by Mr. Caouette, between Gilles Gregoire, Laval and C. A. Gauthier, Roberval on Le Ralliement side and Mr. Cote and Marcel Lessard, MP for Lotbiniere, John, on Mr. Thompson's side.

However, Mr. Cote and Mr. Lessard said they would not participate in a meeting completely organized and controlled by Le Ralliement.

A convention of Le Ralliement des Creditistes, the Quebec wing of the Social Credit party, in Granby, Que., voted early in September to repudiate the leadership of Mr. Thompson. Mr. Caouette said at the time he would go into the ridings of MPs who remained with Mr. Thompson to denounce them "for not respecting the mandate received from their electors."

John Montana, Buffalo Taxi Owner, Named

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—John C. Montana, a Buffalo taxicab owner named Tuesday by Joseph Valachi as a former Cosa Nostra "lieutenant" who allegedly asked to be demoted, was one of the 60 persons taken into custody by state police at the Apalachin gangland meeting in 1957.

Valachi testified Montana worked under Stefano Magaddino, Buffalo Mafia chief, N.Y., who, the informant said, was the Buffalo area boss of Cosa Nostra.

The demotion to "soldier" came about because Montana "couldn't handle" the standing subcommittee.

Montana could not be reached for comment. His wife, however, said Valachi's testimony concerning her husband was "completely untrue."

"Coming from the source it did," Mrs. Montana said, "no one could believe it."

WAS MAN OF YEAR

Montana, who five years ago was named Man of the Year in 1956 by an organization of members of the Buffalo police department.

The club presented the award to Montana for "outstanding civic achievement." A committee of policemen selected him, a 20-member spokesman said.

Montana, 70, is chairman of the board of Van Dyke Taxi and Transfer, Inc. He was also a member of the Buffalo Common Council, 1923-31, and was a delegate to the New York State constitutional convention in 1938.

Montana maintained in 1957 that he visited Joseph Barbara's chicken at Apalachin when his automobile broke down. He said he had nothing to do with the others in the house.

Montana was one of 20 persons later cleared of a charge in the federal conspiracy law by conspiring to conceal the purpose of the meeting at Apalachin. The courts ruled the law unconstitutional.

Health Minister LaMarsh asked by former health minister Monteith about steps being up aid veterans who are blind, disabled and for old-age assistance, said these decisions will be made in due course.

STILL SEEKS PACT

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker gave notice in the Commons he plans to press the government further to table in Parliament the nuclear arms agreement with the United States. Prime Minister Pearson, asked a question on the Commons order paper calling on the government to table the pact.

Grimond's Liberals Given Little Chance to Win But Could Get Power Balance

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Once upon a time, when Jo Grimond was a boy, the Liberals held power in Britain.

Today Jo, 50, still has a boyish look and there are those who say—not in the language of fairy tales—that he will live to become the first Liberal prime minister since David Lloyd George came tumbling down in 1922.

Grimond's Liberals are generally given little, if any, chance of winning the next general election, which Prime Minister Harold Macmillan may call at any time.

In fact, some observers poke fun at Grimond's claim that the British people want him now. They note he has only seven members in the 630-seat House of Commons compared with 363 for Macmillan's Conservatives and 255 for Harold Wilson's Labor party.

The Daily Sketch newspaper, carrying cartoons entitled Jo Grimm's Fairy Tales, shows Macmillan and Wilson doing battle with murderous-looking clubs. The Tory is mounted on the shoulders of a giant labelled Business. Wilson's human charger is the Trades Union Congress, Grimond is shown bounding into the fray, his only weapon an admonitory finger and his steed a pogo stick.

But there's nothing funny about the expected impact of the Liberals in the elections and the Tories, especially, are not laughing. That's because Grimond may turn out to have something on which to ride after all—the post-war middle class, the self-styled classless crowd, the "floating vote."

The Liberals have made formidable incursions into the Tory vote—into Labor to a lesser extent—in byelections in recent years. Even if Grimond doesn't win the general election he could do severe damage and, just conceivably, hold the balance of power in the next Parliament.

Grimond didn't use exactly those terms in giving his troops their "marching orders" when the Liberals recently held their annual assembly at Brighton in advance of similar conventions by the bigger parties.

WIELD INFLUENCE

Even if the Liberals could not form a government, he said, a solid block of Liberal MPs would influence the whole thinking of the country and the attitude of whatever party might be in power. Complacency and inertia in the face of incompetence and injustice would be attacked in any case.

Critics say the Liberals are following a self-defeating policy by not pinpointing their fire more heavily on Labor, favored to defeat the Conservatives. Grimond has announced 360 prospective candidates and only 84 of these will be fighting for Labor-controlled seats. However, additional Liberal candidates—as many as 470 in all—have been promised.

The Liberals are essentially a new party that wants to be radical—not leftist but perhaps left-centre—born of the post-war years with some links to the old Liberal party of William Gladstone, the Earl of Asquith and David Lloyd George.

That party, which Asquith led to a landslide victory in 1908, splintered after Lloyd George's coalition government fell apart in 1922.

Asquith had been blamed for fumbling in the early days of the First World War before Lloyd George took over. Then Lloyd George was blamed in turn for losing the peace. Over all this Labor rose to take the Liberals' place as the second national party.

ACT IRREVERENTLY

Just how irreverent are the new Liberals is shown at the Brighton assembly when they refused to listen to a speech by Lady Violet Bonham Carter, 78-year-old daughter of Asquith and mother-in-law of Grimond.

There was nothing personal about the rebuff but the delegates shouted that they wanted to talk about their own party manifesto rather than listen to the anti-Tory speech planned by "Lady Vi," former president and long dubbed the high priestess of the party. The irony was that Lady Violet is one of the most fluent speakers in British politics.

Speakers made the usual jokes about Macmillan's mousiness and the elite of the Tory party, although Grimond himself is a product of Eton and other Liberal leaders have similar background. The Tories are ruled by business interests and Labor is a prisoner of narrow-minded union chiefs, it was held.

The speakers—invariably articulate and well-educated, some of them teachers — questioned whether Parliament is doing its job and charged that government ministers are led by the nose by civil servants, working in secrecy. The Profumo affair and other scandals were symptoms of a general malaise.

TURN TO EUROPE

The Liberals are fervent advocates of Britain's joining the European Economic Community and see no clash between this and commitments to the Commonwealth, which they also heartily support.

Under the theme "partners in a new Britain," they demand educational reform, a "real ministry of science" and a ministry of expansion. Critics say they have not policies but attitudes, that they are amateurs, vague, incoherent and unrealistic, riders of hobby horses, with no image that the public can understand. It is noted that their union membership is mostly of the white-collar variety, not manual labor.

But Liberals have won a reputation as thinkers and pacemakers. Many folk wonder what will happen if one day Joe does have a go.

CAMPBELLFORD

Rotarians Plan To Attend Int. Convention

CAMPBELLFORD — Joseph Calder, a past director of Rotary International, addressed the Campbellford Rotary Club this week, as well as Charles Dyer, another Rotarian with long and intimate association with Rotary International.

Mr. Calder, a Rotarian for nearly 30 years, exhorted the members of the Campbellford Club to embrace the opportunity to attend Rotary International when it meets in Toronto next year. He recalled the Toronto convention in 1924 which has been proclaimed one of the greatest ever. He outlined the program for the convention next June.

"It is at these conventions, attended by upwards of 10,000 people, that a Rotarian sees and appreciates the vast scope of Rotary," said Mr. Calder. "One hears of the Crippled Children's Hospital in Ceylon, the leper hospital in India, or the work of the blind persons of Burma under Rotary sponsorship, with pride."

Mr. Dyer confirmed the statements of Mr. Calder, remarking that at the Rotary International Convention, one meets "old friends" known long but whom one has never met.

The speaker was introduced by Past District Governor Ralph Locke and past president Cliff Gibson. Past president Harold Carr thanked both speakers.

DEVIL - FISH — This illustration of a giant squid is based on a drawing that appeared in the Oct. 27, 1877, issue of the Canadian Illustrated News, which was supposed to depict a devil - fish washed ashore at Catalina, Nfld. Two of its arms were 30 feet long. Giant squid appear around Newfoundland in 30-year cycles, and are expected to turn up again in this decade. Memorial University at St. John's, Nfld., is asking that it be notified if one is found. (CP Photo)

Help!

Giant Squids Are Scarce - - Research Is Threatened!

By JACK PICKETTS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — If you've got a giant squid you don't want, Memorial University's biology department would be happy to get it. So happy, in fact, it will pay a nominal reward.

But don't go rushing off to the attic. You won't find one. It was only 50 years ago that the existance of the many - armed monster was definitely established and few have been seen since.

They appear in Newfoundland waters in 30-year cycles and right now the province is in one of those periods. Three have been spotted in the last two years. None has been caught.

The best way to catch one alive is to get it entangled in a fishing net. But if that happens stand back. He could be 60 feet long with a mass of writhing arms that make up at feet of the fourth god sends for any thing that comes near.

In the top of his head are two large eyes that glare furiously and he spouts volumes of ink and water from his jet propulsion system.

BOILS FROM SIZE

The one caught in 1873 was stuck in a net when four herring fishermen dragged it alongside their boat in nearby Logy Bay. They were so frightened they considered cutting the net free before one of them plunged a fish-splitting knife behind the eyes to kill it. They sold it for $10 to Rev. Moses Harvey and they thought he was "cracked" to buy it, said the clergyman-naturalist. With it he astounded the scientific world.

Although for centuries there had been legends and reported sightings of a giant squid, the specimen proved beyond doubt the existence of the monster, the largest invertebrate in the world.

Mr. Harvey, who supplied science with a wealth of information and took the world's best-known squid photograph—showing it draped over his sponge bath—gave his name to the monster. Scientifically it became architeuthis harveyi.

Several have been caught since then—the safe way. They were found stranded on beaches. The period between 1870 and 1880 saw dozens spotted by fishermen as the squid floated dead on the ocean surface off the Newfoundland coast. A few were seen stranded at the turn of the century and again in the 1920s but at other times sightings have been rare.

Dr. F. A. Aldrich, associate professor of biology at Memorial, wants the squid for study —all 10 arms and 60 to 70 feet of it—but he has no illusions about getting one alive.

WILL FLY TO SITE

"We haven't the facilities to keep that much animal," he said, adding, however, that "if we want to make a complete scientific study of these giant squid off Newfoundland the time to do it is now . . . when the cycle is once more with us."

He said he thinks it may be the end of a reproductive cycle that throws them on the beaches from their deep-water home every 30 years. And he figures he might get a clue to the answer if he can get a squid.

The university isn't equipped to go after one. "That is why we must rely on the help of other people. We have to rely on giant squid which have been washed up on Newfoundland beaches."

He appealed for anyone seeing one to "telephone collect and I'll make arrangements immediately to fly to the site."

He will take measurements and if possible bring the squid back to the biology department.

"The squid is not well understood or known. We want to study its reproduction pattern, circulation and even compare size ranges."

But what Dr. Aldrich would really like best is to get one on the end of a six-foot jigger. "That would be a battle!"

Canadian Scientists Always In Search of a Perfect Wheat But Goal Said Far Away

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The vision of a perfect wheat—golden, plump, chock-full of protein, laden with kernels and resistant to insects, disease or climatic hazards—may dance in front of some Canadian scientists. But few really have any illusions that the goal is near, or ever will be.

Yet the quest for improvements leaves few possibilities untried.

A new American winter wheat with astounding yields has been tried and found wanting.

Tests have been made with a wheat species bearing multiple heads rather than a single spike. The Soviet Union, motherland of much of the wheat that has gone into Canadian research and actual commercial production, also did work with this variety.

Agriculture Minister Hays, fresh from an 18-day visit in Europe, announced plans to test here a likely-looking Soviet winter wheat.

He also reported that Soviet scientists, using Canadian - developed Selkirk as one parent, had fashioned another new variety possibly higher in protein—the essential milling quality—than ever before. That also will be tested here.

Thus efforts continue to develop new varieties, supplementing or replacing those already in use on the Prairies or in Ontario.

WHY GO ON?

Canadian hard spring wheat is already a premium product and Canadian wheat breeders have an unequalled record.

Why continue with research than when, in any good year, there is a chance that wheat production will exceed prospective sales?

Two main answers emerge in talks with the men involved—those at the genetics and plant breeding research institute of the federal agriculture department in Ottawa and others at experimental stations across the country.

One is that disease never ceases to evolve. It may at any time produce new strains that can afflict previously immune wheats. An example was the crash program to develop the Selkirk variety for Western Canada to meet the threat of a new strain of rust called 15B, a fungus propagated by wind-blown spores similar to other leaf and stem rusts.

The other is the desire to give Canadian farmers, as businessmen, the best tools—and greatest variety of tools—in a competitive world.

Hard spring wheat from the three prairie provinces constitutes the bulk of Canadian output. Ontario specializes in winter wheat, softer and higher-yielding, which must compete with other crops in the rich floors and the like as opposed to the demand for prairie wheat at home and abroad in turning out the best bread.

SOME FRUSTRATION

The development work is usually lengthy, sometimes frustrating.

About 10 years ago federal scientists had developed a new winter wheat variety for Ontario when an American variety called Genoese appeared. Genoese still accounts for about 90 per cent of the Ontario winter wheat crop, but a new Canadian wheat called Talbot may take over.

Thatcher hard spring wheat, a veteran product in Western Canada evolved in the 1930s, still accounts for almost half the production there. It succeeded Marquis which lacked rust resistance. The other main western varieties are Selkirk, used in a Saskatchewan-Manitoba belt of about 7,000,000 acres that are more prone to 15B rust, and a relative of Thatcher called Canthatch.

But there are a host of other varieties which in certain soils and conditions will do better than the favorites.

Thatcher is sometimes called a "natural" because it evolved fairly rapidly. It was developed from Marquis and an Italian variety of durum—a macaroni wheat—on one side and marquis and an American winter wheat on the other. Recent tests showed that it still is breeding true, with no degeneration.

Any new variety must have at least four points in its favor before being released for commercial production—and before farmers accept it.

EUGE YIELD

Quality in milling attributes must at least as good as existing strains. It must mature within the climatic limitations. It must offer protection against disease and insects.

Fourth and last, it must yield well.

Federal researchers heard last year about a variety of winter wheat in Washington state called Galna, which produced 125 bushels an acre. This compares with the Ontario average for the last few years of about 35 bushels an acre and they speedily put it to a test.

Results were disappointing because Ontario is subject to mildew and no commercial value is foreseen for Galna. Extraordinary yields of European species also have been reported—but not consistently.

As for a multi-headed variety which — theoretically — might treble or quadruple output by existing varieties, it appears to be a myth. The species exists—but defies commercial value.

Federal scientists say that the governing factor in wheat output is the richness of the soil. Unless the plant food is in there, no variety will do well—and letting brands are likely to do just as well in rich soil as a species with more spikes.

Cuba at Glance Looks Good But Actually Everything Is Unobtainable or Rationed

Arthur Jones, a British-born writer who works for the Camden Star Herald of Camden, N.J., was assigned by his newspaper to go to Cuba and report on life there and conditions affecting the church. This dispatch as written for the newspaper was made available to The Associated Press.

By ARTHUR JONES

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba, at a glance, looks good.

If the capital city speaks for the country it could appear to the outsider that life under Castro means full hotels, smiling people and crowded churches.

In actuality everything is either unobtainable, rationed or at least three years old.

Armed guards sit in the shade on street corners and on the steps of all public buildings and hotels.

LACE MAINTENANCE

The people's clothes are getting shabbier. Apart from the tourist spots and government buildings there is no maintenance work being carried out. Paint is peeling off private homes. Cars are kept moving through native ingenuity—there are no spare parts.

Nor are there any parts for the U.S.-made elevators, air conditioners, radios, record players, refrigerators, sewing machines. There is no writing paper, there are no pens. No paper clips, thumb tacks, typewriter ribbon, erasers, paper bags, film, shoe polish, tooth paste, razor blades. All shoelaces are khaki-colored.

A housewife is allowed one new dress and one pair of shoes a year.

For each member of her family the housewife can get from the store once a month some of the following: One chicken, six eggs, one bottle of beer for each person over 12. Six ounces of meat is allowed for each person each week. But it isn't always available.

BLACK MART THRIVES

When items are available in Cuba through normal and legal means the price is reasonable. But since so little trickles through this source persons with money resort to "buying on the outside." The black market flourishes.

Eggs are $1 each. Four new tires would cost a car owner $800. A bottle of scotch retails for $75.

Despite all the shortages, the austerity and restrictions, Fidel Castro seems to remain far more popular than most people outside the country might care to believe.

Any resistance to him is passive, for he has power. His strength lies in the guards in every building; his secret police; well-schooled officials in key posts who know what to look for, and the sense of despair among those who see as the solution an invasion by the United States.

If Havana represents conditions throughout the country the Roman Catholic Church is not hindered in any way. It is just tolerated. Catholics crowd to Sunday masses and devotions. There are church weddings and baptisms. Catechism instruction for the children is held in the church proper since there now are no private schools.

EXPEL SOME PRIESTS

Reports and stories circulating in Latin America and the United States of persecution of the church in Cuba were a source of annoyance to one priest. He said the only active stand of the Castro government had been to expel 110 priests it thought to be counter-revolutionaries.

More than 400 priests had left the country voluntarily or had been recalled by their superiors, the priest said. He added that in addition to two archbishops, there now are four bishops, about 200 priests, 50 brothers and 180 nuns on the island. The heaviest concentration of clergy is in the Havana area. Two seminaries remain open.

There are no Russian soldiers in Havana. There are hundreds of technicians and specialists. They are from many Eastern European countries. There are Russians supervising building construction.

Crime, other than the black market, is at a minimum. Pickpockets get 30 years, robbers either life imprisonment or death. There is no danger in walking the streets, even late at night, unless one wanders into a government-prohibited area by mistake.

ASKED OPINION

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin said Tuesday he wrote to Prime Minister Pearson asking him to submit the federal government's proposed pension plan to Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky for his opinion. "But," he added in an interview, "Mr. Pearson has given me no reason to think he'll accept my suggestion."

Our National Emblem Said Not Heading for Extinction

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—You can rest easy — our national emblem isn't headed for extinction.

Dying and dead maples trees along some roadsides and on front lawns in eastern Canada have prompted a rash of worried reports about the fate of acer saccharum, the sugar maple.

But in the woods, out of sight of most Canadians, the maple is flourishing as it always has, says a federal forestry department scientist.

No mysterious blight is threatening the tree, says Dr. V. J. Nordin, associate director of forest pathology.

"There's nothing happening to maples that hasn't happened before, and been happening for years."

Yet in the last couple of years many inquiries from worried citizens have landed on the desks of forestry experts here and at federal forestry laboratories. The concern has been inspired, perhaps, by growing public awareness of what blight can do to trees as shown by the ravages of the Dutch elm disease.

One report from Orono, in south-central Ontario, had said all maples in the area were dying from a terrible blight. A scientist checked and found it merely a local problem, caused by poor treatment of trees.

FUNGUS CAN KILL

Another citizen elsewhere had asked why his backyard maple was dying. A wire had been wrapped tightly around the trunk.

Dr. Nordin says there are many diseases and pests that attack maples. One type of fungus could kill a tree within a single season.

"But we know of no one malady or disease that is decimating maples in Canada."

Maples along roadsides or in towns and cities were subject to problems not faced by those in the woods—roads, sidewalks, 2,4-D weed sprays, water and sewer excavations which damaged roots. Even their exposed position, standing alone without protection of surrounding trees, wasn't healthy.

Then a drought year comes along and the exposed, weakened trees die—"they just can't withstand it."

Dr. Nordin discounted a report from New England putting all the blame for roadside maple deaths on salt used to control winter icing conditions. Salt splashed on trees could cause premature coloring of the leaves and some deaths, but this isn't the main cause.

On the whole, the number of maple deaths was no higher than in the past. Checks of many sample lots maintained by Ontario over many years showed this.

"We can deffinitely say that it isn't getting worse."

'TERRIBLE MAN' DIES

BOULDER CITY, Nev. (AP) James H. Richardson, 68, who died in 1957 after two decades as city editor of the Los Angeles Examiner, died Monday after suffering a stroke. Richardson, a newspaperman for 45 years, was known among associates as "The last of the terrible men." He came to California from Winnipeg, after working as a cub reporter in Winnipeg.

BELLEVILLE UNITED APPEAL
"DON'T CAMPAIGN COSTS EAT UP A LOT OF MY CONTRIBUTION?"

No. Total campaign and year-round administrative costs are only a small fraction of the United Appeal goal. Spreading this cost over many United Appeal agencies makes it very small indeed. When the total is compared to the high overhead costs of some independent drives, the efficiency of United giving makes good common sense.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

When the Galt Terriers start snapping at the heels of the Kenmore bare in their upcoming Ontario Baseball Association senior finals, one of their baseball "pooches" at least won't be on unfamiliar ground.

He is Lefty Ross Patton, a veteran forkslder who has been tossing strikes past batters in Western Ontario leagues for at least a decade as far as I know, and perhaps two or far as anyone else is aware of.

The last time I saw Patton work was in 1953 when he went on Oakville Oaks waiform. The Belleville Bats represented this city under the Casey Stengelling of one Jack Carson, who later forsook the managerial post for a spot on the OHA executive and by sheer administrative ability helped by a generous but sincere gift of the gab, rose to the presidential chair of that august body.

The Oaks and the Bats battled their way to the league finals, and if memory is correct had girded their diamond loins for the titular battles.

It was in late October and the battle stage was set with both clubs champing at the bit and eager to have at each other. Oakville was on its way here when a windy called "Hurricane Hazel" struck, who had been in a hell-raising tantrum in the United States, swept northward and stopped off at Toronto. She raised the hackles of Hogtown and was causing heavy damage when the Oaks blew into town.

They figured if they got through the big wind in Toronto they probably would run into a Carson typhoon in Belleville for being late so they decided to call it off. By mutual consent the teams settled for the title of senior co-champions.

Meanwhile Lefty Patton has been southpawing his way through various loops and this year, it is reported, is one of the mound bulwarks of the Terriers. He is a canny hurler, who in the ways of baseball with probably a lot more between the ears than in his arm. Patton will probably start here on Saturday.

Galt, I understand, has a smart club with a nucleus of battle-scarred diamond veterans rounded out by capable younger players. At that they barely nosed out the Kaiser county champions from Campbellville, a hamlet of some 250 souls but whose baseball team attracted between 1,200 and 2,000 fans from the village and surrounding countryside, to their games.

The forthcoming finals series should produce some of the best baseball seen here in some time. If the key roster of the Kenmore answers "present" at roll call and the club as a whole plays the caliber of baseball it produced to beat Brockville here last Sunday, the revels is likely to go the limit.

The Forster Fusiliers must needs be "up" for this championship clash. While Galt are not the Intercounty champions and were given a close run for the money by Campbellville, the Terriers want the title and will go all-out to claim it.

And it seems, they want to get it in a hurry. At this writing the Terriers are insisting on a two-of-three series while Coach Sid Forster figures the Kenmore stand a better chance of grabbing the provincial honors in a three-of-five set. Convener Jack Carson said yesterday he expected the decision to be handed down this morning.

Forster will likely start big ace righthander Bill Latchford in the all-important first game and it is as likely Bill will face the veteran southpaw Mr. Patton. I do not know the plate power of the Terriers but the records show they did not fare too well against the Campbellville hurlers.

Six Players Fined $500

Fist-Swinging Expensive

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Football League Tuesday fined six players a total of $500 for their conduct in a Sept. 22 interlocking game highlighted by a fist-swinging brawl.

League coMmissioner Sydney Halter announced the penalties after viewing films of the violent game in Toronto between Argonauts and Calgary Stampeders won by Calgary 50-0.

Francis (Butch) Larose of the Argonauts and Don Luzzi of Calgary got $50 fines while Ron Brewer and Jim Leo of Toronto and Ed Buchanan and Ernie Danjean of Calgary drew $100 penalties.

Halter also said the game officials erred in ejecting Calgary end Conrad Hitchler with a match penalty after the brawl.

The films, he said, showed that Hitchler did not participate in the fight touched off with two minutes remaining when Brewer went after Calgary's Lovell Coleman.

Both benches emptied as players streamed on to the field and a few traded punches.

Prime Time For Sports On Video

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television sponsors are standing in line for top draw sports attractions and they may soon be shown during the prime network viewing hours of the early evening.

Broadcasting magazine, in its current edition, said a trend toward sports over the last six years may turn into an even greater boom soon.

"The networks, two of them carrying their heaviest sports loads in history, are hanging 'sold out' signs on many of their choice sports offerings, the trade weekly said.

Carl Lindeman, vice - president of NBC sports, said it won't be too long before major sports move into the previously sacred prime time hours of early evening.

Ford Was 6-5 Favorite Over Koufax

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Pounds of extra World Series pressure weighed heavily on the shoulders of opening game pitchers Whitey Ford of New York Yankees and Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers today because of unusual importance attached to the first game of the 1963 post season classic.

A contributory factor is the avowed determination of both managers to stick with three starting pitchers regardless of the length of the series. This means that should the series go seven games, as have all since 1958 except the 1960 and 1961 series, Ford and Koufax probably will face each other three times.

Thus the winner of the first Ford-Koufax duel—before some 70,000 at Yankee Stadium—would have a vast psychological as well as an actual edge.

The odds favored Ford at 6-5 with the Yankees a 7½-to-5 favorite to gain their seventh triumph in eight World Series meetings with the Dodgers. The perennial American League champions have a 20-7 record in Series play, compared to 5-4 for the Dodgers.

SECOND START

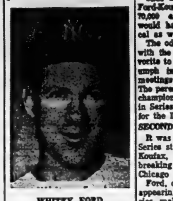
It was only the second World Series start for the 27-year-old Koufax, who dropped a heartbreaking 1-0 decision to the Chicago White Sox in 1959.

Ford, on the other hand, was appearing in his 10th World Series, making his 20th start and pitching his seventh opener, all records. The veteran southpaw seven years older than Koufax, was seeking his 11th Series victory.

Each west through spectacular 1963 seasons. Koufax won 25 of 30 decisions, including 11 shutouts and shattered his own National League strikeout record with 306. Ford won 24 while being eight to bring his lifetime total to 199 victories.

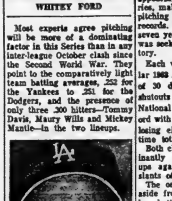
Both clubs presented predominantly right - handed lineups against the left - handed slants of Ford and Koufax.

The only southpaw swingers, aside from Ford, in the Yankee batting order were shortstop Tony Kubek, first baseman Joe Pepitone and right fielder Roger Maris. Switch hitters Mickey Mantle and Tommy Tresh naturally batted right-handed.



LATE DECISION

At a late hour Tuesday night manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers had just about decided to keep Ken McMullen, the injured rookie third baseman, on the bench, playing Dick Tracewski at second and switching Jim Gilliam to third. McMullen pulled a hamstring muscle in his right leg last week.



Alston presented Willie Davis, the hottest hitting Dodger in September, in Gilliam's customary third spot in the batting order, behind Maury Wills and Gilliam with Tommy Davis, the National League's leading hitter, in the cleanup spot.

Bill Skowron, the ex-Yankee, was at first base, batting sixth behind the right-handed hitting Frank Howard. He was followed by Tracewski, John Roseboro and Koufax.

The Yankees had the same lineup that played all season when Mantle and Maris were in there. Mickey, of course, batted fourth behind Tresh and in front of Maris. Kubek and Bobby Richardson batted one, two, with Elston Howard, Pepitone, Clete Boyer and Ford comprising the bottom half of the order.

Abel Adds Eleven

Name Players For All-Star Tilt

MONTREAL (CP)—Sid Abel, general manager and coach of Detroit Red Wings, has selected the National Hockey League All-Star team by adding 11 players for the 17th annual all - star game at Toronto Oct. 8, the NHL announced today.

The 11 players—three from Detroit, Boston and Montreal and two from Toronto—will join nine of the first and second All-Star team members for the game against the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs.

Two of the official All-Stars, set for opening night, will play with the Leafs. They are first-team left winger Frank Mahovlich and centre Red Horton, one of the second team's defencemen.

Carl Brewer, named to the first team's defence, will miss the game because of a broken arm suffered in the playoffs last season.

BELIVEAU NAMED

The three Montreal Canadiens are right winger Bernie Geoffrion and Claude Provost and centre Jean Beliveau. The two New York Rangers chosen are defenceman Harry Howell and left winger Camille Henry.

Other players named to the All-Star team in the voting by sportswriters and broadcasters in the six league cities are:

First team — goal: Glenn Hall, Chicago; defence: Pierre Pilote, Chicago; centre: Stan Mikita, Chicago; right wing: Gordie Howe, Detroit.

None of the players on either All-Star team or the Toronto team can play in the game because they have been signed for the 1963-64 NHL season.

National League Owners

Will Bolster Mets, Colts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National League baseball club owners meet here with the No. 1 item on the agenda the strengthening of talent - shy Houston and the tail-end New York Mets.

Both clubs paid exorbitant prices for second-line players when the National League expanded to 10 teams two years ago.

Their demands for help will be reviewed by the club owners when they come to town for the third World Series game.

The meeting, expected Friday or Saturday, was proposed by the Houston club to improve the lives of its players and the Mets readily gave their support to the move to strengthen the weaker clubs.

How this could be accomplished is something that will have to be threshed out before any action is taken.

The Colts dropped from eighth place in 1962 to ninth this year, but they won 66 games and lost 96, in comparison with their 64-92 mark last year before. They wound up 33 games behind first-place, Los Angeles. Last year they trailed first-place San Francisco by 36½ games.

The Mets finished with a 51-111 mark this season and were 48 games back. In their first season they won 40 and lost 120 and trailed by 60½.

Ralph Terry Missing From Lineup

NEW YORK (AP) — It was one those things that will happen when the gremlins invade the back shop of a newspaper.

The whole line of type concerning Ralph Terry, New York Yankee pitcher, turned up missing when a big New York newspaper went to press with the team rosters for the World Series.

That's the kind of year it has been for Terry, the hero of the 1962 series, and a practically forgotten man of the one that starts today.

Terry has been dropped from the starting rotation, and current plans call for him to be used in the bullpen throughout the series against Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I guess I'll be the long man in relief," Terry said. "If they need a quick out, a man to pitch to one lefthander for instance, they'll use Steve Hamilton, but I'll go in if they need someone for three, four innings, something like that."

The art of sociability

Felix knows it well. His whispered blandishments do not fall on mute ears. The honor of her company? A refreshing repast? Crisp, light Club Select ale, frowned with sparkling clear water from our deep artesian wells in Ontario's historic Bruce Peninsula)? It's the choice of suitors with a sense of occasion.

1964 Studebaker

ED SULLIVAN—FOR STUDEBAKER

Today we introduce the beautiful new 1964 Studebaker.

You will find it different from any other car. We are an independent company, with independent ideas.

We think the small cars are too cramped and flimsy, the big cars are too expensive and hard to manoeuvre.

We have built this thinking into the new Studebaker. We set new standards in interior room. The car is longer and lower, but it has lost none of its manoeuverability.

It is built like a fort. It makes no compromise. We're proud of this.

If you're a family man, you'll want your car to be the safest on the road. Studebaker is exactly that. For example, completely padded instrument panels are standard on all models. And Studebaker surrounds you with a "girder of safety"—the "bridge-constructed" Armour Guard frame. You can have caliper disc brakes, the safest kind in the world.

If you're a car enthusiast, you'll have a "hot" car—and Studebaker can match performance with cars costing $3,000 to $4,000 more.

If you're a business man, you'll prefer the "long value" dollars to the "low" dollar. Studebaker does not "skimp" down to a price, but builds up to high standards of comfort and economy.

If this kind of car appeals to you, we invite you to see the beautiful '64 Studebaker—the one car that's Different . . . by Design.

Hundreds Call For Free Argo Tickets

TORONTO (CP) — A 20-year-old engineering student at the University of Waterloo received $3 and two tickets to each of the Toronto Argonauts' three remaining home games Tuesday — gift of a disgruntled Argo fan.

Lloyd Carstairs, 48, of Toronto donated the tickets and money to Hugh Erwin, the student.

Carstairs had advertised, offering to give away his tickets plus a 50-cent-a-ticket bonus "for taking them off my hands."

Carstairs, a season ticket holder of the Eastern Football Conference club for 15 years, said he is "disgusted with the way the team is being run." The Argos have won only two of their nine games this season.

Telephone company officials said the Carstairs phone number was dialled "thousands" of times Tuesday by people seeking the tickets. Finally the phone was taken off the hook.

It was replaced at exactly 6 p.m., the time given in the advertisement for people to call. Erwin's call came a split second later.

TORONTO (CP)—Eric Walsh, 23 - year - old apprentice rider from North Sydney, N.S., captured the featured seventh race at Woodbine Tuesday on A. P. Dunghe and J. Gabbey's Bradbury for his third win in six mounts on the program.

Although only in his first full year of race riding, young Walsh turned in a professional performance on Bradbury. With about 100 yards left to run, Walsh brought Bradbury by Safety Man to win the mile turf event by a length. More than six lengths back in third place was the R. and R. Stable's Prince Maple.

Bradbury paid $5.50, $3.50 and $2.60 in the race for three-year-olds. Safety Man paid $4 and $3.10 and Prince Maple returned $3.10.

Four Widows Miss Double

DETROIT (CP) — To win a daily double, you must pick the winners of the first and second races at a race track.

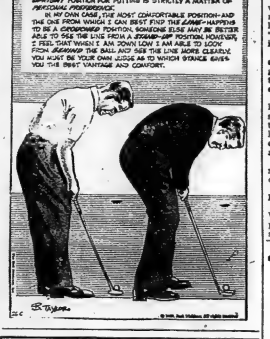
To win a daily double you must be lucky. The four widowers weren't.

For 100 days — ever since the bangtails began bouncing around the Detroit tracks with elves on their backs—the four widows had scraped up 50 cents each a day for their $2 bet on the daily double.

Sept. 10 was the 110th day of the season, and Mrs. Tommie Lee Warfield, 63, and her three friends were driving to Hazel Park race course. They were in a hurry.

So was the police cruiser that ranged up alongside neck and neck, siren screaming.

You'll make us miss the double," protested Mrs. Warfield to the officer who was writing her out a ticket for going 60 miles per hour in a 30-mile zone. It was nearly post time.



And Mrs. Warfield, not wishing to run into another police car, took her time getting to the track.

Too much time. When she and her friends got there, the story of missed opportunity was posted on the board at the track.

Six and ten — the number the widows had been betting faithfully since the first warm day in May—had won. Dan Vrsval and Five Captains—the horses—had paid $221.20 for each $2 bet.

Traffic Court Referee John Carney heard the story Tuesday and noted the "going to the track" on Mrs. Warfield's ticket—her traffic ticket.

He decided she had been punished enough. He suspended sentence.

Jones, Chatham Meet at Campbellville

Jones Motors and Chatham will settle their battle for the Ontario Baseball Association Juvenile "A" championship on neutral grounds this Sunday, it was announced this morning.

The OBA has ordered the third and deciding game of their titular series to be played in Campbellville on Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock. Neutral umpires will be assigned to the game.

Belleville Jones took the series opener 3-1 but lost in Chatham 6-2.

Negro Will See Whitey Pitch Series

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) Leroy Richardson's facial muscles must be getting tired.

The 37-year-old Negro manager at the Greenville YMCA has been smiling since New York Yankees clinched the American League pennant.

He is smiling for two reasons—he's in New York to see the World Series and he'll see Whitey Ford, the ace lefthander who won 24 games.

When Ford was in Greenville for a speaking engagement last year, Leroy gave him a rubdown and told him "I'm fixing this arm up where it'll be good for 25 games."

After Ford left, YMCA General Secretary W. B. Mullinax promised Leroy a trip to the World Series if the Yankees and Ford won the pennant.

When it was apparent the Bombers had won the flag, some 200 white members of the YMCA Athletic Club launched a drive that netted enough money for the trip and tickets.

Said Leroy: "This is the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me."

The father of 11 children, Leroy left Monday morning.

"If I don't get to talk to Whitey again," he said, "I expect I'll be hollering from the stands to tell him I'm here."

Signed For 1964

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

TORONTO (CP)—Some people were surprised Tuesday when Toronto Argonauts offered Nobby Wirkowski a new contract.

Others were surprised when Wirkowski accepted.

There probably have been many nights when Wirkowski, youngest head coach in the Canadian Football League, wished he was still a quarterback. Especially the recent Sunday afternoon when Calgary Stampeders walloped his team 50-0 before a stadium packed with critical Toronto fans.

The Argos have won only twice in nine starts this season which is not an impressive record for Wirkowski, suffering through his first full season as a head coach.

The fact that George Fleming, a Toronto citizen, is nearing a scoring record in the Western Conference with Winnipeg Blue Bombers hasn't helped. And there has been a constant rumble among Toronto faithful that Don Trull, mainstay of the Argo defensive squad, should have been given a shot at the starting quarterback.

The usual reaction of a team in this type of situation is simple: Fire the coach and keep the fans content.

HAS FAITH ANYWAY

General manager Lew Hayman, on announcing that Wirkowski's one-year contract had been renewed through the 1964 season, admitted the team's showing has been a big disappointment.

"But we feel Nobby is doing a competent job," said Hayman. "He's well versed with the club personnel. It's a question of being able to co-ordinate the pieces and of adding some new ones."

"It will give me the chance to continue the job of rebuilding the club," Wirkowski said. "Only five people I really need. One, he said, is a backfielder who can run and carry the ball.

He is pleased with the showing of some of his younger players, whom he expects to improve by next season, but "we've got some older players who . . . are getting too fat in the head and pocketbook."

What about Fleming, the talented kicker who has scored 98 points against the Argos' team total of 94?

Any of the other eight teams in the CFL could have had him for $350. But no one was interested when Argos put him on waivers at the star of the season.

Wirkowski provided Fleming with the telephone number of Bud Grant, Winnipeg coach. Fleming was going back to the United States as a free agent. But instead, he made an impromptu call.

Although everything stems against Wirkowski, he's still calling Argos to make the EFC playoffs.

They're four points behind the third-place Montreal Alouettes but have two more meetings with Montreal—the first one here Friday night.

Says Wirkowski: "We can still make it."

British Courts and Judges Have Come in for Criticism In Spy Cases, Sex Scandals

By GRANVILLE J. WATTS

LONDON (AP)—A workman, cleaning the statue of Justice on top of London's Old Bailey criminal court found something amiss.

"Her scales are supposed to be even," said steeplejack Roy Fawcett, "but one is at least six inches lower than the other."

Many Britons believe that it is not only the ornamental scales above the court that need adjusting. The country's courts and judges have come in for unprecedented and harsh criticism.

"Is British justice just?" read a headline in the London Daily Sketch. The article that followed claimed it was not always so.

This wholesale examination of British justice has its beginning in the rash of spy cases and "sex scandals."

SCRUTINIZE AGENCIES

The behavior of government ministers, the aristocracy, the press, the courts, the police—all have come under the microscope of public scrutiny.

Britain's lawyers are particularly concerned at what they consider the most damaging aspect of the whole business—the growing lack of public confidence in the country's courts and police.

The first cracks in the edifice appeared during the spate of spy trials that began in 1961.

Judges handed down sentences of staggering severity. Double agent George Blake, for instance, drew 42 years in prison—a total achieved by adding together sentences on a number of charges, though this practice had previously been condemned by an appeals court.

Then came the case of William John Vassall, a homosexual admiralty clerk who spied for the Russians. Names began to fly and Prime Minister Macmillan set up the Radcliffe tribunal to find out if anyone was to blame in high places.

CLEARS GALBRAITH

The tribunal cleared John Galbraith, admiralty minister who exchanged letters with Vassall. It criticized sections of the national press for the way they covered the story.

Two reporters, Brendan Mulholland and Reginald Foster, were jailed for six and three months, respectively, for not disclosing the sources of their information in the case.

Lord Chief Justice Parker observed in the case of one of them that "the citizen's highest duty is to the state."

The Sunday Telegraph, a Conservative newspaper, said British lawyers are reared in the belief that judges should be the "first defenders of our liberties against the state."

Criticism of the courts flared again when party girl Christine Keeler became the central figure in the case of West Indian jazz singer Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon. Miss Keeler gave evidence and Gordon was convicted of beating her and was jailed for three years. But the West Indian claimed he had been framed, and won an appeal.

CAUSES STORM

What caused a storm of criticism was the way in which the successful appeal was handled. Britain's Court of Criminal Appeal disposed of it in nine minutes with no reason given, apart from the fact that the transcript of a tape recording by Miss Keeler had something to do with it.

Newspapers and lawyers immediately denounced the air of secrecy surrounding the decision. Later, Miss Keeler was charged with lying at Gordon's trial.

British justice took another hard knock in the trial of Stephen Ward, who took a fatal dose of barbiturates on the last day of his trial on charges of procuring.

Press criticism varied from speculation as to whether Ward should ever have been tried at all, to the conduct of the police in obtaining evidence against him.

Dame Rebecca West wrote that Ward was "killed by the law, as surely as if he had been the victim of capital punishment."

CHANGED EVIDENCE

In the case, call girl Ronna Ricardo changed her evidence, claiming that the police had threatened her into making statements she said were not true.

The question of police interrogation has come in for special attention.

Said a Sunday Telegraph special article:

"How often British police methods lead to false confessions cannot be exactly known. But there have been quite a number of recorded instances."

The position was put even more strongly by writer Connor Wath in The Daily Sketch: "The police often talk of detaining someone for questioning. The police have no right to detain anyone for questioning. A citizen may volunteer to answer questions. Or he may be arrested and charged. Prolonged questioning, until the suspect says something incriminating, is against the law. But it does happen."

Replies a top police official: "We don't beat them with truncheons, as some people seem to believe, but if we were not allowed to question them as need be, guilty men would get off scot free."

MAKE ARREST

AYLESBURY, England (Reuters) — Another man was arrested Tuesday night in connection with Britain's $7,000,000 mail train robbery in August. Martin Harvey, 28, a London driver, was arrested and charged at Aylesbury police station—a few miles from the scene of the crime—with receiving £51S ($1,554) knowing it to be stolen.

Leaders of Kurdish Revolt Say Movement Stronger

The following dispatch is from a correspondent who has just returned after two months as the front of the civil war in Iraq between the Kurds and the Baghdad government.

By ALEX EFTY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Leaders of the Kurdish revolt in north Iraq say their movement is stronger than ever after two years of savage war against the government but is getting support neither from the Soviet Union nor the West.

The rebels express confidence they will eventually accomplish their objective: A self-ruling, autonomous Kurdish region in the north.

Starting from scratch in September, 1961, with no organization and no supplies, they have fought the Iraqi Army to a standstill and retained control over almost all the mountain regions of what they call Kurdistan.

This rebellion is the sixth Kurdish revolt since 1900. Previous attempts to achieve self-rule failed, the leaders say, because they were little more than tribal uprisings.

Now they contend the Kurds are united—the powerful tribal chiefs of the north and their armed tribesmen, the farmers of the southern regions, Kurdish city workers and intellectuals.

The government's activity in burning fields and bombing villages, they say, strengthens the feeling of unity and swells the ranks of peshmerga, the unformed rebel army.

DENY SOVIET AID

Though Mullah Mustafa Barzani, the rebel chief, and 500 of his followers spent 1946-58 as political refugees in the Soviet Union, the Kurds deny their rebellion is Communist-inspired or that they get help from Russia.

The few outsiders who have met Barzani consider him a conservative tribal chief.

A 20-man central committee, which decides party policy, is composed of lawyers, journalists, scientists, civil servants, army officers and other educated men who are avowedly anti-Communist.

There is no government in the strife-torn rebel land, but the Kurdish Democratic Party performs many functions of government.

Village party committees collect taxes and arbitrate disputes. The party runs a tobacco monopoly. To beat the government's tight blockade of Kurdistan, it imports and distributes tea, sugar and cooking fat—three key staples.

In the mountain wilderness, this correspondent saw vast, gloomy caves stacked high with these goods, smuggled into Kurdistan for future use.

One of the caverns houses a radio station and the printing plant for the party newspaper.

The pride of the party is the expanding peshmerga, a disciplined, well-trained and organized army. Commanded by six Kurdish colonels who deserted from the government army, it is gradually replacing the irregular guerrilla tribesmen maintained by the Aghas.

Both Barzani and the political party leaders say the West seems hostile to the Kurds while offering arms to the Iraqi government.

The Kurds argue that Western interests would be served if the Western powers interceded with Baghdad to end the war.

The Western oil interests are in northern Iraq, they note, and the Kurdish lands are strategic territory, for here the borders of Iraq, Iran and Turkey converge with the Soviet Union.

HAVE MORE TROUBLES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The injured right arm of quarterback John Brodie of San Francisco 49ers will be placed in a cast for six weeks, compounding the problems of the winless National Football League club. Organized Crime Provides Gripping Television Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' live coverage of the Senate subcommittee hearings on organized crime provide the most gripping television fare in a long time. The other networks' summaries of highlights failed to capture the impact of Joseph Valachi's testimony.

Valachi, convicted burglar, narcotics dealer, confessed accomplice in cold - blooded murder and defector from the secret underworld organization, Cosa Nostra, has given a shocking account of life inside a crime syndicate run by feudal overlords.

His testimony is hard to follow. Valachi's diction is muddy. His sentences are a strange mixture of slang and legal phrases. Most difficult of all is his cast of characters. Most have two names, used interchangeably. It was hard, for instance, to remember the other names of Nick the Thief, or of Dutch Argue and I never did find out the real name of Chick Ninety-Nine.

Valachi testified in a matter-of-fact patient voice. Even the senators, who had heard the story in closed session, looked flabbergasted. One interrupted a complicated account of a killing contract to ask Valachi if all this seemed to him "as natural as breathing."

The witness calmly agreed it did.

CBS' new Chronicle series, which will occasionally take over the CBS Reports Wednesday night spot (7:30-8:30 EDT) bown in tonight. Initial program is called The French. They are so French, and will take a look at Frenchmen—through French eyes.

W AND S RETURN

Wayne and Shuster will do four one-hour special programs on CBC television this season starting Oct. 21.

Nfld. Caribou Will Be Tagged Again This Year

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Provincial government wildlife biologists will tag caribou again this year as the herds cross Victoria Lake in central Newfoundland, southward-bound on their annual fall migration.

The caribou are marked to determine their migration routes and to find out whether there is any mixing of herds.

About November the caribou herds in the interior move to traditional feeding grounds. Most of the herd from the Buchans area swim Victoria Lake.

Aircraft spot the caribou and information is radioed to the biologists' camp on the shore of the lake. The swimming animals are intercepted and, with the use of a large shepherd's hook, are held in the water while metal tags and colored streamers are fastened to their ears.

About 100 were tagged last year, and chief biologist Tom Bergerud says a similar number may get the tags and streamers this year.

It is not known whether the congregation of herds in the interior during the winter remains distinct or whether there is a general mixing of animals from separate summer herds. Observation of tagged animals and information from hunters will also indicate general homing instincts.

BEAUTY ON PANEL

Marilyn Van Derbur, a former Miss America, will appear as a guest panelist on "To Tell the Truth" on CBS television.

TOUCHING SCENE in the play "Juno and the Paycock" is rehearsed by Jackie Burrows and William Brydon, both of the Crest Repertory Company. The Crest will present the play, sponsored by the Belleville Theatre Guild, October 5th at B.C.I.

AT THE PARK — Sadistic master-at-arms Robert Ryan (left) accuses foreingman Terence Stamp (centre) of mutiny to the ship's captain, Peter Ustinov, in this dramatic scene from "Billy Budd," an Allied Artists release in CinemaScope, at the Park Theatre for its Belleville showing. Robert Ryan, Peter Ustinov, Melvyn Douglas star with Terence Stamp. On the same program 60 bowls a second in "The Great Chase," starring Buster Keaton and Douglas Fairbanks Sr. One complete show starts at 7:35 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Tomorrow — Marlon Brando, as Fletcher Christian, prevents mutineer Richard Harris from flogging Captain Bligh (Trevor Howard) in this scene from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Mutiny on the Bounty", the most exciting and romantic real life adventure ever told. The spectacular picture beginning Tumorrow, at the Belle Theatre, for an extended engagement was filmed in Ultra Panavision and Technicolor, in Boa-Bora, Moorea and fabled Tahiti with a cast of thousands.

Lulu's Back in Town But -- Now She's a Celebrity

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lulu's back in town, and what a difference!

She left last summer as Lulu Porter, a fairly obscure singer. Now she's an international celebrity.

Who's responsible? Contrary to printed reports and indignant congressmen, it wasn't Pierre Salinger, says Lulu.

The story was that the presidential press secretary caught Lulu's act at a Beverly Hills club and recommended her to represent the United States at the Polish International Song Fair.

Lulu had this to say:

"He (Salinger) came to see me perform and later said some nice things about my performance, also in the party was Pat McDermott (once Marilyn Monroe's press agent) who went to work for the U.S. Information Agency.

OTHERS WOULDN'T GO

"I understand that later efforts had failed to get such names as Polly Bergen, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Sandra Church and Joan Baez to go to the festival. Pat McDermott suggested that we might send an unknown, and she mentioned me."

Lulu, who was working her way up to the better niteries, was eager and willing. Her manager Jerry Fonarow, she took off for Warsaw.

Competing against the natives of 25 other countries, she was a sensation, winning the title of best singer at the festival.

Lulu, 22, has returned to appear on the Johnny Carson and Steve Allen television shows. She has her pick of recording contracts, television and supper club engagements.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Johnnie R., a nine-year-old gelding owned by Doug Palmer, won the featured $1,200 trot at Mohawk Raceway Tuesday night.

Housecleaning Costs Firm $100,000 Every 2-3 Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—A $100,000 housecleaning lasting two months may seem expensive and lengthy, but to oil refineries it is routine every two or three years.

At the Imperial Oil Ioco refinery near here, housecleaning means taking the $30,000,000 refinery apart and putting it together again.

A refinery housecleaning is referred to as a turnaround and all refineries have one because crude oil is a highly corrosive product that eats away at the innards of the equipment.

Standard Oil finished its turnaround in April and spent $110,000.

"We're not expecting a major turnaround until 1965," said manager Victor Wiebe.

British American Oil shut down for seven weeks and spent $50,000 while Shell Oil is completing a $50,000 turnaround at its Shellburn refinery.

Ioco manager Harry Cavanagh said the turnaround is needed because crude oil is a mixture of many impurities.

"The salt, sulphur, nitrogen, chlorine and certain types of organic acids corrode steel piles, pumps and boilers. The refinery process eliminates or renders harmless these corrosive elements and in the process our equipment suffers."

CONSTANT CHECK

All Ioco crews keep a constant check on corrosion, he said. Pipes are tapped and some steel is X-rayed to determine its thickness.

Recently the refinery spent $5,400 for an ultrasonic tester that does the job faster and better. Another innovation is a special type of blue paint on some tanks that turns white if things aren't right.

Mechanical superintendent Harold Shannon said the corrosion check is important because thin boilers or pipes could result in an explosion, which would cost much more in damage than a turnaround.

Mr. Cavanagh said refineries are beginning to keep up with repairs to get away from the long shutdown.

"We're turning to higher quality steels," said Shellburn manager Sandy Foote.

Most of the turnarounds here are crash programs out of necessity.

"We can only store so much oil and gasoline and we have to assess customers' needs," said C. W. Coote, B.A. refinery manager.

Plan Further Activities in Space Science

TORONTO (CP) — A year after the launching of Canada's first satellite, the Alouette, a government spokesman said Monday night plans are being made for further participation in space science.

J. H. Meek of the defence research telecommunications establishment told the sixth Canadian Electronics Conference here:

"We have acquired a first-rate engineering capability in satellite techniques, which certainly matches the Americans and the Russians. We have made a major advance also in knowledge of the upper atmosphere."

He added: "We are trying now to turn things over to industry as much as possible and we expect industry participation will mushroom in the near future."

Mr. Meek announced the following Canadian space programs:

1. Launching of Alouette II early in 1965. The missile will be the backup satellite built for Alouette I. It will be much improved and placed in higher orbit.

2. Three Canadian satellites to be called Isis A, B and C. They will be ionospheric satellites like the Alouettes, but specifications and experiments have not been settled. Plans are to launch them a year apart, the first to go a year after Alouette II.

3. Canadian participation in some part of the U.S. S-3B ionospheric satellite due to go up later this year.

4. Use by the meteorological branch of the Department of Transport of a ground readout station for the next series of U.S. weather satellites, called Nimbus.

31 Imperial Oil Dealers Close Service Stations

SUDBURY (CP) — Thirty-one Imperial Oil Limited dealers within a 30-mile radius of here closed their service stations today to protest a company decision to reduce commissions and increase prices of gas in this area.

The 17 dealers who attended a meeting here Tuesday and 14 others reached by phone agreed unanimously to keep their pumps locked. One dealer could not be located.

Dealers were informed Sept. 20 of reductions in commissions to 6.5 cents a gallon from 6.75 cents. Four days later the company announced an increase in the price of gas to 42.9 cents a gallon from 42.3 cents.

Imperial Oil contended the 6.5 cents a gallon is a firm commission dealers would receive regardless of how much the prices vary.

Newsman Says He Won't Pay Federal Taxes

MONTREAL (CP) — Newspaper man Pierre Bourgault says he won't pay his federal income taxes because the government at Ottawa is a foreign one to him.

He told a rally of Quebec separatists Sunday night he considers only the government of Quebec as entitled to his taxes.

Some 600 supporters attended the meeting and gave Mr. Bourgault, a reporter for La Presse, a standing ovation.

He said the rights of minorities must be respected but so should the rights of majorities, and in Quebec French - Canadians were the majority.

Jean - Marc Leger, an editor of Le Devoir, said the teaching of English in French-language primary schools "accelerates the suicide" of French-Canadian culture.

Mr. Leger, former director of the provincial government's office of the French Language, an organization to improve spoken and written French, said true bilingualism is merely the coexistence of two unilingualisms.

It would never be possible for more than a few individuals to be completely bilingual. For most, teaching of a second language would only serve to degrade their own mother tongue.

The public meeting was sponsored by le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, a separatist group.

Faulty Damper Said Cause Of Five Deaths

BALA, Ont. (CP) — A faulty damper and paper too close to a stove were listed Monday night as probable causes of a cottage fire Sept. 1 which took the lives of a mother and four children.

The suggestions were made in testimony given by inspector Stewart Foster of the Ontario fire marshal's office at a coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Viola Hope, 29, of Pickering, Ont.

Also killed in the fire were Mrs. Hope's three children, David, 6, Richard, 5, and Ann Marie, 2, and Terry Dolron, a ward of the Children's Aid Society.

Inspector Foster said a defective valve on the damper could have been caused by metal expanding during the fire, but he had been told by tenants that it was not operating properly.

He estimated the external temperature of the stove reached 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit during the night. The ignition point of paper is 446 degrees.

Bala is about 30 miles southeast of Parry Sound.

Fine Newspaper For Publishing Vice Trial News

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—A New Zealand newspaper was fined £30 ($90) today on indecency charge arising out of stories it published of the sensational Stephen Ward vice trial in London this summer.

Magistrate A. W. Yorty said the Taranaka Daily News broke the 53-year-old Indecent Publications Act and was not entitled to exemption on the grounds the news stories were of world-wide interest.

In giving his judgment Yorty said: "It is probably true that the majority of New Zealanders do not, or at least did not know before some of this evidence was published, what masochism is."

"They were probably unaware of this form of sexual perversion whereby some people get pleasure from being cruelly treated by the other sex," he said.

The charges against The Daily News were brought by Howard Thomas Brock, an engineer, with the consent of the attorney-general. They centred particularly on the paper's July 25 edition, which featured the testimony of prostitute Vicki Barrett.

MUST OBSERVE LAW

Yorty said the Ward trial had world - wide interest, but he maintained that a newspaper had to work within the provisions of the law, even if it wanted to give its readers the fullest information.

He said certain sections of Miss Barrett's testimony involving masochistic and prostitution practices contained much that no responsible newspaper would ordinarily regard as suitable for publication.

"The purport of her evidence could quite easily have been conveyed to readers without the blow-by-blow description with which they were regaled," Yorty said.

FEW SURVIVE

Genuine round marbles, made of stone from Bavarian quarries, once were ground by some 60 mills for export to the world —one survives.

Cadillac has been redesigned for 1964 to give a longer, wider look along with more comfort. All Cadillacs are slightly longer and the distinctive Cadillac tailfins have been lowered more than an inch to increase the unbroken look of the profile. Treatment of the grille and front bumper is pronouncedly horizontal to give the appearance of greater width. New tires on all models have increased tread life as much as 25 per cent and give greater traction. And a bigger and more powerful engine has increased power in the city driving range of 20 to 45 mph. This is the Cadillac four-window sedan de Ville, one of 11 body styles available in three series.

Heiress, Hubby Fail to Kiss And Make up

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — A court attempt to reconcile typewriter heiress Gamble Benedict Porumbeanu and her ex-chauffeur husband, Andrei, failed today after a two-hour closed session.

Porumbeanu left the court by a back door and drove off in his lawyer's automobile.

Gamble emerged five minutes later, looking distressed. She told reporters: "It was not very ... sound."

Gamble, 22, asked the court for a legal separation. She charged her 37-year-old, Romanian-born husband with adultery, neglecting his family and squandering part of the $20,000,000 Remington typewriter fortune she inherited from her stepgrandmother, Mrs. Katherine Geddes Benedict of New York. She also asked full custody of their two children.

Gamble's lawyer, Eugen Curti, said nothing had been settled.

"Learn to Fight" Advice To Boys Named Shirley

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Some friends recently named their baby Shirley. In my opinion it's a dirty trick to give such a name to a girl, but to name a boy Shirley is unforgivable.

Why do people do such things to their children? It seems to be happening more and more. Two other friends called their son Marion. My husband and I began to call him Butch the day he was born. Fortunately it caught on and saved him.

Girls get stuck with names which belong to the opposite sex as well. In school these days these names, which can go both ways ,create pure confusion. A teacher who looks for Keith and sees something in long curls is bound to have difficulty in concealing her surprise.

What advice can you give to these unfortunate kids who got hooked with odd-ball names? (and while you're at it, take a good swipe at the parents.) — PLAIN MARY AND GLAD OF IT.

DEAR GLAD MARY — The only advice I have for a boy named Shirley is to learn how to fight.

Personally, I don't think names matter much. If a name doesn't fit a personality you can be sure that childhood friends will hook on a nickname that does.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently I found an apartment which captured my heart. It was too expensive for me so I asked a friend who is a hospital nurse if she would like to be my roommate. She loved the apartment, too, and agreed with pleasure.

Now, whenever I come home from work her boy friend is sitting in the living room reading the newspaper or puttering around in the kitchen, making himself something to eat. He has a key to our place and waltzes in whenever he feels like it.

Our bedrooms are at opposite ends of the apartment and her boy friend often stays in her bedroom until 3.00 a.m.—which I think is disgraceful. She has a TV set in there and claims they enjoy watching the late shows and that I am evil minded.

I realize I should tell her to shape up or ship out but if she leaves I am stuck with a rental I can't afford. My name is on the lease which doesn't expire until May 1. Please advise me. — HUNG.

DEAR HUNG — This situation will get worse before it gets better. Tell your friend she must move within 90 days and start to look for a new roommate now. If you can't find one, you are stuck until May, at which time you should find something you can afford — alone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In a few weeks I will be 16 years old. This birthday is a great big one for teenagers. It's a sort of magic number. About a dozen of my relatives and friends of my parents have already asked me what I want for my sixteenth birthday. My answer is, "Anything I'm not fussy." Then they keep at me to suggest something and I don't know what to say.

Usually they end up saying, "How about if I give you $5 and you can buy whatever you want?" This really frosts me. Money just slips away and there's nothing to show for it.

Please print this letter for all people who will be faced with the problem of buying a Sweet-16 present. Tell them to buy a little gift that lasts. — EL PASO.

DEAR EL — Here's your letter, and now I don't have to tell 'em because you did. My personal opinion is that you have no right to criticize well-meaning people because they are unimaginative when you don't seem to have any particularly bright ideas yourself.

Secret Document On Possible Charges Tabled

Report Concerns Heads In Waterfront Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — A secret report on possible criminal charges against waterfront labor leaders has been delivered to the government.

Justice Minister Chevrier told the Commons Wednesday that the report is under study by officers of his department but he gave no details of its contents.

Mr. Chevrier's disclosure was made after Labor Minister MacEachen brought forward his reasons for dealing with a government trusteeship over various unions for study by the Commons. There was no debate and Mr. MacEachen did not seek unanimous consent to consider the resolution at this session.

With the government planning to deal today with its spending estimates, indications are the resolution will not come up for debate until Friday.

The delay gives further time to United States and Canadian officials trying to work out a private plan for cleaning up labor hoodlumism on the Great Lakes, independent of a vote of government trusteeship.

It is a last-ditch effort to break a stalemate in the search for union solution, the CLC sent a delegation to U.S. officials Wednesday with specific proposals which it feels must be met in any voluntary trusteeship imposed.

IT'S THEIR MOVE

The proposal, contained in a letter from CLC President Claude Jodoin to AFL-CIO President George Meaney, puts the next move in the hands of the AFL-CIO — particularly Paul Hall, president of the SIU of North America, who has balked at the prospect of giving trusteeship unassailable power to make changes.

Mr. Hall is reported to be holding out for a appeal procedure that would, in effect, allow the SIU a veto on decisions by trustees.

The report to the justice department made known by Mr. Chevrier centres on investigations by two special lawyers appointed by the government to decide whether criminal action could be taken against Hal C. Banks, head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, and his chief lieutenant, SIU secretary-treasurer Leonard J. McLaughlin.

The two lawyers—J. Robert Elliott of Toronto and Jean Marchand of Montreal—are expected to come to Ottawa soon.

OSLO (AP)— In the speech from the throne at the opening Wednesday of Norway's Storthing (parliament), it announced that the government will introduce a law making vacations of at least four weeks compulsory. Pick Oliver As Leader In House

TORONTO (CP) — A mellow-voiced farmer who has failed twice before to lead Ontario's Liberals out of the political wilderness been chosen to head the party again while it regroups and seeks a new mandate.

Fifty - nine - year - old Farquhar Oliver, who has represented Grey South in the legislature since the age of 22, was named unanimously Wednesday by the Liberal caucus at temporary leader until a party convention can be held in about six months.

He promised an approach to the opposition's role which may differ from its former one, stressing the need for a consistent progress comprising equal parts of critical examination for government policy and constructive alternatives.

The caucus hashed over for 3½ hours the results of last Wednesday's general election—the seventh in a row which returned the Progressive Conservatives to office—and the question of interim leadership.

But, said Mr. Oliver, there was no resentment, no bitterness" about the way John Wintermeyer conducted the campaign. The Liberal leader was defeated in his own riding of Waterloo North.

"We have nothing but praise for the way he carried on and spent himself and his talents," Mr. Oliver said, as Mr. Wintermeyer stood beside him. Neither he nor the defeated leader would specify what the caucus had decided, Mr. Wintermeyer maintaining that the reasons "are all speculative."

Mr. Oliver was quick to assure reporters clustered outside the chamber that "it is not my present intention" to seek the permanent leadership at a convention which the Ontario Liberal Association's management committee will discuss within the next month.

Mr. Oliver, dean of the legislature by a country mile, has been politically unscrupulous in two previous terms at the Liberal helm.

GUNS IN LAOS BOOM

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)— Guns have been booming again on the Plaine des Jarres of east central Laos after more than three months of brooding quiet. Neutralist forces holding a small hill in the plain were hit by a pro-Communist Pathet Lao attack Monday.

Hurricane Flora Aimed at Haiti Death Toll, Destruction Likely

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Flora, potentially the most deadly storm to roar out of the tropical Atlantic in two years, aimed her 140-mile-an-hour fury today at Haiti.

A beast of life and great property destruction was likely in Haiti, the hurricane bureau said, because there are many places where her people can hide from the storm.

Beyond Haiti, in the path of the hurricane, lay Cuba's Oriente province and the big United States Navy base at Guantanamo Bay.

Hurricane Flora's eye raged the most vicious winds any hurricane has generated since Carla struck Texas with 175 mph winds Sept. 14, 1961. Carla killed 43 persons in four states and caused millions of dollars damage. The greatest migrations, the flight of the people from the low-lands of the gulf coast.

The weather bureau at San Juan reported the hurricane near latitude 16.5 north, logitude 72.0 west, or about 160 miles southwest of Port au Prince, the capital of Haiti.

Barring a shift in direction, forecasters said, the hurricane will strike at Haiti tonight with destructive winds, storm tides eight to 10 feet above normal, and torrential rains.

Jamaica took an emergency footing as Flora, which has already taken 30 lives in the Caribbean, headed for the eastern part of the island.

Violence Erupts In Hanover

HANOVER, Ont. (CP)—Violence erupted again in this strike-ridden town Wednesday when five club-wielding assailants ambushed three brothers driving to work at the Hanover Kitchen (Canada) Limited plant.

Police said the ambush was the worst incident since a 44-month strike against the company flared into violence in this community 25 miles south of Owen Sound last week.

The assailants blocked the car, dragged the three men out, beat them into submission and then drove the car over an embankment. Five men were later charged with assault causing bodily harm.

Meanwhile, female workers from the Peerless Textile Limited plant here joined the striking members of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) on the picket line, armed with tomatoes, pelted police cars and non-striking workers going into the plant Wednesday night.

THINKS JUST STARTING

Hanover police chief Frank Illingworth, whose four - man force has been reinforced by 10 provincial police officers, said Wednesday's incidents are "just the start of violence."

Treated in Hanover Hospital for a broken nose, multiple bruises and scratches was Lorne Koenig, 21, youngest of the Koenig brothers. Jack, 26, and Earl, 22, escaped with minor injuries. All live at nearby Ayton.

Held by police in Owen Sound are Herbert Zippel, 25, George Spielmann, 24, Robert Harms, 36, Glen Sickel, 29, and Kenneth Noble, 22, all of Hanover.

Police said the manchester is the only one who is a member of the IWA. The others are employees of a bakery, they said.

There were other incidents in the strike Wednesday.

HEARS THREAT

A union official's wife was threatened over the telephone — "You watch your kids or they are going to get into trouble," she was told.

Mrs. William Boegias, mayor of Hanover, demanded action by the Ontario department of labor.

Company General Manager A. E. Starke accused the union of deliberately inciting riots and violence.

The Hanover kitchens strike began May 21 when 65 members of the plant's union could not come to an agreement with the management after being certified in February.

Labor Party Puts Spotlight On Security

SCARBOROUGH, England (Reuters)—The opposition Labor party today stepped up its fight for power at the next general election by putting the social security spotlight on new social security proposals it plans for Britain.

The plans, providing for retirement pensions of up to half-pay, were announced sharply increased benefits, were explained to the party's annual conference by Miss Margaret Herbison, a member of the national executive committee.

Introducing Labor's new social benefit proposals called "new frontiers for social security," she said that under a Labor government the highest-paid worker would get about half of his normal earnings when sick or unemployed. The lowest-paid would get from two-thirds of three-quarters.

On retirement pensions, Miss Herbison said the aim was to ensure that everyone who retired seven years after the plan was in operation would be able to get a half-pay pension. Average paid workers would get half-pay, lower paid workers more than this. The social security plan was approved unanimously by conference delegates.

Christine Often Swore Revenge On Cast-off Jamaican Lover

LONDON (Reuters)—Playgirl Christine Keeler vowed repeatedly to revenge herself on a cast-off Jamaican lover who refused to forget her, a court was told today.

This testimony came on the second day of a preliminary court hearing to decide whether Miss Keeler, a central figure in this summer's Profumo scandal, should stand trial alone with three other persons on conspiracy and perjury charges.

The prosecution alleges that the 21-year-old redhead committed perjury and bribery to falsely imprison her ex-lover, Jazz singer Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon, 32, by accusing him of assault.

Prosecutor witness Clarence Raymond Camecbio said he was present the night of April 19 when Miss Keeler "staged" assault accused and that Christine kept saying she would "get" Gordon or "this time" after he scuffled with her in a hallway.

Miss Keeler was accused along with her roommate, Paula Hamilton-Marshall, 23, and their boy friend Peeper, Mrs. Olive Brooker, 38.

A fourth defendant, West Indian chauffeur Rudolph Fenton, 29, was appearing on a conspiracy charge only, while the three women also were accused of perjury.

Gordon testified he rang the bell at Christine's apartment and was invited to close the door in his face.

"I grabbed hold of her arm and said I wanted to speak to her."

Christine then insulted him, swearing at him in coarse terms, Gordon testified.

"I went to hit Christine and she turned through the door and fell. Fenton grabbed hold of my arm from behind. He said she was going to get me in jail this time."

Sister Miss Keeler was evidently in scuffles with men twice the night of April 17, the court heard. Her injuries were received emerged as a key point at the hearing.

John Hamilton-Marshall, 27, brother of Christine's roommate, testified Wednesday that he punched and kicked the redheaded playgirl some time before Gordon's appearance.

Playing Politics Charged

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of Parliament were told by one of their colleagues Wednesday to stop playing petty politics with old age pensions and get on with their legislative work.

Colin Cameron (NDP — Nanaimo - Cowichan - The - Islands), a veteran of seven years in the Commons and eight years in the British Columbia legislature, gave his fellow MPs a cutting rebuke for a 30-minute shouting match at the end of Tuesday's sitting.

Most of Tuesday's debate degenerated into the "most vulgar shouting contest" in many years and must have created "an extremely bad impression" on spectators in the public galleries.

Some honorable members might at least have taken some lessons in elementary civilized behavior."

Mr. Cameron, 67, spoke just before the Commons gave first reading to a government bill to boost old age pensions by $10 to $75 a month starting this month. The measure also provides for a $30 maximum increase in personal income tax, beginning in 1964, to finance the higher pensions.

Mr. Cameron said the pension bill has been treated as a political football for days on end by debate while hundreds of thou-

Two Biggest Co-operatives Say Heavier Tax Unjust

OTTAWA (CP)—The two biggest co-operative associations in Canada told the royal commission on taxation today it would be unjust and unreasonable to take a bigger tax bite from co-ops.

The Co-operative Union of Canada and the Conseil Canadien de la Co-operation, which together represent 1,600 co-operatives with 1,500,000 members, teamed up with a joint submission to the commission that tackled many of the earlier hearings against the tax structure on co-ops.

The criticism, led mainly by retail organizations, has centred around the fact that co-ops can pay tax-free dividends from taxable income, and can thus reduce taxable income to a minimum of three per cent of employed capital. New co-ops are also given a tax holiday for their first three years of operation.

The basic argument against the existing tax structure is that patronage dividends are, in effect, dividends and therefore should bear the same tax as in other corporate bodies. The co-operatives argue that the co-operations are merely an extension of the individual member and are not corporate entities.

The brief also hit out at earlier claims that co-ops are growing out of proportion to other forms of business and are posing a threat to "shareholder" firms.

Co-ops are only an important factor in a limited segment of the economy, said the brief. Their main strength is in the primary fields of agriculture and fishing.

In the retail field, sales by co-opers between 1945 and 1960 rose to about 2.1 from 1.7 per cent of total sales, while in the same period the sales by chain store rose to 48.7 per cent from 23.4 per cent.

It is obvious that co-operatives since 1945 have not driven competitors out of business."

The accomplishments of co-ops over the years, said the brief, included these: They have educated their members to higher standards for certain products. And co-ops are about the only type of business that can't be taken over by foreign interests.

Says Industry In Canada Is Stagnating

TORONTO (CP)—The electrical manufacturing industry in Canada is stagnating, a vice-president of Canadian General Electric Co. says y indicated Wednesday.

R. M. Fournier, who is also general manager of CGE's wholesale department, told the Electric Club of Toronto that the industry's output rose only 4.8 per cent from 1956 to 1962. Compared with a population growth of 18 per cent and a 32-per-cent increase in the gross national product.

"We in the electrical industry are simply not participating in Canada's growth—and it is up to ourselves to do something about it."

Bronco Horvath Is Fined $150

WELLAND (CP) — Bronco Horvath, a 33-year-old National Hockey League veteran now playing for Rochester American in the American Hockey League, was fined $150 Wednesday after he pleaded guilty to charge of careless driving and ordered to pay.

A second charge of uttering a threat and one of intimidation were dismissed by Magistrate Norman Young.

The charges were laid Aug. 28 when Horvath was apprehended by provincial police in Port Colborne following a high-speed chase on Highway 3, during which the hockey player was clocked at speeds up to 90 miles an hour.

When apprehended, Horvath accused Constable W. J. Bell of "laying for him" and threatened to get even with him.

Defence counsel B. P. Davis said Horvath had a "trigger temper."

'Wrong Woman' Shot To Death In Parked Car

Killer Thought Victim Was Sister-in-Law

GUELPH (CP)—A mother of two teen-age daughters was shot to death Wednesday night while sitting in a parked car with a friend outside her home and police believe it was a case of mistaken identity.

Mrs. Isabelle Matthews, 32, was killed by two blasts from a double-barrelled shotgun. Her companion, Ronald Ford, 28, was wounded.

A friend of the dead woman, Mrs. Mary Teider, 47, of Timmins was injured by a shotgun blast when she climbed up in a car with her husband shortly after the first shooting.

Franklin Joseph Kostal, 29, was charged with capital murder and two counts of attempted murder. He was remanded in custody until Monday when he appeared briefly before Justice of the Peace Rose Bridges.

Police said that moments before the shooting Kostal was carrying a gun went to a house a few doors away and asked for Mrs. William Kostal, a widow with seven children aged between one and 14 years.

TWO WOMEN

Told Mrs. Kostal was out bowling, the man approached the house where Mrs. Matthews and Mr. Ford were sitting and fired through a closed side window, hitting Mrs. Matthews in the back and Mr. Ford in the arm. Mr. Ford was said to be in satisfactory condition today in hospital.

Moments after the shooting, the widow drove up, saw a man with a gun and Mr. Ford running across the street. The gun was turned on the Teider car and a blast hit a side door, sending pieces of metal into Mrs. Teider's right thigh.

Mr. Teider drove away. His wife was treated in hospital and released.

Police say the accused man is a brother-in-law of Mrs. William Kostal.

A witness said that after the shots he was shouted: "I've shot the wrong woman.

Strike Will Affect All Shipments

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Rene Lippe has arranged to bring together shipowners and shipping officials today in an attempt to avert a St. Lawrence River tieup strike scheduled to start Friday morning, walkout that would seriously hamper shipment of 60,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia.

The Montreal magistrate's court judge met Wednesday with Paul Asselin, president of the Montreal local of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC), within hours of being appointed federal government mediator in the dock crisis.

Judge Lippe, who has previously helped settle troubles in the trucking, bus, metals and textile industries, scheduled a meeting with the Shipping Federation of Canada today before attending to the joint meeting.

Following the meeting with Mr. Asselin, he said he was "hoping for a settlement and that "a strike would be disastrous not only to the men and to the industry and the federation but to Canada."

Anticipated Dieppe Raid Says German

BONN, West Germany (Reuters)—Retired German Gen. Ulrich Kessler said Wednesday the Germans anticipated the British raid on Dieppe in 1942 because they had partially broken the Britain's naval code.

Kessler, who headed the German air force Atlantic command during the early stages of the Second World War, said "from time to time I received coded British signals which contained important information for us."

This situation continued until the surrender of the Italians, who told the British their code had been broken.

Kessler said, however, he did not think the Dieppe raid would have been successful even if the Germans had not received the information.

"We anticipated an attack and made appropriate preparations," he said.

CALL FOR OUSTER

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Four labor organizations representing 100,000 Congolese workers have called for the ouster of Premier Cyrille Adoula's government.

Ex-Con. Charged With Extortion, Said Doctor Made Love to Wife

TORONTO (CP) — The press was ordered Wednesday not to publish the name of a Toronto physician who is the complainant in a sensational extortion trial before a county court jury at city hall.

Judge Robert Forsyth said before the jury was selected that the complainant, a respectable man. The publication of his identity might do him harm or injustice, he said.

The case, in which Vernon H. Bewley, 46, of Toronto is charged with attempted extortion, has been 2½ years coming to trial.

In his opening remarks to the all-male jury, Crown Counsel Lloyd Graburn said the case concerns an attempt by Bewley, former prisoner at Kingston penitentiary to extort $1,000 from a doctor, who had treated the Bewley family.

He said Bewley claimed the doctor was in error in his treatment with Bewley's wife while Bewley was in prison. He told the doctor he had proof of his charge.

The doctor denies the allegation, Graburn told the jury.

He said Bewley told the doctor that he wanted $1,000 compensation. The doctor was worried about publicity that might result.

The physician was advised by his lawyer to contact the police and Bewley was arrested when he came to the doctor's office to collect the money.

The case continues today.

Will Use Scout Building In Park as Meeting Place

It's a kitchenwigamig, according to Murray Maw, Belleville district commissioner of the Boy Scouts. It's a dining shelter, according to Fred Lancaster, chairman of the Belleville District Boy Scouts camp committee. It's the first structure at Camp Sagonaska, according to Rod Walters, secretary of the Belleville District Council of the Boy Scouts, and within the next few years it will be the camp's main building.

Whichever name you choose, it's a roof supported on 14 cedar posts, at the Belleville Boy Scouts Camp "Sagonaska," in the Moira River Conservation Authority's Col. Roscoe Vandervoort Park, near Thomasburg. In the headquarters area of the camp, the necessities of toilets and a drinking shelter and meeting place.

Finished to its present state last spring, the shelter will have walls and floor added later. It should be a complete building in about three years, Scout officials' estimate.

Money for the scheme comes from a levy on all scout troops using the camp and from half the proceeds of the annual Boy Scout Apple Day. This year's Apple Day, Friday and Saturday, is the second from which it has been devoted to the camp.

Kikidewigamig, by the way, is an Indian word meaning "meeting place".

Need Costume For Part in Guild Play

Anyone got a well used Irish peasant costume, in the style of the 1930's? Lack of one is all that stands between Miss Hilary Thomas, of Belleville, and a chance to act on the professional stage.

A member of the Belleville Theatre Guild, Mrs. Thomas never went professional though, has acted in several amateur plays around the town. She and she had no plans to.

But the Crest Theatre's Repertory Company, due in Belleville Saturday night, Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" at B.C.I., sponsored by the Theatre Guild, changed her mind. The touring company is short one person for a walk-on part.

The part isn't much. The character is an elderly Irish peasant woman living in the tenement in which the play is set. The peasant woman is required for a few minutes only, to assist a bereaved mother.

That's all the Theatre Guild knows about it for now. The need was outlined in part of a letter from the Crest Company. Collins of the Guild, stage manager for the Crest performance. The Crest wanted an actress able to play the part, Saturday night and she must come complete with costume.

Mrs. Thomas is the actress, Guild members decided. Now all that's needed is the costume.

Even Dozen On Hand for Acting Course

An even dozen would-be actors turned out last night, to the first class of an acting course being held for them in Belleville Theatre Guild by Jim Alexander, of Trenton. Half of the new actors are men, half are women.

Original purpose of the course was to attract new men to the Guild, as actors and as stagehands. The course is open to women, however, contrary to original reports.

Education Problems Posed By Changing World Subject Of Talk to P.T.A. Meeting

The Parent-Teacher Association of St. Michael's Academy and Junior School held its initial meeting on Monday, September 30.

The following are the new members of the executive: Mrs. J. K. Fleming; Mrs. W. Spinelli; Mrs. P. Callaghan; Mrs. Vince Mycroft; Mrs. D. Mc-Mavety; Mrs. T. Lynch; Mrs. O. Dufour; Mrs. J. Barrett; Mrs. L. Gilhaney; Mrs. J. Lynch; Mrs. Joseph Farrell; Mrs. G. O'Brien; Mrs. C. Shannon; Mrs. J. Rushton; Mrs. A. Conlin; Mrs. E. Trepanier; Mrs. D. Whalen; and Mrs. W. J. Lynch.

Classrooms were open at 7.30 to provide parents with the opportunity of seeing their children's work and discussing their progress with the teachers.

At 8.15 all assembled in the auditorium for a general meeting opened by Mrs. Daley, president, of which a report will become to the members. Mrs. Daley promised earnest and enthusiastic support and the success of the organization. "Catholic education," she stated, "is a partnership with the formation of the whole child, growth in wisdom and his eternal salvation." Parents can provide much assistance in the area of parent education as well as establishing good home-teacher and parent."

After the new members were called upon to introduce themselves, Mrs. K. Fleming, recording secretary, read the minutes of the June meeting. Sister Mary Andrew, principal, introduced the new members of the teaching staff: Sister Mary Carmella, Grade 8; Mrs. P. Rosch, Grades 4 and 5; St. Rev. Mgr. Cauley, Industrial Arts; Mr. L. Gehan, Grade 9C; and Mrs. P. Canty, Grade 1. Sister Mary is the itinerant teacher of oral French for Grades 5 and 6.

Sister Mary Andrew thanked the parents for their cooperation in encouraging the girls to wear the school uniform and also commented favorably on the appearance of the girls wearing it.

Mrs. J. Conlin, treasurer presented her report, after which a motion was carried to provide money for prizes for the forthcoming commencement.

PRIZES GIVEN

Prizes for attendance went to the following: Junior School — Mrs. Cameron; Grades 6, 7 and 8 — Middle Grades 9 and 10 — Sister Mary Celestine.

Sister Mary Andrew introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Francis Buckley of the staff of Belleville Collegiate Institute. With keen insight into the dynamic understanding of the role of parents, teachers and students, Mr. Buckley refreshing touches of humor, Mr. Buckley enlightened his audience on the educational problems posed by a changing world. In fancy he took them back to the school scene in Belleville at the turn of the century. "At that time the school boy was given the first foundation in the three R's with a little training in religious doctrine. He spent from four to six were taken up with little tasks, a simple meal was served and the whole family was around as he did his homework. As the years went by and one boy was seen to be determined to project his son from the hardships of life . . . "The contrasts in school life today are sharp, on the three levels, academically, socially and physically. You have a nourished the capacity for inquiry. As soon as a youngster stops inquiring, he's worry. You hear critics lamenting the fact that schools are not up to par. We have another hypercritical of one another. The teacher and the parent at the base. The pupil is connected with the pupil through blood relationship; the teacher is connected with the pupil through subject matter; and the teacher and parent are connected because of their common interest. We lose sight of that common interest when we criticize one another and when we foster criticism of one another and allow it to continue.

"We have all at one time or another questioned ourselves as to what is lacking in our system. In making a contrast between 1900 and 1963, it seems that the thing most lacking is discipline. I am thinking of the discipline which might be defined as the right attitude toward authority, toward public property, and towards our fellow man. One of the things most difficult for a student to understand is the rights of his fellow men and the rights of the individual. Man's self love and need for happiness is one of the paradoxes of life. He seeks for it in the wrong places. If he seeks the happiness of his fellow man, he has it. . . If the parent would but work and discussing their progress with the teachers.

Closed Session Of Board Held, No Statement

TRENTON — Trenton hospital's board of governors met last night in closed session. The board met for one hour and three hours.

Early today, board chairman R. G. Cranham said that he did not know if a statement concerning the meeting would be issued or not.

Presumably, the board discussed the present situation at Trenton Memorial Hospital where union workers are asking for a wage increase, better working conditions and the application of the check off system.

WILL TRY SIRENS

Fire Chief Cecil Kilp said today that he will call for a try out of Trenton's three air raid sirens next winter.

During a try-out last winter, one of the sirens malfunctioned and army experts ruled that this was due to mechanism sticking in frigid temperatures. Chief Kilp hopes that, this year, presumably been ironed out.

In the event of disaster striking this area, Chief Ellis would be alerted to activate the sirens from army headquarters at Kingston.

The chief would then notify the Trenton fire department of the emergency and also alert civil defence units in Picton, Brankford, Batawa and Stirling.

Glen McConkey, Frankford, Hurt While Hunting

TRENTON — A Frankford grocer, Glen McConkey, 25, will be flown out of the Kingston Airport this afternoon by air ambulance and placed in Kingston General Hospital to convalesce after an operation performed on his arm after he suffered a shattered left elbow in a freak hunting accident.

Sparse details gath ered from telephone conversations between the Trenton Police Chief say that Mr. McConkey was mistaken for a bear in dense underbrush while deer hunting, and was shot by a fellow hunter.

Mr. McConkey, according to the report, was forced to walk through the woods for a considerable distance to transportation which would get him to the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

After emergency treatment at this hospital, he was taken to the larger institution at Port Arthur.

Must Have Dedication Says Speaker

TRENTON — Speaking this week to the Trenton Kiwanis Club, Lt.-Col. N. Bouterse of the Salvation Army (ret.) and from St. Louis, Mo., compared the careers of Karl Marx and William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army movement. Both lived and worked in the slums of London, England, and both were man committed to a cause. Col. Bouterse stated that modern Christians must have this same dedication to their faith and principles.

Col. Bouterse has spent more than 40 years in Army service — the last 25 of them as a division commander in the southern U.S.

To illustrate the gain in prestige the Army has enjoyed over the years, Col. Bouterse told of his father, a Salvationist in the southern States, being arrested time after time for conducting a meeting in the streets.

On the other hand, said Col. Bouterse, he himself had been received by a Justice of the Supreme Court, when he became a division commander in the District of Columbia.

"You might say I'm the son of a jailbird," said Col. Bouterse laughingly.

Labor Leader Displays Exuberance at Conference

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Harold Wilson probably hasn't allowed himself such exuberance since he draped the mantle of Britain's Labor party leadership over his sturdy shoulders.

It was the "we're all brothers" speech Wednesday by his erstwhile leadership rival George Brown at the Labor party convention in Scarborough that unleashed emotion in the usually placid Wilson.

His moon-like face wreathed in a ferociously affectionate smile, Wilson grabbed Brown's hand and swung it high in the prize fighter's victory gesture.

Delegates to the Labor party's pre-election conference were thus able to see for themselves that all is well in the leadership —at the top of the heap anyway.

Brown's speech came on the topic "The return of a Labor government", a pep talk to rally enthusiasm, if such is needed at a conference where the only question asked is not whether Labor will win but when.

FREE OF SUSPICIONS

Tory newspapers, said Brown, are spreading rumors about dissensions in the Labor shadow cabinet but it is actually free of "suspicions." Brown, deputy leader, also scoffed at any suggestion of bitterness over Wilson's election as successor to the late Hugh Gaitskell.

Chief behind-the-scenes speculation, however, revolved around Wilson's proposal for a new economic planning ministry, a sort of master department that impinges on the treasury and hence on Chancellor Callaghan, slated to be Labor chancellor of the exchequer.

Callaghan said at a meeting Tuesday there are "discussions" but denied any quarrel. Brown, thought to be in line for the proposed ministry said on television nobody has "the right" to any ministry until he is appointed by Wilson after Labor wins an election.

The backstage mutterings soon, however, slightly, the triumph Wilson scored Tuesday in a speech urging Britain to discard its "old boy network" and plunge into the scientific age.

The dissension reports seem to rise in parts from Wilson's practice of keeping lieutenants at arms length and maintaining his own counsel. In this way he is unlike Gaitskell, who formed close friendships with some of his associates.

COMPARED WITH JFK

Because he is only 46, Wilson is inevitably compared with President Kennedy. He exudes the same "let's have the facts" attitude. Some observers say Wilson is exhibiting a warmer side of his nature at this conference, dropping the sometimes metallic tone in his speeches.

Wilson has said that if elected he wouldn't form a brain trust such as the one surrounded Kennedy. But observers are sure something of the kind is envisaged, noting Wilson had he wants to improve the briefing system at 10 Downing Street. He also plans to bring in experts for his new scientific ministries.

Wilson is quick with a quip. He has been said Wilson was wrong in saying Tuesday that a man could walk as fast as a computer can calculate, he could circle the earth in less than a second. Robin claimed it would take 14½ seconds.

"I take longer strides than Robin," Wilson replied to the reporter who brought the subject up.

Hon. Earl Rowe Will Open Norwood Fair

The slogan this year for Norwood Fair is, "It's Better, You'll See in '63." Every effort is being made to live up to this challenging objective. The Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the Honorable Earl Rowe has consented to open the fair on Monday afternoon. The famous Red Knight with his breath-taking display of aerobatics is expected to delight the Monday crowd. The RCAF will do a fly-past on Monday afternoon to honor the occasion.

The Saturday program will be featured by a tug-of-war between Hastings, Havelock, Asphodel and Dummer. Music will be provided by the Campbellford Citizens' Band. The public school competitions have been transferred to Saturday to help to round out this day's program.

Monday features will also include the big parade with bands from Trenton RCAF, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the Havelock Kilties. The horse drawing contest is also on Monday with $135 in prizes.

There are, of course, added to the regular features of the Norwood Fair, such as Green Shoe, horse races, livestock exhibits, women's work, amateur contests, novelty races.

The event will be climaxed by a barn dance on Monday night in the Exhibition Building. Del Crary's orchestra will be in attendance and there will also be a talent time addition hour from 8.30 to 9.30.

Artist Donates Scenic Canvas

Canadian artist, Mr. Robert S. Hyndman of Ottawa has donated a scenic painting to the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritic and Rheumatism Society which is to be raffled in the near future.

The painting was displayed at Monday's Rotary meeting by Mrs. John Stock and Mrs. Charles Campbell, representatives from the women's auxiliary of C.A.R. Society.

MAKE RICH FIND

ULLAPOOL, Scotland (CP) Rich deposits of potash worth millions of pounds have been found beneath the heather-clad Scottish Highlands. The mineral belt runs from Loch Garron in Ross and Cromarty to Loch Erriboll in Sutherland. The deposits, found accidentally by a geologist inspecting rocks, could form the basis of a vast fertilizer industry.

Partridge Flies Against Window At Foxboro

Who says there's a scarcity of partridge this season? Certainly not one Foxboro woman.

Mrs. Frank Eggleston yesterday was startled by the glass shattering in her living-room. Fluttering between the broken storm and room windows was what she believed was a duck.

She called provincial police at Belleville and two officers eventually arrived on the scene. They freed the bird — after identifying it as a partridge.

FACELIFT BRIDGE

EDMONTON (CP)—A former Canadian National Railways bridge is getting a facelift to prepare it for highway traffic. The original bridge, 43 miles west of Edmonton, was built in 1911 and rebuilt in 1939. The new span, 1,200 feet long, will provide a divided four-lane highway.

Former B.C.I. Student Wins Scholarship

It has been officially announced that Wayne Sobie, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sobie, Belleville, and former student of Belleville Collegiate, has won the McMaster University Governor's Scholarship of $400. Wayne is enrolled at McMaster University, Hamilton, in the Arts and Theology Course.

Would Set Up Canadian-U.S. Police Bodies

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Judge Bruce Macdonald, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, said Wednesday he plans to discuss with Attorney-General Robert Kennedy the possibility of setting up Canadian-U.S. police committees to speed information and action against crime across the border.

"The Ontario police have the closest co-operation with the RCMP but there may be specific fields in crime—such as gambling—in which the RCMP may not have as much interest as the provincial police," Judge Macdonald said in an interview touching on issues he may bring up with Kennedy Thursday.

"What I would like to see on the proposed Canadian committee would be representatives of the provincial police forces, the municipal forces and the RCMP. This committee would work closely with a similar American group so that information on narcotics, counterfeiting and other developments can be disseminated quickly and get to the police group most vitally concerned."

Judge Macdonald said that while Ontario has a specific interest in tightening up operations with U.S. authorities, other provinces also are concerned.

"Admittedly, there is more organized crime shown in Quebec than in Ontario," said Judge Macdonald who, accompanied by commissioners H. A. Sparling and Thomas Graham, sat through another session of testimony by mobster informant Joseph Valachi before the Senate investigations subcommittee.

Judge Macdonald said there wasn't much in Wednesday's chapter of Valachi's evidence that would help Ontario crime investigators but he suggested the points generally should take a more lenient view of Valachi —"since he now is turning into a public benefactor by disclosing information not available before."

The Ontario Police Commission chairman discussed Valachi's testimony in a confidential morning conference with Senator John McClellan, Arkansas Democrat and subcommittee chairman.

Science—It's Wonderful!

Science has given us many wonderful things.

It has provided us with satellites, push-button cars, push-button kitchens, frozen dinners, and television. It has made lawn mower jockeys of us and is working on the mechanical extraction of the juice of a quart of whisky as a hangover cure.

Now it has gone too far!

A gaggle of social scientists has originated a service in which compatible matches are made between unattached couples.

The modus operandi is a series of interviews, questionnaires and tests designed to reveal the personality of the client, fed into a computer and later matched with those of potential partners. Love is supposed to come later.

This romance-robbing robot, with its dials, push-buttons and whirling innards could be the undoing of the delightful little cherub, Dan Cupid.

If the arrow-slinging little imp is replaced by the mechanical ogre as a mate-selector on a world-wide basis, results could be too horrible to contemplate.

This electronic egomaniac could be responsible for a future world population of cultural, political, religious and mental monstrosities.

Its matched-personality fetish could mate an Eskimo with a Ubangi; a Maori with a Mexican; an Upper Mongolian with a colleen from Cork; a Pekingese with a U.S. senator; a Flim with a Bali-Bali dancer; a Congolese with an Italian prima-donna, and even a Dodger fan with a Yankee buff.

"Unsight-and-Unseen" marriages may have been good for Japanese samurais and Chinese mandarins, but the personal Cupidian touch from the original fired Flintstone who clubbed and dragged his mate to his cave, the courtly-mannered wooing, the back-porch and horse-and-buggy, the gentle touch of the hand and moonlight and foes to the modern convertible and candlelight-and-wine, is good enough for us.

Anyone for a Dan Cupid Fan Club?

This Slanders Miss Landers

It is enough to make one lose faith in Ann Landers. In a recent column, Miss Landers prints a letter from "indignant" who complains that her little boy is not allowed into kindergarten this year. James, it seems, is a genius, and should be allowed to go to school, whether the law says so or not. Not quite five years old, he has been reading for more than a year, and has been writing poetry from memory since he was two-and-a-half, (which might be the reason his mother wants to see him off to school.) James is not one of your childish four-year-olds either, interested only in nursery rhymes—he sticks to the classics.

From the depths of her experience, (and possibly from a realistic idea of James' actual abilities), Miss Landers comes up with the advice that James may not be emotionally ready for kindergarten.

Phooey, Miss Landers. You know very well as anyone else that if tiff child described as James actually exists, in the form described, public school is no place for him, regardless of his emotional age.

For the great mass of children there is no substitute but mass schooling, and the effects of mass schooling. The system can't do much harm to the average anyway. For the student of less-than-average intelligence, public schools, especially those systems with "opportunity classes," are wonderful. But if Mrs. Indignant's child is actually superior she should be preparing to hide from the truant officer, not complaining because he is barred from school.

Living Dangerously

Out in Santa Barbara, California, police are now empowered to arrest any man whose drinking proves a nuisance to his wife.

Actually, the new regulation covers considerably more ground than that. Any person may be arrested on suspicion of being disorderly or drunk if he or she annoys any other person in a private home.

This should restore the spirit of adventure to everyday living, and make New Year's Eve parties as fraught with peril as an African safari a couple of generations ago.

The secret thoughts of a man run over all things, holy, profane, clean, obscene, grave, and light, without shame or blame.—Thomas Hobbes.

For what human ill does not dawn seem to be an alleviation?—Thornton Wilder.

Hees Fair Appointment Has Every One Asking "Why"

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Former Conservative "Crown Prince" George Hees was in town the other day, exuding the same old drive and cheer as in the seven days and years he was busily hustling about the Capital clapping backs and saluting one and all with his characteristically chipper "Hiya Kid . . . 'way to go in there, Fella!"

The sight and sound of the big, handsome ofttimes-controversy former political charm-boy has set the Liberal backbenchers wondering all over again how it was their boss, the prime minister, ever appointed him a director of the World's Fair.

Was it just a piece of whimsy on the part of Mike Pearson in one of his lighter-humored moods, or was there some deep hidden political meaning back of it?

Obligingly, the Liberal MP's, many of whom are Parliamentary Brahmans and regard "Get-Up and Go" George with some awe as something of a phenomenon in political circles, had a vigor (which, of course, he truly was) have varying versions of the Hees story.

Some see his World's Fair appointment as a particularly slick political ploy by the prime minister designed to counteract whatever new strength Opposition Leader Diefenbaker may be showing in once again rallying Conservative support in pivotal Ontario.

ANTI-DIEF:

The way they see it, Dief has been trying to find candidates his leadership in English-speaking Canada by playing it cool on the hot nationalism of province of Quebec.

This they fear, already has made it possible for Dief to point at them as pandering to Quebec and Socialistic Separatist fringe, while quietly building up an image for himself in the eyes of ethnic Canadians, especially in Ontario, as the political Horatius at Confederation's bridge.

To counteract this, argue the nervous Liberal freshmen, it was essential to give the anti-Diefenbaker forces in Ontario, and especially in Toronto, somebody to rally around.

For such an assignment, then, who better than George Hees, leader of the Conservative Cabinet revolt that failed to topple Dief but succeeded in wrecking his Government.

So Hees was handed the Federal Citizenship on the World's Fair board to keep him in the public political eye and demonstrate that here was Diefenbaker rival well able to parlier Francais and become the darling of Montreal as readily as of Toronto.

It even looked like George Hees might have been trying to prove their theory correct, for in between junkets to Faraway Places he has been grinding away at French grammar an hour a day.

But then there is that other Liberal theory that Mike Pearson, believing that Dief's day is done, appointed Hees with the idea of thus destroying completely the one successor to the Conservative throne who he regarded as able to rally the Tory forces in Quebec and become a threat to Grit power.

JUST GOOD BUSINESS

Those who dope out George Hees' latest appointment this way contend that any Conservatives who may have been able to keep him from torpedoing Dief — and there are some — will promptly part company with him the moment he joined the camp of the political enemy. And the Chevrolet-Wel, strange are the ways, and devious the plots of politics.

Could be though, that the prime minister simply figured the popular Hees was needed as the kind of self-starting human jet he required to give the still-foundering Fair a boost.

Since his ill-fated and, as it turned out, disastrous palace revolution of last February, George Hees has globe-trotted through Europe, passing long enough for a Swiss Spring ski holiday, around the isles of Greece, back to Bermuda, down to Cape Cod and this Fall is off to the South Pacific and Southeast Asia.

It was taken for granted that when he travels for Trianch Corporation, an international investment house of which he is a director, he is also taking it up for the World's Fair.

And even those Conservatives who will never forgive him his political sins are ready to confess that there are few better salesmen than George Hees, the political whiz-bang who gave his old Department of Trade and Commerce that memorable motto, TCDBSOYA, which is short for "You Can't Do Business with Russia on Your Own."

That YCDBSOYA can still be seen in these parts engraved on department cufflinks and embla zoned on "team ties at Trade and Commerce where the new hot-shot ministers, Richard Sharp of the Liberals, is still coasting on the momentum that George Hees gave the operation.

Many Eager To Be Doctors

Gait Reporter

Saskatchewan's medicare controversy and the movement toward socialized medicine are not frightening young Canadians who plan to enter the medical profession, declares The Sudbury Star. Applications for admissions to Canada's medical schools have increased over last year, the paper says. The province of Saskatchewan there are 187 applications for admission to McGill University's medical school as compared with 124 last year, and 106 in 1961.

The application figures are far in excess of the number that are admitted to be the medical schools. One news reporter tells of 1,121 applications for admission to McGill University's medical school as compared with 324 last year, and about 70 only are accepted each year. The story is the same at other universities across the nation. To the average observer it would appear that the educational facilities fall far short of the requirements of young men and women who turn to the medical profession as a career. This leads to the conclusion that any fears that a national medical plan or "socialized" medicine will discourage young people from entering the medical profession are ill-founded. And it also points to the need for expanded facilities to give every young man and woman the opportunity to follow the career of their choice.

Controversy in Canada over Saskatchewan's medicare plan has turned the spotlight on the medical profession and it is being more closely examined by the public than ever before. The news report on applications and admissions to medical schools in Canada is revealing if it is true that many young people are denied the opportunity to enter the medical profession because of the inability of universities to admit them. This is a situation to be accepted if medical needs are to keep pace with population growth in Canada.

Who Recalls Pear Pies?

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Whatever happened to the old-fashioned pear pies which, once upon a time, graced the place on the tables of so many of the farm houses of the province?

Our curiosity being aroused by the realization that we had neither tasted nor seen a pear pie for years, we asked a number of our acquaintances about the delectable dessert, only to learn that they had never heard of such a thing.

A contemporary and popular cookbook yielded a recipe to which had been added a footnote to the effect that pear pie was a favorite dish in early Dominion times.

As we remember it, pie made from pears was sweetly delicious. In many ways, it was similar to apple pie, at least insofar as the making and appearance were concerned. The flavor, of course, was distinctly different.

Possibly the pear pie waned in popularity because of a growing liking for preserved pears, with the result that most of that fruit was "put down" for winter. Perhaps, too, the development of juicy pears for eating, which were impractical for cooking, had something to do with it.

Whatever the reason, pear pie is not the generally accepted dish which once it was. And that is unfortunate indeed.

The first meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary for the current season was held at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Stobie, Campbell Street on Tuesday afternoon. Various reports were given and the usual business transacted. Owing to wartime conditions and scarcity of help, it was decided that the Auxiliary would assist in the supply room of the Belleville Hospital for the purpose of making dressings and helping the boys in the forces in every way possible. An appeal is urgently made for new members to assist in the work.

Canada, a Great Ship-Builder. On Saturday, Canada launched twelve ships, one of her great achievements in the war and the symbol of the war effort that is building up Canada's strength as a sea power to be of the Nations. Prime Minister Such an event Canadians could not have foreseen a few years ago. It was a coast-to-coast event for the shipyards where the launchings took place numbered eleven, two of the events taking place at Owen Sound where two naval tugs were born during the war. The Dominion now ranks as one of the foremost shipbuilding nations of the world. Hundreds have been placed for 424 frigates, corvettes and steel minesweepers, as well as 354 wooden patrol ships.

To Your Good Health

Numbness Is Caused From Several Things

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I am in bed at night, my arms become numb from elbows to fingers. This has been happening on and off for some years now. — H. J. W.

Numbness, as well as tingling, can be annoying, and it has a habit, often of developing in the late hours of sleep, say from four A. M. onward. I know people who are awakened by it — and then stay up because the discomfort ceases. It's a matter of trading sleep for comfort, and that's a hard choice to make.

Sometimes the problem can be solved simply; other times it requires quite a bit of trial and error, and in still other instances special appliances, and even surgery, may be required.

The real source of the trouble can be (and usually is) distant from the forearm or fingers. Rather, the numbness generally stems from pressure in the nerve of the arm, but the pressure is exerted further up, in the neck, or shoulder, or spine.

As we get older, bones of the spine, called vertebrae, frequently changes which thicken the edges at their ends. This leaves less space for the nerves emerging from the spinal column.

What to do? Try using a bigger or smaller pillow, or try to find out what particular sleeping positions cause the trouble. Sleeping on one side but not the other can be the answer. Sleeping on the back may be the condition less noticeable.

Perhaps you sleep with arms up, or else curled under you. In such instances, pressure on certain arteries in the shoulder girdle may cause numbness. There is a muscle, from neck bones to collar bone, which can compress an artery. In some cases, skilling this muscle has brought relief.

An extra or cervical rib can exert pressure on a nerve when you are in prone position, and such a bone may have to be removed.

More frequently, however, a head halter can be used to relieve pressure if it is the result of changes in the bones of the spine. At times the halter may be necessary in bed; other times it can be used during the day. The point is, there are things to do about this annoying numbness.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son, 11, has a flat, black mole on the sole of his foot. I don't think it has ever changed in size. Should he be removed? — Mrs. E. W.

Perhaps, since it is under constant pressure, but I don't want to be dogmatic about a mole I haven't seen. Have your doctor examine it and decide.

Dear Dr. Molner: I bruise easily. I am in good health. The slightest bump or scrape leaves an unsightly black and blue mark. Friends tell me this indicates a vitamin deficiency. What should I do. — N. R.

This can be a vitamin deficiency (lack of sufficient vitamin C or K) but is more often seen in older people who, over a long period of time, have starved themselves of these vitamins. It can also be a calcium deficiency.

Another possibility is a deficiency in platelets or prothrombin in the blood, which is quite another matter. Just in a cut like yours, I suggest a thorough blood test.

Strictly Personal

We Cannot Be Honest About Our Dislikes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: To justify our dislikes, we generally say that what we dislike is contemptible or valueless; it takes a rare and large character to acknowledge that what he dislikes may be admirable but he is incapable of such appreciation.

People in villages are both kinder and crueler than people in cities: They are kinder to those who suffer misfortune through no fault of their own, but crueller to those who violate the rigid canons of the community.

Each class has its own "key words" which must be decoded in order to be properly understood; for instance, when the upper class calls a man "civil," it doesn't mean merely that he is polite — it means that he tacitly accepts the superiority of those born above him.

All genuine progress depends upon the creative work of the few, but the advancement of the whole mass of mankind depends upon the slow assimilation of these innovations by individuals in each generation; and the best argument for democracy is that we cannot tell from which segment of society they will arise — therefore that system is most encourages talent to come to the surface is best, despite the clumsiness and abuses and dangers inherent in the democratic process.

The self-righteous person who is secretly proud that he does not need to ask God to forgive his sins should, from time to time, remember to ask his neighbors to "forgive my virtues." As Santayana once acutely remarked, "It is easier for a libertine to become a saint than for a prig."

Very often the woman whose ambition inspires a man to great deeds is the same one whose limitations prevent him from enjoying the fruits of his accomplishments.

The barbarism that precedes civilization is never as vicious or corrupt as the barbarism that follows it; for real bestiality, primitive societies can't compete with those that have established against the restraints of civilization.

Speaking of this, it would be wise to keep in mind Ortega's astute warning: "In history, as soon as the 'mass' acts directly in an appearance and is discussed and pampered, it means that a period of barbarism is looming."

The greatest fallacy that most people make is in assuming that by opposing the "wrong" they are guaranteed support for the "right"; but most wrongs are opposed by different kinds of wrongs, and it rarely occurs to ordinary minds that two conflicting principles can be false at the same time.

Quebec Signs Ingenious

Sherbrooke Record

Luring tourists to any area is no job for anyone without imagination.

Down in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, for example they have an annual Gaelic festival that has become world famous.

To help create an Old Scotland atmosphere, all street signs and many directional signs are printed in Gaelic.

Hardly any of the tourists understand them (indeed few townspeople do), but they impart a flavor the holidayer finds attractive.

Part of the Quebec program to make this province more attractive to tourists is the enhancing of that atmosphere which makes this part of Canada "belle" instead of simply fine or beautiful.

The department of Tourism had decided that one way to do this is to have all of the signs put up by the government printed only in French.

But they have not gone as far as our Anglophile friends.

Only those signs which bear an obvious resemblance to English equivalents are in the French language. Other more complicated directions are bilingual.

Thus, near the U.S. border at Rock Island there is one sign that reads "2 h; Service d'Information Touristique" which is as neat a way of making French understandable to Americans as we have seen in some time.

As the same time, the visitor is immediately aware that he is in Quebec — not Ontario or New Brunswick, or his own country which at other border areas is all but indistinguishable from ours.

These signs, at least, are no sinister plot against a majority culture — but a Machiavellian scheme of domination.

There is ingenuity here, and a fresh approach to a large industry which benefits all residents of Quebec.

Gaff and Gaffaws

They Dined Well

TORONTO (CP)—One hundred men and women from the international catering trade lunched on Ontario veal, mushrooms and wine before settling down Wednesday night to the most lavish banquet in Toronto since Queen Elizabeth visited the city in 1959.

The lucky 100 are members of the international Organization of National Associations of Hoteliers, Restaurateurs and Cafeliers. Breaking off from their convention in Chicago, they toured Niagara Falls and had a ferry boat tour of Toronto harbor Tuesday.

Host at lunch Wednesday was the Ontario department of travel and publicity. Dinner was on the Canadian Restaurant Association, which provided an all-Canadian "living" menu in the Queen Elizabeth Building at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

Featured course was arctic char, wheeled in by Eskimos arranged through the federal department of northern affairs. The roe of the char was served for the first time at a public banquet.

Canadian furs decorated the walls, along with various types of Eskimo equipment. Three girls in French-Canadian habitant costume ushered in the pea soup.

The menu also included roast sirloin of beef from Western Canada, fiddleheads from Nova Scotia and Macaire potatoes. Canadian wines accompanied each course.

WEDDING

MILLER—CHAPMAN

Pink and white gladioli and pink carnations formed the setting in Bloomfield United Church, on Saturday, September 14, for the wedding of Shirley Anne Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Leslie Chapman, Picton, to Wayne Joseph Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Joseph Miller, Belleville. The Rev. Nathan Bowering officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by the organist, Mrs. Harold Cleave, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs Lois Haarman in her renditions of "O Perfect Love" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length bridal gown of white peau de soie, the bodice featuring a round neckline and short cap sleeves. Panel pleats highlighted the front of the skirt with small box pleats in back. A fourtier veil fell from a petalled crown embroidered with beads. Elbow-length white kid gloves completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with stephanotis.

The maid of honor, Miss Shirley Brier of Toronto and the bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Chapman, sister of the bride of R.R. 1, Picton, and Miss Michelle Miller, sister of the bridegroom of Oshawa, all were turquoise peau de soie dresses with bell skirts and the bodices enhanced with shoestring straps, having matching short sleeved jackets and shoes to match. They wore headdresses of turquoise peau de soie with "fly-away" veils. All were white kid gloves.

Mr. Kenneth Brooks, Belleville, was groomsman, while Mr. Earle Chapman, brother of the bride, of Toronto, and Mr. Lynd Robitaille, of Cannifton, were the ushers.

For the reception in the Royal Hotel, Picton, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a teal blue brocade dress with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was attired in a three-piece red and oyster double knit ensemble, beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Toronto, Belleville, Trenton, Oshawa, Peterborough, Bancroft, Dorya, Wellington, Bloomfield, Picton, Cannifton.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower held in Toronto by Miss Shirley Brier and Miss Lillian Owen; also a cup and saucer shower held by Mrs. Mary Stanley in Toronto. A miscellaneous community shower was held for the couple at the Orser Hall in Bloomfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside in Cloyne, Ontario.

Glittering Fashion Show Presented by Auxiliary To Capacity Crowd

By GLADYS WARD

Rich fabrics of velvet and brocade for late afternoon and evening, leather and suede for sportswear, knits for daytime appeared to be the predominant trend for fashions when the Women's Hospital Auxiliary celebrating their 25th anniversary made it truly "a night to remember" at their fashion show on Wednesday evening in the Belleville Collegiate auditorium.

The elaborate stage setting presented a professional design done in gold and red. The models entered on a staircase with gilded grille work on the open side, an arrangement of gold leaves and red carnations was contained in a tall standing gold chairs had red cushioned seats, and a gold screen was swatched with red velvet. All was reflected in a glittering chandelier, making a beautiful background for the display of fashions.

It was a happy thought on the part of those who arranged the show to invite Mrs. George H. Stobie, the first president of the Auxiliary, to be commentator, an assignment which she ably carried out. Mrs. Stobie wore black and gold jacket in a gold filigree pattern.

VOCAL DUETS

The addition of Robert and Hazelanne Reid who sang three duets made the evening more than a show, it made it a concert, with their fine voices blended in classic music that depressed the mood of the show.

President Mrs. Fred A. Beeby gave a brief resume of the history of the Auxiliary and invited everyone who was interested in the work of the hospital to join. "We have a place for anyone who wants to assist, from the glamorous to the humble," she told the audience which completely filled the auditorium.

Convener of the show was Mrs. Ben Burley who expressed appreciation to the exhibitors who had been with them for years with the addition this year of two new ones.

Mrs. A. Victor Barkley provided the music for the occasion with an organ prelude and piano accompaniment throughout the showing.

FUR-LINED COAT

Leading off the designers' collection of fall fashions, Mrs. G. S. Woonacott appeared in what was described as a flashing storm of black and white tweed. It was lined with fur and was worn over a white shift of pure wool Chinese coolie cloth. McNabb's were the exhibitors of the exclusive fall fashions and resort wear.

Mrs. J. H. Forrester added a light touch by appearing as "Miss Flashback" of thirty years ago with the styles popular at that time. Her hair style however was the most modern design by Vogue Beauty Salon.

Mrs. W. R. Doyle showed a brown Persian lamb coat with a light mink collar presented by Ashley Furs, who also aided the stoles, jackets and fur hats to set off and complete the costume look.

BOOTS ARE HIGH

With one costume Mrs. L. G. Dorrn showed the new cocktail boots. They took the same style this year and one of the more exciting items on the Canadian scene. Thom Shoes are rew exhibitors at the Auxiliary show. Patent leather was widely used as a favorite in black, brown and gunmetal. The stacked heel seems to be the popular style.

Sportswear was interesting with stretch pants and feather weight matching jackets. Mrs. G. W. Gist displayed a paisley patterned reversible jacket with plain blue on the reverse side to team with the blue slims and make an attractive outfit. Make-up, using Max Factor cosmetics, supplied by Paul Kelly's Drug Store, added glamor to the models' good looks. Each person at the show was presented with a sample of Max Factor lip makeup at the door.

ACCESSORIES ARE IMPORTANT

Mrs. F. M. Carscallen presented a double knit in grey, wine and black geometric pattern in the mature size. Her handbag and gloves came from McIntosh Bros. store, who harmonized all the accessories with the costumes worn by the models.

The wedding scene was a climax to the evening with the stage setting changed to a cathedral scene with stained glass round window and candles in red glass glowing on seven branched holders.

Miss Judy McKnight was the bride, gowned in peau de soie appliqued with lace and pearls, the pearls suspended in tear drop fashion. A diamond ring worth $10,000 was worn by the bride, and was loaned by Ronald Keel who also supplied the costume jewellery fashioned by Avon. Jet beads are coming back into popularity and appeared on many of the dresses.

The bridesmaids were Mary Beth Foltwell and Barbara Brown who were effectively gowned in brilliant red, carrying nosegays of white baby mums with streamers and wearing a circlet of the same flowers in their hair.

CHARMING ENSEMBLE

The whole ensemble at the wedding scene was charming, including the wedding dress of lace and the hydrangea colored picture hat worn by Mrs. Forrester and previously worn by her at her own wedding.

Mr. Stanley Johnson, new administrator at the hospital spoke briefly commending the women of the Auxiliary for their dramatic big projects, but also commenting on the day to day humanizing services performed by them at the hospital which were most important.

PRIZE WINNERS

Prizes were won by Mrs. Walter Chisholm, Roslin; Mrs. C. E. Templer, 194 Albert Street; Mrs. F. Vanclief, 105 Bridge Street; Mrs. P. R. Huddleston, 74 Crestview Ave.; Mrs. W. Retarded Assoc. Hears Physical Training Talk

Mrs. Breg De Groot now of Carrying Place, wife of immigrant surgeon, Dr. Hero De Groot, addressed the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children on October 1st. Mother of a retarded son and pioneer founder of the Harrow De Groot school for the retarded in Regina, Saskatchewan, the speaker is an authority on all phases of schooling for the mentally handicapped.

Speaking on physical training, she outlined three goals. First, the child needs to learn how to use his body efficiently, that is, with minimum fatigue and maximum stamina. For example, he is taught to strengthen his abdominal muscles for better posture, and he learns the techniques of relaxation and the correct way to do the basic motions of work, such as pushing, pulling and lifting. Older children at the Regina school are made to do a half-hour of drill on these basic skills at the beginning of each day's work. The second goal is to give the child the desire to do useful work. First he must learn to value himself and his work. The third goal involves the gaining of specific skills. Complicated games like baseball and basketball are approached through a series of simplified stages such as beanbag tossing, ball throwing, and elementary forms of ball game.

The speaker stressed the need often neglected in the retarded, for physical contact during training. Boxing and dancing were mentioned as exercises that promote this.

At the close of the address many questions were asked about the progress of the work with retardates in the western provinces. The meeting was most stimulating and helpful to the parents and workers in this local association for retarded children and adults.

"Custom-cooked" for good nutrition... glass-packed for extra convenience

The preparation of any Gerber Baby Food is determined by the nature of the product. Some foods require longer cooking time than others... some higher temperatures. Fruits, for example, are flash-cooked . . . sweet potatoes slow-cooked (to make them digestible). Egg Yolks are treated differently from meats. Whatever the method, cooking times and temperatures are scientifically controlled to preserve the utmost in food values.

For your convenience, Gerber Strained and Junior Foods come in Wide-Top jars with re-usable Quick-Twist caps to help preserve freshness of refrigerated "leftovers" . . . thus reducing waste. Tight-fitting caps also protect food values of unused portions from excessive exposure to air.

Other advantages: you can see what you buy. Wide-Top jaws make it easy to spoon out food. The large-size jars of Junior Foods are just right for a growing toddler's appetite.

Important: Gerber Baby Foods are prepared by specialists who work solely in the interest of better infant nutrition. The exceptionally fine flavours, true-to-nature colours and unusual smoothness of Gerber Baby Foods are the result of extra-special care in selection of ingredients and in preparation.

DO YOUR FASHION HOMEWORK

This season's wave of fashion news has almost reached fever pitch. Nearly all of us have seen a fall showing of one kind or another. It might have been on TV — in store windows — in fashion magazines or in the chronic scene of live models walking down a runway, wearing the most extreme fashions of the collection. Some women attend these showings, read the fashion magazines, look at store windows and TV in a delightful daze. They absorb nothing and learn nothing.

Other women follow the news attentively. These are the women who will learn a new way to wear a scarf from studying a fashion magazine. They will sense a way from a fashion show with new ideas on how to use the clothes they already own. They will experiment with accessories. In other words, they do their fashion homework.

I have never believed the women who tells me that she is not interested in clothes, although she usually looks as though she means it. She is usually badly groomed. Her clothes look as though she took from the closet blindly. Her excuse is that she is too busy doing other more worthwhile things to have time to worry about clothes. She gives herself away right there because the well-dressed woman does not worry about clothes. She thinks about them — not constantly — only about four times a year.

EXCUSE FOR APPEARANCE

The woman who says she is not interested in clothes will sometimes use lack of money as an inadequate excuse for her appearance. As she cannot afford mink — (how many of us can?) she has made up her mind that she will certainly not accept fake fur, no matter how terrific it looks. This is a sort of reverse snobbery. Any intelligent woman knows that it is possible to dress pleasingly on a small amount of money. Some thought is required in planning what to buy, and even more important, when to buy.

I have often wondered how and when the word "smart" arrived in the fashion vocabulary. Of course, it still means intelligent, even when it refers to a suit or coat.

There are many good fashions this fall that can be acquired by a little study, a little knowledge of your own type and not too much money. One of the best, for all figure types, is the shift costume.

It falls straight from the shoulder line to the hipline. It should not be much longer than two to three inches below the basecap. The jacket should be loose with some collar interest to break the figure line as few women have perfect figures.

This style, plus either a soft felt or fur hat, is your primary assignment in this season's fashion homework.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Squadronettes Honor Member On Departure

The Bay of Quinte Squadronettes held a consolidated business and social meeting recently.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs. J. E. James, Commandant of the local group who welcomed visitors from the Presqu'ile Squadronette group; also social members Mrs. Dean Churchill from Carrying Place and Mrs. Howard Graham, of Belleville.

The most important item of business surrounded the rewriting of the Squadronette by-laws in order to bring them more up-to-date.

PRESENTATION

The highlight of the social hour was the presentation of a pin and earring set to Mrs. John Grant who is moving to Ottawa in the near future. Mrs. Grant has spent many years in various executive positions with the Squadronettes and her vast experience in the boating world will be greatly missed by the local group.

A delicious lunch was prepared by the catering staff of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and served by Mrs. Ed. Smith and Mrs. H. C. Reid.

Shower Given By Community

JOHNSTOWN — On Saturday evening over 100 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at Acme Community Hall to honor Miss Thelma Stickle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle, who is to be married to Corey Burris of Consecon on October 12th, at Johnstown Church.

Thelma and Corey were escorted to the bride's table which was tastefully decorated with streamers and bells. Marion Payette read an address written in poetic style, wishing them many years of happy married life together, and advising them to be kind and loving to each other.

Gifts were presented on behalf of the community, and were so numerous that it took an hour and a half to unwrap them.

Thelma thanked the girls who had planned the shower, Mrs. Jim Payette, Beverley Clapp, and Dorothy Reid, and expressed her appreciation for all the gifts. Corey added his thanks, inviting everyone present to visit them at their home at Consecon R. R. 1 at any time.

Added Duty

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

DON'T MOUNT A SOAP-BOX AT A PARTY

The statement came out of the speaker's mouth as a clear danger signal. Like a red flag waving in the breeze.

"I think President Kennedy goofed on the Cuba situation. Don't you agree?"

The speaker was a successful businessman accustomed to having his own way and say. He was speaking to a comparative stranger. The latter unwittingly sapped t the bait and the argument was on.

To say that the businessman should have known better than to get on an unscheduled debate during a social occasion is an understatement. He was so intent on winning his argument that most of us left the verbal combatants to their heated discussion and retired to the punch bowl.

But every now and then we could hear the businessman question the other's intelligence for not seeing the "truth" as he did.

I'll grant we're living in an eventful period full of explosive situations and that it's healthful to discuss them. The businessman mentioned above, however, belongs to an alarmingly increasing breed who form such strong opinions about the state of the world that they no longer are able to discuss them as a give-and-take basis.

Either you're for them or you must be against them.

It's a matter of good common sense — and good taste — to be willing to listen to the other man's viewpoint.

If he disagrees, it may be for reasons that are equally as valid. He isn't necessarily "stupid."

Well-adjusted people take comfort in the strength of their opinions. They don't need the endorsement of others.

The unmannerly type I'm talking about is the one who feels compelled to foist his opinions on others. When he fails, as he often does, his frustration degenerates into a challenge of his adversary's knowledge, background and intelligence.

This approach may win temporary converts, but not friends. And when a hostess schedules a party at her home, she's quick to invite only the latter.

What Do I Smell? Chili Sauce

by Mary Moore

My friend Laura phoned to ask if I'd made Chili Sauce this year. I said I had not for I've made it for so many years I thought I'd devote my pickling time — and space — to other pickles.

She is a great enthusiast and insisted "Everybody should make Chili Sauce every year even if it is just to smell it. The millenium, the baker, the postman all poked their heads in the side door and sniffed and said mine smelled wonderful!"

I said "Fine. Send me your this year's recipe in careful detail". She did and here it is. You can depend on Laura.

LAURA'S CHILI SAUCE '63:

One 11-qt. basket tomatoes (level about 17 lbs. excluding basket), 4 large onions (3" diameter) chopped medium fine, 3 green peppers, chopped medium fine, 1 small hot red pepper, chopped medium fine, 1 small bunch celery, chopped medium fine, 1½ cups cider vinegar, 1½ cups sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons cinnamon (or less), 1 large bay leaf (remove before canning), 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce.

Blanch, peel, core and cut tomatoes and place in large kettle. Let stand for 1 hour until excess liquid collects and pour it off. Add all other ingredients and cook at medium boil till thick — about 2 hours. Stirring is a must especially during the second hour. And don't forget to taste it. That and the aroma is half the fun of making chili sauce. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

And end-of-the-garden relish that will please a host of our gardening readers is:

GARDEN VEGETABLE RELISH (crisp and sweet):

1 medium head cabbage, 6 cooking onions, 2 green peppers, 2 sweet red peppers, 2 outer stalks celery (not heads), 4 carrots, 2 cups cider vinegar, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon mustard seed, 1 teaspoon celery seed.

Put all vegetables through the coarsest blade of a food grinder. Put into a large porcelain or enamel container and cover with cold salted water using ¾ cup salt for each 4 cups cold water needed. Let stand 3 hours. Drain well. Mix the vinegar, sugar, mustard and celery seeds in a kettle and bring to boil. Add drained vegetables. When the liquid again comes to a hard boil, remove from heat and pack into hot sterilized jars and seal. Yield 4 pints.

Becoming Town Coat

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Although designed with the young junior in mind, this town coat would be becoming to almost any type. Off-white sponge-texture wool is seamed to conform a bit to the body in front. The back hangs loose, controlled by a half belt.

The collar of dark brown ranch mink is detachable. The pillbox hat is also of mink.

Church Groups

U.C.W. EVENING GROUP

The Canadian Evening Group of the U.C.W. held their first fall meeting on the last Monday of September in the church with 14 members present.

The president welcomed everyone back after the summer vacation. General business was transacted and the members were reminded of the open meeting at Carmel on Wednesday and the bazaar in November. Four members gave their birthday offering.

Those in charge of the worship services showed an interesting film entitled "Beginning With Me." This strip portrayed how one woman shared the lives of her whole family, beginning with herself, by learning to be a true Christian and giving herself to God's work.

This portion of the meeting closed and refreshments were served at which time the members enjoyed a social hour.

RELATIONS STRONG

The onion, leek, garlic and Welsh onion are all members of the lily family.

Mother's Helper

AN EARLY AFTERNOON rest is important for an active toddler (and very often for his mother, too!). A nap is best, of course, but some resourceful moms swear by sleep when the party's out. Put him on—or in—his bed anytime, and call it a "Play Rest." Give him books to look at, or small toys with which to entertain himself. Set your kitchen timer and make it clear he's to stay there until it rings.

The last meeting of the Women of the Moose for the month was held last Thursday evening with Sr. Regent Gladys Ritch presiding and opened in the usual manner with ritual and the roll call of officers, escorts and chairmen.

A card of thanks was read from Mr. and Mrs. B. Gogo and Mrs. Percy Conley and also for flowers for the late Mrs. Stapley.

A suchre for the women will be held at the home of Mrs. Joan King on Thursday evening. A rummage sale will be held in the hall in October. The auditing of the books will be held at the home of Nellie Scringsour on October 6 with Daisy Johnston, Ida Lake and Faye Young to audit the books.

A draw donated by Gladys Ritch was won by Betty Reed, after which lunch was served by the publicity chairman and her committee.

Ann Landers

Ann Offers Some Basic Guideposts to Tipping

ANN LANDERS

established part of life in these United States, whether we like it or not. What I would like to see in print is a few tips on when to tip and how much to tip. Will you help me as well as those kinds of others who are also unsure? Thanks. — GRASSY GREEN.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have read a few letters in your column about tipping. All the yelling seems to be about whether to tip or not to tip. As you pointed out, tipping is an established part of life in these United States, whether we like it or not. What I would like to see in print is a few tips on when to tip and how much to tip. Will you help me as well as those kinds of others who are also unsure? Thanks. — GRASSY GREEN.

DEAR GRASSY — A good rule of thumb when dining out is this: Tip 15 per cent of the bill for good service. For especially good services or extra attention, make it closer to 20 per cent.

If you are grabbing a quick bite at a lunch counter and if the gal did real fine as if she was slopping the hogs, leave 15 cents under the plate. If you had only a cup of coffee and she served you more coffee in the cup than in the saucer, leave 5 cents.

Taxi drivers are a hard-working bunch and since many of them are philosophers and political scientists as well as drivers, the conversation is worth something. A 15 cent tip on a 50 cent meter, 20 cents on a 70 cent meter and two-bits on a dollar ride is about right.

If you stay in hotels always leave a tip for the maid. About 50 cents a night is right. The bell-boy who takes the luggage to your room should get at least 30 cents for the trip with one bag, and a dollar for two bags or more.

A bootblack should get a dime, and when you buy a newspaper on the street it's no nice to let the man keep the extra pennies or the nickel.

The beauty operator should be tipped 15 per cent of the bill unless the operator owns the shop. Most shop owners refuse to accept tips. Offer anyway.

If you are a weekend guest at the home of a friend or relative and there is a maid on the place, you should leave a couple of dollars for the maid in an envelope with her name on it. (Don't give it to the hostess and ask her to give it to Daisy.) If you have stayed two weeks, Daisy should get about $5.

Don't offer to tip a nurse, a mailman, a bus driver, a milkman, a receptionist in an office or airline personnel. (Sky-caps should be tipped about 50 cents for a short haul, but not stewardesses or ticket agents. The latter should not accept tips.)

The janitor or elevator operator in your office building should not be tipped unless, of course, they have done something special for you. If they are pleasant, a little gift at Christmas is a friendly gesture.

Over-tipping is gauche. It makes you look as if you just inherited a bundle from a rich uncle and don't know what to do with it. Under-tipping is equally unattractive.

And if you are stopped by a policeman for a moving violation, don't try to "tip" him or you might well wind up in jail.

DEAR READERS — If you have not yet had your laugh for the day this could be it.

Several days ago I received a Confidential signed Baffled and Can't Figure It Out: "If you will send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope I will be happy to give you the inside story."

To date I have received 73 self-addressed, stamped envelopes from people who want to know the "inside story."

Only one of the 73 is going to get the "inside story" — and that will be a reader from Buffalo, N.Y., who repeats the original problem in his second letter. So stop potting me on, Folks. Yesterday, I wasn't born.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart B. Rosenberg

Too many of us, because we feel threatened, try too hard to be loved. Yet, we might avoid some of our difficulties if we would cultivate this hard, won faculty; to bear up those hostilities which follow inevitably as a result of living with other human beings.

Too much of our time is spent waiting for applause and when it turns out to be either sparse or wanting, we crawl back to the wings, half-crushed. The plaudits or the smiles of others, however, even when generous and abundant, are taken much too seriously as if they meant more to us than we mean to ourselves.

AUDIENCE RESPONSE

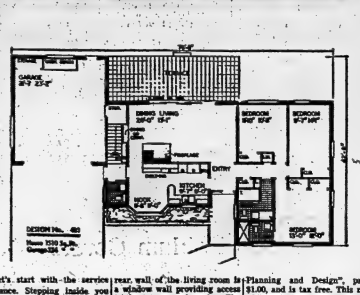
We apparently thrive on a repeated feedback of affection and continually measure our personal achievement and fulfillments in the gauges of the "audience response". The applause meter which registers the adulation of others seem to be taken much more serious-ly than we take ourselves. With what result! In the process, we repeatedly risk the loss of our own spontaneity, integrity and system of values.

No one is recommending that we cultivate antagonism or aggressiveness as a weapon in our relations to others, or that we mount an offensive as a defense-mechanism. But common sense suggests that we learn how to tolerate and abide the hostility of our neighbors — and not fall apart if we cannot consistently receive their love. For as we grow older, we will discover that the man who cannot "take it" has really little to give. The smiles he courts tend to soften him-up; he has difficulty standing up to life in the solidity and firmness of his own will. He has been busy seeking the endorsement of other insecure people in the vain belief that their "love" would put him in good standing. Truth to tell, however: lacking his own inner power, he doesn't have his own leg to stand on!

SELF LOVE

Maturity offers us different lessons. We come to a riper understanding which helps us realize that before anyone can love us we must be capable of self-love. Which is to say: be whom self-esteem is at the vanishing point longs in vain to receive from others, the love he will not offer himself. Only if we have first learned to regard ourselves with greater trust and our lives with greater meaning and affection, will we survive the hate, cruelty or the un-love of others. Why not? because we mean too much to ourselves to be destroyed by the indifferences or hostility of another.

By all proper means, let us seek to co-operate with co-operative men; extend our embrace to those who will be embraced; offer our love to those who need it; and if need be, even to those who do not. But always, let us try to live without that ultimate despair which turns a man against himself and the world, when he seems to be either unwanted or misunderstood.



He will still stand for something as long as he means something — to himself.

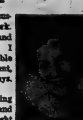
Successful Living



(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Cheated Out of Her Wages

By DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — A month ago my husband got a back injury and could not work. He was able to putter around the house and get meals for the children through. So I ran an ad in the paper that I was available for day work. Well I got a call so I went, and believe me I sure worked for two days. I was stiff for three days after.

But when I was finished the cleaning job, she said she was sorry but her husband didn't leave her any money to pay me right then. I went back three times and there was no answer when I rang the bell. Then on my fourth try her husband came to the door. He didn't know anything about it, but he called his wife to the door and she said: "I never saw this woman in my life before."

DORIS CLARK

And that was that. She closed the door in my face. Why did I think I could keep things going while my husband was sick?

Well, like I said, I sure learned my lesson. I do hope you print this; it will let this lady know what hardship she caused me, if she reads it. It might also tip some off how to get their cleaning done for nothing! — SARAH THE LOSER.

DEAR SARAH — You can seek redress for two hard day's work. Get advice about this from Mr. L. Rowcse Robson, Sheriff and Legal Aid Director for the County of Hastings, Belleville, Ontario.

Confidential to RURAL GIRL — The Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs informs me that the clubs are observing their Golden Anniversary in 1963. In order to enroll, go to the office of the provincial Department of Agriculture nearest you. There will be agricultural representatives and home economists in such offices who would be very pleased to tell you more about 4-H and how you can enroll.

DEAR DORIS — I have a mental illness and get no results from pills or drugs. When I was in the doctor's office I read in a magazine about a new operation called prefontal lobotomy.

I am sure this is what I need. The doctor said he would do it on the advice of a psychiatrist, but not without. I need this operation very much. Please help me. — BOB.

DEAR BOB — Bless you. I'm not a psychiatrist. My psychiatric consultant tells me this operation is generally considered a last resort, and is used in only very special circumstances. Any brain surgery is dangerous, and you could be far worse off than you are now.

In many cases, the illness persists anyway.

Don't try prescribing for your own illness; that's the psychiatrist's job. Remember that we all live with troubles and stresses. Have you tried relieving your mind by talking with your minister or a good friend?

* * *

Confidential to PUZZLED — Necking in itself cannot cause pregnancy. Send a self-addressed, five-cent-stamped envelope for the name of a book just out which goes into the processes of reproduction and birth control with illustrations, as well as some enlightening discussions about love.

Extend Efforts To Find Killer Of Small Girls

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — City state and federal police have renewed a joint effort to find the slayer of two small girls whose bodies were dumped along a secluded road.

Officers said it is possible a local person was involved because of remoteness of the area where the bodies were found Tuesday.

Melissa Ann Lee, 5, and Barbara Ann Foshang, 4, disappeared while playing Sept. 7 near their apartment house in a rundown neighborhood.

The bodies were found in a wooded area in Plymouth Village, west of Minneapolis. The bodies were decomposed and unidentifiable except through clothing found at the scene.

Quebec Appears to Be Way Ahead in Preparing Projects for Centennial

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec appears to be way ahead of others in preparing municipal projects for Canada's centennial in 1967, Quebec delegates at the Community Planning Association of Canada's annual conference here said Wednesday about a dozen projects have been decided upon at the local level.

They ranged from a concert hall for the north-shore iron ore port of Sept-Iles to a park for Costicook, a community near the Vermont border.

The hitch was that a centennial committee set up by the Quebec government—its approval of the projects will mean a one-third contribution to the cost, plus one-third from the federal government—is not yet in operation.

Ontario delegates said that their government has not yet established a centennial committee to handle applications from communities planning special projects.

LACK KNOWLEDGE

R. H. Screivener of Toronto, a national councillor of the association, said group reports from the 500 delegates—mostly municipal officials and town planners—indicated there is a general lack of knowledge about how to get such projects going.

The reports urged more co-operation, especially at the provincial level, and more information from the federal government.

A resolution was passed suggesting that Ottawa allow centennial projects planned on a regional basis to qualify for grants.

This way, groups of villages could sponsor a project that would benefit them all but which they could not afford alone, even with federal and provincial grants made on the present $1 a person basis.

REDS BUY COTTON

LONDON (AP) — Communist China has purchased more than 70,000 bales of cotton from Uganda this year for about $8,400,000, reports a spokesman for the Standard Bank in London. The sale represents about one-fifth of Uganda's cotton production this year.

Any Good Lawyer Could Tear Valachi's Evidence Apart Says Canadian Judge

WASHINGTON (CP)—A Canadian judge watching the current congressional crime spectacle says any lawyer worth his salt could make a "monkey" out of Joseph Valachi's evidence against the underworld.

"He wouldn't get far with a jury—corroborating evidence is needed," adds Judge Bruce Macdonald, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, who has been watching Valachi's performance before the Senate investigations subcommittee.

The U.S. justice department's top witness against Cosa Nostra plunges into disclosures about the overlords of the underworld with such a welter of confusing names and events that even some of the Senate investigators are baffled.

Mary McGrory, writing in the Washington Star, says: "Trying to unravel Valachi's long answers is like eating spaghetti. Spear a strand and it turns out to be a yard long. Roll it around your fork and lift it up and it suddenly slips off in a splatter."

Valachi clearly recalls events that took place 32 years ago but suddenly becomes extremely vague about Cosa Nostra underworld operations in more recent years.

He admits freely he was involved in a number of killings. But he never was there when the trigger was pulled.

MAKES MISTAKES

He tells the senators that Girolomo Santuccio, alias Bobby Boyle, murdered two gangland bosses Nov. 5, 1930. He even tells them where Bobby Doyle now lives—in Stamford, Conn. But when it turns out that the Bobby Doyle of Stamford is a righteous-living Irishman with a family, Valachi just as easily says he's sorry—he meant Hartford, Conn.

"He tires easily," says Senator John McClellian, subcommittee chairman, in explaining why some of Valachi's answers appear garbled, slightly remote, twisted or spoken in such a slurring low voice that few can understand him. "That's why I have decided to cut down the daily hours of his testimony."

The oddity of the whole thing is that while Valachi is supposed to be the top witness, a subcommittee investigator carefully guides the direction of Valachi's testimony with the aid of a huge chart showing the evolution of the New York gang the slain and the slayers, right to the present day.

If this information is already available, why then is Valachi's public testimony required?

"This may be a good way of increasing public interest in the drive against crime in the U.S.," says Judge Macdonald. "Perhaps the rising public interest will itself produce more pressure for prosecutions. Undoubtedly there will have to be more evidence than that of Valachi to get convictions. We just don't do it this way in Canada. We keep our investigations confidential. Perhaps that is a good thing."

Montana Calls Mobster Valachi A Dirty Liar

BUFFAL, N.Y. (AP) — Mobster Joseph Valachi is "a dirty liar . . . he's insane," says John C. Montana, named by Valachi as a onetime lieutenant in the secret crime syndicate, Cosa Nostra.

Valachi testified Tuesday before the Senate investigations subcommittee in Washington that Montana, 69, board chairman of a Buffalo taxi company, had asked to be demoted to a "soldier" in the syndicate because Montana "didn't want the boys contacting him anymore."

The informer also stated that Montana had worked under Stefano (Stephen) Magaddino of Niagara Falls, N.Y., whose brother, Antonino, was among the 60 gangsters and friends taken into custody by state police at the 1957 Apalachin meeting. Valachi last week named Stephen Magaddino as Buffalo area boss of Cosa Nostra.

Montana, who also was at the Apalachin meeting when police arrived, told a reporter he never had met Valachi.

Montana told the police he was at Joseph Barbara's Apalachin mansion because his automobile broke down.

"I . . . never saw him in my life," Montana said. "I don't know who he is. I don't even know what he looks like except for the newspapers."

Montana denied before the same Senate committee five years ago that he was a member of the syndicate.

Stephen Magaddino formerly was president of a beer distributing company. He refused in 1959 to answer questions of a state commission that tried to learn the purpose of the Apalachin meeting.

DID CHRISTINE LIE? — Christine Keeler, a principal in the scandal that unseated former War Minister John Profumo from his post in the British government, rides with her housekeeper, Mrs. Olive Brooker, en route to court in London Wednesday to face perjury and conspiracy charges. The Crown Prosecutor said as the hearing that Christine had blamed Jamaican jazz singer "Lucky" Gordon for a beating actually administered by a girl friend's brother. Gordon's conviction on the assault charge was reversed later by an Appeal Court.

Charge Negro With Arson In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A young Negro was charged with arson today in the investigation of a gas explosion that destroyed a meat market in a Negro residential area of bomb - jittery Birmingham.

Police Capt. J. W. Garrison said two detectives are investigating the possibility of racial undertones in Wednesday night' explosion.

The Negro, Johnny Lewis Ruffin, 30, was placed under police custody less than two hours after an internal explosion rocked the single-storey brick store, operated by white owners.

Garrison said Ruffin was questioned at University Hospital, where he came for treatment of burns he said were received from a gasoline stove where he worked.

Helmeted policemen, some armed with shotguns, stood at the scene of the explosion while firemen combed through the wreckage.

There was no rioting or disturbances, and Negroes in the neighborhood stood quietly in front of their homes.

Eldorado

ELDORADO — Mrs. Lee Johnson and children spent a day recently with her mother, Mrs. Roy Holgate.

Mr. Don Fox of Toronto, spent the weekend with his father, Mr. James Fox.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hunt of Peterborough, spent Saturday with their aunt, Mrs. C. D. McCann.

MISSIONARY MEETING

The Eldorado and Madoc Missionary Society held their September meeting in the Standard Church, Madoc, with a good number present.

Seek Boys Who Set Fire to Crippled Girl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Police and school officials are seeking two boys who were said to have set fire to an eight-year-old crippled girl's clothes, causing burns over 40 per cent of her body.

The girl, Cathryn Reeves, crippled by polio, wears braces on her legs and could not flee her tormentors when attacked Tuesday.

"I saw her burning. I saw the flames, so I ran to her and patted out the fire with my hands," said Mrs. Clotilde Rael, a neighbor.

At Mission emergency hospital, doctors said she was in fair condition.

Cathryn told police she knew the boys only as Robert and Alvin. Three boys—two 10-year-olds and one seven—were questioned Tuesday night. All three attend the same school.

Cathryn's mother, Winona Reeves, said two boys had been tormenting her daughter in recent weeks.

In size, in performance, in luxury, in value, METEOR makes it big for '64

To understand the difference between the '64 Meteor and all other cars in the low-price class—you must understand one thing. Meteor is a bigger car. It is bigger in size, bigger in performance, bigger in luxury and bigger in value. It is, in fact, the first car of medium-price size and stature ever to be sold in Canada as a really low-priced car.

Meteor's extra length means a big car ride

The '64 Meteor is a big 215.5 inches long. And as a bigger car, it straddles the bumps better to give you a really smooth big car ride. But the '64 Meteor just doesn't rely on extra length to give you a better ride—it gives you the extra comfort of Cushion Link Suspension that allows wheels to move backward and forward as well as up and down. This not only takes care of the shock you get from beneath the wheel—it absorbs the shock you get from in front of the wheel from bumps and holes when you're travelling faster than 20 miles per hour.

extra width means easier handling

The big '64 Meteor is a big 80 inches wide. This gives it more natural stability on the road—handling and cornering are much easier.

big news for shoulders and hips

Meteor's extra size means lots of room and comfort inside. Shoulder and hip room, leg and knee room, and even headroom are plenty big enough for the biggest people. If there are six inside, you don't feel as though there are eight of you after you've driven 50 miles.

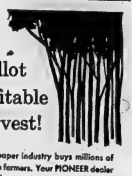
next best thing to air conditioning

Here's a big advantage that no other low-priced car offers—an optional rear window that goes up and down. Press a switch and you get Breezeway ventilation all year 'round. In winter that rear window stays clear of ice and snow because it slopes away from the weather. If windows start to mist in cold weather, lower the rear window just a touch and your problem is solved.

big warranty for a big car

The purchase of a car is a major purchase—there's no question about it. So if you buy a '64 Meteor, you get a warranty from your dealer that covers the total car. This total-car warranty lasts for 24,000 miles or 24 months, whichever comes first—plenty long enough to prove the value and merit of any car.

Meteor Custom 4-door sedan, one of the Ford Family of Five Cars made in Canada.



Certain features shown or mentioned are optional at extra cost.

Army May Be Eventual Winner in Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (CP-AP)—The stray, an enigmatic factor, could be the eventual winner of the Honduran presidential election to be held Oct. 13.

The leading candidate in the races to determine a successor to President Ramon Villeda Morales is Modesto Rodas Alvarado, 43, a lawyer, backed by the official Liberal party.

Opposing him is opposition Nationalist candidate Ramon Ernesto Cruz, 50, a lawyer who is a former diplomat and Supreme Court magistrate.

Latin American observers here say the negative outlook of the opposition—some of whom readily concede victory to Rodas Alvarado—points to a climate propitious for a military coup.

At the highest government levels there is preoccupation about a coup, probably sometime after the elections—ostensibly to block Alvarado.

SUBMERGE PROMISES

The usual campaign promises have been totally submerged by the opposition's claims of registration frauds, intimidation of voters and infiltration by Communists and Castroites.

Such charges have a familiar ring in Latin America.

Last week the elected government of President Jesus Bosch of the Dominican Republic was overthrown by the army, which charged that Bosch was soft on communism.

An urgent appeal following the Dominican coup was sent to U.S. President Kennedy last week by Honduran President Villeda Morales and President Francisco Orlich of Costa Rica.

(U.S. officials said in Washington Wednesday that they had received no direct request for help in the Honduran situation, although the message of the two presidents mentioned in general terms the problems of military takeovers of elected governments.)

The Honduran army has a privileged status as a virtually autonomous institution. The 1957 constitution retained contradictory definitions of the president's authority over the military.

nadian Parliament in 1921, Mr. Oliver was a high school debater who remains one of Queen's Park's most self-possessed speakers.

He entered the legislature under the United Farmers of Ontario banner in 1926, became an Independent, then joined the Liberals in 1931 for a brief career as a cabinet minister in the dissension - ridden government of the late Mitch Hepburn and his brief successors. The Liberals fell from power in 1943.

His became party leader after 1945, when the Liberals were reduced to 11 in a 90-member House, but he resigned when the party gained only two seats in the 1948 election while the CCF took 21. Walter C. Thompson fared even worse as leader in 1951 voting and, at a 1954 leadership convention, Mr. Oliver again took over.

The 1955 election again saw the Liberals reduced to 11 members and two years later Mr. Oliver resigned to make way for a convention which chose Mr. Wintermeyer.

TO HEAD OPPOSITION

When the House resumes sittings Oct. 29, Mr. Oliver will be at the head of an opposition comprising 22 members—or 23 if Murray Gaunt of Huron-Bruce is able to reverse a three-vote margin held by Conservative George McCutcheon either in the service vote or the recount which will almost certainly follow.

Mr. Wintermeyer, more jaunty than most of the Liberals who were re-elected, repeated earlier statements that he is "on the sidelines now with no political plans for the foreseeable future."

"I've had my opportunity, but as far as political life is concerned, I love it."

Six Liberal members elected for the first time last Wednesday and 14 of the 16 re-elected members were at the caucus.

Strike Will

Judge Lippe's appointment it would give a final chance for settlement of the dock dispute.

Later in the Commons, Mr. MacEachen hinted that other steps were being considered by the government in the event Judge Lippe's intervention did not bring results.

The dispute involves 3,800 longshoremen in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres, Que., and Quebec City.

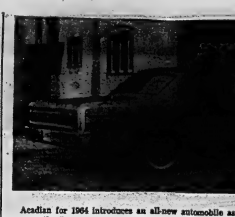
The threat of a strike, which would hinder the shipment of through St. Lawrence ports to wheat scheduled to move through St. Lawrence ports to Russia before the end of the shipping season, followed rejection by the stevedores and shipping federation of a federal conciliation report.

The conciliation board was set up after Montreal and Trois-Rivieres longshoremen walked off the job Sept. 9 and 10 to protest contract talks with the federation. Their last contract expired at the end of December. Union leaders said they opposed the walkout.

UNION TURNS DOWN

The federation and union leadership agreed in March to a 12-cent hourly increase over two years and four cents in fringe benefits but the membership turned this down.

The stevedores want a 35-cent increase plus 10 cents in fringe benefits over the two-year period.



The conciliation board unanimously recommended a 19-cent-an-hour increase over two years plus three cents in fringe benefits.

The shipping federation announced Monday it found the conciliation board recommendation "inacceptable."

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture said Wednesday it would be "intolerable" if the dock dispute delayed shipments of grain because Canadian commitments to Russia and to other customers are "at a level where even a single day's delay can be very serious."

90 LED TO-SAFETY

NEW YORK (AP)—About 90 persons were removed safely early Thursday as a three-alarm fire swept five two-storey frame houses in Brooklyn. There were no injuries. More than 100 firemen were dispatched to the scene.

Acadian for 1964 introduces an all-new automobile as the top three series in the line. The new car—the Beaumont—comes in a new size, 30 inches longer than other Acadians—and a new price range. In a trim overall size that is shorter, narrower and lower than regular size cars, Acadian Beaumont offers virtually full-size luxury car roominess plus smooth, level ride and fine-handling performance. Interior dimensions are well within one inch of regular models. The long, low, uncluttered look is stressed and the new series is identified as a member of the Pontiac family by the divided grille. The top three in Acadian are now Beaumont Sport Deluxe, shown here in the coupe which is equipped with bucket seats and floor-mounted shift, the Beaumont Custom and the Beaumont.

sands of pensioners await financial relief.

PUBLIC CRITICAL

He said the public has been watching MPs with "a very much more critical eye" since the legislators voted themselves an $8,000 annual pay increase two months ago.

Health Minister LaMarsh indicated the government is ready to match the pension increase with $10 boosts in three other welfare programs—old age assistance to needy persons aged 65-69, allowances to the blind and pensions to the disabled.

In other business, supplementary spending estimates for $74,166,685 were tabled, bringing the total 1963 - 64 budgetary spending program to $6,628,671,-200.

The new estimates include $60,550,000 to finance various aspects of the winter employment program and a further $10,000,-000 for shipbuilding subsidies, bringing the total shipbuilding outlay to $40,000,000 this fiscal year.

The winter program covers the municipal winter works program, a $500 bonus for winter - built houses, and the new plan for subsidizing half the payroll costs for winter employment of older unemployed persons.

A further $5,000,000 is allocated for the plan of paying half of the monthly wage up to $75 for each long-term jobless worker over 45 years of age hired between Nov. 1 and Jan. 31.

Another $650,000 is being added to the $525,700 already budgeted for a special program to promote wintertime employment.

BEATS DOWN PC

In the third division in two days, the government beat down by a vote of 105 to 91 a Conservative motion asking the government to table a copy of the Canada-United States agreement for Canadian acquisition of nuclear arms.

Prime Minister Pearson said the agreement cannot be made public because it would affect Canadian and NATO security. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said "an expurgated edition" of the agreement was released to the press last month.

The minority Liberal government was supported by Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson and his three western followers.

The Diefenbaker motion was endorsed by 85 Conservatives, 12 Creditistes, three Social Credit MPs from Quebec and 11 New Democrats.

Tuesday, two rulings by the house chairmen rejecting opposition amendments were upheld in recorded votes.

to discuss their report with justice department officials.

One informant described their interim report as "severe."

MAY STARTLE

The document is understood to contain some startling revelations.

Informants said the two lawyers worked closely with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in investigating many of the violent and unsolved incidents that plagued sailors, marine union leaders and others in recent years.

RCMP officers interviewed many witnesses who appeared before the year-long public inquiry of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris into labor strife on the Great Lakes and submitted detailed reports and affidavits on their evidence.

Some of the people interviewed by the police are reported to be those who were brutally attacked by unknown assailants during the struggle against the SIU.

Mr. Justice Norris said special counsel should be appointed by the government to "review all the facts available" to determine whether charges could be laid against Mr. Banks, Mr. McLaughlin and "others."

The judge specifically mentioned charges based on conspiracy to ban sailors from working on ships and conspiracy to commit indictable offences, "particularly in connection with acts of violence."

He also said consideration should be given "to prosecuting Banks and others" under the federal labor law on the grounds of intimidation and coercion.

NEED INTERVIEW

In disclosing that an interim report had been received, Justice Minister Cherrier added:

"From the report, it is clear that there will have to be an interview between the officers of the department and the two persons who were asked to make these recommendations."

Michael Starr, who ordered the Norris inquiry when he was labor minister in the previous Conservative government, pressed Mr. Cherrier for word on when justice department officials would meet the special counsel.

Mr. Cherrier dodged a direct reply, saying the answer would "depend on what the report is as between our officers and the two counsel."

To this, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker snapped:

"Blanks seems to be a favorite son."

Mr. Diefenbaker has repeatedly suggested that there is an under-the-table relationship between the Liberal party and the SIU leader.

Pull Troops From Viet Nam In Two Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's military advisers have told him the war in South Viet Nam is going well enough that it may be possible to withdraw most of the U.S. forces there in two years, the White House reports.

In a statement issued shortly after the return from Viet Nam of Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, there was no indication of any change of U.S. policy toward the South Viet Nam government.

The two military officials said the political situation in South Viet Nam remains "deeply serious."

But they predicted that by the end of this year the U.S. training program for Vietnamese would have reached the point where 1,000mAc-erican military personnel assigned to South Viet Nam can be withdrawn.

The White House said Wednesday night's declaration was approved by Kennedy on the basis of recommendations of McNamara and Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

MAJOR INTEREST

South Viet Nam's security remains "a major interest of the United States as of other free nations" and putting down the Viet Cong war is the chief objective of U.S. policy, the statement said.

It took note of the political situation, saying that while the Diem government's repressive actions against Buddhists "have not yet significantly affected the military effort they could do so in the future."

Valachi Billed To Sing About Drugs Racket

WASHINGTON (AP)—Joseph Valachi is billed for another 1¼ days in the limelight—longer if he can sing well enough about the narcotics racket.

In a switch of plans, Senator John McClellan, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the Senate investigations subcommittee, put off until next Tuesday the questioning of Valachi about the big money narcotics rackets in which members of the secret criminal society known as Cosa Nostra were involved.

The convicted killer and dope peddler's testimony ran longer than expected Wednesday as he told of murder 30 years ago.

McClellan disclosed that in questioning the 60 - year - old mobster about narcotics the subcommittee will have to play things by ear. Its staff has had no opportunity to question Valachi in advance about the illegal traffic in drugs.

Valachi continued his lecture on Cosa Nostra's history.

TELLS OF LIST

He told of a secret list that marked for doom such underworld kingpins of 30 years ago as Al Capone, Frank Costello, Charles (Lucky) Luciano, Genovese, Vincent Mangano and Joseph Schultz.

The man who drew up the list was Salvatore Maranzano, said Valachi, but he was killed himself after a short reign as Cosa Nostra's "boss of bosses."

Maranzano grabbed power, Valachi said, after lieutenants of rival boss Giuseppe Masseria, gunned down their own chief in a Coney Island restaurant.

Masseria's death ended a 14-month gang war that cost the Masseria gang 40 to 60 dead by Valachi's count.

But five months later as Valachi tells it, Masseria's assassins also cut down the new boss, Maranzano.

Their prepared speeches delivered smoothly, but this type of campaigning is in sharp contrast to the old-style political meetings—which were far more numerous and peppery even in the 1930, campaign—where heckling was part of the game and the occasional fist finding its way to a neighbor's jaw.

APATHY APPARENT

Members of all parties admit privately they are unhappy with the apparent apathy. While the lack of issues introduced by the politicians themselves and the rapid succession of provincial and federal elections is considered partly to blame, many candidates fear there has been a drop in voter interest.

Elections are coming faster. In Nova Scotia, a government may hold office for five years without calling an election, but traditionally governments go to the people after four years. But Premier Stanfield this time called for a mandate just 30 months after his last victory.

"It may be a little too much too fast with those federal elections in between," a PC worker said.

Opposition sources place some of the blame for the quiet campaign on Mr. Stanfield. They say he failed to give a good reason for calling the election when he did. The premier says he thought Nova Scotians could "settle up their own affairs" without the "distraction" of a federal campaign, which, he said, could come in 1964 or 1965.

Liberal leader Earl W. Urquhart said early in the campaign that since the issue was forced by the premier he would fight full out.

He has waged a spirited campaign, saving some of his biggest blasts for the late stages.

While the Conservatives and Liberals have kindled little fire in the campaign, the New Democratic Party has been even less noisy. They are contesting only 20 of the 43 legislature seats and their House leader in the last legislature—Michael J. MacDonald—is campaigning almost exclusively in industrial Cape Breton.

Despite the stillness on the hustings, most observers expect a heavy vote. If they are right, at least one reputation earned by Nova Scotians will remain untarnished — no matter how bad the weather or dull the issue, they troop to the polls.

Ideal Weather, Big Crowd And Varied Program Go to Make Madoc Fair Success

It's possibly the youngest fall fair in the county but the annual fall exhibition as the "Hub of Hastings" village of Madoc yesterday once again proved that it wasn't the small est.

A crowd estimated at between 6,000 and 8,000 persons crowded into the Madoc fairgrounds yesterday as the weatherman went all out to provide a perfect setting.

The Madoc fair has been in existence since 1905 and has been staged on the present fair grounds site north of the village since 1922.

Now, with prize lists and attendance swelling as the years progress there is talk of Madoc Fair becoming a Class "B" exhibition.

And Fair president Cecil Woods feels the fair will soon make the grade.

BIG LIVESTOCK SHOW

The cattle and horse show at Madoc has always been in a class by itself among Hastings county fairs. In addition there is always a fine harness racing card with bareback, pony and carriage racing thrown in for good measure.

There is always a good midway to attract the fun loving crowd and the grandstand performance of local talent each year attracts more and more entrants.

In fact this year's platform entertainment was a two-day affair.

Tuesday night a preliminary talent show was staged in preparation for the fair day program which saw entertainers all the way from ten months to a mature lady of 65 years. The Madoc District Band provided the music.

In addition to the cattle and horse show there was a big exhibit of sheep and swine, a good cheese show and a building full of domestic science, handicrafts, and garden produce.

ACHIEVEMENT-DAY

And it was also a big day for the county 4-H Club members who competed in five different competitions.

First off there was the annual Achievement Day of the Madoc Calf Club won by Beverley Ketcheson with David Foley in second place. David also proved himself the best in showmanship.

The above two juniors, along with Donald Neal will take their calves to the county calf club competition to be held at Tweed Fair on Saturday. The winners will get a trip to Ottawa Winter Fair.

Other junior competitions for the juniors included displays by the Madoc Forestry Club; the Hastings County Grain Club; the Madoc Potato Club and the County Hay Pasture exhibit.

Following the junior events the top 4-H Club members were interviewed on the platform by Lyall MacLachlan, Associate Agricultural Representative for the county.

QUEEN INTRODUCED

Interviewed were Miss Ketcheson, David Foley and his sister Marie Foley, last year's 4-H club winner, and Kathy Burnside.

The Hastings county Dairy Queen, Isabel Shaw of Eldorado, was introduced to the fair crowd.

The grandstand entertainment in charge of Doug Pigden, included almost everything from an old time fiddling contest — won incidentally by a 93-year-old Picton man — to a ladies' nail driving contest and a bag tying contest. Sandwiched in between was truck fiddling, vocal numbers by the kiddies and step dancing for both young and old.

Topping off the day's horse show was the crowd attracting horse drawing contest with harness and traces strained to the limit as the farm stalwarts inched the sand bag laden stoneboat down the field.

MANY TAKE PART

Taking part in official opening ceremonies were Phil Flaherty, CJBQ farm director, County Warden Charles Lone, Clarke T. Rollins, newly re-elected MLA for Hastings East and Madoc Fair president Cecil Woods.

Mr. Flagler said that fall fairs were one of the few age old country traditions left in this modern age. Fairs are expected to be fun, but the original intention was educational, Mr. Flagler said.

He noted that Madoc Fair was now on the verge of becoming a "Class B" show, calling for at least $3,000 in prize money over three consecutive years.

Congratulations were extended to the Madoc Fair Board members by Mr. Flagler, Mr. Rollins and County Warden Charles Long.

N.S. Election Campaign Which Ends Tuesday Said To Be Dullest in Memory

HALIFAX (CP — Four girls dressed in short tartan skirts screeched a cheer for the local Liberal candidate.

"Now there was something," said the candidate. "There was some real enthusiasm."

Another five girls also dressed in skirts that may have been a little shorter led a Progressive Conservative candidate to the platform.

"We're sure ahead of the Liberals," said a PC worker. "They only had four girls."

Excitement over small displays on the hustings seems to have marked the campaign for next Tuesday's Nova Scotia election. There's been little else to arouse interest.

COULD BE DULL

Unless there is a last-minute outbreak, the campaign will go down as the dullest in memory in this province which has a reputation of fireball politicians hammering away before audiences. And the audiences always had a good sprinkling of able hecklers.

So far in this campaign, there has been no trace of heckling.

Gone for the most part are the nomination day debates between candidates which always drew big crowds from all political corners and could be counted on to produce fiery and amusing crossfire.

Politicians are putting stress on radio and television addresses—some only a few seconds long—and newspaper advertising.

Will Launch Examination World Monetary Structure

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and nine other major industrial countries — the so-called Paris group of 10—agreed Wednesday to launch a vast new examination of the world's monetary structure to see whether more credit and other resources are needed to strengthen the free world's economic base.

At the same time the 102-country International Monetary Fund, headed by Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, also planned an extensive review amid indications of a likely clash in the procedures the two groups will follow.

Speaking for the 10 major countries, U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon told a press conference the fund's study would be limited in scope while that of the Paris group of 10 would be much broader, ranging over the entire economic field, with one exception: No change in the $35-an-ounce fixed price for gold will be entertained.

However, Schweitzer, former deputy governor of the Bank of France, bristled with indignation when confronted with the suggestion that the fund's study will be restricted.

IS UNRESTRICTED

Speaking to reporters at a luncheon later, Schweitzer said in reference to Dillon's statement that there will be no restrictions on the fund's study. Every aspect within the realm of common sense would be explored.

Dillon said the study by the 10 countries will be conducted by their deputy finance ministers who will be instructed to maintain close working relations with the fund.

The 10 countries also agreed with Schweitzer's views that the present national monetary reserves of member countries, supplies united by available funds and other resources, "seemed fully adequate in present circumstances to cope with possible threats to the stability of the international payments system."

North American Bishops Play Important Role

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—North American bishops are playing an important role in the current session here on the Roman Catholic Church's ecumenical council.

Some 60 from Canada are among the more than 2,000 prelates from all over the world gathering each morning in the specially erected debating hall in St. Peter's Basilica. The current session began Sunday. The United States is represented by 225 bishops.

The North American bishops are not as vociferous in the council meetings as the Europeans have been. But they have played an important part in the deliberations.

Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, is the leading progressive among the Canadian hierarchy.

The American hierarchy has organized a daily press panel of church experts to answer questions about the council from English - speaking newspaper men. English, Canadian, Irish and Australian reporters use this breifing as much as Americans.

Fragments From Letters We Would Like to Forget

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Fragments from letters we'd like to get—but never do:

"We regret to inform you of the passing of your great uncle, Oswald Prothingham Frisbie, who choked to death on a martini olive. In his will he left you a 90,000-acre sheep ranch in Australia and his pet kangaroo, Nopalang."

"As a dentist who takes pride in his profession, I have been suffering conscience pangs because of the $400 fee I charged for making your upper plate. I realize now I shouldn't have put the bite on you as a mere fortune hunter. really wasn't worth it. Therefore I am sending you herewith a rebate cheque for $250 —and the next time you come in for a checkup I'll clean your lower teeth for nothing."

"Darling, forget the fact that father is an immensely rich man who looks upon you as a mere fortune hunter. After all, we won't be depend ent on him. Grandmother left me 30 acres of downtown Dallas in my own right, and as soon as I write a novel I'll give half of it to you. Of course, if you don't think we'd be happy in Dallas, we could sell our real estate there—and buy Fort Worth or Houston."

"I know mother had her heart set on a big wedding for me, Daddyfins, but it would be such a terrible bother—and the reception and everything would cost you $1,000 or maybe $1,500. So Georgs and I just decided to elope and get married by a justice of the peace. Will you forgive us?"

"This is just a note to congratulate you on your appointment to the vice presidency of your firm, Ronald. I read it in the papers. I certainly have lived to rue the day I turned you down for Henry. Two of our children are in the reform school, the other is down with the mumps, and Henry himself has just drunk him

During my visit here with mother, darling, I've had more time to think over the idea of buying that motel, and have decided it would be foolish. For myself, I'm not built for fat. RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

George Chuvalo, erstwhile and to a lot of fans still is, the ring darling of Toronto, stood in the weighing-in room in Louisville, Kentucky, recently. With him was his opponent of the evening, one Mike DeJohn.

Nearby, in fact very close to the pair stood a handsome young light-tone (color, that is) negro. He is, as you know, the most talkative and most-talked off heavyweight in the challenger ranks. It was Cassius Clay, dubbed by sportswriter "The Louisville Lip," "Marvelous Mouth" and "The Only Human with a Built-In Radio."

There was a slight curling of the Clay lip and a look of disdain on the handsome features of the Louisville cotton-picker's son, as he glanced at DeJohn, then at Chuvalo.

He turned to his brother Rudy and murmured a whisper that echoed across the river. "I know the one guy—but who's the second bum?" The second bum happened to be Chuvalo.

But Chuvalo heard the remark and walked over to clay, felt his biceps, and said "Not much muscle. You must be a welterweight." The Clay lip curled tighter. "Just for that crack," he said, "you'll go down in two."

Later in his former home town, Toronto, far from the ears of Cassius Marcellus, Chuvalo gave evidence that some of the cockiness of the Louisville Number One boy had rubbed off on him in the weighing-in room.

He said sportswriters he had signed to meet Clay and added with a toss of his good-looking noggin "But I think he might duck the fight."

That is tantamount to saying a hungry fox would sidestep a fat rabbit to grab a meal from the kind leg of an elephant.

The next Chuvalo statement was even more amazing. He said that Clay deliberately sidestepped a fight with him out west, and went to England instead.

We cannot recall Chuvalo ever being offered a fight with the young negro. Furthermore, Cassius with his entourage went over there to meet a certain pugilist by the name of Brian London.

What happened there is ring history. The "Lip" talked the rabbit London fans into turning out in capacity numbers through the power of sheer braggadocio, extracted $75,000 from them, put their kid away as predicted in five rounds and sailed home to his "Little Fozzy," three Cadillacs and the needling of one Sonny Liston.

The money-hungry Clay, even if the fight had been arranged or planned, would hardly be expected to pass up the British pot-of-gold for the bag of peanuts a fight with a practical unknown would bring in.

Chuvalo who will get the biggest pay-day of his life in the Clay fight is also sounding off. He says he'll run Clay out of the ring and defeat him with a body attack. "He's never been hit in the belly," he chortles, "and that is how I'll beat him."

But Cassius does not impress everybody with his boasts of whipping Liston. The other day a soldier asked him, "Where you gonna go after Liston whips you. I got some travel folders right here."

"Boy," replied the Mouth, "you talk about travelling. I want you to go to that fight, 'cause you gonna see the banishing of a human satellite, Sonny Liston."

The soldier persisted. "I got the travel folders," he reiterated, "and I can get you a mask, too."

You gonna bet against me?" asked Clay.

"Every cent I can get my hands on," said the soldier.

"Man," said Cassius, "you better save your money 'cause there's gonna be a total eclipse of the Sonny."

Palmer

Will Play $125,000 Tournament

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Arnold Palmer's right shoulder still hurts, but he's going to play in the $125,000 Whitemarsh open golf tournament starting today in hopes of holding on to his position as the year's leading money winner.

The Latrobe, Pa., belter hasn't won any major titles this year. As they say on the tournay trail, Arnie hasn't won anything but money. Now his lofty status as top cash man is in jeopardy. Should Jack Nicklaus take home the $26,000 first money at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club he would supplant Palmer at the top of the cash list.

Koufax Mound Magic Stuns Yankees

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The underrated Dodgers of Los Angeles, the object of new respect, suddenly found themselves slight favorites today to win the World Series following their stunning 5-2 triumph over Whitey Ford and the New York Yankee's in Wednesday's opener.

The Yankees still ruled 7½-to-5 favorites to win today behind young Al Downing who faced veteran Johnny Podres in another left-handed pitching duel. But the odds-makers now have made the Dodgers an 11-to-10 choice to take the whole ball of wax. The Yankees had been a pre-Series 7½-to-5 pick.

Sandy Koufax changed all that with one of the finest pitching performances in series' history. The 27-year-old Brooklyn-born southpaw established a Series' strikeout record by fanning 15 Yankees as he held the American League champions to six hits.

Koufax lost his bid for a shutout when Tommy Tresh cracked an eighth-inning two-run homer with two out.

"We haven't seen anyone in our league who compares with him," declared Yankee manager Ralph Houk in high praise. "He was every bit as good as we were led to believe.

Koufax, weakened by a seige of flu that hit him last week, overpowered the hard - hitting Yankees, retiring 14 straight batters until Elston Howard singled with two out in the fifth. He fanned the first five Yankee batters to tie a 18-year-old record held by Mort Cooper of the 1942 St. Louis Cardinals.

TOPS ERSKINE

The 15 strikeouts topped the previous record set by Carl Erskine, another Dodger, who fanned 14 Yankees in a game in the 1953 Series. The Yankee pitchers struck out 10 Dodgers for a combined total of 25, an other new Series mark, bettering the 22 collected by the Cardinals and Browns in the 1944 all-St. Louis Series.

Ford, in a record - making seventh Series opener, lasted just five innings, during which he was tagged for eight of the Dodgers' nine hits, and all their runs.

The big hit was a three-run homer by John Roseboro, the left-handed hitting catcher.

Other key hits were Frank Howard's gigantic 440 - foot double that opened the four-run second inning and Bill Skowron's first of two singles that drove in the first run of the his game. Skowron's second hit, in the third, knocked in the final run.

Sandy, who said he felt "weak" in the early innings, "tired" in the middle-innings, and "a little weak again" at the end after regaining some of his strength, had a couple of anxious moments but weathered the storm each time.

Both managers said they would use the same lineups for the second game. Dick Tracewski, who replaced the injured Ken McMullen, will continue at second base, where he excelled Wednesday, with Jim Gilliam staying at third.

Galt, Kenmore Play Fall Series Here

Galt Terriers and Belleville Kenmore will play an entire two-of-three games series for the Ontario Baseball Association Senior championship here this weekend.

Due to the lateness of the season and the fact that Galt is having park trouble, the full 3-of-3 series will be played here in Belleville, at the Fairgrounds.

The first game is scheduled for 1.00 p.m. Saturday afternoon, the second at 7.30 Saturday evening and the third, if it is necessary, on Sunday afternoon, also at one o'clock.

The one o'clock starting time is to allow fans to attend the games and still arrive home in time to see the world series games on TV, at 4.00 p.m.

There is a possibility the Saturday night game may be changed, but right now at least, it looks like the two games Saturday and maybe one Sunday.

Kenmore are the defending champions but expect a tough battle from the strong Galt club. Galt plays in the Intercounty baseball league.

Says New Clubhouse Aided Team

OTTAWA (CP) — Coaches of losing football teams who have tried everything else might consider adding management for a new clubhouse.

Bill Smyth, assistant coach of Ottawa Rough Riders, believes the $50,000 dressing rooms put up for the team this season has helped instil a new spirit in the players.

"The wins help of course," said Smyth. "But I'm sure the clubhouse is part of it."

Riders share first place in the Big Four with Hamilton Tiger-Cats. They'll put a four-game winning streak on the line in Regina Saturday when the face Saskatchewan Roughriders in an interlocking Canadian Football League game.

Smyth, who looks after Ottawa's defensive unit, is impressed by the way the players make it a point to drop around daily to the clubhouse.

"It really makes a difference," he said. "They are around here together and it makes for a better team feeling.

"In that old place, they never came around."

CANADIANS ARE 9TH

TUTZING, West Germany (CP-AP) — Italy's Mario Capi and Marco Satori won the third heat of the Flying Dutchman world sailing championship Wednesday on Lake Starnberg. R. W. McKim and David Corrigan of the Britannia Yacht Club, Ottawa, placed ninth. In overall standings after three heats, the Canadian pair had 1,594 points, putting them in 11th place.

Howe Could Wind Up With 98 Goals

Scored 14 Already

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five goals should be a breeze for Gordie Howe.

The Detroit Red Wing veteran, preparing for his 18th season in the National Hockey League, needs only five goals to become hockey's all-time leading scorer.

GORDIE HOWE

And, at his current pace, Howe would wind up with a 98-goal season. He's notched 14 in 10 exhibition games

The rightwinger scored another Wednesday night, helping the Wings to a 4-2 victory over their American Hockey League farm club, Pittsburgh Hornets. In other exhibitions involving NHL teams, Montreal Canadiens beat Providence Reds of the AHL 6-3; Boston Bruins slipped Minneapolis Bruins of the Central Professional League 6-4, and Toronto Maple Leafs whipped San Francisco Seals of the Western League 7-2.

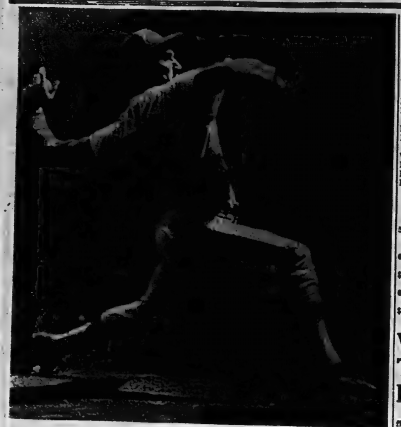
Howe, NHL scoring champion six times, will surpass Maurice (Rocket) Richard) Richard as all-time scoring leader early in the season. Richard retired a few years ago with 544 goals. Howe has 540.

While he continued to sharpen his scoring eye Wednesday at Stratford, Ont., he had scoring support from linemate Parker MacDonald and Alex Delvecchio. MacDonald's goal was the winner.

Six players shared in the Montreal scoring at Kingston, Ont., as the Canadiens scored a pair of late goals to ensure the victory.

Bernie Geoffrion, Billy Hicks, Bobby Rousseau, Dave Balon, Henri Richard and Jean Beliveau scored for the Habs, who allowed the Reds to score while Providence was a man short.

Moe Bartoli, Wille Marshall and Harry Ottenbrett scored for the Reds, Ottenbrett's coming after Richard handed him the puck during a Montreal power-play.



Ed Litzenberger and Johnny Macmillan kept up their pair-ked fight for regular jobs with the Leafs Wednesday night at Calgary.

Litzenberger scored two goals and MacMillan. Frank Mahovlich, Bob Nevin, Billy Harris and Dave Keon notched one apiece.

Len Haley and Pete Panagabko were the San Francisco marksmen.

Johnny Bucyk led the Bruins over their Minneapolis farm club at Utica, N.Y., with two goals. Other Bruin scorers were Tommy Williams, Bobby Leiter, Terry Toppazzini and Andy Hebenton.

Jeannot Gilbert, Howie Dietrich, Harry Sinden and Mike O'Connell scored for Minneapolis.

Alouettes Cut Veteran Stracina

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes cut 10-year veteran Joe Stracina Wednesday night to make way for import halfback Tom Gates, a 24-year-old speedster from California who signed an Alouettes contract.

Coach Jim Trimble said Stracina, a 31-year-old centre, is being cut "very reluctantly."

Stracina has been on the injury list for six weeks after a freak accident—he caught his fingers in his power lawn mower.

Gates' signing brings the team roster to the full allotment of 15 imports and 18 Canadians for Friday night's game against the Argonauts in Toronto.

Gates, a sub last season with Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League and cut earlier this year by Toronto, Hamilton and Denver Broncos of the American Football League, will likely be used in place of defensive half Bobby Lee Thompson, who has sprained foot ligaments.

Trimble expects a tough struggle against Toronto, fighting for a playoff position. The Argos are in the Eastern Conference cellar, four points behind the third-place Alouettes.

Says Sellout Crowd Will Watch Fight

MONTREAL (CP) — Promoter Regis Levesque says a sellout crowd of 4,500 fans is expected to watch tonight's welterweight bout between Peter Schmidt, Canadian champion from Toronto, and Joey Durelle, a Sale Ste. Anne, N.B., battler now living in Trois - Rivieres, Que.

The 12-round bout in east-end Paul Sauve Arena will not be a championship fight, since the Canadian Boxing Federation has refused to sanction it because it is being held under the Montreal Athletic Commission, not a member of the CBF.

But Schmidt, a powerful, 29-year-old ritve of Romania, said when he arrived he considers the fight a title-match. Schmidt won the crown here last December, edging Durelle in a split-decision slugging contest.

FIGHT IS OFF

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Negotiations have collapsed for a proposed title match between lightweight boxing champion Carlos Ortiz and Kenny Lane because of excess demands by the challenger's manager, promoter George Parnassus said Wednesday. Ortiz accepted Parnassus' proposal for a November bout and a guarantee of $50,000, the promoter said, but he added that Pete Petrosky, Lane's manager, demanded a percentage of the gate to addition to a $10,000 guarantee for the Muskegon, Mich., fighter.

But Players Said 'Superb'

'Thought He Pitched Well'-Houk

By CHARLES MAHER

NEW WYORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax conceded something that New York Yankees might never have suspected Wednesday afternoon.

"I felt a little weak," Koufax said after striking out a World Series record 15 for Los Angeles Dodgers in their 5-2 victory over the Yankees in the first game of the best-of-seven World Series.

"I just felt a little tired in general early in the game," Sandy said. "Then I felt a little weak in the middle of the game. Then I got some of my strength back, but I was a little weak again at the end."

Koufax said he was not aware when he struck out Bobby Richardson in the eighth inning that he had tied Carl Erskine's series strikeout record.

"It wasn't 'til I was going out for the last inning that I saw the note about the 14 strikeouts on the message board," he said. "I figured I'd like to get one more in the ninth, but I was a lot more concerened about ending the game.

STRIKES HIM OUT

Koufax broke the record by striking out the last man he faced, pinch - hitter Harry Bright, with a fast ball on a 2-2 count.

Asked whether he had thought about a no-hitter earlier, he said: "I didn't even give a damn."

John Roseboro, a left-handed swinger, who hit a decisive three-run homer for the Dodgers in the second, said the pitch, delivered by left-hander Whitey Ford, "was a curve or a slider, about belt high."

Roseboro hadn't hit a homer off a southpaw all season.

In the Yankee dressing room they said they were downright awed by Koufax.

"I thought he pitched real well the whole game," said manager Ralph Houk.

"No, I didn't give my batters any advice. I give them credit for knowing what to do. No, they don't make comments when they come back to the dugout after striking out. That's Little League stuff. No. They didn't describe what Koufax was throwing. They didn't need to do it. You could see for yourself. No, he doesn't pitch like anyone in baseball."

In short, there was agreement that Koufax was superb.

'Best Curve I've Ever Seen'

Tresh Tributes Koufax

NEW YORK (AP) — Tbers are pitchers Tom Tresh of the New York Yankees would rather face than Sandy Koufax.

His two-run homer in the eighth inning Wednesday accounted for all the New York runs in a 5-2 loss to Los Angeles Dodgers in the opener of the World Series. But Tresh doesn't complain for a moment that he has Koufax's number.

"He has to have the best curve ball I've ever seen," said Tresh.

"The second time I was up, I had him 2-0. He's a fast ball pitcher, you think, so I was looking for a fast ball. He threw me a curve ball the likes of which I never saw before. Maybe some pitchers threw a curve that might hang a little, so they won't do it on 2-0. Not this guy.

"That curve fell right off the table on the outside corner. In a minute, he's back to two and two on the count and now I'm looking for a breaking ball and I'm leaning in. So he busts a fast ball past me on the inside and out I go.

"He doesn't seem blazing fast," Tresh continued. "The fast ball I hit for the home run seemed easy. But that happens. When you hit it, it seems easy. When you don't hit it, it looks hard."

After Koufax, would the Dodgers second - game starter, Johnny Podres, have to look easy to the Yanks?

"It'd be hard to hit your mother if you hadn't seen her pitch," answered Tresh.

3 great '64 Ramblers

One of them will suit you better than any other car you've ever owned...Read why

It's really quite simple.

Unless you're looking for a car that will go 180 miles an hour—or one that will give you 50 very uncomfortable miles to the gallon—or a $13,000 (plus chauffeur) limousine — the new car you're after falls into one of three basic categories.

The first of these is the car built primarily for economy. This should be a low-priced car that doesn't cost much to operate, with plenty of hip-and-leg room, and power enough to make highway driving fun. It's a perfect description of the all-new 1964 Rambler American (the car that started the compact trend).

Then there's the popular-size, popular-priced car. The important thing about a car in this category is selection. If you're looking for operating economy and low purchase price . . . or luxury and performance . . . or something between the two . . . the right car in this popular class will give you exactly what you want. The Rambler Classic — with its economical 6, powerful V8, wide choice of interiors and wide range of options — is just that kind of car.

The third category is the out-and-out luxury car — with the performance, interiors, and extras that set young men to dreaming of the day they'll own one. This, beyond any doubt, is the Ambassador V8. No other car in Canada offers a more luxurious interior. Few cars made have a better power-to-weight ratio, few cars give better performance.

To make your new car the best car you've ever owned, however, takes more than the right size and performance at the right price. It takes value; the value that is a natural result of Rambler's "maximum usefulness to the user" philosophy.

This philosophy has made the following famous features standard on every car in the Rambler line: exclusive Uniside construction for greater strength and beauty; the world's best rust-proofing; guaranteed Ceramic-Armoured muffler system; guaranteed battery and coolant; curved-glass side windows; battery-saving alternator; self-adjusting Double-Safety brakes; reclining seats; 3-year or 30,000-mile lubrication; 2-year or 24,000-mile warrantee on the entire car.

960—4 Door Station Wagon

Luxury

Inside and out, the 1964 Ambassador V8 has luxury that is unsurpassed by cars costing much more. A padded wrap-around dash curves gracefully into the doors, new wood grain inserts add distinctiveness to instrument and door panels. There's a wide choice of rich fabrics and leather-finish materials with reclining bucket seats available on all models. Powerful 250 or 270 hp V8 engines are available in the 1964 Ambassador to give it an excellent power-to-weight ratio for exceptional performance.

Figuring The World Series

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Figuring the Series:

Roger Maris of the Yankees went hitless in four times at bat in the opener and his World Series average dipped to .324. The veteran outfielder has only 14 hits in 76 tries covering 20 series games.

With a running time of two hours and nine minutes, Wednesday's was the fastest-moving opening game since 1948 when Johnny Sain of Boston Braves bested Cleveland's Bobby Feller 1-0 in one hour and 42 minutes.

With a pivotal three - run homer, it was a complete turnabout for catcher Johnny Roseboro. The last time the Dodgers appeared in a World Series, against the White Sox in 1959, Roseboro went hitless in four at bats and Los Angeles lost the first game 11-0. Roseboro's second-inning homer off Whitey Ford was the first he's hit off a southpaw pitcher this year.

Now Ford has series records going both ways. He already holds the mark for most victories, 10. Wednesday's loss was his strikebreaking the standard he shared with five others, including Christy Mathewson of the Giants and Schoolboy Rowe of Detroit.

Here's a close look at the regular season records of today's probable pitchers: The Dodgers' Johnny Podres won 14 games, lost 13 with 6.4 walks, 132 strikeouts, 10 complete games, five shutouts and a 3.55 earned run average. The Yanks' Al Downing has a 13-5 record, 70 walks, 171 strikeouts, 10 complete games, four shutouts and a 2.56 ERA.

Bill Skowron of the Dodgers, who drove in two runs with a pair of singles, was able to collect two or more RBI only four times during the regular season. He played in 99 games with only 19 RBI.

Skowron also established a record by playing in his eighth series—the most for first baseman. He shared the standard with Lou Gehrig and Joe Collins of the Yanks. Skowron played his seven previous series with the Yankees.

When Carl Erskine of the Dodgers shattered the series mark by striking out 14 Yankees Oct. 2, 1953, he gave up two runs, six hits and three bases on balls—just as Koufax did Wednesday. Koufax broke Erskine's mark with 15 strikeouts.

The Dodgers' Tommy Davis, who had three hits in four trips, apparently is going to be just as productive a hit in October as he was in September. Tommy hit safely in 24 of 26 games last month and was his second consecutive NL batting crown.

'Sick Daughter' Was Excuse

Racial Quiz Sent Him Home Says Liston

DENVER (AP) — Continual questioning about racial hostilities in the United States was the reason for his abrupt flight from London Sept. 12, heavyweight boxing champion Charles (Sonny) Liston told a press conference Wednesday.

Liston said: "Everywhere I went, they would ask me over and over, 'what about the Alabama bombing? What do you think of it, Sonny?'

"I've never been afraid in the ring, but I used to get real nervous when they'd be asking me about the race problem because I just didn't know how to answer them."

Referring to a statement attributed to him at the Denver airport upon his return, that he was "ashamed to say I'm in America," Liston said Wednesday, "That is not what I meant."

Liston said what he meant was "I'm ashamed of the way America's acting" in the racial bombings.

DEVELOPS HEADACHE

Liston, a Negro, said he "had a tremendous headache from all the questions and I just decided to come back home. I didn't bother to ask anybody—just told the people travelling with me, 'My daughter's sick. We're going home.'"

At the time Liston gave that reason to London reporters, it was confirmed in Denver that his daughter, Eleanor, 13, was not ill but was attending school.

Beginning tensely, Liston soon loosened up with the newsmen and smiled several times, especially when one of them asked him about a London report he'd left angrily because a boxing official sent "two broads" up to his room.

Busting out in a grin, Liston growled: "No, I might have resented it if he didn't send up two."

MAY RESUME

Liston said he will discuss with his adviser Jack Nilon in Philadelphia the possibility of resuming the abbreviated exhibition tour that touched Finland, Norway and Sweden before the unexpected ending in London.

On other subjects, Liston said:

1. He has only one daughter. This discounted previous reports he had two.

2. Nilon is still Liston's adviser "but he doesn't do the fighting and I tell him what to do. I let him know I'm the key to the treasury."

3. The 11 years with his wife, Geraldine, "have been the best of my life. She was with me before I had anything and I'd rather go back to nothing than lose her."

4. He plans to fight challengers the way they are ranked. "I'll take on the No. 1 man."

Almost Amputated Koufax Finger

Doctors Helped Win Game

By CHARLES MAHER

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Dodger team physicians said today they came within a day or two of having to think seriously about amputating the forefinger of Sandy Koufax a pitching hand last year.

But the said a new drug, or a combination of remedies, saved the finger and Sandy's career — and no doubt made the Dodgers part of the show instead of part of the audience at the 1963 World Series.

Koufax, who beat New York Yankees 5-2 in the series opener Wednesday, was disabled in the middle of the 1962 season by a circulatory disorder in his left forefinger. The flow of blood was reduced to a fraction of normal by constriction of an artery leading to the finger from the palm. At first the finger was so sensitive Koufax couldn't touch anything with it. Then it went dead.

The Los Angeles physicians, Drs. Robert Kerlan and Robert Woods, called in Dr. Travis Winsor, a specialist in circulatory disorders.

Dr. Kerlan said an arteriogram showed a rare condition—a clot in the deep ulnar arch, in the arteries in the palm of the hand."

"But," Dr. Kerlan said, "the clot dissolved after several injections of a new drug.

"If it hadn't dissolved, he might have lost the finger. There just wasn't enough circulation to supply it, and a finger can't live without blood."

Dr. Woods said it would have been necessary "to begin thinking seriously about an amputation if the blood supply hadn't started to increase within 24 to 48 hours of the injections."

Dodger Hero In Big 'First'

'Moose Loose Like A Goose'

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe all Bill Skowron needed was to get back to Yankee Stadium, a place he called home for 10 years.

The Moose, as the big first baseman is called, was a lost soul at Los Angles, where he just completed a miserable season following the winter trade that made Skowron a Dodger and brought pitcher Stan Williams to the Yankees.

Playing against his former Yankee teammates for the first time, Skowron emerged as one of the Dodger heroes in Wednesday's 5-2 opening victory in the world series.

Skowron, a self-styled lost with a .203 batting average during the regular campaign, flailed Whitey Ford's left-handed pitching for two big hits, a pair of singles that drove in the Dodgers' first and last runs.

"It was the nicest thn thit has happened to me all year," exclaimed the swarthy right-handed slugger, who hit only four home runs and drove in 19 runs all season.

"I don't think I got two hits in a game more than three or four times all season."

The 31-year-old former Purdue football star was so bad he didn't think he'd even play in the World Series let alone emerge as a star along with catcher Johnny Roseboro, and the brilliant Sandy Koufax.

"Let's face it," he said, "I was garbage all year. It's no secret that I would be traded this winter. So I simply didn't expect to play in the series. And let's be honest, I didn't deserve to.

"The first I knew I was going to play in the series was when I read it in the papers a couple of days ago."

Skowron worried right up to game time. As he came to bat for the first time it was the second inning, there was no score, one out and Frank Howard was on second via a stupendous 400-foot double.

"I was nervous up there at the plate," Skowron admitted. "I never had faced Ford before except in batting practice and I always have respected him as one of the greatest competitors in the game.

"All I kept thinking was what if I go nothing for four? I didn't know where I'd find a place to hide after the game."

There was no evidence of any nervousness when Skowron smashed a single through the middle to score Howard with the game's first run.

Albert Rollas of Montreal, president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, will accompany the team.

The party will arrive in New Zealand Sunday for three days of informal matches, then move to Sydney for five days of practice before the matches start Oct. 11.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Now that the National Hockey League all-star game is upon us Saturday night — and football and World Series fans across the land couldn't care less — the question before the house is: What gimmicks will the hockey owners dream up this year?

In the event that people's memories are short, it might be fitting—but embarrassing to the NHL brass—to recall the frolicsome Friday of Oct. 5, 1962, in Toronto. That was the eve of the 12th annual all-star contest, and the hotel-room hanky - panky lingers on.

That's when the million-dollar hockey myth was dreamed up in a downtown hotel room which, it must be said, wasn't being used by the Women's Christian Temperance Union. It had been one of those happy and cheque books were loose and Frank Selke(left) of Toronto Maple Leafs was "sold" on $1,000,000 to Chicago Black Hawks.

MADE BIG SPLASH

"We'll get the World Series out of the sports pages tomorrow," said one hockey official sang out. It must be admitted they tried hard, but the myth blew up in their faces and the only winner was the 24-year-old Mahovlich.

He had been a Leaf holdout and hours after the story broke the left-winger signed a four-year contract for a reported $100,000. The well-publicized offer, he said, "may have helped some in contract negotiations."

The thing was hatched at a cocktail party following the all-star dinner.

Jim Norris, 37-year-old multi-millionaire co - owner of the Hawks, made the offer. He didn't have the million bucks with him but he sealed the deal by a handshake with a couple of Leaf directors who happened to be around.

The story "leaked out" when Norris dispatched one of his men to phone Chicago news media. He followed it up hours later by meeting the Hawks' general manager, Tommy Ivan, in Maple Leaf Gardens with a cheque for $1,000,000.

The story lingered on for a week. Will the Leafs accept? Will they pass up the offer? Will the cow jump over the moon?

Eventually, Leaf owners issued a non-committal statement saying they were sorely tempted but "we decided from the point of view of the Maple Leaf fans and also from the point of view of the Maple Leaf fans to resist this temptation, although it was hard to do. . . ."

"I've switched on the deal," screamed Norris, always known as a fast man with a buck.

Months later, the Hawks had been eliminated by Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup semi-final, Norris sat in his Chicago office and had this to say about the deal that wasn't:

"I was sincere," he told Joe Moschil of The Associated Press. "It wasn't a smart move financially because it wouldn't help out in a tax situation and the Toronto club would be in trouble with its fans.

"But if they would have made it, I would have got a campaign for out of the way. It would have demoralized the fans. . . . We probably would have won the championship. That alone would be worth a million dollars."

The all-star dinner is Friday evening. Let's see, now, Gordie Howe is a fair country player.

Movie 'Lilies of Field' Rare With Gentle Humanity

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Once in a rare while a movie comes along with a gentle humanity that communicates directly to the heart. Lilies of the Field is such a film.

The story is this: A young Negro construction worker, drifting through the southwestern United States in his station wagon, stops for water at a ranch house inhabited by five immigrant nuns. The mother superior believes the visit is providential; that he has been sent to help them build a chapel in which the local citizens could worship. He does—against all odds and his own better judgment—then drifts on.

It is a simple tale that might have emerged a trifle, except for the loving care that obviously went into its making. Working on a $368,000 budget, producer Ralph Nelson, a television veteran whose only previous film was Requiem for a Heavyweight.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Continuous Performance Daily from 1.30 p.m. Last Complete Show Starts at 8.30 p.m.

AT THE PARK — "The Great Chase" and "Billy Budd" Starring Robert Ryan, Peter Ustinov, Melvyn Douglas, Terence Stamp. Show Starts at 7.25 p.m.

a gringo. He grins and reflects: "I don't know whether that's a step up or a step down from something else I've been called."

Poitier's performance is as wondrous as was Ernest Borgnine's in Marty and may well win him a similar reward next Oscar season.

Hexastone identified with Poitier's brittle reveals a vein of gaiety that is downright infectious. The choice scene comes when he chants a spiritual while the nuns trill a chorus of "Amens."

Lilies of the Field is a triumph for Ralph Nelson, a television veteran whose only previous film was Requiem for a Heavyweight.

'100 Grand' Quiz Cancelled 'Espionage' Is Good Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's widely-promoted big money quiz show, 100 Grand, has been cancelled after only three programs — television reveals no mercy to flops.

It was attracting a steadily decreasing number of viewers, but the debate goes on:

Did 100 Grand become the sponsor's first casualty because the public, once burned, is disenchanted with quiz shows of this type, no matter how honest? Or was it just complicated, pretentious and dull? Death probably was due to a combination of the two.

NBC's Espionage had its premiere Wednesday night and was less a spy story than a tale of an unpolished killing. It was well produced, but had a dull cast of actors with—praise be—new faces.

Espionage, produced in England, promises to be most interesting. The opening show, a story set immediately after the Second World War centred on the trial of two young workers in the Russian secret underground. Five years before the trial they had killed an old and feeble Jewish tailor who were attempting to escape to neutral Sweden.

The big question was whether the resistance workers, believing the tailor had informed for the Nazis, were justified in killing the couple rather than permit them to be captured.

The jury thought they were—

Top Rail Union Leaders Want Gordon Re-appointed

MONTREAL (CP) — Some top railway unions leaders have demanded the re-appointment of Donald Gordon as chairman of the board of the CNR, saying that failure to do so will be a great mistake.

Frank Hall, 70-year-old chief negotiator for 100,000 non-operating railway employees and an opponent of Mr. Gordon at many contract talks, sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday "strongly urging" Mr. Gordon's re-appointment.

W. J. Smith, national president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, urged in a telegram that Mr. Gordon be appointer "ignore groundless criticism of Mr. Gordon and extend his tenure . . . in the best interests, not only of our union members, but also of the CNR and the Canadian people it serves."

The CBET chief said that "Mr. Gordon's many friends may have made himself unpopular in certain quarters through his honesty and outspokenness" there was no reason for replacing him.

HAS STRONG ABILITY

"So far as administering the CNR is concerned, he has demonstrated his ability and integrity beyond question and this should be the only criterion used by your government in considering his re-appointment," said Mr. Smith.

More support for Mr. Gordon came from Fred Dowling, chairman of the General Chairmen's Association of the CNR, representing 80,000 CNR workers.

He said people have been spreading rumors that Mr. Pearson and Mr. Gordon "it is time someone pointed out the truth."

Mr. Dymond said Mr. Pearson in a telegram to his parliamentary assistant Dymond chairman of the Canadian Railway Labor Executives Association (CLC), demanding support for Mr. Gordon, said a similar telegram will go out in the name of the general chairmen's Association.

Mr. Gordon's three-year appointment to the CNR's board expired Sept. 30. The remaining on the board automatically until the government either reappoints him or names a successor.

Mr. Pearson has been reported under heavy pressure to remove Mr. Gordon. He has denied because, among other things, of what his opponents have called anti-French-Canadian attitude.

IAPA Manager Boasts Safety

"One in every seven Ontario workers covered by the Compensation Act had an accident in 1962. There were 36,104 compensation cases reported from 38,709 firms in the membership of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations. Nearly 3,000 of the cases reported were women workers. A total of 56 fatal accidents occurred."

These were among statistics disclosed by R. G. D. Anderson, Toronto, General Manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations. He was speaking in support of a province-wide safety campaign being conducted during October by manufacturing and industrial firms in Ontario, in cooperation with the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

"As in past years the hands and fingers of workers comprised the part of the body most frequently involved in accidents," Mr. Anderson said. "In 1962, such accidents accounted for 8,130 of the total. Injuries to the back and spine were next in line totalling 4,147 compensation cases. The 1962 accident toll cost $20,253,273 to member firms of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations."

"This was an increase of more than $1,000,000 over accident costs in the previous year. The sad thing is that many of the accidents in 1962 could have been averted by the use of more care and caution and the use of prescribed safety equipment. That is why we are urging all workers, men and women alike, to be more safety conscious in October this year."

A study of 1962 industrial accidents reveals that the handling of materials caused nearly 20 per cent of all mishaps in industrial plants. Moving machinery accounted for more than 13 per cent and slips and falls for another 13 per cent.

Slogan for the 1963 safety campaign is "Safety prevents sorrow."

The employers and employees of over 38,000 firms as well as of 15,000 retail outlets throughout Ontario are being urged to participate in the safety drive.

Former Cabinet Minister in UN Govt. Charged

QUEBEC (CP) — Joseph Desmarais Begin, 63, colonization minister in the former Union Nationale government and for years organizer in chief of the party, was arraigned Wednesday on conspiracy charges and 11 fraud charges involving $95,000.

Mr. Begin was released on $1,000 bail after waiving the reading of lengthy charges. His preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 10.

Mr. Begin, who retired from politics last year after representing Dorchester riding in the Quebec legislature for 22 years, was one of five prominent Quebecers facing 76 charges of fraud or conspiracy to defraud the province of about $310,000 between 1953 and 1960. The others were arraigned last Friday.

The charges arise from a report of a royal commission into Union Nationale purchasing practices. The commission found a system of kickbacks on purchases "immoral, scandalous, humiliating and alarming" and recommended that judicial action be taken.

This similarity of views between Attlee, former labor prime minister, and the trouble Tory newspaper becomes easily understandable when watching Wilson operate at the annual labor party conference.

The 46-year-old pipe-smoking politician — economist moves amid the land mines of domestic and foreign policy with impressive calm and success.

Observers say Wilson is reaping the benefits of an intra-party victory originally won by Hugh Gaitskell, former party leader who died last January but whose last career was reaching its zenith.

It is clear that Wilson is cultivating with great care a public image of moderation for himself and his party, but whether the technique would have been possible in the conference climate Gaitskell had to face is debatable.

SOME HAD DOUBTS

When Wilson was elected to succeed the 56-year-old Gaitskell, some observers had doubts. His reputation for fence-straddling on serious issues led them to criticize him as a political opportunist.

His performance in the last three days has done much to dispel these doubts. His keynote speech Tuesday brought a standing ovation. The Daily Mail, a Conservative paper, calls it the "most courageous and inspiring" speech of Wilson's life.

Wilson has taken steps to allay fears of European - minded party members that he might develop an anti-European stand. This week he pictured Britain allied with a new, socialist-leaning Europe, somewhat in contrast with the Common Market as now constituted.

The change in temper could be seen in the party's welcome to Willy Brandt, socialist mayor of West Berlin. It was considerably warmer than it would have been three years ago.

Roy Jenkins, chairman of labor's committee for Europe, says in a newspaper article he hopes Brandt's presence is a symbol of labor's rejection of "little Englandism" — a name often given to British insularity.

Jenkins, once a Gaitskell protege, says he voted against Wilson for the leadership but now feels Wilson has made a good start as leader.

Operated Boat While Impaired, Is Fined $100

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — James Albert Simpson of West Hill, Ont., was fined $100 and costs or 30 days when he pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Wednesday to operating a boat while impaired.

Mr. Simpson was charged following the disappearance of Mrs. Mae Bull, 47, of Toronto from his 33-foot cabin cruiser in Lake Simcoe, Aug. 28.

Mrs. Bull's body was found floating in the lake two days later, her skull fractured. A coroner's jury subsequently ruled she had died from misadventure.

State Of Siege, Strict Curfew Grips Honduras

Armed Force Seizes Power, 15 Killed

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (Reuters) — A state of siege and strict curfew gripped this Central American republic today following the military overthrow of President Ramon Villeda Morales Thursday for alleged "softness" toward communism.

Immediately after taking power the armed forces proclaimed a state of siege and clamped down a 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew.

Fifteen civilians were reported killed and six soldiers injured during the seizure of power. But no details of fighting were issued.

State department officials in Washington said 130 persons were killed or wounded in shooting in Tegucigalpa and cities elsewhere in the republic.

Diplomatic relations between the United States and Honduras were automatically broken by the coup, they said.

Col. Osvaldo Lopez Arellano, head of the armed forces and leader of the coup, was governing the country by decree after dissolving Congress.

Censorship was imposed on all outgoing cables. All political activity was suspended and a new cabinet is expected to be named shortly.

LEAVES COUNTRY

Villeda Morales, who was due to retire as president after elections to have been held Oct. 13, was flown to San Jose, Costa Rica, along with Modesto Rodas Alvarado, the presidential candidate backed by Morales' Liberal party.

An announcement issued by the armed forces said favorable condition for holding free elections here for all parties.

It said Morales' government had armed a political militia that was supporting Alvarado in the elections.

The statement also said Morales was unable to control the civil guard, which was allegedly arming itself with weapons unnecessary for its police functions.

The statement accused Morales' government of "tolerance and complicity" toward Communist infiltration in government services.

It said Communist guerrillas in the northeast of the country were threatening the peace and security of other Central American states.

Ottawa Sees Harder Line In Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — A harder government line is taking shape in the face of diminishing prospects of a trade union agreement on a private trusteeship that would guarantee to cleanse thoroughly the Seafarers' International of Canada (Ind.).

Informants say Thursday's flying visit to Ottawa of James Reynolds, United States undersecretary of labor, confirmed that an impasse exists in U.S.-Canada labor talks on a plan for substituting voluntary union trusteeship for the government's proposed public trusteeship under special legislation.

Indications here were that Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America, is balking at immediate removal of the SIU's

Ordain Laymen Key Point Of Discussion

VANTICAN CITY (Reuters)— A proposal to ordain laymen as deacons of the Roman Catholic Church has come to the key points for discussion at the Vatican ecumenical council today.

The proposal, contained in the second chapter of the draft decree "de ecclesia," is designed to overcome acute shortages of priests in such areas as Latin America.

More than 2,000 bishops from all over the world have devoted their discussions this week to a detailed examination of "de ecclesia," which deals — in four chapters—with the nature of the Roman Catholic Church, the authority of bishops and the roles of priests and laymen.

Thursday the bishops, meeting in St. Peter's Basilica, neared the end of their debate on the decree's first chapter after earlier accepting "de ecclesia" as a basis for discussion.

Hurricane Flora Hits East Cuba, Draws Bead on Heart of Bahamas

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Flora, which battered Haiti with 140-mile-an hour winds for nine hours, smashed the eastern tip of Cuba today and drew a bead on the heart of the Bahamas.

Though the battle with the mountains of eastern Cuba and Haiti took a toll of Flora's strength, she was expected to emerge in the tropical Atlantic as powerful and dangerous as ever.

Her highest winds this morning were estimated to be 115 miles an hour, a drop from the 140-m.p.h. punch that Haiti took.

The weather bureau said Flora was no threat to the U.S. mainland, more than 550 miles away, for at least 48 hours and perhaps not that long.

Flora swept across the Haitian peninsula during the night, sallowing almost exactly the path of hurricane Hasel, which left more than 400 dead in its wake three years ago this month.

Communications between Haiti and the United States were disrupted and there were no casualty reports immediately. But damage was expected to run high even though the country's 3,500,000 citizens had plenty of warning. Many of them had only flimsy huts to hide in.

"On its present course hurricane Flora will move across Oriente province, Cuba, today and into the central Bahamas tonight and Saturday," the weather bureau said.

The U.S. Navy sent aircraft from Guantanamo Bay in shelter as far distant as Jacksonville, Fla. But Flora spared the base her Sunday punch.

Berbers Reject Appeal

MICHELET, Algeria (AP) — The leaders of the Berber revolt have rejected Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella's appeal to abandon their rebellion and join him at the conference table.

"Our stand is unchanged — Ben Bella must be overthrown," the rebels' military leader, Col. Mohamad Ou el Hadj, told a press conference Thursday night at his headquarters in Michelet, a town of 1,000 in the Kabylia mountains east of Algiers.

Ben Bella made his appeal in a speech to a special session of the National Assembly Thursday. He said he had assumed full emergency powers to crush the "criminal counter-revolution," but added: "Problems exist, but if they are to be discussed, let this be done in calm, not in the meantime with machine guns in hand."

The revolt, now in its fifth day, still had generated no shooting.

A Reuters correspondent driving from Algiers to Michelet for the press conference reported he saw no sign of government roadblocks or attempts to seal off the Kabylia region. Peripatetic reports in Algiers said Kabylia was ringed by government troops.

REJECT APPEAL

Hocine Ait Ahmed, political brain of the revolt, joined El Hadj in rejecting the president's appeal.

"We are not an army but a people armed to defend our rights," he said as bearded Berber patriarchs in Michelet looked on.

"Ya Ya Ait Ahmed." Long live Ait Ahmed.

"We cannot be defeated," he told them, "because no one has ever defeated us—not even the powerful French army."

The traditional division between Algeria's 2,000,000 Berbers and 10,000,000 Arabs was strongly alive in the little town facing the sharp Djurdjura mountains.

The rebels scribbled "long live liberty" in French at the entrance to the town and sent volunteers deeper into the mountains to rally the tribesmen.

Aid Ahmed promised them: "We have military resources with spread through the whole country. We will mobilize the masses. We cannot lose."

In 1950, when he started his career as an Algerian revolutionary, Ait Ahmed was criticized for "Berber-materialist deviationism."

He didn't let that among his Arab colleagues and helped launch the rebellion against French rule.

Tension Mounts as Women Throw Tomatoes at Plant

HANOVER, Ont. (CP)—Tension mounted in this town today as a squad of tomato-throwing women held the spotlight on the strikebound Hanover Kitchens (Canada) Limited plant.

For the second straight day Thursday the women fired a barrage of tomatoes at workers leaving the plant along the only exit road.

About 45 persons in 15 cars drove along the road and were pelted by some 25 women standing behind a hedge at the nearby Peerless Textile Products Company plant.

Police arrested five persons. It was not known whether charges were laid.

Meanwhile, 36 miles north in Owen Sound five men were to appear in court today on charges of assault causing bodily harm in the ambush and attack of three brothers while they drove to the plant Wednesday. The five were released on $1,500 bail each Thursday.

Provincial police reinforcements, now numbering 47, have been called in to help.

The strike began May 21 when 65 members of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) walked off their jobs.

Police Chief Frank Illingworth said Thursday night "we have

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THURSDAY, Oct. 3, 1963

NDP Leader Douglas said it was an insult not to submit the U.S. nuclear agreement to Parliament for ratification.

External Affairs Minister Martin said Parliament voted on the nuclear arms issue earlier this year and thus had endorsed the pact.

Labor Minister MacEachen reaffirmed that a federal trusteeship will be clamped on the maritime unions if an alternative method is not feasible.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the U.S. appeared to be interfering in Canadian affairs in the Seafarers labor strife issue.

Guy Rouleau (L—Montreal Dollard) said he is confident the government will move to allow the provinces to set up lotteries.

Several senators opposed ratification of a 1955 international treaty limiting the liability of air lines in crash lawsuits.

Nuclear Weapons Attached

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's Aug. 16 agreement with the United States to acquire nuclear warheads for Canadian forces has come under fire from opposition attack in the Commons.

New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas accused the government Thursday of "an affront to Parliament" for not submitting Canada without putting the pact before Parliament for approval.

External Affairs Minister Martin replied that the agreement must be kept secret for security reasons. But he added that the Commons had already voted approval of the government's nuclear policy last May.

Mr. Douglas said the security argument was "sheer nonsense."

Mr. Martin said that since U.S. forces on Canadian bases will retain custody of the warheads, Canada is not "joining the nuclear club." Mr. Douglas said this was "bocus-pocus."

The debate developed as the Commons considered a government request for a vote of $747,493,855 to pay its October and November bills. The interim financing is needed because the full spending budget hasn't yet been approved.

The government has said the money is urgently needed to cover cheques which must go out next week, and the Senate is standing by today to deal with the supply bill.

The 24-day debate allows members to speak on just about any topic, and as often as they wish.

But the nuclear issue held the spotlight. And as it went on, defence spokesmen outside the Commons said tenders are being called for construction of hardened concrete bunkers at five RCAF stations across Canada. The bunkers will hold

Move May Affect Wheat Shipment To Russian Ports

Quebec, Three Rivers, Montreal Tied Up

MONTREAL (CP)—The ports of Montreal, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres were shut down today as the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) struck for higher wages.

The strike began just as the St. Lawrence ports were at their seasonal autumn boom period, even bigger this year because of the sale of Canadian wheat to Russia.

Montreal Harbor was cut off from the city by police and pickets at ets. Harbor police barricaded all entrances but three, and kept those three heavily manned. Picket lines.

Picketing began at 17 points along the 11-mile stretch of the harbor, from the east end to the northwest, working in six-man and eight-man groups.

Some 2,800 men are on strike in the three ports, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres ports were struck at midnight, Montreal at 8 a.m.

A few ships completed loading during the night and left port. Only about eight general cargo ships are still tied up and some are expected to be loaded.

Three or four small coastal freighters were allowed to be loaded by supervisory personnel and clerks under an agreement with the ILA.

FIRST SINCE 1936

The strike was the first since the 66-day walkout in Montreal in 1936. At that time, the local was not an affiliate of the ILA.

In the only activity along the waterfront, longshoremen lined up at two automatic grain elevators and three small sheds in the east-end to draw their pay and national harbors board employees

Dead Trucker Saves Life Of Policeman

MONTREAL (CP)—A 50-year-old truck driver, Lucien Day in a traffic accident in Beauvais, was killed Thursday-Montreal bridge. But he saved the life of a traffic policeman giving him a ticket before he died.

Beauvais, a native of nearby St. Constant, had made an illegal left turn onto Honore Mercier Bridge at the south-west tip of Montreal Island.

Gaetan St. Denis, a constable on the police force in suburban L a S a l l e, stopped Beauvais' 10-ton truck to give him a ticket. But a milk truck crashed into the back of St. Denis' police car and Beauvais between his truck and the police ambulance.

Const. St. Denis and Beauvais pushed him out of the way.

"He thought of me before himself. I'll never forget that ticket as long as I live."

Const. St. Denis, 24, suffered cuts and bruises. Another constable in the ambulance suffered minor injuries and the second truck driver was unhurt.

CP Firemen May Start Strike Soon

MONTREAL (CP)—A senior union official says that 1,000 firemen working for the CPR are so discontented that they may start a strike, halting the movement of grain involved in the Russian wheat deal as well as other traffic.

The railway replied it was unaware a long-standing grievance the union said was the basis of the discontent was causing such a high degree of friction at the present time.

Clarence Allen, general chairman of the general grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, (CLC) said in a statement issued late Thursday the firemen were so disgruntled they might walk off the job unless their own hands and facilitate a strike."

The statement said the CPR was not giving the firemen the right to work a six-day week, 40 hours, at the settlement of the diesel dispute over which was settled in 3 after two strikes.

A CPR spokesman said there was not enough work in the yards Saturday or Sunday to justify a six-day week for firemen in many cases.

Mr. Allen said a decision by Prof. Bora Laskin of the University of Toronto on a "work dispute" in progress from April, 1961, until last June 28, saying a six-day work week had been guaranteed since 1955, "should be applied across Canada.

The decision applied to the CPR from Fort William to the west coast following a previous ruling of a similar grievance dispute more favorable to the CPR, which applied to its eastern Canadian lines.

Fair Weather In Offing For Weekend

TORONTO (CP) — Southern Ontario's weekend weather outlook, as reported by the public weather office:

Continuing fair weather is in store for most of southern Ontario through the weekend. A gradual warming trend is expected from near normal maximum temperatures today to three to six degrees above normal Saturday and Sunday. A series of minor weather disturbances will pass through Northern Ontario and, as a result, some cloudiness is expected to extend southward into the resort areas in Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions both Saturday and Sunday.

Govt. Announces Reappointment Of Donald Gordon as CNR Head

OTTAWA (CP) — Reappointment of Donald Gordon, controversial president of the publicly-owned Canadian National Railways, as chairman of the CNR board was announced in the Commons tody by Prime Minister Pearson.

In a letter to the prime minister accepting reappointment, the 61-year-old Mr. Gordon said he will ask to be released from his duties in about 18 months.

He said he wants to complete the reorganization and strength-ening of the publicly-owned CNR before relinquishing office.

The 12-man board of directors is expected to meet soon in Montreal to confirm Mr. Gordon as president of the railway company.

The green light was given to Mr. Gordon as head of the billion-dollar transcontinental railway despite efforts—largely centred in Quebec—to unseat him.

The burly six-foot-three Scot has headed the CNR since 1950 and has been the centre of con-troversy and attack ever since.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—Mainly sunny skies, light winds and 68-degree temperatures are forecast for most areas as the high moves across the province today. Another weak disturbance now over the Prairies is likely to bring a few showers to Northern Ontario tonight and Saturday. Secondary winds will establish a warming trend over southern Ontario Saturday.

Industrial Commission Reception Planned for Chicago or Detroit

A date in early November is expected to be set by the Belleville Industrial Commission for a reception to be held either in Chicago or Detroit for American Industrialists.

Earlier this year the local commission held an industrial reception in Toronto with the view of attracting industry to the city.

The Toronto reception intended by leading industrialists of the area was considered a good success and the commission has decided to go ahead with plans for a similar get together in the United States.

The Belleville Industrial Commission with Earl Dickmoother, as commission agent, is carrying on an aggressive campaign to attract industry to the city.

Brochures printed earlier in the year are being mailed out to industrialists in England, Continental Europe and the United States together with a letter inviting further inquiry from those interested in Belleville as an industrial site.

Mr. Dickmoother as industrial commissioner will also continue his present monthly visits to Toronto.

Since the work of an industrial commission is full of intangibles, according to Mr. Dickmoother,

"All we can do is tell potential industry what we have to offer and then that and some industry will show enough interest to locate," he said.

But a city can help its own industry improving its services and making interested industrial land available.

The city and Belleville is working toward the development of industrial lands west of Dundas Street and south of 401 highway, and also in the north Hillcrest area where approximately 100 acres of industrial land is available.

The Smith Transport Company is presently applying for permission for construction of a new warehouse in the Hillcrest area and if contract for construction of their building has now been let.

Mr. Dickmoother said the work of constructing a roadway to serve the area is proceeding on schedule. Plans call for a 60-foot roadway leading from Canniffon Road.

Two Bodies Will Consider Report Given

A joint meeting of Chamber of Commerce directors and members of the Belleville Industrial Commission will be called in about two weeks to consider the report of City Manager J. H. Reynolds on the administration of the two bodies.

The city manager made a survey of operations of the two bodies with the view of determining whether they should be continued under the present joint management.

The manager's report was made yesterday to the Industrial Commission and they will meet with the Chamber at a later date to discuss the matter and decide what action can be taken on its recommendations.

Mr. Reynolds said in his report that he felt it would be better to continue operations of the two bodies through the one office as at present and suggested two ways which this might be done.

Thesis Accepted

Richard A. Bird, of Belleville, has been notified that Queen's University School of Graduate Studies has accepted his thesis for a Master of Science Degree in chemistry.

Mr. Bird is currently attending Toronto University's College of Education on a Department Scholarship.

Man Skips Bail After Theft Charge

Paul Tremblay, canvassing a new sales line for an out-of-town company, last week was convicted of stealing a Belleville hotel owner's jacket valued at $150.

Tremblay, of no fixed address, was convicted after Queen' Hotel owner Ben Yanakakis had told police that he appeared from his suits in the hotel, was found later in Trenton by police.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills remanded Tremblay out of custody until today after requesting police to determine whether the man had any record.

This morning, when his name was called in court, he was not in court. Tremblay failed to answer.

Counselled Crown Attorney John Donnelly: "Today his record came back."

A bench warrant for Tremblay's arrest was issued by the magistrate.

Accident Toll Going Up

"Accidents in industrial and manufacturing plants hurt this community and in other parts of Ontario are taking a serious toll of lives, the construction of crippling and maiming injuries and costing millions of dollars."

H. L. Hall, Toronto, President of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations announced today.

In a statement directed at Belleville industrial workers, Mr. Hall stressed the need for employees in all types of industry to become more conscious of safety regulations.

The Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, in cooperation with industry here and in other parts of Ontario, are sponsoring a concentrated drive this fall to curb industrial accidents and to save lives.

In 1962, there was a total of 30 fatalities in industrial accidents in Ontario. Approximately one in every seven workers covered by the Workmen's Compensation and gwt 2% while you are at it. Classes are held on Monday and Wednesday nights from 5.30-7.00 p.m. in the gym followed by a relaxing swim.

Prelate Says

Virgin Mary Devotion Leads To Blasphemy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An American Roman Catholic prelate asserted today that exaggerated devotions to the Virgin Mary lead only to blasphemy, embarrassment and pathetic derivations on the part of Catholic worshippers.

The statement came from Archbishop Paul J. Hallinan of Atlanta, Ga., commenting on concern expressed at the Vatican ecumenical council by a group of Latin American prelates on overemphasis of the Virgin in their countries.

The observations of the Latin American bishops—of the almost 900 from that region—has raised the question of whether the council should proceed with separate study of a theme on the Virgin Mary—or schema as it is called here—or should it come before the 2,300 council fathers during this session.

Archbishop Hallinan said he believes a clear statement on the position of the Roman Catholic Church should be made to the council fathers "so as to declassify" the thesis on church definition now being debated in St. Peter's Basilica. They say to place the Virgin in a separate area of study might encourage false interpretations.

Construction Roundup

Basement is dug, walled and covered over now, at the new College Hill United Church, on North Park St. Laminated wood arches are up to support the main roof of the new building, and framework is going up at both ends. Arches were made by a Montreal firm. The building may be finished during November, according to Walter Van der Kooy, on the job for Miron-Wiggers Construction.

Out at Palmer Ave., the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is its own contractor for new centre in Belleville. Brick walls and concrete block partitions are already up to ceiling heights in "phase one" of the project, which includes classrooms and a temporary chapel. During the next week or so, the floor will be poured and the roof put on. Orval Tustian of St. Thomas, a member of the church, is supervising the job. Two young student ministers are the labor and Quinte Masonry is laying the brick.

Beaver Construction began work last Monday on the new sanitary trunk sewer up the road allowance for Fahey St., working north from College, and began Tuesday on North Front St., working north and south from Tracy St. Beaver is blasting every day on both jobs, according to J. L. Lathier, superintendent, but refuses to name his powder men. Other jobs Beaver has going in the city are about 95 per cent complete, Lanthier says.

Sirotek, still working on the Quinte Secondary School, is giving the city a bit of a bonus, according to Jim Adams, accountant on the job, by cutting out the bank over the entrance to the west parking lot at the school. Mel Barriage Landscaping is handling the job, a gift from Sirotek to the city, Jim says. The high bank was a snow trap in the winter, causing drifts across College St., and it restricted vision for cars pulling out of the parking lot.

A crew from Inspiration Co. has the ditch for the new underground telephone line dug right up James St. to Bridge, now, and the concrete conduit is following close behind. No start yet on stringing the cable through, but that's not Inspiration's job.

Water services are in and the sanitary sewer is going fine at the 23-house King George Square subdivision, off North Front St., just south of College. Bay City Construction is handling the job for R.E.P. Construction, according to John Rollies, of Bay City.

And out at West Park Village, West Park Construction has water mains, sanitary and storm sewers about half done on the first phase of the project, according to Bill McCormick. Five houses have been started in phase one, and two of them are already bricked, plastered and roofed. First two will be ready in three weeks, the other three about two weeks later. All the work is ahead of schedule, Bill says.

Gestapo Chief Buried in Jewish Plot

BONN (Reuters) — Heurich Lodge, the Nazi Gestapo chief believed to have been responsible for the mass murder of Jews, is buried in East Berlin's old Jewish cemetery, a gravedigger said in a newspaper interview today.

West Berlin scientists decided this week that remains found in Mueller's official grave belonged to three separate skeletons, but were unable to prove if any of the bones were Mueller's.

Walter Lueders, a retired 71-year-old gravedigger, told the mass circulation Hamburg newspaper Bild Zeitung: "Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller is dead I buried him myself. He is lying in a mass grave at the old Jewish cemetery in the Hamburger Strasse in East Berlin.

"In the first weeks in Berlin after the war, I buried 1,200 dead from the ruins between the (Nazi) air ministry and the reichschancellery.

"Among them was only one general in SS uniform—Heinrich Mueller His name was in his identity card. The photograph agreed with the face of the dead man, which was still recognizable The uniform fitted Mueller was injured in the back"

Robarts Said Insensitive to Public Opinion

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic leader, suggested Thursday night that Premier John Roberts may already be insensitive to public opinion.

This is indicated by the premier's suggestion there will be no fall session of the legislature, he told members of the United Automobile Workers of America (CLC) Retired Members Club.

He said fall sessions were promised in 1960 as a condition for NDP (then Co-operative Commonwealth Federation) agreement to go in to pay for members of the legislature.

"And now Premier John Robarts indicates that he may well dispense with the fall session altogether," Mr. MacDonald said.

"This is a retreat to cabinet rule, behind the shelter of an overly large majority, depriving the legislature of an opportunity to perform adequately its historic function."

Mr. Robarts indicated last week that he would only call the legislature for a few days at the end of this month and the Progressive Conservative government's full legislative program would not be presented until January.

Little Doubt Four Londoners Were Drowned

PORT ROWAN, Ont. (CP)— Some 50 searchers, including 30 soldiers from London, Ont., combed the north shore of the Long Point Bay Peninsula Thursday without finding the bodies of four Londoners, believed to have drowned when their small home-made boat overturned in a storm last Sunday.

A provincial police spokesman said there is little doubt now that the fishing party was drowned in the storm, which he said "commercial fishermen in their steel boats were afraid of."

Participating in the search again today will be the 50 searchers—the soldiers from the 2nd battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment, provincial police, RCMP, volunteer firemen, government foresters and citizen volunteers—a department of lands and forests amphibian plane, a helicopter rented by the OPP and about 10 boats with grappling hooks.

They'll cover the same territory, the north shore of the peninsula from about the middle to the end, which stretches into Lake Erie.

A life jacket was found in the area Thursday—the party took three with it—accounting for all the gear taken on the fishing trip.

The OPP spokesman said Patrick Justin, 43, his sons Ronald, 14, and Raymond, 12, and his nephew, Pte. Russell Balcom, 21, "should never have been allowed out on the bay with that little boat." The four set out from an inn on the peninsula Sunday, promising to return for supper.

National Bonded Debt Notes Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Direct gross bonded debt of Canada's 10 provinces at March 31 this year totalled $6,000,000,000, up $262,000,000 or 65 per cent compared with the same date in 1962. the provinces said today

During the year ended March 31 all provinces except Alberta showed an increase in bonded debt outstanding. About 766 per cent of the outstanding bonded debt was payable in Canada.

Bonds guaranteed by provincial governments (indirect debt) showed gains in all provinces except Nova Scotia which posted a decrease. The total for all provinces was $4,723,000,000 at March 31, an increase of $474,000,000 from a year earlier

Gambia Gets "Internal Self"

BATHURST, Gambia (Reuters)—Gambia, Britain's oldest —and last—possession in West Africa, attained full internal self - government at midnight Thursday.

Prime Minister David Jawara pledged in a champagne toast at a club here that Gambia, with a population of 300,000, would work for full independence as soon as realistically possible.

The decision to give internal self-government to the 4,000-square mile colony and protectorate was reached when Jawara visited London at the end of August.

Haile Selassie Will Visit With Old Friend

OTTAWA (CP)—When Emperor Haile Selassie makes a state visit here next week arrangements are being made to allow him to be with an old friend — Lt.-Col. Credit Leslie Robert Thompson.

As leader of a minority party in Parliament might not normally be in on the whirl of events and functions laid on for a visiting head of state.

However, because of an old association, the emperor and the Social Credit leader will be together as far as Haile Selassie's busy three-day schedule permits.

Their association dates back to the dismal World War era when Mr. Thompson was recruited by the Sudan interior mission to lead a team of Canadians and Americans as confidential advisers to Ethiopia at the emperor's request.

The emperor, who was in Canada on a state visit in 1954, arrives Monday by transport department aircraft from New York. He has been on an official visit to the United States and is scheduled to address the United Nations General Assembly.

Since Canada and Ethiopia now have formal diplomatic ties, there is speculation that establishment of relations could be a topic of discussion.

Comer had a diseased kidney replaced by one transplanted from a Seaforth, Ont., man who had died a few hours earlier. The operation is believed to have been the first of its kind in Ontario and the second in Canada.

Cattle Dealer Loses $1,200 At Madoc Fair

MADOC (Special) — Provincial Police are investigating the possible theft by pickpockets of $1,200 from a livestock trader at Wednesday's fall fair.

Sherman Chase, R.R. 2, Consecon, told police the money was in a roll in his hip pocket. He noticed it missing in midafternoon. No trace of the money was found on the fairgrounds.

Earlier the same day a Bancroft man reported his wallet missing at the fair. Fair officials eventually made a public announcement warning the crowd against pickpockets.

Nuff Said

More use of French in high schools, expansion of curriculums in provincial institutions of technology and establishment of "a new type of college" to specialize in post-secondary and adult education are among the recommendations included in a report called "The Structure of Post Secondary Education in Ontario" brought down recently by a committee of university heads. The report, which traces the development of the Ontario education system since 1870, also denounces the current trend "to force more and more young people into the mould of the university whether they are fitted for it or not."

But at the same time, the report urged resistance to movements that would introduce junior colleges that would give university-level education.

And there were the usual series of suggestions that academic work be made more interesting, and that help be provided for university examination.

The suggestion that fewer young people be pushed without regard for their talents into university training, and the suggestions that colleges of technology be improved and that adult education centres be established, are all fine. They are also in line with current practice.

But this idea that junior colleges, offering university level work be discouraged, does not seem logical. What is wrong with such colleges? From the universities' point of view, the answer is obvious. Such colleges, unlike trade schools, would be in direct competition with universities for some of the same students. And because they would offer the same services, without the frills, the junior colleges might win.

But enough has been written, one suggests, about the need for new designs in education, and the possible solutions. It's time for a bit of action. Addition of more and better courses to the night school curriculum, and encouragement to more people to take the courses already offered, might be a good start.

The Reason Way

Cars are not responsible for urban traffic problems, according to Stuart B. Wright, manager of the Wisconsin division of the AAA. Speaking to the association's annual meeting in Toronto, Mr. Wright said traffic is the fault of the cities, because streets are not wide enough.

Like, sure thing, man. And if Quinte yachtsmen trade their boats for aircraft carriers, and the water gets crowded, that is God's fault for not making the Bay of Quinte big enough.

Mr. Wright is on safe ground defending the car though, and suggesting that all society should conform to it. His job, after all, is dependent on the use of the car. And the more society learns to count on private automobiles, the more secure and the more important is that job.

Nothing out of the ordinary in that. The automobile industry, including all its subsidiary and service organizations is far the largest single employer on this continent. For an example of how dependent Belleville is on the business, consider the employment picture in the city if all the service stations, the auto supply houses and the car dealerships were closed. Consider the amount of radio and TV time paid for by the auto industry. For that matter look through The Ontario Intelligencer and note the advertisements paid for by one phase or another of the auto industry.

People being people, and rather selfish at heart, we are all inclined to take a view similar to Mr. Wright's, and decide that the auto is the ideal form of transportation, and the ideal basis for our society. The auto industry, always willing to give the public what it wants, happily slants its advertising to back up this view.

Slip of the Tongue

All these Cosa Nostra confessions by Joe Valachi down in Washington imply that the mafia is a U.S. based affair, slowly spreading a few careless tentacles into Canada. But a slip of Valachi's tongue indicates that something else might be the case. What if the mafia is Canadian-centred, and the mafiosos all Canadians?

This is indicated by a comment of Valachi's that the Buffalo branch of the mafia takes in "all of Canada." Explaining himself, Valachi said "when I say Canada, I mean Toronto."

Never mind where Valachi says he is from. That last comment is native Torontonian.

Foreign Teachers in Congo

By Garry Fullerton UNESCO Feature

Nearly 60 years ago, Stanislas Kotyuski and his older brother set out from their home in Warsaw on a journey to Africa.

They didn't get very far, however. At the Urals, a kindly Russian policeman picked them up and returned them to their family. Stanislas was seven years old, at the time, his brother 18.

Now, half a century later, Stanislas Kotyuski has finally realized his ambition to go to Africa. He and his wife, Mrs. Wanda Kotyuski, are two of the 538 teachers which the Congolese government has recruited with the help of UNESCO to staff its secondary schools.

Kotyuski, a construction engineer and an internationally-known expert in the economics of the building industry, was recruited to teach mathematics, but has since become the director of the Congo's new Institute of Building and Public Works. Mrs. Kotyuski, who completed her university studies in Paris, is, teaches French at a nearby Protestant high school.

At the present time, foreign teachers are an essential part of the Congo's education system. Before independence there were virtually no Congolese trained as secondary school teachers, and the handful who had been trained by 1960 were desperately needed in administrative positions in the new national government. With Unesco's help, a teacher training institute of Education was set up to train teachers, but its first classes will not graduate until 1964. Meanwhile the Congo must have foreign teachers to staff its expanding high school system.

Under a bilateral technical assistance agreement with Belgian government, a number of Belgian teachers who had been in the Congo before independence remained at their posts. Together with new-comers from Belgium they now number about 1,200 approximately two-thirds of the total teaching staff.

The remaining one-third are teachers of 25 different nationalities, recruited by the Congolese government with the help of Unesco. They are employed by the government, but one third of their salaries is paid in foreign currency by Unesco, which also pays them a bonus of $1,250 a year. In addition, Unesco enables teachers who wish to do so to convert another third of their salary into foreign currencies at a fixed rate.

Haitians are by far the numerous teachers. There are 123 of them. Other principal nationalities are Belgians (85), Norwegians (85), Lebanese (60). But there are also teachers from Spain, Italy, India, Pakistan, Rumania, Syria, Greece, Afghanistan, Poland, Canada, Honduras, Vietnam, United States, Norway, Switzerland, Netherlands, China, Luxembourg, Mexico, Rwanda, United Kingdom, Colombia and Sweden.

It is not unusual for a school faculty to include teachers from a dozen different nations, and one — the absence at Goma — has 15. This same school also boasts four different nationalities among its 600 students.

What made these teachers come to the Congo? Reasons for motives are as varied as their nationalities and professional qualifications. Some went out in search of "good salaries", "spirit of adventure", "desire to see a different part of the world," or "always interested in Africa."

Also, a large majority apparently don't talk about it, most of he teachers are imbued with a genuine desire to help the Congo and its people. This leads them to devote an incredible amount of spare time to students, girls and women in the community.

At least one seeker of 'adventure" possibly found more than he was looking for. He is Emile Lefeuve, a French high school teacher at Albertville, who was appointed last May to coordinate a drive to recruit women when Lake Tanganyika rose 5 feet above normal and threatened the city. On the 6th daily from 9 a.m. until late at night, Lefeuve directed more than 1,000 relief workers, including an entire battalion of the Congolese national army, several Boy Scout Troops, volunteers from the Christian Young Workers organization and medical teams of the World Health Organization.

The majority of these Unesco teachers are employed in State schools, but 116 have been recruited for Catholic high schools at the Protestant schools and three for other religious schools. In addition, several of the teachers have been detached to serve as technical advisers to the Ministers of Education in the newly-created provinces.

Such is the case with Jesus Garcia Pavia who left Spain where he gave up a distinguished career in law and philosophy in Spain "in order to work a new nation in birth." Garcia is assigned to the province of United Kasaiense, whose capital is Tshikapa, but when I talked with him last May, he was still living with his wife and children in Leopoldsburg, 125 miles away, because no housing was available at Tshikapa.

Housing is one of the main difficulties facing the foreign teachers, especially those "in the bush" — the Congo's vast interior. Often two or three families must share a house and this occasionally leads to friction. Food, too, is a problem except in the region of Goma and Bukavu, where the people enjoy three wheeled all the year round. At Kabinda, for example, meat is a rarity and fresh vegetables bring prohibitive prices, when they can be had.

Difficult living conditions are matched by difficult teaching condition in many places. In the larger cities there are some well-equipped schools, but at Kabinda the students bring their own chairs from home because the classrooms are bare. There is also a tremendous shortage throughout the Congo of textbooks, laboratory equipment, visual aids and school supplies in general.

Faced with these conditions, how well have the teachers been able to do their job? With a few exceptions, they have done well and some have been outstanding.

"Unesco's aid has been extremely precious to us in the early months of our struggle for independence," said Michel Colin, the Minister of Education. And other Congolese officials have acknowledges frankly that without the foreign teachers under the Unesco and Belgian technical assistance programmes there would be no secondary education in the Congo today.

Missions have gone to various countries to seek more candidates to go to the Congo. Teachers and officials of the Ministry of Education have, estimated that as many as 7,000 may be needed before enough trained Congolese are available to fill the gap.

"Would you advise a colleague back home to come to the Congo?" I asked Kotyuski one of the young Haitian who teaches English and mathematics at the athenee of Lubumbashi.

"Several of my friends have asked me that same question," he replied thoughtfully. "I usually tell them something like this: you've got to have some sort of crusading zeal or sense of mission. If you're just interested in the money you won't last. If you're just out for adventure, it's because you want to do something for civilization."

Ombudsman Man We Need

Vancouver Sun

An article in a recent issue of The Rotarian, the service club magazine, should make British Columbians realize how awful that at least two parties, the New Democrats and the Liberals, are firmly pledged to introduce a provincial ombudsman.

Most have read and heard enough about the ombudsman to know his function. He is appointed, chosen by Parliament and responsible only to Parliament, to investigate cases that bureaucrats don't pull any fast ones on the citizenry.

The Rotarian lists some of his results.

Finland's ombudsman has penalized four cabinet ministers.

Sweden's has prosecuted 18 judges, and fined one of them $1,000 for being rude to witnesses.

In other instances, Scandinavian ombudsmen have prosecuted a doctor who refused to attend a sick man, a policeman who pushed around a taxi driver, and civil servants who were socker than their duties demanded.

As a citizen's protection against bureaucracy, the ombudsman seems to have amply justified his existence since the Swedes invented him more than 150 years ago.

A high-ranked watchdog with no political axe to grind — who can seize government files, call open hearings, pass on tax carpet, and prosecute any official — seems to be exactly the sort we need provincially and nationally.

The regular weekly meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club was held in the parlors of Grace United Church on Monday evening. Mr. W. E. Milton, Field Secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, spoke briefly asking the cooperation of Rotary, other service clubs and the people of the town in the forthcoming drive for funds in aid of the unfortunate blind. Mr. Milton said there were one hundred blind cases in the County of Hastings, twelve of these situated in Trenton. Speaking on the work of the Institute he stressed the stride which is being taken to provide glasses and medical attention wherever needed in order to prevent blindness. Another important task of the Institute, he said, was to train blind men and women for an occupation so that many more of these people so trained, are now doing vital work in our war industries.

Two men who had escaped from the Ontario Hospital at Whitby recently were captured by City police following a chase through the Belleville C.N.R. yards shortly after daybreak today. While patrolling the outside limits the city Constable Carruthers and Taylor observed two men loitering at the rear of the Swift Canadian plant on East Station Street. As the police approached the men fled north towards the C.P.R. and pursued by Constable Carruthers while P. C. Taylor remained with the police car and proceeded easterly. Later Carruthers captured one man and chased the other through the C.N.R. yards of P. C. Taylor who was waiting to the east in the railway yards.

Wig Sellers Scalp Buyers

Watertown Times

All the investigations in Washington are not being carried out in Capitol Hill. The District of Columbia has three going now, probing numerous irregularities in the governmental business of selling wigs. Buyers complain they are being "scalped."

These hair pieces for women have become so popular that't more than 20 new wig stores are opening in Washington. As a result, competition is stiff. This, in turn, promotes all kinds of sales gimmicks, the kind of which where some of the complaints begin.

Some buyers claim they paid for "fine European hair" and got tougher, cheaper hair instead. Some say they got yak hair. A Washington reporter who won a Pulitzer prize in 1960 for bringing about a civic crackdown on unregulated used car dealers and salesmen, bought some of the used car crowd has switched to selling wigs, on the basis of complaints he's seen. He contract principles of an auto lot.

A young government clerk said she signed to pay more than $700 for a wig — only to find two just like them being displayed at a neighborhood "wig party" for only $100 each. When she refused to pay, a finance company attached her savings account and seized it all — $643.

Complaints against wig salesmen have become so plentiful that one clerk in the city's license bureau is assigned to this window only. At the Better Business Bureau office a full - time staffer is also hearing only wig problems.

Something is bound to come from all this. Either the girls "taken" on a questionable deal, be usually grumbles to himself, and tells his friends about it, but he hates to admit in law enforcement agencies that he was hoodwinked.

Jaundice Is a Symptom Rather Than a Disease

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our little four-year-old girl has jaundice. What will get rid of the dark, muddy appearance, or else it may indicate that something needs attention. And while you are about it, also how to help correct the constipation.

Dear Dear Molner: I can suppose to cut down on table salt and sugar and high in sodium. What items should be omitted? — G. B.

For practical purposes, both (or stop using) salt of either the table or in cooking. Prepared foods like pickles, sauerkraut, sausage, lunch meats, canned beef, etc.) should be avoided entirely. Meticulous that flax also contain a lot of sodium.

In some cases, salt-free bread is available with preparation may be advisable.

In short, most natural foods, fruit and fresh vegetables, as well as fresh meat, contain at least little sodium, but if you would all added salt, you will be doing all right.

Dear Dr. Molner: After two years he has to have sexual intercourse as before? — H. E.

Yes. This is conditioned to a great extent by your potential before the operation.

Note to F. G. W.: The coated-type, greasless frying pans are perfectly safe. Follow directions for using. After coating is greased, it comes off and then all you have is an ordinary frying pan.

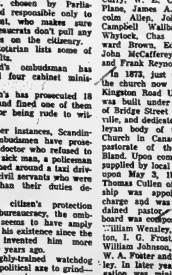
Evil Fails Because It Is Separatist

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is a comforting thought on a grim day that what keeps the world from falling wholly into crime and corruption is the psychological fact that evil is a separatist thing, while goodness is a unifying thing.

Evil would be utterly under the rule of evil, even if otherwise for evil is factionless, while good is full of factions. Where the evil is cunning, while virtue is credulous; evil is attractive and seeming, while goodness must emulate separation to the senses.



But the one redeeming factor, the one element that tends to cancel out all the other advantages of evil, is that by its very nature it separates itself, and is merely from the good, but from other evil as well. It is not only destructive; it is constantly self-destructive.

Samuel Johnson put it pithily two centuries ago: "Combinations of wickedness would overwhelm the world did not those who have long practised perfidy grow faithless to each other."

Thieves fall out, honor must fall out, for it is the essence of their character, the mainspring of their being, that they have no enduring loyalty to one another, no basic trust, no disinterested motive. It is until social in them in the beginning turns to anti-cos-another in the end.

This is worth remembering in an age when evil seems accessible, powerful, organized and ruthless; when society assumes the dimensions of a magnified racket; when corruption has become the mark of polity; when the only legislative gadgetry designers, engage economically in try to pull the wool over a woman's eyes — in this instance something as vital to them as their hair, or even their hats — they're headed for no end of trouble.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 4, 1963 . . .

The Bible, first fashioned by human minds and hands centered space six years ago today—in 1957—with the successful launching of the first earth satellite by the Soviet Union. Up to that day the free world Russia gained popular prestige and the plaudits of scientists for its Sputnik, whirled round the earth at a speed of 18,000 miles an hour, more than 800 miles high. Radio audiences listened entranced to the pulsating "beep" sent out by a radio inside the 185- pound, 23-inch-thick artifical moon. 1836—Brigham Young's first experience was proclaimed.

1611—Printing of the first English-language Bible was completed.

CBC Will Air Local Essayist

Gordon Leggat, Belleville freelance writer, will be heard on a coast-to-coast radio hookup sometime during November, reading one of his essays. The essay, written for the C.B.C. regular feature "Speaking Personally" describes some aspects of Mr. Leggat's youth in the north and after he moved to Belleville.

Actual date of the broadcast is not yet known, and Mr. Leggat probably will not know for sure until after it has been made. He taped the essay last weekend, at the CBC Toronto studios.

"Amateurist" Said Magistrate, Defers Sentence

Robert Franklin Cross, a 19-year-old Belleville youth, will be sentenced next week for an attempted "manhunk". safe robbery.

Today, Detective Harold Reid described for Magistrate T. Y. Wills the chain of circumstances that led to Cross being in magistrate's court.

He broke into Carm's Beverages on Parker Street, September 27th, by smashing a rear window. Then he went to work on the office safe with a drill he found on the premises. Police had no trouble spotting him. An officer mercy peeked under a window blind and saw him at work. Quietly, police surrounded the building then walked in on him. Cross also had mistaken an intercom system for a burglar alarm and ripped the wires off.

"In other words, the whole thing was quite amateurish," commented the magistrate.

"Yes, it was," agreed the detective.

Cross, who earlier pleaded guilty, then asked Magistrate Wills if he could be released on his own bail.

"The answer to that is short and sharp," replied the magistrate. "The answer is 'No'."

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—An eight-year-old boy pulled a wagon into the lobby of Chattanooga's Pioneer Bank and became one of its heaviest depositors.

Allen Thornton of Rossville, Ga., arrived at the bank Thursday with the coaster wagon filled with neatly wrapped coins which he said he had been saving since he first became aware of money—"a long time ago."

The wagon contained 7,000 pennies, eight silver dollars and an assortment of nickels, dimes and quarters totalling $100.

"He said he is going to use his money for his schooling," explained his mother, Mrs. Reba Thornton, as Allen apprehensively watched bank officials count and stack his coins.

Then thoughtfully eyeing the empty wagon, he trudged slowly away—after extracting a promise from George Clark, chairman of the bank's board of directors, that his savings would be well cared for.

Radio Baby

INVERNESS, Scotland (AP)—Mrs. Rae Wood, 34, was busy awaken this week by her baby crying—except that the baby was not yet born.

In the maternity ward of Raigmore Hospital, Mrs. Wood said it was some moments before she realized where the crying came from. A physician and several nurses said they heard it, too.

Dr. Andrew Hay, the hospital's consultant gynaecologist, said: "You begin to think after 30-odd years in maternity cases that such a thing could never happen But this one is quite authentic."

The baby was born the day after it started crying Now it is four days old and, the hospital says, 100-per-cent fit.

Be your own best friend . . .

A sportsman with a loaded shotgun or rifle in his hands has got to be his own best friend. He must leave nothing to chance. Never, not for an instant, can he allow anything to endanger the safety of himself or his fellow hunters.

Only when the day's shooting is done, only when the gun is empty and back in the rack . . . only then is it time to enjoy the pleasures of social relaxation.

For many years The House of Seagram has published messages advocating Moderation in all things, including the use of whisky. At this time, in the interest of safer hunting we say once again:

Living in Four Room Shack

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I hate it here and long with every bit of me to move. What can you do when you live in a dump? We are in the country, in an old clapboard cabin, trying to raise six children in four rooms.

We have installed wiring, oil furnace, cement basement. But this place is 20 miles from my husband's work, on the edge of a swamp. Rents in town are high and anyway my husband does not believe in renting.

Also, he will not sell unless we get out what we put in. And the real estate man tells us the place is not saleable as a farm or as a dwelling. I insist that we should get what we can for it, and try to swing a mortgage on something better, as well as closer to his work. — MAROONED.

DEAR MAROONED — People who sit and wait for the impossible to happen just to sink deeper into a hole. It is a mistake often made to expect real estate to retain original value — even while walls, roof, equipment, location grow old. One way or another, your housing costs like rent (maybe a low rent, if you are lucky!) as you go along.

I agree that you should get what you can and start now to provide a decent home for your youngsters to grow up in.

DEAR DORIS — I'm 15 years old and I think I should be able to go steady. Don't you? My parents think I'm too young to have a boy friend. I'm able to take care of myself when I'm with a boy.

I had lots of talks with my parents, but I can't get them to understand. Also, they won't let me stay out any later than ten o'clock with my girl friend. — WISHING TO GO STEADY.

DEAR WISHING — Sorry, but going steady is for later on. Dates, yes. Late nights, exclusive twosomes, no.

* * *

To FALL WEDDING — Bright red sounds too hard and brilliant to be ideal for a wedding guest. A muted wine shade or soft rose would be better. White gloves might be a bit startling, and black ones more like mourning — so what's the answer? Could you tint your gloves to a soft shade which would blend with dress or accessories?

* * *

To AMBITIOUS DAUGHTER — Has your mother already made the downpayment on this course? I would suggest you find out whether the training organization guarantees employment on completion of training; and just what the market is for the skill you will learn. Some firms work the other way round: install the systems, then train members of their own staff to operate them.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — The other day I found an Indian stone and was wondering if you would send me the address of where I could get information about it? —INTERESTED.

DEAR INTERESTED — I am not sure what you mean by an "Indian stone." In general, though, I would suggest that you write to the Royal Ontario Museum, 100 Queen's Park, Toronto, for information about this.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Is there any chance of an introvert becoming an extrovert? How? — AN INTROVERT.

DEAR INTROVERT — Every chance. Most important is his own strong will to change.

Force yourself to smile; work at making conversation, even though you'd rather withdraw from those around you. Some make it by taking lessons in public speaking; others by entering into an active sport which means mixing.

What begins painfully can become easy with habit.

DEAR DORIS — I am responsible for program for our women's organization. I want to keep the meetings interesting as this helps hold the members together and encourages new ones.

We have mission study and I have held quiz sessions. I was wondering what we could have new to try, to keep everybody happy. Could you suggest some place where I might buy short skits or things of that nature? — EAST COAST READER.

DEAR EASTERNER — I certainly could. The Christian Drama Council of Canada excels in providing plays and skits to suit the group and occasion. Might even send somebody to your area for a workshop about dramatic programs, if you could get several clubs together.

Write to the Council's headquarters, 302 St. Clair Avenue West, Toronto, Canada. Describe your group and its special interests and ask for help.

DEAR DORIS —

1. To be eligible for blind pension, does a person have to be totally blind, also without any other means of support, such as a small pension from other sources?

2. After 70 years of age, can she also collect old age pension?

3. Does a person need a lawyer to change title of home from husband and wife ownership to just one owner, such as husband or wife? — IN DOUBT.

DEAR IN DOUBT —

1. Not totally blind but with less than 20/100 vision after all possible correction has been made with glasses. If the other pension is not enough, a partial blind pension will be given to make up the difference.

2. No. The recipient would be switched from blind pension to old age pension.

3. Such a transfer does not legally require a lawyer, but a detailed knowledge of law. To avoid slip-ups, I'd say hire a lawyer.

* * *

Confidential to PLOT THICKENS — Go to it. You can learn to write by writing. Several schools offer correspondence courses in creative writing and I am sending you the names of four of them.

nuclear warheads for air-to-air rockets of Voodoo jet interceptors at Chatham, N.B.; Bagotville, Que.; Ottawa; North Bay, and Comox, B.C.

Mr. Douglas said the nuclear agreement with the U.S. amounts to "partial surrender of national sovereignty under conditions of which Parliament has no knowledge."

MONEY WASTED?

He described the warheads as "a sheer waste of money" and said the agreement shouldn't have been signed at a time when the treaty on a nuclear test ban pointed to a change in the whole international situation.

It was "sheer subterfuge" for Prime Minister Pearson to have argued that since the agreement wasn't a treaty, ratification by Parliament wasn't necessary.

Mr. Martin said it wasn't the government which refused to make the August nuclear agreement public. This had been decided Wednesday by a vote of the Commons.

He was referring to the vote that defeated Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's motion seeking production of the agreement. The former prime minister has said, however, that parliamentary ratification isn't necessary.

Mr. Martin said the New Democratic leader shouldn't criticize the nuclear agreement on grounds it was implementing an undertaking of the former Conservative government. This was an important factor.

"The honor of the nation is at stake. The extent of our participation in the (NATO) alliance is involved."

SHOULD PAY CANADIANS

Real Caouette, head of the newly-formed Ralliement des Creditistes, urged a federal payment of $100 to every Canadian as a protest on by the official Social Credit party from which he and 12 Quebec followers recently broke.

Mr. Caouette said the $1,800,000,000 payment would have a dynamic impact on the economy and "create credit based on Canada's wealth."

Howard Greffey (PC — Brome-Missiquoi) said that "the Pearson plan for moving our country ahead" had totally collapsed because of the government's failure to co-operate or consult with provincial and municipal governments.

"The Pearson - Gordon - LaMarsh attitude must go," he said.

For the first time in history, a cabinet had been criticized by its own Commons supporters "for being local not only with the people but with its own back-benchers."

Yesterday Minister Gordon's budget had "floundered" because he hadn't consulted in advance with senior civil servants. The program of municipal development loans had run into difficulties because provinces and municipalities weren't consulted.

CHARGE 15TH

AYLESBURY, England (Reuters) — A 15th person was charged Thursday night in connection with Britain's $7,800,000 train robbery almost two months ago. Scotland Yard detectives charged 33 - year - old hairdresser Douglas Gordon Goody with robbery and stopping the mails after arresting him in London.

women should be allowed to carry their babies as long as possible.

"In a condition that used to be regarded as fairly lethal for the baby and even dangerous for the mother, we have reduced the infant death rate to five per cent, while there is virtually no risk to mothers."

The doctor was describing a method of treatment he has devised in his Melbourne hospital.

During pregnancy bed rest is prescribed during the after-noon. Overweight women go on a diet.

Drugs to keep the blood pressure down are administered by injection.

"Treatment allows an average predicament of four weeks in the pregnancy, which gives the premature infant a much better chance," he said.

many-Berlin issue and have yet to be sorted out.

But in a joint communique, the three saw potential accord in space.

Noting that Gromyko and Kennedy in their UN General Assembly speeches last month both endorsed a ban on orbiting nuclear weapons, they said "there is agreement on policy which it is hoped can be given appropriate form in the near future."

Top diplomats said today they expect the United States and Russia will soon follow through with a formal public declaration against orbiting nuclear weapons. They predicted it would not be difficult to work out an agreed wording. They gave this explanation:

The United States and the Soviet Union will be the only nations making the pledge now because they are the only powers able to send objects into orbit. Other countries can join as they gain capability for space shots.

TV Program France's Latest Play to Sweeten Relations

By ALAN HARVEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

A television program to France's latest play to sweeten Franco-German relations.

Under a new arrangement, the show will be exchanged from a domestic competition between French cities into an international affair pitting Gaul against Teuton in amiable rivalry.

It sounds innocent. Everyone rejoices to see Paris and Bonn replacing kicks with kisses. What worries a suspicious few, however, is the purity of French motives in wooing the Rhine maiden just when a new master is moving into the manor house.

In other words, are France and Germany getting a little too cozy? As some see it, President de Gaulle is odd man out in the West, a defiant, go-it-alone specialist at all plans for unity.

NEEDS SUPPORT

Without support from the federal republic, it is argued, his intransigence could not continue. Hence the new Gaullist ardor, now that his ally Chancellor Adenauer is finally bowing out; he must make friends with the new men in Bonn.

At the ordinary-man level, the TV program should indeed be helpful. Called "intervilles," it matches one city against another in a series of original and amusing activities.

In its one contest, rival waiters sprinted along an assembly line, scooping up aperitifs, hors d'oeuvres, steaks and cream cakes which they finally deposited before diners at a distant table. The winner being the one that completed the journey in the fastest time with the fewest mistakes.

LIST OTHER MATCHES

Other competitions included a steeplechase with live seals among the players, a race to rescue girls trussed atop carts and a pelting match involving cream pies and a contraption called a catapulte.

Winning city in this year's championships was Torbes, a community in the Eastern Pyrenees. The other finalist was St. Malo in Brittany.

Apart from the television program, the plan for closer Franco-German links includes

Brockville Gets Big Contract From Israel

OTTAWA (CP) — With the help of long - term financing, Canada has finally broken into the Israeli market for manufactured good.

A $3,800,000 order for telephone switchboard equipment has been placed by the Israeli government with Automatic Electric (Canada) Limited in Brockville.

The company, a subsidiary of a United States firm, is reported to have underbid its American parent to win the contract.

Export Credits Insurance Corporation, the federal government's long - term financing agency, will finance the deal. Terms call for Israeli payments over a 10-year period.

The sale is regarded here as a significant shift in the recent pattern of trade between Canada and Israel.

While Israel ranks as Canada's biggest customer in the Middle East, shipments traditionally have been confined to foodstuffs and raw materials.

the "twinning" of towns, exchange of teachers and encouragement of friendships, and business contacts.

The wish for a rapprochement is incontestably strong. It seems unfortunate that this primary emotion should be complicated by differences at higher political levels.

REINFORCE ENCLAVE

BERLIN (AP) — The U.S. Army Thursday flew reinforcements into the West Berlin enclave of Steinstuecken because of border incidents they said were provoked by East German border guards. Twice this week East German border guards have bombarded U.S. military convoy patrols with stones. The U.S. patrols replied with tear gas and smoke grenades.

Parliamentary Notebook

By ARCH MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Once upon a time, Parliament met in January and went home in July.

It would approve most departmental spending estimates before the new fiscal year arrived April 1, receive and debate a budget in March and then handle new legislation—admittedly with some haste toward the end of the schedule.

That neat format existed not long ago. The 1960 session was the last.

The climate of the current parliamentary session indicates that the Commons will have to drive into the new year, with only a few days off at Christmas, and then reassemble in a late session not long after ending the present one.

DIFFICULTIES ARISE

There are a number of reasons why it will be difficult to re-establish the pattern disrupted by the 1962 and 1963 elections and their aftermaths.

Parliament's work load has increased in recent years, of course.

But another vital factor is the attitude of the opposition. When he was prime minister, John Diefenbaker often said the opposition dictates the length of any session. As opposition leader, Mr. Diefenbaker and his Conservative colleagues in this second half of the session have shown in the first few days that it may be a long session indeed.

The agenda is heavy.

Right now, there are 27 separate items of government business before Parliament. Some are of special importance, including federal trusteeship over five marine unions and the Canada pension plan.

Then there is the question of the government's departmental spending program for the fiscal year already half gone. Only two departments have been approved and the rest must now be fed steadily into the parliamentary hopper — competing with legislation.

no idea who is doing the throwing. They appear to be IWA sympathizers."

Police said the arrest of five men in Owen Sound was "a rock swallowing" to others thinking of getting rough. One of the men is an IWA member and the others are bakery workers.

The IWA was certified as bargaining agent at Hanover Kiln Feb. 5 but negotiations on a working agreement collapsed.

Company officials say the main issue is that the union wants a closed shop with compulsory check-off clause which management will not accept.

Union counsel currently is preparing a case to prosecute the company under the Ontario Relations Act for refusing to bargain in good faith.

Long and elegant is this evening gown designed by Bob Bagozzi of Sam Priedlander. It comes in a choice of white, pink or pale green crepe.

'German Youth and Hitler Past' Topic at Canadian Club

In a strictly non political talk, Miss Elsie Kipp, Woodstock Attorney, of the Federal Republic Embassy in Washington addressed the Canadian Club of Belleville and district at their regular meeting held last evening, in Queen Elizabeth School.

The president, Mrs. J. H. Forsyth, who introduced the speaker reminded members of the annual dinner to be held in Club Caesars on October 21 and that tickets which are still available may be obtained from dinner convenors Mrs. M. F. L. Jones or Mrs. W. Hills.

Mrs. Kipp who spoke on the topic "German Youth and Hitler Past" (Education toward Democracy), along with her husband, Dr. Kipp, Dr. Otto Kiep were leading figures in the German resistance movement against Hitler. Dr. Kiep was executed in the Nazi purge that followed the attempt on Hitler's life in 1944. Mrs. Kipp was arrested and kept in prison for several months. When the time came for rebuilding the shattered fabric of German social life she was ready and anxious to play her part, and realized that the future of German democracy would depend on the extent to which German women associated themselves with public affairs in post war Germany. Mrs. Kipp's primary function in the United States is to maintain close contact.

MANY DISBELIEVE

In opening, the speaker said that after the war many of the people washed their hands of the Nazi regime and claimed pleased ignorance of its deeds. They had the idea that stories of Nazi atrocities and brutality of these were all made up and believed that many were written by the occupational forces. They neither wanted to accept the guilt singularly or collectively. The Nazi left a confused sense of balance with the youth of the country. Everyone if it seemed wished to cover up and forget.

She spoke of the various movements of a small majority who in 1968 defiaced the Jewish service in a small community and of how the children in that area had taken over the beautification of some. These children have learned the lesson of tolerance. The number of these far outweighed the group with destructive tendencies. She also mentioned the almost epidemic of Swastika smearing in 1956, which created a great outcry in Germany indignation from the vast majority against such incidents have been overwhelming. The government has been unfound of these and other such groups.

NO EASY EXPLANATIONS

The speaker said that it is not easy for the parents and teachers who lived during the Nazi regime to explain their stand to their children and what their stand was during the war. Teaching along this line is not easy to young children. There are ten ministers of culture in Germany and with their co-operation with the people it has been decided that the true details of the Nazi regime must be taught in the schools. Much assorted summer blooms along the choir rail. The Rev. Hugh Huston officiated at the double ring ceremony. Quintebelles Hold Birthday Celebration

On Tuesday, October 1st, Quintebelles Chapter, Sweet Adeline Inc. held their regular meeting with a session in the form of a guest night and birthday party. The chapter was formed in 1962 and was for the purpose of singing Barbershop Style Harmony, which is arranged for four voices, and the members were invited to take part in the birthday harmony.

The evening took the form of a regular rehearsal with lots of time for guest participation, such as pick-up quartets and singing games, and a good part was spent teaching the new songs, stressing the point that it is not necessary to read music in order to sing and enjoy Sweet Adeline music.

The highpoint of the evening was the cutting of the 5th Birthday cake which had been beautifully decorated by Doreen Reynolds, and was cut with due ceremony by president Nora Barber, assisted by charter president Muriel Job.

The chorus sang several selections and a quartet comprised of Barb Valleau, Muriel Jobson, Barb Seeley and Gladys Brenton, entertained. A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the singing of the theme song "Harmonize the World."

Quintebelles chapter meets every Tuesday night in the upstairs auditorium of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' hall, 257 Front Street, and any lady 18 to 80 who loves to sing is invited to join. For further information contact Nora Barber, WO 2-1763.

CASWELL — CRABBE

Christ Church, Belleville was the scene of a lovely wedding recently when Judith Susan Crabbe, daughter of Dr. James Orval and Mrs. Crabbe of Vancouver, B.C., was united in marriage to the Rev. Michael John Caswell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Caswell, Kingston. The Rev. R. G. Fleming officiated before a background of white gladioli and white 'mums.

A number of wedding selections were supplied by the gentlemen and boys of Christ Church choir with Mr. John Withers at organist and choir master.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Dr. J. O. Crabbe wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza, designed with fitted bodice and long bib-point sleeves. The skirt was enhanced with a flowing train adorned with Alencon lace applique. Her elbow-length veil of silk illusion fell from a cluster of hand made organza roses. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, carnations, stephanotis, mingled with ivy.

The matron of honor Mrs. J. W. Edwards of North Carolina, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. G. Wilson of Cobourg and Mrs. L. Reesor of Smiths Falls were attired in identical gowns of rust organza over taffeta with matching pill box headpieces. Each carried a cascade of white and yellow 'mums.

Mr. William Laird of Kingston attended the bridegroom, while Mr. George Cox of Toronto and the Rev. Lloyd Rosame of Smiths Falls were the ushers.

The reception was held in the Pumpkin Room at Hotel Quinte where the bride's table was prettily appointed with a three tier wedding cake flanked with candles. The bride's mother received wearing a navy blue silk shantung ensemble trimmed with ostrich feathers, navy accessories and a corsage of white roses, dark brown accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

For the wedding trip to points east, the bride chose a three-piece Italian handknit ensemble in cranberry and black with Persian lamb collar, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Kingston, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Cobourg, Smiths Falls, North Carolina, England and Belleville.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored at a shower given by Mrs. K. G. Fleming and Mrs. C. D. Fuzzen; at one given by Mrs. Stewart Waddell and one by Mrs. F. Moudley and Mrs. O. Brown in Kingston; and at one in Cobourg given by Mrs. G. Wilson.

I.O.D.E. Approves Red Ensign As Official Canadian Flag

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held in the home of Mrs. G. Elmslie with a large attendance. Reports from the different committees were heard including the treasurer's report which showed that $19 per cent had been received from the United Appeal.

It was announced by the educational secretary that the $100 scholarship awarded to the son or daughter of a veteran had been won by Nancy Knowlton, a graduate of Quinte Secondary School who was highest in the secondary schools. A gift of $10 was to be given to a pupil from the adopted school continuing his education.

Supplies are to be purchased for use in the Citizenship court and also introductory cards for member transfers. Volunteers were requested for the next Blood Donor clinic to be held October 10th. A wreath was ordered for Armistice Day.

The following members were reminded of the rummage sale to be held in November.

For the benefit of new members an article on the formation of the Chapter was read which stated in part that on November 1st, 1910, the colonel of the regiment called a meeting of the wives, mothers and daughters of the officers to form an IODE. Col. Stewart co-invited Mrs. W. N. Ponton to be first Regent as he was not married. The original constitution called for the wife of the commanding officer to be Regent. Other qualifications were of especial interest as the meeting was held in the home of the late Col. W. N. Ponton.

The Regent announced that the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter will take place in Sarnia October 23-24 at the Village Inn.

At the annual meeting of the National Chapter held in Victoria in 1962, the following resolution was passed:

"Whereas the Government of Canada has indicated its intention to authorize a National flag, and

"Whereas in the World War I the Canadian army fought and thousands died under the Red Ensign, the flag of Canada, and

"Whereas the Red Ensign with shield of the coat of arms of Canada in the field bears the emblem of the four countries from which the original settlers of Canada were drawn, together with a branch carrying the maple leaves, the emblem of Canada, and

"Whereas the members of the IODE are proud of the part the founding races of Canada are represented in the shield of the Canadian flag, and

"Therefore be it resolved that the IODE in session assembled at its 43rd annual meeting strongly urge the Government of Canada to declare the Red Ensign the official flag of Canada."

The members of the Argyll Chapter were in favor of the above.

The I.O.D.E. have withdrawn from participating in the United Appeal but are offering their assistance. Mrs. Ponton acted as Captain distributed the kits to the canvassers.

The Regent welcomed and inducted two new members, Mrs. Frank Hurlton and Mrs. Ross Burtt into the Chapter.

The next regular meeting will be held in the Memories, November 6th and will take the form of a beauty counselor demonstration. Tickets will be sold and all are invited.

The tea table was centred with a beautiful floral arrangement of yellow and white chrysanthemums and coral snapdragons and silver candlesticks. The Regent, Mrs. E. F. Smith, thanked the hostess for her kind invitation to her home.

I. O. D. E. Plans Many Events

CAMPBELLFORD — The September meeting of the Beaverdale Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held at the summer home of Mrs. J. O. Benor, when 42 members enjoyed a buffet lunch served by Group 3. Group 2 was in charge of the business portion of the meeting was opened by the Regent, Mrs. George Vice. Mrs. G. Vandewater read the secretary's report and correspondence and Mrs. D. Bennett gave the treasurer's report. It was agreed that the Chapter would take charge of the bake table at the hospital bazaar on November 16th and some members would continue to use the transportation to the Health Clinic for anyone needing this service.

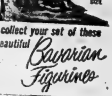
The visiting nurses were read and Miss Carole MacArthur reminded the members that the Christmas members would be held on December 1st, in St. John's auditorium. Mrs. W. Palliser reported that the masquerade ball would be held on October 25th at the Masonic Temple.

Mrs. W. A. Kingston announced that plans for the annual district dinner on October 9th in St. John's auditorium were completed and guest speaker would be Mrs. D. W. McGibbon, national president of the I.O.D.E.

Group reports were given and it was decided that the rummage sale would be continued on into October as a Chapter project for the flower fund.

Mrs. R. E. Fox, services at home and abroad convenor, read a letter from the adopted child and a letter from National Headquarters expressing the need for support for the three divisions of National Services at home and abroad.

Mrs. R. M. Rutherford informed the members that a provincial bursary was available to students wishing to attend Teachers' College for one year. She read letters concerning the adopted school and its need for educational volumes, followed by a report of pen pals for the local schools. She circulated Christmas cards available from the Retarded Children's Association.



The order of motions was made by Mrs. Rutherford to second the by-law concerning the Loan Fund, but the members of the Chapter felt the wording of the by-law as it stands. It was also decided that the Loan Fund be given more publicity as it is available to any student wishing to further their education.

Attorney Might Lose His Fiancee by Cross Examination

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Three months ago I started to date a 33-year-old attorney. I am 28. He has never been married and lives with his widowed mother. He told me last night that I am the type of a girl he would like to marry — and added, "providing you can pass the test." I asked him what test, and these are the questions he asked:

"Are you mad about the way you squeeze toothpaste out of the tube? Do you roll it up properly? Do you pin your hair up at night and crown your face?" (He can't tolerate this.) "How do you change bed linen?" (He insists on fresh linen every night.)

I was shocked at these questions and treated them as a joke. But he was dead serious. Now I ask you, Ann Landers, in the absence of other peculiarities along this line, would you call a good marriage prospect? What would you do? — JASMINE.

DEAR JASMINE — I'll bet his mother have him for another 33 years.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Is this girl doing the right thing or not. On her third or fourth date she became intimate with this boy and now she is pregnant. She is a 20-year-old nurse who should have known better.

The young man says he is sorry he got involved and wants nothing more to do with her. The girl is planning to file a paternity suit and insists on keeping the baby against all the advice from every side.

I say she should go to a home for unwed mothers, have the baby and put it up for adoption. If she does this nobody will be hurt. She will not shame her family or his, and the young man will not be stuck for 21 years of support money. Also, the baby will get a decent break instead of being known as an illegitimate child.

A lot is riding on your answer so think it through carefully. — INTERESTED PARTY.

DEAR PARTY — The girl did not ask me for advice so I will not attempt to give her any. Obviously she has made her decision and it's one which should be made by the girl herself.

It's a little late for that sterling fellow to decide he wants nothing more to do with her." There are laws for his and-run Romeos — so he is about to find out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a woman in my early 30's who married for the second time about six months ago. I am having real trouble with this man and I need your help.

Horace courted me for almost two years and was so charming and pleasant he had me completely fooled. I was going with two other very fine men at the same time and could have married either of them.

One week after Horace and I were man and wife he told me I had to show him a receipt for every item I bought, no matter how small. He was annoyed because I had spent $3.70 in the five and dime on shelf paper, cup hooks, drawer lining and odds and ends a person needs to set up a new place.

I find this humiliating since I have never had to account for money before. I have a small income but we decided before marriage to pool everything and that he would handle the money. Now I have to beg him for a dollar and I hate it. Please tell me what to do. — EMPTY PURSE.

DEAR EMPTY — Every woman should have some money to spend as she pleases — no questions asked — if her husband is employed. You are a fool to turn over your income to your husband and then beg him for a dollar.

The two of you should go to a marriage counsellor or to a clergyman and talk this problem out. You need the help of a third party.

• • •

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Transition Costume

BY GRACE TISDALE-IVE

A sleeveless jacket and pony skin is shown over a black silk crepe, long-sleeved classic shirt which can be worn as an overblouse or tucked in for the companion shirt of knife-pleated wool.

The jacket has a vent in back and slit pockets at the hip bones.

It's a good choice for the transition season late fall and for back to college.

W.S.G. Hears Talk Based on Malaysian Fed.

The Women's Study Guild held their first meeting of the fall at the home of Mrs. J. H. Reynolds with the president, Mrs. Hiltz in the chair.

"Brotherhood" was the theme of the worship service taken by Mrs. Leslie Reid who spoke of Jesus' ideal of universal brotherhood. "If people could be brought to love their neighbors as themselves, the problem of brotherhood among individuals and nations would not be solved; it would be abolished."

Mrs. George Meades and Mrs. Pennington had gathered much interesting material on the timely topic of the Malaysian Federation which came into being on September 16 of this year. The situation in Malaysia is so unsettled that daily newspaper accounts of riots, attacks on the British embassy and general preparedness for defence of the countries involved, have been numerous.

MALAYSIAN TERRITORY

Mrs. Meades explained clearly with the aid of maps, the territory of the new Federation of Malaysia which includes Federated Malaya, the self governing state of Singapore and Sarawak and North Borneo which comprise equal partners. These all now are members of the Commonwealth. This new Federation has the sanction of Britain, United States and U.N. secretary U. Thant but has been opposed from the beginning by neighboring Indonesia and the Philippines. Duchess of the 14 Malaysian states are poor but British defence is pledged in case of attack. The new president of the Federation is Tunku or Abdul Rahman who presides over a conglomerate population of Chinese, Malays and indigenous people.

Mrs. Pennington told of the political situation before and after the Federation. Strife is not new in Malaysia. Before the advent of the Federation British-controlled military forces battled Red guerillas in the jungles of Malaya. Russia has opposed the Federation a cunning invention of London set up with the support of American imperialism. Britain on the other hand feels that Malaysia could become the strongest anti-communist bulwark in Southeast Asia. Racial hostility between the aggressive Chinese and the easy-going Malays is strong. Borneo opposed joining the Federation but was appeased by offers of extra seats in parliament, tax concessions and monetary aid. The key issues over the Federation were financial contributions of Malaya and Singapore and the question of a common market for the area.

President Sukarno of Indonesia regards Malaysia as a threat to his dream of dominating Southeast Asia and has sent troops to the shores of Sarawak and North Borneo. Troops are in readiness but it is hoped that open warfare will not take place.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Carlton Miller and Mrs. Reynolds.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My great-aunt will be 75 soon, and I plan to give a tea in her honor. There will be about 100 guests and the party will be held between three and six in the afternoon. Since guests will be arriving and departing steadily during this time, it is necessary for my aunt to stand and receive with me all afternoon? I'm afraid this will be too tiring for her. Would it be correct for me to receive alone? What would be the proper procedure in this case? — Mrs. E. F., Staten Island, N.Y.

Answer: It's not necessary for the guest of honor to stand with the hostess during the entire reception. She may receive for a short time, then take a seat nearby. After you greet arriving guests, you may either escort them to where your aunt is sitting, or indicate where she is so they can proceed there after you've welcomed them.

Question: While I was dining with my husband in a restaurant recently, he spotted a business acquaintance across the room and hopped over to say hello. The "hello" took all of ten minutes, and I was fuming by the time he finally got back. He said he had some business to discuss and that I should be "understanding" about it. I still think it was very thoughtless of him to leave me sitting like a bump on a log at one end of the restaurant while he chatted on and on at the other end. Don't you agree this was rude behavior and that I had a right to be peeved about being left alone in a public place so long? — Mrs. R. C., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Table - hopping is never in good taste. Saying "hello" in passing is certainly permissable, but it shouldn't take more than a second, even then. Your husband's behavior was quite inconsiderate on two counts: a) because it made you feel conspicuous sitting alone so long, and b) because it probably also inconvenienced the party he joined — since a prolonged visit must have interrupted their dinner. If business has to be discussed it's properly done in the office and not over someone else's dinner in a restaurant.

Dramatic demonstration of Philips 'Automatic Contrast' feature in action. Electronic eye reacts to light from burning match causing Philips Monitron 500 TV to instantly—and automatically—adjust contrast

Philips 1964 Monitron 500 TV keeps an eye on the light in your room

New 'Automatic Contrast' automatically adjusts picture contrast to suit room lighting

Philips 'Automatic Contrast' is one of the five features of the Future' that are very likely to change your television viewing habits forever!

A tiny electronic eye, located at the top of the control panel, measures the light in your room and automatically adjusts the contrast to the right level. Whenever the light in your room changes, the 'Automatic Contrast' instantly changes the contrast to suit it. If manual control is preferred, however, you simply click off the 'Automatic Contrast' and use the normal contrast control.

To see this striking feature in operation, hold a burning match or your hand in front of the electronic eye and watch the contrast change.

Let your Philips Franchised TV Dealer show you the other 'features of the future' that give you automatic television today. There's the 'Automatic Tuning' a system that allows you to fine-tune each channel once and then get perfect pictures without any further adjustment.

There's 'Monitronic Circuit Stabilizer', Philips' electronic brain' that keeps your picture from shrinking or stretching (a common occurrence on sets without Philips exclusive Monitron circuit).

There's a 'Nationwide Picture Lock' which completely eliminates the need for horizontal or vertical controls by locking the picture in place, no matter how strong the interference.

Philips fifth big 'feature of the future' is 'Optimatic Brightness'. It does away with one of television's biggest annoyances. Now, when a dark picture, such as a night scene is shown on your screen, 'Optimatic Brightness' senses the change and automatically adjusts the black level so that the picture detail is clear even in the darkest scenes.

True high fidelity sound is something usually found only in expensive stereo combination sets. Now, Philips 1964 Monitron 500 TV gives you this expensive feature, not as an optional extra for which you pay more, but as standard equipment. Laboratory tests establish the frequency range at 25 cycles at the low end and 25,000 cycles at the high end of the spectrum. Ask also about "Sound-Off"—Philips exclusive new push button muting switch.

Your Philips Franchised TV Dealer will be glad to demonstrate all of the many features that make Philips Monitron 500 TV the first truly automatic television. He'll also show you the Monitron 300 Series—television with traditional Philips quality at a popular price. See him today.

QUESTION:

Do you have a recipe for or have you ever heard of one for "Zombies"? They are an orange-flavored coconut confection and if you have a recipe for them I would appreciate it if you would send me a copy — Sharon C.

Sharon, I do not have the recipe for Zombies.

If any one of you has the recipe to which Sharon C. is referring would you kindly write it out in detail and mail it to me, in your usual co-operative way?

QUESTION:

May I please have your recipe for mashed potatoes. My mashed potatoes are not white and fluffy — Devonne L.

ANSWER:

MASHED POTATOES — FLUFFY AND WHITE:

6 medium potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup boiling water, 2 or 3 tablespoons butter, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt.

Scrub potatoes. Pare thinly (or leave skins on). Place in saucepan, add the 1 teaspoon salt and boiling water. Cover and cook until potatoes are fork tender — about 20 to 30 minutes. Drain, remove cover, peel if necessary, and shake gently to dry, over low heat. When very hot, mash until there are no lumps, then add milk, salt and butter and beat over low heat until smooth and light and fluffy. More milk may be added if desired.

NOTES:

1) If you have an electric beater — even a hand electric beater — use instead of a potato masher for it whips the potatoes up fluffy and light in no time.3) If you family is small cut the above amounts for Mashed Potatoes in half.

QUESTION:

Would you please repeat the recipe for Dad's cookies? We thought it was just great. D.C.

ANSWER:

With pleasure.

DAD'S COOKIES (courtesy Mrs. H. T. repeated from June 2/61):

1 cup shortening, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 large eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups coconut (desiccated), 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 cups oatmeal (rolled oats).

Cream shortening, cream in sugar, add vanilla and eggs, beating after each. Mix remaining ingredients and add to creamed mixture. Mix well. Drop from teaspoon or roll into balls. Place on greased cookie sheet. Bake in 350-375 deg. Fahr. oven for 10 to 12 minutes.

Modern factories across Canada produce electronic equipment ranging from complete communication and navigation systems to simple tubes. Plant above is in Montreal.

Sophisticated Systems Used Around The World

Canadian Electronics: Brain-Power For Industry

Set back nearly from the broad expressways encircling Canada's ever-expanding industrial cities are up-to-date plants manufacturing the nation's most modern technological products — electronic equipment and components. Young in outlook but with many years' mature experience, Canada's $500,000,000 electronic industry provides sensitive nerve and control systems for the country's business, unites its people by communications, exports products with a world-wide reputation for design and reliability. In nearly 150 plants from coast to coast, 20,000 Canadians are directly employed in an industry which makes intricate equipment in the fields of Communications, navigation, computing and data handling, flight simulation, electronics (the combination of nuclear energy and electronic control), geophysics and entertainment. The complexity of Canadian-produced electronic equipment is in growing use across the continents of the world, is expanding to meet the nation's widespread domestic needs.

New Building For Biology At Queen's

KINGSTON — Construction will begin immediately on a $2.9 million teaching and research centre for biology at Queen's University, it was announced today.

Contract for construction of the four-storey building has been awarded to the Foundation Company of Canada, Limited, of Montreal, which submitted the lowest tender of $2,206,500. The remainder of the total cost will include scientific equipment, furnishings and other expenses.

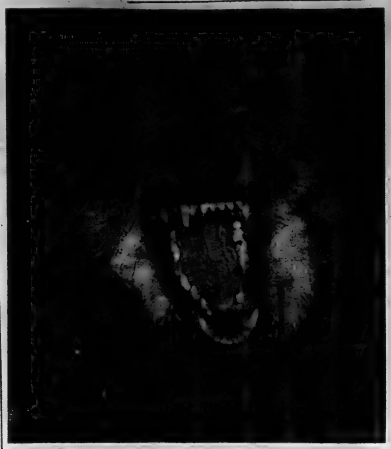
A total of 11 tenders were received for the construction project that will result in one of the largest buildings on the campus. It will be erected on a square-block site bounded by Barrie, Deacon and Arch Streets, just south of Union Street. The site, overlooking the Cricket Field and Macdonald Park, was cleared of university-owned houses over the summer.

FINISHED IN '64

The main portion of the new structure will be a four-storey rectangular block 278 feet long by 85 feet wide. A smaller "T"-shaped, three-storey wing will be joined to the west, or campus, side of the main building by a glassed-in gallery containing administrative offices and student study areas. The smaller wing will have two large lecture theatres each capable of holding up to 120 students.

The contractor hopes to have the north half (the teaching portion) of the main building finished by the fall of 1964. The remainder of the building including the south half (to be used for research) is planned for completion by Christmas the same year.

Architects for the project are Allward and Gouinlock of Toronto. In drawing up the final exterior design, they were carefully instructed by the Queen's Board of Trustees to devote particular attention to the east facade in order that the building would appear in harmony with the traditional architecture of Kingston public buildings including the nearby Frontenac County Courthouse.



The new building will allow the present enrolment in biology courses at Queen's to be doubled by 1970-71, at present the biology department is crowded into two floors of the Old Arts Building that was erected in 1920 and according to campus biologists space has been seriously inadequate since the Second World War.

SELECTED SITE

A recent surge of undergraduate enrolment in biology, an expanding graduate student program, and the greater emphasis on research needed for graduate work has strained the special facilities required for biology to the critical point within the last two or three years.

Care was taken in selecting the site for the new biology building so that maximum convenience and efficiency could be attained by placing it near existing biochemistry and medical buildings. The medical quadrangle with anatomy, pharmacology and biochemistry will be right across the street from the new biology building, while physiology facilities will be close by the west student entrance.

A special feature of the new building will be the installation of closed circuit television monitors in each of 24 laboratories in the north teaching section of the main building. This modern equipment will allow instructors to take the fullest advantages of the newest techniques in teaching as well as giving greater flexibility to the teaching staff.

Canadian chief, Hal C. Banks, under a union trusteeship.

This is one of the conditions laid down by the Canadian Labor Congress in its 11th-hour proposal to the AFL-CIO for a workable, effective union clean-up of the SIU.

Although the door was still open for a last-minute private solution, the government was believed to be ready to start parliamentary action on the resolution dealing with a public-trusteeship now before the Commons.

It was considered unlikely, however, that the trusteeship measure would become law until early next week — probably after Tuesday's meeting of the full 21-member executive council of the CLC.

Labor Minister MacEachen told the Commons Thursday that the search for an alternative to government trusteeship still is continuing.

He spoke while Mr. Reynolds was conferring with labor department officials here and by telephone with AFL-CIO leaders in Washington.

The visit of Mr. Reynolds provoked cries of "interference" and "pressure" on Canada from opposition MPs in the Commons. Mr. MacEachen denied the suggestions.

Informants indicated that a union - sponsored trusteeship would apply only to the SIU of Canada, which a federal inquiry commission described as a lawless union dominated by its power-hungry president.

However, the government trusteeship—if put into effect—would apply not only to the SIU but also to four other Canadian-based unions in the Maritime field. Together, the five unions represent some 21,000 sailors, marine engineers and deck officers on Canadian ships.

Labor Party Calls for "Wealth Tax"

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP)—The British Labor party today unanimously called for the imposition of a wealth tax as part of a general reorganization of the structure of public finance.

A resolution adopted by the annual conference of the opposition party thus would bind a future Labor government to impose a tax on capital gains.

On the final day of Labor's five-day conference mapping election strategy James Callaghan, shadow chancellor of the exchequer, stressed that the party leadership obviously could not at this stage outline details of the capital gains tax envisaged. That would be to anticipate a budget which could only be drawn up by the chancellor at that time.

However, he said the party unequivocally accepts the idea of such a tax.

MAKES PLEDGES

Harold Wilson, the party leader, told the delegates the party had emerged from "an inspiring conference . . . as a modern, practical, united movement." He drew waves of cheering after he defined what he called three golden threads running through the discussions:

1. Labor would restore a sense of purpose to Britain's industrial life.

2. Labor would restore a sense of social purpose and justice to the national life.

3. Labor would restore Britain's standing in the world and a new greatness.

tidied up the bare, deserted docks.

Some 60,000,000 bushels of wheat were scheduled to be moved through the St. Lawrence ports to Russia before the winter close, and this is over and above normal business.

Federal mediator Judge Rene Lippe called representatives of the union and of the Shipping Federation of Canada together at 10:30 a.m. to continue discussions that began Thursday afternoon and continued until the early hours of the morning.

NOT FAR APART

A union source said today the sides were not excessively far apart, and the federation had gone as far as mentioning a 25-cent-hourly increase. However E. M. Strang, head of the federation's labor committee, denied any such concession.

Montreal Harbor was sealed off to avoid any trouble, police said. Squads of municipal police were sent to reinforce harbor patrols.

A prolonged strike could cost Montreal $2,000,000 a day.

In Quebec and Trois-Rivieres, extra police were put on duty but the harbors were not sealed.

About 40 pickets were set up in Quebec, where 50 longshoremen are on strike. Only four ships remained in port there.

The passenger liners Carmania and Homeric were loaded and were to leave Quebec on schedule later today.

Only on two other occasions since 1936 has Montreal's shipping been disturbed by the Longshoremen—in 1961 the union members quit work for five days, and in early September this year for two days. In both cases the walkouts were wildcat, unsanctioned by the union.

The longshoremen, now earning a basic rate of $2.33 an hour, are demanding a 35-cent-an-hour wage increase plus 10 cents an hour in fringe benefits. The Federation last March offered an increase of 12 cents an hour plus four cents in fringes.

A conciliation board's unanimous report, handed down after a Sept. 9 wildcat strike, recommended a 32-cent-an-hour package increase over two years but it was rejected by both the union members and the shipping federation.

Ont. Doctor Urges Home, Public Buildings, Clothes Be Adapted to Handicapped

VINELAND, Ont. (CP) — Homes, public buildings and clothing soon will be adapted to the needs of handicapped persons, Dr. John N. Swanson, chief medical director of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Society of Ontario, predicted Thursday.

And the things that help the handicapped also benefit the healthy, he told the Ontario chapter of the College of General Practice of Canada at its scientific and business meeting here, about 10 miles west of St. Catharines.

To illustrate this contention, he cited ramps which make it possible for persons who have difficulty in walking up steps, or who are in wheelchairs, to get into buildings.

"Ramps are good for healthy people too," he said. "It's much easier on the heart and lungs to walk up a ramp than up a set of stairs."

Ideas to help the handicapped include wider doors for bathrooms to allow passage of a wheelchair, higher toilet seats, so a handicapped person can slip from wheelchair to toilet easily, special bathtubs, doors with handles instead of knobs for easier opening and sliding or folding doors.

SUGGESTS CHANGES

Dr. Swanson also suggested that the ground floors of all apartment buildings should be adapted to the needs of elderly or handicapped persons.

"I think that this will be the law of the land one day."

Opportunities for development also lie in the field of clothing design for the handicapped he said.

"The handicapped person had a dreadful time getting into ordinary clothing. It's particularly difficult for a man in a wheelchair to get into a pair of trousers."

A research company in the United States has developed a pair of trousers that zip up both sides. The man simply puts the back half in position in the wheelchair, sits down, gets the front half in position and zips himself in.

Magnetic buttons, originally developed for children, also hold possibilities for persons who have suffered a stroke.

Government Procedures Irk Students

EDMONTON (CP) — Student representatives from 41 Canadian universities and colleges took a careful look at federal security procedures Thursday—and they did not like what they saw.

Delegates to the congress of the National Federation of Canadian University Students resolved to tell 115,000 members-students they are not required to reply to RCMP questioning, except in a court of law, if answers they decide to give about fellow students or professors should be given in writing, signed and dated.

The resolutions passed by the NFCUS national affairs committee came after debate on security investigations had been spotlighted.

The NFCUS committee resolved to demand that the federal government state its policy on on-campus security investigations. If no response is received from Ottawa by Nov. 1 a "suitable demonstrations" of protest will be held in the capital.

They did not decide what form such demonstrations should take.

David Casey of the University of Ottawa, which sponsored the motion, said experience has shown quiet gatherings of up to 1,500 students without banners "are the most effective."

The committee also demanded the federal government "enact legislation which would preserve and strengthen the recourse of each Canadian citizen to judicial procedures in all matters which could at any time compromise his constitutional rights as a Canadian citizen."

A resolution calling for professors to tell their students whether they would divulge information on student political activity or opinions, was hotly debated before being defeated.

Police Believe Gunman Mistook Woman Killed

GUELPH (CP) — Repeated blasts from a double-barrelled shotgun brought sudden death here Wednesday to a mother of two girls, wounded her male companion and injured an old friend who had dropped by at that moment for a visit.

Police believe the gunman mistook the woman victim for someone else.

Franklin Joseph Kostal, 29, was arrested and charged with capital murder and two counts of wounding. He was remanded in custody for a hearing of the charges Monday.

Mrs. Isabel Matthews, 33, estranged from her husband, was killed by two blasts from a shotgun fired through the closed side window of a car in which she had just arrived in front of her home with Ronald Ford, 28. Her companion was wounded in the arms and was under treatment in hospital.

A few moments after the shooting, an old friend of Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. Mary Tider, 67, of Timmins drove up in a car with her son to pay a visit.

DOOR BLASTED

The shotgun was turned on the Tider car and a blast into the door beside the front passenger seat injured Mrs. Tider's thigh. Her son, James Wishart of Sarnia, drove the car away quickly. His mother was treated in hospital and released.

Police said that just before the shootings, a man with a shotgun went to a house a few doors away and asked for Mrs. William Kostal, a widow with seven children, aged between one and 14.

Told Mrs. Kostal was out bowling, the man went out on the street and a few moments later fired at the car containing Mrs. Matthews and Mr. Ford.

Police said the accused is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Kostal.

Mayor Praises Beauties of Scarborough

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) — A built-in remedy for that old oratorical ailment—hot air—is one of the attractions this ancient spa resort offers to political rereferences.

Mayor W. H. Smith, with more accuracy than delicacy, called attention to the Yorkshire resort's mineral springs when he welcomed this week's Labor party convention.

Delegates who showed themselves long-winded by reason of hot air should be urged to the purging waters, the mayor suggested to more than 1,200 delegates.

"We're very proud that Scarborough is top of the league for Labor conferences," said Smith, who himself is a Labor man. "This is the eighth time the conference has been to Scarborough—twice more than it has to our rival resort on the west coast."

The resort Smith so carefully left unnamed is Blackpool, where the Conservative party will hold its conference next week.

Actually, the Labor delegates and the some 1,000,000 other folk who holiday in this city of 40,000 each year have little or no interest in the mineral waters but rather in such things as a magnificent beach, breathtaking scenery and a much-battered 12th century castle built atop a 300-foot bluff.

Doctor Claims Threats Given By Ex-Convict

TORONTO (CP) — A doctor testified Thursday that an ex-convict threatened him with a beating, death and blackmail during a meeting in his office two years ago.

The doctor, being called Dr. Z to protect his identity, was giving evidence at the trial of Vernon H. Bewley, 46, of Toronto, charged with attempted extortion.

Judge Robert Forsyth ruled the doctor's name be kept secret because "he is a very respectable citizen who would be done a lot of unjust harm if his name were published."

Dr. Z said he has known the Bewleys since about 1949 and has treated several members of the family, including Mrs. Bewley. He knew Bewley had been in penitentiary.

In May, 1957, the doctor said he received a letter from a Kingston lawyer which he referred to his own lawyer.

He heard nothing further until Bewley telephoned him in March, 1961 and insisted on seeing him.

When Bewly threatened to beat him up Dr. Z lied and told him his heart was bad and a beating might result in his death.

"He said if he couldn't beat me up he deserved some compensation. He said if I paid him $1,000 nothing more would be heard."

Bewley was arrested when he visited Dr. Z's office the next day to pick up the money, the doctor said.

Annual Shoot For Brown Bess Will Be Held

CAMP BORDEN, Ont. (CP) Sharpshooters from Canadian and United States armies combine in unusual competition today in which no one worries too much about the score and the Americans get to keep the trophy.

It is the annual shootoff for Brown Bess, a 17th century muzzle-loader that was made into a trophy in 1950 by Sgt. Ralph Cathline, instructor at the school of infantry here.

The shoot started in 1957, brings together top rifle and pistol marksmen representing armies from both countries to exchange ideas, shooting information and techniques and promote goodwill in an atmosphere that can only be described as informal.

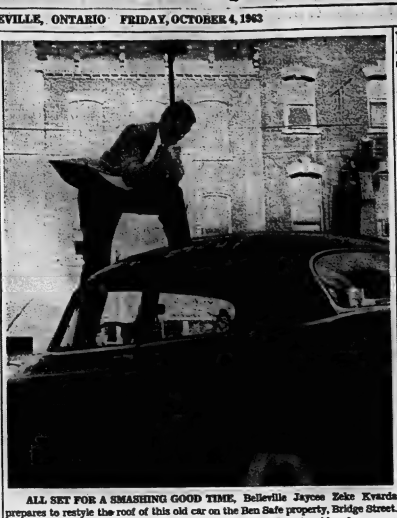
As a gesture of goodwill, the Canadians let the Americans keep the trophy home to Fort Benning, Ga., no matter the outcome, which is never officially announced.

Each team must compete with the carbine or pistol used by the host country.

While Canadian marksmen have held their own in these annual shoots, their selection in this elite group of 18 riflemen and six pistol shooters is much more complicated than their counterparts from the U.S.

The U.S. team is drawn from the marksmen's unit at Fort Benning and the Canadian contingent from various units across the country.

Strike Averted



ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP) — A strike of 600 bushworkers scheduled for 8 a.m. today was averted with a last-minute settlement Thursday between Kalvern Vegetable Parchment Company and its workers.

Conciliation officer R. V. Bardsley helped the company and Local 2995 of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (CLC) to an agreement.

Terms of the settlement will not be known until after ratification at membership meetings in bush camps near this community, about 50 miles west of Sudbury.

HAS NO STATUS

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Samuel Besnick, a lawyer wanted in Toronto on a charge of theft, now is in Israel without legal status, the director of this country's immigration services said Thursday night. Dr. Joseph Godin said his country is "not interested in where Besnick decided to go." However, the lawyer's family would be permitted to remain in Israel.

ALL SET FOR A SMASHING GOOD TIME, Belleville Jaycees Zeke Kvarda prepares to restyle the roof of this old car on the Ben Safe property, Bridge Street. The Jaycees have two old cars on the lot, are charging 25 cents a blow for anyone who wants to leave their mark. Proceeds go to the Belleville United Appeal.

GETTING INTO THE SWING OF THINGS at the Junior Chamber of Commerce car smashing project on Bridge Street, Les Gnaedinger, Campaign Manager for the Belleville United Appeal aims a sledgehammer blow at one of the old cars. Jaycees have two old cars parked on the Ben Safe property, anyone who wants can beat them up — for 25 cents a blow.

Jaycees Have Smashing Good Time With Appeal Project

Belleville Jaycees are having a smashing good time with their latest project, and are raising money for the United Appeal in the bock. Only problem in sight is that their business assets — two old cars donated by Green's Auto Wreckers — may not last very long. People keep smatting them with sledgehammers.

The cars are parked on the Ben Safe property, on the corner of St. between Front and Pinnacle and the people using the sledgehammers are paying 25 cents a blow for the privilege. Students get a special, 15 cent rate.

General idea is that most people are destructive at heart, but don't often get a chance to bust things up as they would like. Like with a sledgehammer.

So the JayCees are supplying the hammer and some cars to smash. And the United Appeal gets the profits.

Liberal Wins In Huron Bruce By Service Vote

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP) — The service vote has re - elected Liberal Murray Gaunt in the provincial riding of Huron-Bruce, Returning Officer W. B. McCool of Wingham announced Thursday.

The service vote upset the Sept. 25 Ontario election of Progressive Conservative George McCutcheon, giving Mr. Gaunt a three-vote margin.

Mr. Gaunt's re-election places the present standings in the legislature at 77 Conservative, 24 Liberal and seven New Democratic Party members.

A total of eight service votes were counted in the Huron-Bruce riding, with Mr. Gaunt receiving six of them. He and Mr. McCutcheon were the only two candidates in Huron-Bruce.

House Committee Declines To Do Rush Job on Small Party Seating Question

OTTAWA (CP) — In Parliament to offer incentives for the House of Commons to become a kaleidoscope of shifting alliances leading to unstable government?

An indication was given Thursday that some MPs on the Commons privileges committee regard this question as a lurking danger behind the musical-chairs jockeying among New Democrats and Social Credit groups over their seating arrangements and status in the Commons.

Rod Webb (PC — Hastings-Frontenac) expressed the idea as a blunt warning. There was, he said, "danger of Canada getting in the same mess as Europe with parties springing up overnight."

After an hour-long wrangle over whether to begin at its first meeting to look for a solution, the committee decided in a non-standing vote to wait until its time to prepare its line of inquiry.

The only subject on which the 29-member committee reached unanimity was in electing Alexis de Tocqueville Carroll, secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, as committee chairman and entrusting him with the task of heading a seven-member steering committee to prepare the agenda for the committee inquiry.

ASKED GUIDANCE

The committee's study was initiated largely because Speaker Macnaughton asked for some guidance on where to seat the New Democrats and the two wings of the Social Credit party and on whether the Social Credit groups should be recognized as two parties.

He posed a "profound constitutional question"—can a group of MPs which did not exist as a party at the time of the election of a Parliament be recognized as a party before it has submitted itself to the electorate?

Now, a number of MPS who are urging the privileges committee to tread carefully are making this question: Is recognition of a new party between elections becomes easy to obtain or automatic, what's to prevent the sudden mushrooming of a great many parties, each ready to make deals to obtain some specific objective or to gain any government would be ended by loss of MPs to the mushroom groups?

It has been argued in the Commons, particularly by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, that the Commons provided an incessive to the growth of more parties by providing an extra allowance of $4,000 for the leader of any recognized party of 12 or more MPs.

Until then, only the leader of the official opposition was given any extra allowance.

The questions of easy recognition as a party and extra pay seem to be tied in the mind of some MPs with the thesis that proliferation of parties means unstable government, and unstable government drives away the foreign investment needed to develop the economy.

The committee meets again Monday.

OTTAWA (CP) — Gilles Grégoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) bluntly told the Commons Thursday night that his 13-man group will block an urgent government bill now before the House until a dispute between the minor parties is settled.

The Commons appeared ready to pass a measure to pay normal government expenses for October and November when Mr. Grégoire made his surprise statement just before the 10 p.m. EDT adjournment.

State Secretary Pickersgill, government House leader, said the interim supply bill will be called for debate again today. He remarked pointedly that the control of the public purse is Parliament's first duty.

Mr. Grégoire said the Creditistes, who are led by Real Caouette, will begin filibustering on the bill until the Commons privileges committee decides whether to recognize the Quebec Social Credit faction as the fifth party in the Commons. Such a decision would entitle Mr. Caouette to an additional $4,000 annually in salary.

Said Gangster Offered Half Share in Mayor

NEW YORK (AP) — Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy told Thursday night of a gangster who offered to sell a half-interest in the mayor of his city to another gangster.

The chief Kennedy said in a NBC television interview, is an example of the political power of the Cosa Nostra, the U.S.-wide crime syndicate.

Kennedy said the mayor and the city have not been identified.

"But," he added, "he (the mayor) was killed . . . He was blown up in gang warfare before the deal could be consummated."

He said the syndicate is far stronger than in the days of the Kefauver crime investigation.

Kennedy said he considers the testimony of Joseph Valachi in the recessed Senate hearing important because "we need the support of new legislation and we need the people's awareness that this kind of operation exists."

Massey College Will Be Given To University

TORONTO (CP) — At a private ceremony tonight the Massey Foundation will hand over Massey College to the University of Toronto.

The college, for top graduate students, is the first of its kind in Canada and is believed to have only one parallel in North America—the Princeton Institute for Advanced Studies.

It will house some 70 or more of the best students accepted for University of Toronto graduate studies and, says Vincent Massey, former governor-general of Canada, will be "the kind of place in which persons being admitted must be of a certain intellectual standard."

Robertson Davies, newspaper editor, author and playwright, is master of Massey College and has said there will be no formal teaching there. Intellectual association and solitary study will be its main function. An attempt will be made to forge a link between science and the humanities.

Mr. Davies, publisher of the Peterborough Examiner, is visiting professor of English literature at Trinity College, Toronto.

Atlas Missile Explodes Before Launch

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—An Atlas F intercontinental ballistic missile—most advanced of the Atlas series—exploded in flames Thursday night seconds before its scheduled launch at Vandenberg Air Force Base, 50 miles northwest of here.

The blast lighted up an overcast sky for miles around.

There was no immediate statement from air force officials on the cause of the explosion. No injuries were reported.

Everett Lohnes Looks Back On Lifetime of Sailmaking

By ED WALTERS

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — Everett Lohnes est omid the delicious tang of new rope, canvas and beeswax in his old-fashioned sail loft.

"It's too much work for one man," he said, indicating the newly-finished sails for the replica of the famous racing-fishing schooner Bluenose. "If they want another suit for her they'll have to get somebody else to do it."

He laid a hand on the monstrous roll that was the main sail.

"Of course, if I had somebody to help me haul the canvas around the floor . . ."

Mr. Lohnes, at 62, looks back on a lifetime of sail making. He made sails for schooners of the fleet that used to sail out of this south shore port or the rich fishing grounds of the Grand Banks and helped make the new sails that the original Bluenose required for each race in the 1920s.

He made the sails for Bounty, a copy of the ship of mutiny fame built here for a film company.

But lately his work has mainly been making small staysails or longliners and little trawlers until a Halifax brewery financed the building of Bluenose II at Smith and Rhuland's shipyard here. She was launched in August.

The vessel, her nine sails measuring 10,000 square feet of canvas, is an exact copy of the Bluenose II at Smith and Rhuland's shipyard here. She was launched in August.

The vessel, her nine sails measuring 10,000 square feet of canvas, is an exact copy of the Bluenose first Bluenose except for changes in accommodations and installation of engines.

LAST BIG JOB

Mr. Lohnes thinks this will be his last big sail-making job.

"Unless they build a replica of some other old ship . . . but I mightn't be around then."

He picked up the lower after-corner of the mainsail and fingered the heavy clawtton—a fitting made by welding together three iron rings.

"It'll take a heavy pluck to haul that out. And it took some muscle to sew it in."

One of two sail-making establishments in Lunenburg, Mr. Lohnes's loft gets enough work to keep one man busy during the year. "If there were two of us there would just be enough work for six months out of the year."

Most of the sewing is by machine now but Mr. Lohnes still has to take needle in hand and slip on a sail-palm to sew the bolt-roping around the edges of sails or for fine work.

The future of sail making?

"As long as there are yachts there'll be a need for sailmakers."

Mr. Lohnes makes new yacht sails. "A lot of yachtsmen can't afford the sails they order. I like to be paid in advance instead of having to go looking for the money after the job is done."

He is content with making longliners' staysails and canvas covers.

Nova Scotia One of Last Places Where Oxen Still Used as Beasts of Burden

By ED WALTERS

CHESTER, N.S. (CP)—Lester Kedy and his ox Sandy stood resting by the roadside. Some tourists from Ontario stopped and began clicking away with their cameras.

The ox, unconcerned, swept the flies off his back with a swish of his tail as a woman elegantly patted his head.

"Lots of American tourists and people from Ontario take snaps of him," Mr. Kedy said proudly as he posed beside the animal for another photograph.

But, he added, "Sandy is a working ox." He pointed to the four-wheel cart with its towering load of hay, attached to the complacent beast by a pair of shafts and a head-yoke.

Nova Scotia is one of the last places in Canada where oxen still are used as beasts of burden, and they're most common along the province's south shore.

Ox-pulling contests are popular at agricultural exhibitions in late summer and fall and the animals have long been one of Nova Scotia's tourist attractions.

In spring the animals can be seen plowing fields around Lunenburg and Bridgewater and some farmers use them to haul wood in winter.

DISLIKES HORSES

Mr. Kedy, who lives at nearby Western Shore, deplored the decline of the ox in the lumber industry and farming. "They're feeding the economy on gasoline now," he says of the tractors.

A teamster of long standing, Mr. Kedy contends that anyone who can drive a car ought to be able to handle an ox.

"You can get an ox to back a cart around any corner. It's like cutting the front wheels of a car to back into a parking space. Maybe if more people learned to handle an ox before driving a car there wouldn't be so many accidents."

Explaining why he prefers oxen to horses, he says: "I'm afraid of horses with their great long heads and stamping feet. Besides, they're not so strong as oxen."

He has another ox which he plans to "break in" for work. Sandy is 10 years old and docile but "the young one ain't so tame."

Oxen are not all quiet, patient beasts, Mr. Kedy says, and there is only one way to fix a surly one—"a bullet in the forehead."

"You can always tell when an ox is wild. He sits back on his haunches and moos."

Hearing this, Sandy twitched his ears and pawed the ground with his forefoot.

Mr. Kedy wanted to deliver the hay before sundown and with the order to "giddy up" Sandy lowered his head to take the strain on his powerful neck muscles and walked away with the half-ton load.

$10 Can Put Korean Family On Way to Independence

VANCOUVER (CP) — How high is the price of independence? How much does it cost to give a family a financial boost out of poverty?

It can cost very little by Western standards in some parts of the world. As little as $10, says the man who yearly submits letters $1,500,000 to the poor children of Korea.

Ray Dawson is a man with "thousands of children," working for the Save the Children Fund.

Fasting through here on his way back to Korea from England, Mr. Dawson commented on the plight of Koreans:

"What the people want is work. If they only had a little capital they could manage. Ten dollars can set a family on the road to independence.

"With this a family can start 'Mom' off as a Kotex cake maker. With the money they can buy her a small stove, pots, pans and ingredients. Then she settles at the roadside and hopes to make 30 cents in a 12-hour day.

"But this 30 cents is enough to help her family to a better way of life nutritionally, at least."

WORK AT CLINIC

Mr. Dawson, with a staff of seven doctors and nurses, works at the Peter Spohn Clinic at Kum Chon. The clinic is supported by funds from British Columbia and is a memorial to the late Dr. Peter Spohn of Vancouver.

His work, says Mr. Dawson, is "intermingled with joy and ashes."

There are the mothers who bring their babies to the clinic for treatment of the two main medical problems in Korea—tuberculosis and malnutrition.

"Once a month mothers can come to the clinic for their food ration of 45 pounds of flour or cornmeal and cooking oil and dried milk for the babies.

"The people also need protein so they use bean curd, a cheap grout made of soya beans that are grown in Korea. It's cheap and in one thing they can buy or grow for themselves."

As well as serving as a health centre, the clinic is a lunch room to Kum Chon children, who eat their midday meal there.

He says the Korean government is working on the problem of population explosion and that in 56 government health centres, family planning units give advice and dispense birth control devices.

WORK WITH MOVIES

In co-operation with the government-sponsored National Reconstruction Movement, the Koreans are given information on health and hygiene through movies, tape recordings and live talks.

Mr. Dawson says people think of his work chiefly in two ways.

"There are those who think it must be depressing to work with poverty-stricken, starving children but they don't realize the joy there is in watching these children grow fat and happy.

"And then others look at my pictures of the well-fed youngsters and want to know why I want food and clothing for them."

Mr. Dawson believes there is going to be a permanent need for the Save the Children Fund but would like to see a fully Korean fund.

CFA President Says Farm 'The Ideal Place to Live'

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

POLIO CASES DROP—So far this year (to Sept. 21) 74 cases of paralytic polio have been reported in Canada. There have been five deaths, all in Quebec. Graph traces polio trend since 1951. (CP Newsmap)

EDMONTON (CP) — James McRae Bentley flipped through a thick sheaf of letters on his desk, smiled and said: "It's nice to get home at night."

His home is a 480-acre farm —"the ideal place to live"—in the Horse Hills district 10 miles northeast of Edmonton, where he can relax after a busy day as president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

The 57-year-old grain and dairy farmer was a little surprised to find himself in this job last July.

"You might say I was drafted. It appears there is no turning around on certain roads."

But he added he was "quite happy" with the post despite having the added burden of being president of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, which he has been since 1953.

"There is an amazing variety of problems. It's a challenge to deal with so many different groups and governments. I have gained a far better insight into all aspects of Canadian farming."

LONG EXPERIENCE

Mr. Bentley has been involved in the inner circles of various farm organizations since 1935, when he became a director in the United Farmers of Alberta.

He also served as a director of the UFA's successor, the Farmers' Union of Alberta, and of Canadian Co-operative implements Limited.

Now he heads an organization that is the national voice of almost all Canadian fmrers.

"The CFA performs a pretty essential function," he said. "Someone has to co-ordinate the efforts of all the member groups and give national support to their opinions."

There is great deal of work to be done to improve the farmers' condition "but the farmer must do most of it himself," he said.

MUST ADJUST

"Farmers are going to have to look into the possibilities of setting up marketing boards to regulate and control prices. They must adjust to changing conditions."

The farmers must also take into their own hands the responsibility for ensuring that the consumer gets only the best quality product.

Mr. Bentley expressed concern about the federal government plan to appoint two agriculture ministers, one for Western Canada and one for Eastern Canada.

"Any tendency to divide east from west will work against the best interests of farmers everywhere."

Born in Dawson City, Yukon, he was only a year old when the family moved to the Horse Hills area.

Like many farm youths he had the urge to seek his fortune in the big city. He earned a bachelor of commerce degree at the University of Alberta in 1936 and started to look around.

"It was depression time, and it quickly became evident that the farm was the best place to be," he said.

In 1936 he married Marian Saunders of Morinville, Alta., and bought his own farm not far from the family acreage. The Bentleys have a son, Donald, 26, now in the construction business in Vancouver, and three daughters — Linda, 24, Merie, 20, and Ila, 18.

Mr. Bentley raised hogs and beef cattle—"my first love" — but difficulties in obtaining hired help and increasing work with farm organizations forced him to switch to grain and dairy farming.

A hired man now runs his farm. "I don't seem to have much time for it any more."

NEED EDUCATION

Mr. Bentley's advice to budding farmers is to "get at least a high school education and if possible obtain a degree in agriculture from a university, or attend an agricultural school."

"It takes a great deal of know-how to make a living on the farm these days. Managerial ability is a necessity."

The land has been good to Mr. Bentley. "I wouldn't be on it otherwise," he said, and he feels it is the best place to live.

"There's nothing like it for community spirit."

Bogus Money Plot Designed To Oust Castro

NEW YORK (AP) — A suspected conspirator has described a plot to produce the downfall of Fidel Castro's Cuban government by turning out $50,000,000 in bogus Cuban notes.

Federal authorities said four were involved.

They include Robert D. Morrow, a 35-year-old electronics engineer, and his wife, Cecily, 22, in Baltimore.

In New York, authorities identified the third conspirator—who described the plot—as Mario Garcia Kohly, 62, of Arlington, Va. He was arrested Tuesday night by secret service agents.

U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau said Kohly had counterfeit plates to be used in producing phoney 50-peso Cuban notes.

A warrant has been issued for the fourth suspected conspirator, identified as Bill Evans, of Washington, D.C.

HELPS EVERYONE

HALIFAX (CP) — John Rudden, director of the Halifax tourist bureau, says everyone benefits from the tourist's dollar. Addressing a service club here, he said the dollar is spent like this: food and beverages 31 cents, accommodation 24 cents, retail purchases 30 cents, transportation 10 cents and entertainment and miscellaneous items nine cents.

VOICE OF FARMERS — James McRae Bentley, 57-year-old president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, has been involved with farm problems since 1935. He became a director of the United Farmers of Alberta. Mr. Bentley's home is a 480-acre farm near Edmonton but he has been so busy elsewhere that he has had to leave it in the hands of a hired man. International Currency May Take Place of Dollars

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Within the next decade Canadians will be able to exchange their tourist dollars for a simple and sensible decimal currency wherever they may roam in the world. Everywhere, that is, except impossibly in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland — where the smallest change is both heavy and slow.

Britain accepted decimal coinage "in principle" two years ago and this fall a government committee produced a comprehensive report favoring a decimal system based on the pound sterling divided into 100 cents or pennies.

But the committee's report was not unanimous. Two of the six-member group headed by Lord Halsbury held out for a major unit worth 10 shillings, following the system adopted by South Africa and proposed for Australia and New Zealand.

OPINION SPLIT

Public opinion is split on this issue. In fact some sections, noting that conversion would take at least five years and cost some undecimalized £100,000,000, don't see the point of switching at all.

And because all British governments seem to assume pondering, shilly-shallying and positive moods whenever faced with the decimal problem, many Britons fear they will be slaves to their duodecimal currency masters for some time to come.

Pressimists observe that the move to coin a "noble . . . divided into 10 prinses and 10 seconds" was first suggested by architect Sir Christopher Wren as long ago as 1696.

Since then dozens of similar reports have gathered dust on Whitehall shelves. The closest decimals ever came to the royal mint was in 1849. The government of that day also accepted decimals "in principle" and coined the florin — worth two shillings or one-tenth of a pound—as a first step.

REFORM HALTS

But there things stopped, bogged down by equal parts of sentiment, inertia and plain distrust. Incensed Victorians worried that decimal currency would lead to such radical innovations as a 10-inch foot and, politically unthinkable, a 10-hour day.

France and the United States had been dealing in decimals since the 1790s—Canada converted in 1857—but Britain has never got beyond the discussion stage. Meanwhile, the Common-wealth has forged ahead.

A century after Canada took the lead, India decimalized the rupee in 1957 and Pakistan followed suit in 1961. South Africa also changed in 1961, while still a member of the Commonwealth; Australia has set 1966 as the date and New Zealand 1967.

All other Commonwealth countries and British dependencies not already on decimals have plans well advanced. The Irish Republic, the only non-Commonwealth country involved, was planning to wait for Britain but now may go ahead on its own.

South Africa introduced a rand worth 10 shillings as the major unit. This system has the advantage of utilising most of the old coins during the transition period. Next year the republic will distribute new coins similar in size and value to Canadian money.

PONDER NAME

In Australia the only problem to date has involved the name of the new shilling unit. After toying with "quid," "kanga," "roo," and "melba," the government unexpectedly settled on "royal," the name of an early English coin.

Although a manifestation of loyalty to Britain, this made most Australians boil. Three weeks later the government changed its mind and adopted the pressie but convenient name "dollar."

Names are only one of the difficulties besetting Britons. One of the reasons why the Halsbury committee recommended retaining the pound was its reputation in international trade. Financial circles fear a change in name and value would scare off world investors who do one-third of their business in sterling.

However, the pound-100 system presents problems at the lower end of the scale. The cent unit—worth 2.4 of the present pennies—is too large for everyday commerce and a half-cent coin would need to be introduced.

Outside the banks and investment houses, opinion seems to be running in favor of the 10-shilling unit as the most convenient to adopt and the easiest to understand.

To confuse the issue even more, a group led by Cambridge mathematician Fred Hoyle is urging Britain to abandon both duodecimal and decimal systems altogether, Hoyle claims it is far simpler and easier to count in eights.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Circumstances may keep the fans at a minimum for the OBA Senior baseball finals here this weekend but they are not expected to cut down on what should be a fine brand of ball.

Both clubs, Belleville Kenners, and Galt Terriers, have strong lineups from top to bottom, in all departments.

The Terriers have a number of veteran players, some of them ex-pros who have been around for some time. Headley department store a couple of veteran pitchers, Ross "Lefty" Paton, and a right-hander, John Clark. Third man in the club's pitching rotation is a junior-age comer, whose name is not available at this time.

Paton, of course, needs no introduction to local enthusiasts. He was the mound ace of Oakville Oaks when they shared the senior provincial title with Belleville Bataa in 1953.

An outfielder, Fred Thompson, is also said to have played with the Oakville Club at that time.

The Terriers are led by playing-coach Wray Upper, a top star with Intercounty clubs for a number of years. Upper plays the infield and swings a mighty big bat. It was his bases-loaded triple that won the semi-finals last week. His trophy shelf adds more than one batting crown.

Another top star on the Galt club, said to be the team's key player, is a negro centre fielder, by the name of Leroy Cunningham. A Galt source says he rates second to none in the Intercounty league.

Kenner coach Sid Forster feels he will need all the power and pitching ability he can field to defeat the visitors. He is undecided who will pitch the first game, but both Bill Latchford, the club ace who owns something like a 15-1 record, with 227 strikeouts this season, and Larry Sodon will be available.

If Latchford can come close to his tremendous effort of last Saturday and of the entire Brockville series, he will be the key man for Belleville. Latchford had all four Kenner wins, including three shutouts, with approximately 60 strikeouts in the series.

And don't forget, tomorrow's first game, at one o'clock, should give you plenty of time to get home and see the Yanks and Dodgers, at 4.00.

THE JUVENILES

Jones Motors, this town's strong young juvenile baseball club, hopes to wind up the season by capturing the OBA Juvenile "A" championship Sunday afternoon.

Belleville meets the Chatham Knights of Columbus in the third and deciding game of their titular series in Campbellville Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock.

The teams have divided two hard-fought games, both winning on their home diamond, to date, and the third game should be a classic.

The Jones boys are confident they can take the measure of the Chatham club but don't think it will be any pushover. Both teams are well-balanced in pitching, fielding and hitting departments.

BROOOOM!

The Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club, which had its final scheduled meet of the year washed out last Sunday, will have another go at winding up the season here Sunday.

Races for various class boats are slated to commence just off Victoria Park, at two o'clock. Top boats from several district clubs will join the QHRC members and a good crowd is expected.

BCI Wallops Quinte 18-0

By ROBERT SNEYFELLA

BCIVE seniors wallloped the Quinte Saints 18-0 in Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. senior football yesterday afternoon at Quinte. The game was rather dreary because of the steady rainfall.

The Quinte squad was no match for the hard running and fierce blocking of the BCI offence and could not penetrate their stubborn defence.

The scoring started after four minutes of the first quarter. John Miller, BCI fullback, ran five yards for a touchdown. The convert was blocked. This was the only score of the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Bob Ridley of BCI exploded for a 40 yard touchdown run on a fake field goal attempt. Again the convert attempt failed, so the score after the first half was 12-0.

The best play of the third quarter was a 20 yard gallop by John Miller for a touchdown.

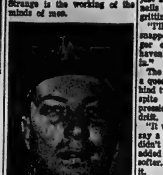
The fourth quarter went scoreless.

In the Junior contest Quinte whipped BCI 23-0. Scoring majors for Quinte were Jim Pringle, Brian Lake, Jim Parks, John Emerson and Grant Vanderwoort. Ted Leslies kicked a convert and single.

Las Vegas Favors Dodgers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Los Angeles Dodgers have pulled a complete switch, and now are favored 2-to-1 by Las Vegas bookmakers to win the World Series over New York Yankees.

But the Yanks, behind Jim Boulon, are 5-to-6½ favorites in Saturday's third game at Dodger Stadium.



Los Angeles is a 5½-to-6 underdog with Don Drysdale on the mound.

Podres Stifles Yanks With 6-Hitter

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Strange is the working of the minds of men.

JOHNNY PODRES

Soft - spoken, almost timid Walter Alston, his Los Angeles Dodgers riding the crest of a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 World Series, was afraid to talk about winning for fear of losing.

Fierce, forceful Ralph Houk, his proud New York Yankees still winless after two games with the Dodgers at home, insisted today his team will still win the Series although the next three games are scheduled in Los Angeles.

In the visiting clubhouse at Yankee Stadium in New York after the Dodgers had whipped the Yankees 4-1 Thursday on top of a 5-2 opening triumph, it was suggested to Alston that the Dodgers' chances appeared bright indeed.

"It doesn't mean a damn thing unless we win two more," replied the cautious manager. "I remember those days. First we look the first two from the Yankees and they came back to beat us. No, no, anything can still happen."

HOUK FIRES BACK

Some 50 yards away in the Yankee clubhouse, Houk sat chewing away at a cigar contemplating answers to the questions buried at him. He might just as well have been chewing nails the way his teeth were gritting.

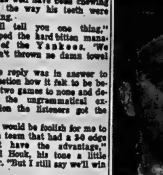
"I'll tell you one thing," snapped the hard bitten manager of the Yankees. "We haven't thrown no damn towel in."

The reply was in answer to a question how it felt to be behind two games to none and despite the ungrammatical expression the listeners got the point.

"It would be foolish for me to say a team that had a 3-0 edge didn't have the advantage," added Houk, his tone a little softer. "But I still say we'll win it.

"We've been two down before and we won. And we've won three in a row many times before."

Up to now, as the teams prepared for the clash today and Saturday, it has all been the Dodgers.



The National Leaguers not only have flashed the stronger pitching and better speed, but have provided the heavier hitting and more spectacular defence.

PODRES TAKES LAURELS

It was Johnny Podres' turn to take the pitching laurels Thursday. The veteran lefthander stifled the Yankees with six hits until he left because of cramping pains after eight 1-3 innings. Ron Perranoski, relief ace, came in from the bullpen and shut the door on the Yankees after allowing a runner being single.

In almost a duplication of their first game triumph behind Sandy Koufax, the Dodgers scored early, pouncing upon young Al Downing for a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Singles by Maury Wills and Tom Gilliam and the first of two doubles by Willie Davis, helped along when Roger Maris slipped and fell, produced the runs.

The Yankees never recovered from the shock. Willie Podres was mowing down the Yankees with precision until he tired, the Dodgers added to their total scoring in the fourth on Moose Skowron's home run and again in the eighth when Tommy Davis followed Willie's two-bagger with a booming triple to the left-center field fence.

The blow was Tommy Davis' second triple of the game. His first, a sliced drive down the right field line, put Maris out of the game in the third inning. Maris banged into the fence chasing the ball and bruised his left arm. He was replaced by Hector Lopez.

NOT SERIOUS

Yankee team physician Dr. Sidney Gaynor said the injury was not serious and that Maris probably would be available for Saturday's game. Houk said he definitely wanted Maris in the lineup.

The Dodgers now have seven extra base drives among 19 hits for the two games. The power-hitting Yankees have 15 hits, including three for extra bases.

It was Podres' fourth World Series victory, the most by any Dodger pitcher. He has beaten the Yankees three times, twice in 1955 when his 2-0 triumph in the seventh and deciding game brought the only world championship to Brooklyn.

'I've Had It, Get Someone Else'

Podres Pulled Self In Ninth

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Podres seems too old and bald to be a pitcher. But when he's standing Joe Becker's College of Rhythmic Arts, a dimly-lit seamless classroom where you have to flunk a course to meet the entrance requirements, Bill Rigney is the second student to graduate with honors during the World Series.

Becker took Sandy Koufax to his classroom Wednesday — a dark runway behind the Dodger dugout—and he went on to strike out a record 15 in a 5-2 Los Angeles victory. Becker took Podres there Thursday and the 31-year-old lefthander came out with a 4-1 victory over New York Yankees.

Becker, the Dodgers' pitching coach, instructed Podres when he came into the dugout after pitching the first two innings at Yankee Stadium. Podres had not allowed any runs, but had been anything but sharp. They made their way to the runway.

POINTED OUT FAULTS

"Johnny didn't have any rhythm or co - ordination," said Becker. "He wasn't bringing his foot down right, and he wasn't getting enough zip in his pitches. As I watched him pitch and was rising, I showed him what he was doing wrong."

"I was a little tense at the start," admitted Podres,"and after the first two innings, I didn't think I'd be around too long. But I went down with confidence, and I seemed to get squared away. I was hitting the spots real good from the third inning on."

Podres righted himself so well he allowed the Yankees only four more hits until, with one out in the ninth, he tired and needed Ron Perranoski's relief help.

And so Podres came away with his fourth series victory and put the Dodgers two-up on the Yankees with the team moving to Los Angeles for Saturday's third game.

ASKED FOR RELIEF

Podres said he was really tired after batting in the top of the ninth. When the game got to the dugout, he told Becker: "I've just about had it. Better get somebody ready."

Podres got Mantle on a long fly for the first out, then Hector Lopez lashed a ground rule double and manager Walt Alston had a meeting at the mound.

"Alston said he'd let me stay in if I wanted to, but I told him to bring in a fresh pitcher. I was tired. I wasn't going to fool him. I think if I told him I wanted to stay in he would have let me, but there's not much sense in being a hero."

Perranoski came on, allowed a single by Elston Howard that scored the first run charged against Podres in 29 innings of series pitching, then vowed it up by getting Joe Pepitone on a grounder and striking out Clete Boyer.

Figuring The World Series

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

NEW YORK (AP)—When Los Angeles Dodgers won their last World Series in 1959 against Chicago White Sox, Johnny Podres was the winning pitcher in the second game. Podres gave the Dodgers a 4-1 victory and a 2-0 lead Thursday in their current series with New York Yankees.

Clete Boyer, the only New York regular who wasn't struck out by the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax in the first game, fanned three times in the second game. Podres got him on strikes twice and reliever Ron Perranoski ended the day with No. 3.

Tommy Davis tied a pair of fielding records for a left fielder. When Davis made all three put-outs in the seventh inning, he became the third left-fielder in a series to do so. The other record Davis equalled was six put-outs in a game, held by five other left-fielders.

Skowron, who has collected two hits in each of the first two games, ended the regular season in a slump. He had only one hit in his last 23 at bats and had hit only four home runs all season.

Losing pitcher Al Downing of New York, touched for Bill Skowron's home run, didn't give up too many homers during the regular American League season. In his last 28 games he allowed just one homer and issued only seven all season in 179 3-3 innings.

The Dodgers are the first team to win the opening two series games on the road in 13 seasons. The Yanks won the first two of the 1950 series at Philadelphia and went home to sweep the Phils four straight.

Tommy Davis of the Dodgers became the fifth player to hit two triples in a series game. The last batter to turn the trick was Yankee Bobby Richardson Oct. 13, 1960 against Pittsburgh.

Hasn't Signed With Chicago

Mikita Missing From All-Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One big story in the National Hockey League's all-star game in Toronto Saturday night might be that the all-star centre isn't there.

Stan Mikita, who has yet to sign his contract with Chicago Black Hawks, said in the team's training camp in St. Catharines, Ont., Thursday he will leave for Chicago tonight.

Mikita is one of the few players still unsigned by the Hawks, who open the regular season at home next Wednesday against New York Rangers.

This was one of Thursday's highlights as NHL teams slowed down toward the end of their training grind. There were only two exhibition games involving NHL clubs.

In Winnipeg, New York's training camp, the Rangers defeated Toronto-Rapids Leafs 3-1. In St. Thomas, Ont., Montreal Canadiens beat Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, also 3-1.

The Rangers announced that Swedish leftwinger Ulf Sterner will be invited to play five NHL games with the team.

"He has shown us enough to indicate that we need a longer look at him," said general manager Muzz Patrick. "We haven't had sufficient opportunity to judge him against NHL calibre opposition."

Mikita, named centre of the first all-star team last spring, finished the record year of a two-year contract at the same salary.

Asked Thursday if he was seeking another two-year pact or one of longer duration, the Chicago centre said:

"We haven't even discussed that aspect yet. We're still miles apart on what I'm asking and what they're offering for this season."

Manager Tommy Ivan was outwardly unconcerned.

"Naturally we'd like to have Stan in the all-star game," he said. "However, I imagine it will go on whether or not he comes to terms."

An NHL rule stipulates that all-star game players must be signed by 3 p.m. the day of the game.

The Rangers used two first-period goals to beat the Leafs before 4,500 fans. Red Gilbert, Ken Schinkel and Don McKenny scored for New York and Dave Keon answered for the Leafs.

The Canadiens unleashed 50 shots at Terry Sawchuk in the Cleveland nets, with Henry Richard, Gilles Tremblay and Bobby Rousseau scoring the goals. Rookie Wayne Turnbull scored for the Barons.

Argos, Larks Clash Tonight

—Last Chance—

TRADE SECRETS — Sandy Koufax, right, Los Angeles Dodgers' left-hander and winner of opening game of the 1963 World Series game against the New York Yankees, whispers into the ear of teammate Johnny Podres who had the starting assignment for the Dodgers in the second game at New York's Yankee Stadium yesterday. Koufax beat the Yankees 5-2 and set a World Series record of 15 strikeouts. (AP Wirephoto)

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts may have their last chance tonight to prove they're a football team, while Sandy Stephens has another chance to prove he's the quarterback the Argos are looking for.

The last-place Argos play Montreal Alouettes. A victory would lift them to within two points of the Als and the last playoff spot in the Eastern Football Conference.

And Stephens, who has drawn the starting assignment, will go against his former teammates for the first time.

Toronto has managed only two wins in nine starts this season, and a loss to Montreal would virtually end their season. It would leave the Argos six points behind the Als with only four games to play.

The other eastern teams, Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, are playing interlocking games with Western Conference teams this weekend. They start out tied for first place in the EFC, two points ahead of Montreal.

Ottawa visits Regina Saturday to play Saskatchewan Roughriders in a game the Bombers in Winnipeg Monday. The Ticats tackle the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg Saturday. All are night games.

Quarterback Stephens will be eager for revenge against the Alouettes tonight. Montreal coach Jim Trimble suspended Stephens and then let him go as the team floundered a month ago. He said Sandy was overweight.

'Robbery' Says Manager

Pete Schmidt, Durelle Draw

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto's Peter Schmidt, Canadian welterweight champion, and Joey Durelle, of Trois-Rivieres, Que., battled to a draw Thursday night in a 12-rounder at east-end Paul Sauve Sports Centre.

Schmidt's manager, George Sheppard, was not happy with the decision.

"Jesse James couldn't have pulled off a bigger robbery," said Sheppard. "But it really a joke. The fight wasn't even close.

"Pete was booking and jab bing well, but the judges weren't watching that. They were too impressed by Durelle's flailing rushes."

It was the third time Schmidt has met Durelle. The first encounter ended in a draw and Schmidt won a split decision the second time in Montreal last December.

Under the five - point must system, one judge gave it to Durelle 57-54, the second called it even at 55-55 and the referee scored it 57-56 in favor of Schmidt.

The Schmidt-Durelle bout was not for the Canadian championship because the Canadian Boxing Federation wouldn't sanction it.

'Don't Believe In Losing'

Houk Says Yankees Will Break Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No team has ever won a World Series after losing the first two games on its home field.

But manager Ralph Houk is determined his New York Yankees will become the first team in 60 years to do so. And he plans to start the ball rolling in Dodger Stadium which has not been kind to his hitters.

"I don't believe in losing," Houk said today; "and I ain't gonna start now."

"Sure, we can win. I always have the feeling we'll win. We certainly haven't played bad ball. We just haven't scored runs. . . . I got a feeling we'll start to do some hitting and some scoring. That's all it'll take."

Houk brought a grim, determined band of Yankees with him when their plane arrived Thursday night from New York. Only a few hours before Johnny Podres, with two-out help from Ron Perranoski, whipped the Yankees 4-1 and gave the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the series.

WON'T CHANGE LINEUP

He has no plans to juggle his line-up and isn't about to panic over the American League champs' poor getaway.

Right hander Jim Bouton is Houk's choice to oppose the side-arming Don Drysdale in the third game Saturday.

Asked if the first two games of the series had taught him anything, Bouton said:

"They've been hitting a lot of balls on the nose—lot more than I thought they would. It looks like they're a tougher hitting club than I thought. But that can change. . . .

One advantage the Yankees figured to have in the series was that they knew all about the Los Angeles ballpark while most of the Dodgers wouldn't know Yankee Stadium.

HOMERS COME HARDER

But no matter how much experience they've had here, New York's left-handed batters still must hit the ball nearly 50 feet further to get a home run in right-center field at Dodger Stadium than they do in their own park.

The Yankees won six of nine games with Los Angeles Angels at Dodger Stadium this season, but scored only 32 runs there all year. That's an average of more than 3½ a game.

In 302 at-bats against the Angels in Los Angeles this season, the Yankees hit only four home runs. Roger Maris has hit only one there in two seasons and Mickey Mantle hasn't hit any.

Only two Yankees have driven in more than a half dozen runs at Dodger Stadium in two years. Elston Howard has batted in 14, Tom Tresh nine.

And in the series games here during the weekend, the Yankees are likely to see hitter pitching than they did against the Angels.

Queen's Favorites In Rah-Rah Circuit

By PHIL DECHMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This year's intercollegiate senior football race should be a dogfight, but Queen's University Golden Gaels appear easy winners of the blue ribbon.

The Gaels are at least as strong as last year when they lost the title in the last minute of a playoff game with McGill University Redmen. The other three teams in the league, including McGill just aren't that strong.

All four coaches agree—even quiet Frank Tindall of Queens —that the Gaels have an awesome offence.

"Queen's is definitely the team to beat," says John Metras, coach of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Dalt White, University of Toronto Blues coach, agrees: "Queen's has a good offensive club," he concedes. "They're strong on paper, and experienced."

TEAMS SEE ACTION

A partial answer may come Saturday afternoon when the season opens with the Blues playing Queen's in Kingston and Western travelling to Montreal to tackle the Redmen.

Tindall, who had to fill some defensive holes, knows what his team can do and expresses it candidly:

"If we can get the ball, we can move it," he says.

The Gaels will move the ball. They have a tough, experienced line, led by guard John Erkson, and four members of last year's backfield are returning.

Five-year veteran Cal Conner is the league's only regular quarterback returning from last year. Fullback Jim Young, a unanimous all-star last season and halfbacks Bayne Norris and Billy (Tiff) Edwards are all returning.

For the Blues Jim Israel has taken over at quarterback, moving Harold Hall over to halfback. Bill Watters is back at fullback, with halfback Ken Davison and flanker Dave Gallo-way rounding out the backfield.

The offensive line, led by guard Noel Bates, is experienced, but the defensive line and the linebackers are green.

"The big question is how our defensive line stands up," says White.

Rookies counted on to fill these positions include tackles Ray Reynolds and sophomore John Fraser.

Perhaps hardest hit by personnel turnover this season is McGill, which lost 19 men, including Tom Skypeck, fullback. The big question is how our linemen and linebackers.

Fleet halfback Willie Lambert, who scored the winning touchdown in last year's playoff game, returns to the offensive backfield, but most of the rest are newcomers. Quarterback Glen St. John and fullback Peter Howlett are both rookies from other college leagues.

Western was hit almost as hard this year, and Metras has 17 new players on the lineup, including eight freshmen. Four members of the starting backfield are new.

Freshman Bob Israel, brother of Toronto's quarterback, will play the same position for the Mustangs. Ted Miller and Art Froese of Kitchener are the halfbacks and Dave Garland the fullback. Flanker Pete Martin is the only returning man.

Woman Sues Liston For $100,000

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston was named in a $100,000 damage suit filed in circuit court Thursday by a 23-year-old Negro woman who charged that he attacked her in an auto.

The suit, filed by Mrs. Pearl Grayson, wife of a Chicago policeman, claims that while Mrs. Grayson was riding in a passenger in an auto with Liston last March 23, on Chicago's south side he "wilfully and maliciously assaulted and beat and inflicted bruises upon her body and caused her personal injuries."

Mrs. Grayson's husband, John, served as Liston's bodyguard at Aurora, Ill., when the champion was in training for his first title fight with Floyd Patterson Sept. 25, 1962.

The suit includes $50,000 for assault and battery and an additional $50,000 for exemplary damage.

Lawyer Sheldon Mills, who filed the suit, said no complaint was made to police at the time. He said he agreed to delay filing after conferring with Liston's business adviser, Jack Nilon.

DRIVER CONFIDENT

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Driver Ralph Baldwin is confidently confident that Speedy Scot will win—today's $60,861 Kentucky Futurity and the triple crown of trotting. The great three-year-old colt from Castleton Farm is the 1-to-5 favorite to win the futurity against seven others. He has won the Yonkers and the Hambletonian —the first two legs of the crown.

Tears and Cheers

The Dressing Rooms

NEW YORK (AP)—A gloomy group of New York Yankees agreed on one thing.

"We should have got the kid out of the first inning with one strong steering. We missed the kickoff and then Big Bill blew."

Spokesman for the beaten American Leaguers in the second World Series game Thursday was Elston Howard.

The situation before Los Angeles Dodgers won 4-1 to go two games up on the Yankees:

Al Downing, 22, known as the Kid and making his first series start, faced as the first batter the fleet Maury Wills.

Wills smashed a single through the box that Downing almost got his glove on.

Then the Yankee first baseman, Joe Pepitone, called for a pickoff. Downing made a quick throw to first as Wills ran for second. Pepitone threw hard to second. He said afterwards he thought it was on the bag but from the press box it appeared wide.

"It looked to me as if Bobby Richardson was coming fast to get the throw and his momentum carried him off the bag," Pepitone said. "He had to come back and by then Wills was safe."

Then Jim Gilliam lashed a single to right, moving Wills to third, and Gilliam took second on the throw to the plate.

Willie Davis promptly smashed a liner to right that appeared will within the fielding capabilities of Roger Maris, but the Yankee rightfielder took a step in and then turned back. As he did, his cleats dug up a hunk of turf and he fell. By the time he could regain his feet Davis had a double and Wills and Gilliam had scored.

HELD LEAD

That put the Dodgers ahead 2-0 before anyone was out and with the game only minutes old. They never were headed as Johnny Podres, after a slightly shaky start, pitched superbly, with Ron Perranoski coming to his rescue in the ninth inning.

It was an unusually quiet Yankee dressing room as the equipment was bundled up for the trip to Los Angeles. Maris had left before the game ended.

In the Dodger dressing room, Johnny Podres said his biggest advantage was that he was pitching in the other fellow's park.

"The Yankees hit a lot of balls real good," Podres told reporters.

"Mantle probably would have had three home runs today if we had been playing this game in Dodger Stadium," Johnny said. "Mickey didn't get any hits off me but he hit me real good."

We know of no other whisky at any price, that can equal the pleasant, good clean taste of Corby's true Canadian whiskies

Change in Format Seem In Dr. Kildare Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Kildare, out of his intern's whites a little more than a week, got hit by a $50,000 judgment in a malpractice suit.

Sincere and dedicated Dr. Jim, now a resident physicist, wasn't guilty of anything but stopping his car on a lonely road to help a lady in distress. He delivered her child—which died—by the roadside without any aids except a first aid kit.

Result was the lawsuit—and a courtroom drama that was a real change from the usual Thursday night NBC medical menu. Mixed into the program was a strong editorial in favor of a "good Samaritan law." This would protect professional men from law suits—and the lack of one seems to make professional men leery about offering to help in emergencies.

The average viewer probably was more impressed with the idea he might have won the suit with a better lawyer—as Perry Mason on CBS at the same time.

A question about Perry Como's once - in - a - while NBC variety hours this season was how he was going to get along without writer Goodman Ace and company, now working for the competing Caesar.

It was answered Thursday night. Perry sings and tapes a lot but doesn't talk much. And he hires an extra large number of guest stars.

There was June Allyson, George Burns, Cyd Charisse, and Alan Sherman. They turned out a lively hour.

There is some interesting evening diversion coming up this weekend. Tonight, there's the first drama on NBC's Bob Hope anthology series, Rod Serling's A Killing at Sundial (8:30-9:30 EDT).

Sunday's specials, unfortunately in a conflicting time period. At CBS' Hallmark Hall of Fame, London and NBC's documentary, A Man Named Mayo—first name, Willie, of course (10:11 p.m.)

Rains Came No Game

Yesterday afternoon's rain washed out the sixth game of the Interdepartmental softball league finals between Public Works and the Fire Department.

Public Works lead the four-of-seven series three games to two.

The sixth game is now scheduled for the CNRA Park on Monday night, at 8:30. If a seventh game is necessary it will be played on Tuesday night.

Approves Track at St. Kitts

TORONTO (CP)—The Jockey Club announced Thursday it has approval of plans to establish a harness racing track at St. Catharines in 1964. It will be called Garden City Raceway.

Chairman E. P. Taylor announced in February, 1962, that The Jockey Club planned to build two standardbred tracks. One of them, Mohawk Raceway, opened last April 26 near Campbellville. Mr. Taylor said the St. Catharines track will open next autumn if tenders submitted by architects and engineers meet the budgeted figure.

Garden City Raceway, with a five-eighths of a mile track similar to that at Mohawk, will be built on the southern outskirts of St. Catharines towards Niagara Falls in the shadow of a nearly completed skyway across the Welland Canal.

CAMPBELLFORD

59 Dog Owners Have to Pay $630 in Fines

CAMPBELLFORD — About 3830, in fines and costs has been collected here recently from 59 dog'owners who failed to buy licenses for their animals. In magistrate's court last Thursday, Magistrate J. R. Baxter ordered personal service summonses on 12 other people who were charged under the village's dog bylaw but failed to appear in response to summonses sent by mail.

The offence carries a fine of $5 for each unlicensed dog and costs of $3. Payment of the fine and costs does not relieve the dog owner of the responsibility of obtaining a license.

Keith Albert Dunkley of Campbellford was fined $10 and costs when he was convicted on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while his license was under suspension.

John Carl Hacker of Oshawa was convicted and fined $10 and a charge of careless driving, and was also fined $25 and costs when he was convicted on a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence.

In family court Magistrate Baxter remanded four juveniles out of custody for sentence October 25th and a fifth juvenile guilty to breaking, entering and theft at the Trent Valley Lumber Co. Ltd. plant on Front Road, on Sept. 30th when about $35 in cash was taken.

Two juveniles and three adults pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking, entering and theft at the premises of Ralph Hall and of about $70 from Hall's Service Station on Grand Road, on August 3rd. The two brothers Hall and Peter F. Brown, 18, of Campbellford pleaded guilty to the charges and were remanded out of custody to October 25th for sentence. Two others, Jerry MacMillan, 18, and Lloyd Howard Richard Runnen had their cases adjourned to October 18th.

Runnen and Jerry Leveille were also charged with breaking, entering and theft at the Canadian Legion Hall on Bridge Street on August 27th. Both pleaded guilty and were remanded out of custody to October 24th for sentence.

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill Redmen may have to go with an unbried quarterback against University of Western Ontario Mustangs Saturday, said McGill's head coach Bill Bewley. Glen St. John, scheduled to start in the quarterback spot, has been sent to bed with the flu and is taking antibiotics. Gary Cullen, who has served for three years as a defensive halfback and understudy to last year's all-star quarterback Tom Skypeck, will take over St. John's spot.

The Canadian team, compromised of players from the Vancouver area, has defeated the United States 2-0 and tied the Americans, 1-1. Canada was defeated 3-0 by India Thursday.

CEMENTS LEAD

TUTZING, West Germany (AP) — Switzerland's Jean-Pierre Revenier and Serge Giraz Thursday won the fourth heat of the Flying Dutchman world sailing championships on Lake Starnberg. The victory cemented the Swiss' lead in the title competition. The Canadian pair of R. W. McKinn and David Corrigan of the Britannia Yacht Club, Ottawa, placed 18th in the heat.

ACQUIRE ROBAZZA

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League announced Thursday they have acquired defenceman Rino Robazza, who played last season with St. Louis—then in the Eastern Professional Hockey League and now in the new Central League. Robazza, 25, also formerly played with Buffalo of the AHL.

RULED WINNER

LONDON (AP) — Reiko is the official winner of the British Derby and his owner, Francis Dupre of Paris, can keep the £35,338 ($106,014) first place money, the Jockey Club ruled Thursday. The race was run on May 29 with Reiko finishing first handily. Stewards found a substance other than a normal nutrient in the horse following the race and touched off a four-month probe. Experts could not agree that the substance, never identified, was a stimulant.

OPTION BOISVERT

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League announced Thursday that goaltender Gilles Boisvert has been optioned to St. Paul of the Central Hockey League on 24-hour recall. Boisvert, 30, was purchased by the Clippers from Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League. He played last season with Pittsburgh Hornets of the AHL.

MOVED TO CITIES

Between 1941 and 1961 Canada's urban population increased from 36.5 per cent of the total population to 70 per cent.

Happy Gang Greets The Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sonic boom of drums, bugles, noise-makers and shouts from 2,000 throats greeted Los Angeles Dodgers as they flew home Thursday night after winning their second straight World Series game from New York Yankees.

"What happened to the Yankee power!" read a sign carried by one group in the deliriously happy throng that jammed into International Airport's terminal waiting area.

The shouting and noise-making started as soon as the Dodgers' private transport made its descent onto one of the myriad of runways.

About a half-hour before the Dodger plane touched ground another transport wheeled into view with another baseball team aboard.

Although the players were dressed in mufti, the baseball fans had no trouble identifying them as the Yankees. The glum expressions were a give-away on the team that had lost the first two series games on its home field.

Folley Meets Daniels On Oct. 11

MONTREAL (CP) — Top-ranking heavyweights Billy Daniels and Zora Folley signed a contract here Thursday night to fight Oct. 17 in east - end Paul Sauve Sports Centre.

Daniels, a New York fighter ranked fifth in the world by the World Boxing Association, and Folley, ninth - ranked fighter from Chandler, Ariz., signed the contract at a welterweight bout between Toronto's Peter Schmidt and Joey Durelle of Trois - Rivieres, Que., which ended in a draw.

Space Craft Pilot Control Was Necessary

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Three of the four United States manned orbital flights would not have been completed success fully if the pilots had not been able to take the spacecraft controls, a Project Mercury review conference was told Thursday.

Warren J. North, chief of the flight-crew operations for the space agency's manned spacecraft center, report that had the astronauts relied solely on automotic systems, only Walter M. Schirra would have finished a normal flight.

North said John H. Glenn Jr. would have had to terminate his flight after two instead of three orbits because of trouble with an attitude control jet. He said Malcolm Scott Carpenter and Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. experienced problems with automatic systems which would have sent their spacecraft rushing back through the atmosphere at improper angles, possibly burning up on the way down.

North reported that the ability of the astronauts to cope with potentially dangerous situations and o perform tasks effectively in space was the most important single contribution of Project Mercury, which ended with Cooper's 22-orbit flight last May 15-16.

Walter C. Williams, deputy director of flight operations at the manned spacecraft centre, told more than 2,000 delegates attending the Mercury summary conference that the program effectively laid the groundwork for future projects.

But, he added, the United States aircraft industry will have to improve some of its old standards to do satisfactory work on aerospace equipment.

He said space launchings will not take place in the face of known troubles or in the face of unresolved doubts of any magnitude.

Your newspaper is YOUR SHOPPING GUIDE

In newspapers the news of better products and services is as important to today's modern family as that of current events or features concerning home and family, food and fashion, hobbies and health.

For newspapers are the medium by which most people shop. No other medium supplies the variety and detail of advertising by which one may compare prices and benefits and choose the comforts and conveniences that make for a full living standard.

There's much significance in this for local advertisers. For only in the newspaper can people of all age and income groups find the information and inspiration so necessary for good citizenship and for the enjoyment of a better way of life.

And because newspapers gain their friendship and regular readership, newspaper advertisers are provided the most productive medium of communication with customers.

Sunday School Lesson

Poisoned by Controversy

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the charges most frequently levelled at the churches is the divisions that appear along the Christian front. And it must be admitted that many of the controversies which divide us are indefensible.

But when all the evil of controversy has been admitted, the fact remains that we are agreed upon far more than we are divided.

Together with my son, some years ago, I was spending some time in Mexico City. The hotel in which we were housed was located within a short distance of the city's magnificent cathedral, and one soon we noticed an interesting thing. Fully a minute before the cathedral chimes began ringing out the noon hour, the bells from another church tower some distance away began ringing. Then another carillon was heard in another direction. Soon perhaps as many as a dozen! And the sounding of the bells continued from all directions for nearly three minutes. My son, with a grin, said, "Dad, it looks like the churches could get together, at least on the time of day."

MINOR DISAGREEMENTS

Now I am quite willing to admit the acid in the humor of that remark. But, as I reminded him, they were only a little way apart. And when you consider three minutes out of 60 were confused, the total is not impossibly bad.

In the great central themes and concepts of the faith the churches are in pretty general agreement. Even those matters which divide Catholic from Protestant are not as great as those upon which both agree. And the faith of Christian and Buddhist is much more similar than belief and unbelief.

PERSONALITY PREFERENCE

Inside the Christian church in Corinth there was a sharp difference of opinion concerning the merits, the authority, and the attractiveness of three personalities — Peter, Apollos, and Paul. And the rival parties that formed about these great leaders were soon embroiled in rather shameless rivalry.

The Uniform Sunday

School lesson for October 6: "Christian Harmony," 1 Corinthians 1 through 4.

But we must never allow ourselves to forget that there was no controversy between the leaders themselves. It is true that Paul and Peter had their differences, and there seems to have been some difference of opinion between Paul and Apollos on the subject of baptism (Acts 19:1-4). But there was nothing in the way of controversy that would have divided the church.

The really great souls find it possible to disagree without abusing one another. Devastating controversy between two rival Christian groups is an open confession that they are both spiritually immature.

Every church quarrel is an announcement to the world that the work of redemption inside the church is still incomplete.

CLIMATE OF CONTROVERSY

Out of more than 60 years of observing the life and work of the Christian Church, I am prepared to express a solemn judgment. The Holy Spirit always takes His departure when the spirit of controversy takes over.

No matter how correct our theology may be, and no matter how large our contributions may be, when we stoop to reviling one another it produces a spiritual poison in the air in which the Holy Spirit cannot survive.

I have never known a "split church" to make any real contribution to the good will, the Christian spirit, or the religious life of a community. I have watched quarrels assuage the egos of rival leaders, but that is something very different from promoting the cause of good religion.

There is something fatal about a climate of controversy, whether it appears inside a family, a church, a school, or a community. Even the leader who wins in such a case, always loses. He emerges invariably with scars.

Not the least tragic effect is the destruction of spirit among children and youth. Just as a poisoned air supply is fatal in the case of little ones, so a religious life poisoned by controversy is fatal to the spirits of the little ones.

Better to surrender a minor point, than to lose the whole of faith.

A public health service spokesman cited that possibility Wednesday, saying the daily average was 31 picocuries per litre of milk for the month. This was down one from a U.S.-wide average of 32 in June which was a record, and 36 in May.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed and written for the working persons who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Dept.

When a taxpayer has stock in a company that makes all or a part of its profits from mining operations, he is entitled to a depletion allowance. This is to make up somewhat for the day when the stock becomes worthless, due to the mine becoming exhausted.

When a company derives all its profits from mining operations the maximum depletion allowance is 20 per cent. If part of the profits are made from marketing, then this depletion allowance is reduced.

If you receive a T5 slip showing the dividends paid to you by the company in which you hold stock, the rate of depletion will be on the slip. Depletion is only allowable on Canadian operated mines. There is no allowance when the mine is in another country.

The depletion allowance is deductible from the dividend. If you received a dividend of $100 on which the 20 per cent depletion applies, you would only report $80 on your return. You should attach a list of your mining stocks showing the gross amount of dividends, less the depletion and enter the net on your return. The dividend tax credit is computed on the net amount after depletion has been taken.

Depletion allowance is also applicable to certain oil companies but not when the major portion of their profits is made from marketing their products. An example of one where depletion does not apply for the above reason is Imperial Oil Limited, British American Oil Ltd., and like oil companies.

It is only the smaller ones that drill for and sell crude oil, that are eligible for the depletion allowance. When you are in doubt check with your nearest income tax office or write me as my list is always complete to date.

Question No. 1 — I hold stock in a northern Ontario mine. Do I deduct the 20 per cent from my tax or from the dividends I get?

Answer: You deduct 20 per cent from the dividend for depletion and also deduct 20 per cent of the balance as a tax credit, from your tax.

Question No. 2 — I hold stock in the Royalite Oil Co. Does this qualify for depletion allowance?

Answer: Yes. The rate is 20 per cent.

All letters of inquiry will be answered if a self addressed and stamped (5 cent) envelope is enclosed.

Several hundred times a day in 20 high schools in Buffalo, N. Y., a student pauses in a corridor, pulls out 35 or 40 cents and walks away reading a book. Without leaving his school building, he has just bought a book for his private collection at home. Students in the 20 Buffalo high schools have been experimenting for the last three years with experimental paperback book displays which I predict will appear in many Canadian high schools within the next two years.

The whole idea, which began in September 1959 when a small group of educators and publishing representatives sat down together in New York, is so simple that one wonders why it wasn't tried before.

Many of us think of paperback books as gaudy editions with tantalizing covers in a corner book store, not realizing that within the last few years an explosion has taken place in the publishing industry.

Millions of classics — Moby Dick, A Tale of Two Cities, Oliver Twist, Tom Jones, almost any book you can name — are available somewhere for between 40 and 60 cents.

THE NUDES

Why not, thought the American planners, make these books more available in small display racks for students who think that every paperback book is entitled to a nude girl on the cover?

Schools who first tried out the idea differed a great deal in their methods. In some schools the librarian took charge. In others parents took the responsibility and in others students themselves pitched in.

It didn't matter. Results were amazing in each school.

Librarians have admitted that they had never before bought a book not required in the curriculum during the library's recess or lunch hour. Last month the stands sold 50,000 books.

The project has been, in fact, so successful that other schools in New York State are trying the same thing. Dealers, delighted with the sales supply the racks at a discount of 20 per cent on all books.

The profits have been used in a different way by student and teacher organizers. Some have set up book scholarships, others bought equipment for the school, and others bought more paperbacks.

The organizers discovered several facts which could help any of you interested in setting up a similar venture in your own area.

The worst place for the racks, most schools found, was the library. Sales were poor when this room was used but soared again when racks were placed in corridors outside the cafeterias or any place where many could see the books.

Another discovery was the fact that many girls, too embarrassed to look through books in the corner store, were looking through paperback books for the first time.

Could you try a similar project in your school? The advantages are that the racks can make a small profit for your school while every student has a chance to benefit.

But check with your English teacher or principal first for their advice. Remember? You may be on the verge of a challenging project that will be

ELEPHANT JOKES

Jokes about the elephants — who must be a pretty embarrassed group by now — keep coming. Here are a few more for your private collection:

Question: Why do elephants wear grey swimming suits? Answer: Because they all belong to the same swimming team.

Question: Why do elephants have wrinkled ankles? Answer: From tying their shoe laces.

Question: Why do elephants have flat feet? Answer: From jumping out of trees to crush peanuts. That's a variation of one you've probably already heard.

Question: Why are elephants grey? Answer: So you can tell them from blueberries. Question: What did Jane say when she saw the elephants coming? Answer: "Here come the blueberries." She was color-blind!

If there's one thing we've found out with this series it is that your sense of humor does not depend on where you live in Canada.

Readers from Victoria or Vancouver have sent in roughly the same jokes as those from Ottawa, St. Catharines or Halifax. The wording differs a little, but not much.

And for who started the first elephant jokes, "Cherry" of Smith Falls, Ont., sends this suggestion: "Maybe we should ask an elephant. They never forget."

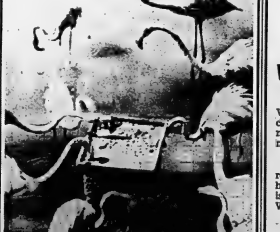
Say Road Salt Has Effect on Bridge Decks



WINNIPEG (CP)—The use of salt to keep roads ice free in winter in Ontario is having "serious effects on concrete bridge decks," two Ontario road experts said Wednesday.

In a joint presentation to the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association, M. D. Armstrong and J. Waycynshyn, both of Toronto, warned steps must be taken to counter the effects of ice on bridge surfaces.

"The only practical way to arrest the deterioration caused by de-icing chemicals to existing bridges, is to waterproof the bride decks and ensure adequate drainage," the investigators said.

Socreds Stage Filibuster To Gain Recognition

Caouette Group Blocks Money Bill Passage

OTTAWA (CP) — A new political crisis took shape in Parliament Friday as Real Caouette's followers began carrying out his threat to stop the legislative mill until the 13 Creditistes are recognized as a party.

Using the filibuster technique, the Creditistes blocked a routine government money bill for the second day.

Mr. Caouette served notice outside the Commons that the Creditistes will continue against all government bills until their demands are met by the four other parties in the House.

He said he would provoke an election over the issue, if necessary.

The next move will come Monday morning when the 29-man Commons privileges committee is scheduled to meet for the second time in search of a way out of the impasse.

Immediate effects of the filibuster is to hold up money bill which would give the government $747,449,955 to pay day-to-day operations for October and November until the 1963-64 spending estimates are reapproved.

WILL STOP CHEQUES

State Secretary Pickersgill revealed the Commons Friday that unless the supply bill is passed soon, the government will be unable to send out mid-October pay cheques to its 300,000 employees. He said the money bill will be called for debate again Monday.

A prolonged blockade also would force the government to increase this month its old age pensions to $75 monthly.

In addition, any government decision to proceed with its proposal to place the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) and four other maritime unions under government trusteeship could be blocked.

Four of Mr. Caouette's followers manned the blockade late Friday, each speaking for the maximum 20 minutes on a wide variety of topics. They opened up as the bill went into its fifth hour.

Speakers were Henri Latulippe (Compton — Frontenac), Gilbert Parent (Beauce), Leslien Flourie (Quebec West) and

Ben Bella Appoints New Mission In Patch-Up Effort With Moors

ALGIERS (AP) — President Ahmed Ben Bella named a mission to try to patch up relations with neighboring Morocco as Berber tribesmen continued today to build up their revolt against him after rejecting a peace offer.

Today's Chuckle

Some girls will go out with a big drip if he spends money like water.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Fair warm fall weather is expected over southern and central Ontario today and Sunday. Cloudy cooler weather and a few showers are expected to edge slowly southward through the Ottawa River, Georgian and Timagami regions during the weekend.

Ben Bella has accused the Moroccans of massing troops on the Algerian frontier in support of the Berbers and in hope of seizing some desert territory.

The chief of the Moroccan mission will be Algerian foreign minister, Abdelaziz Bouteflika. He is scheduled to arrive Sunday in the Moroccan frontier town of Oujda with Ahmed Red Guessous, Morocco's acting foreign minister.

The Berbers' rejection of the peace overture followed reports that the revolt is growing. Guerrilla bands have been observed in southern Algeria near Cherchell, west of Algiers, and in the mountains near Medea, Orleansville and Teniet-el-Hlad.

Rebel headquarters are in the Kabylia mountain town of Michelet — where the Berbers are under the command of a tough, 53-year - old guerilla leader.

Wilson Emerges Leader

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) — Emergence of Harold Wilson as a brilliant strategist and unchallenged leader was the most striking feature of the Labor party conference which ended Friday.

Wilson's triumph was just about complete both in his personal performance — the "best speech" — "a cure - deeply" speech — and in the loyalty pledged and showered upon him, notably by his recent rival, Deputy Leader George Brown, and powerful union chiefs.

The delegates — "comrades" as they call one another — dispelled any lingering doubts about their confidence in Wilson, 46-year-old economist, as successor to the late Hugh Gaitskell.

In perhaps the craftiest move of the conventions, Wilson and his lieutenants let the left-wing backbench-bomb and neutralist element do the scuttling debate on foreign affairs and defence.

Wilson succeeded in keeping to a statesman-like minimum attacks on Prime Minister Macmillan's government — claiming the government is already discredited by scandals and inefficiency.

SEES NEW GREATNESS

Wilson combined his well-known neo-nonsense tone with a new statesmanship in his Tuesday keynote address presaging great greatness for a socialist Britain through the utilization of its scientific brains and reform of education and industry.

He added: "There s no more dangerous illusion than the conformist belief that the world owes us a living . . . From now on, Britain will have just as much influence in the world as we can earn, as we deserve."

One of the more evangelical men in the party Wednesday when Britain's most important trade union leaders supported a planned-economy motion backing some form of wage control — although Prices and Incomes Minister Brown said he was eschewed in favor of "planned growth of wages."

The policy would be worked out in consultation with union leaders.

In other actions the conference:

Called for extension of the Canadian - inspired United Nations world food program which, administered by the Food and Agriculture Organization, has a budget of $100,000,000.

WAVE MOBILIZATION

Ruled out nationalization of the building industries but laid plans for a nationally - owned building corporation to mobilize planners, architects and engineers for an all-out assault on slums.

Defeated land nationalization as such in favor of a more subtle approach to compulsorily purchasing at a "fair price the freehold of all land on which building or redevelopment is about to take place."

Defeated a motion calling for banning of all private schools.

Accused Says Doctor Offered To Pay $1,000

TORONTO (CP) — A man charged with attempting to extort $1,000 from a Toronto doctor said Friday the doctor suggested the financial settlement.

Vernon H. Bewley, 46, of Toronto, was testifying at his own trial.

The doctor, called "Dr. X" to protect his identity, has testified Bewley threatened to report him to a medical association that he allegedly having sexual intercourse with Bewley's wife, the doctor's patient. The doctor denied the allegation.

Bewley said: "He asked if we couldn't settle this out of court like other people do. It was his suggestion . . . I know now I was a dunce."

The doctor said Thursday that Bewley said "if I paid him $1,000 nothing more would be done."

The trial resumes Tuesday.

Hurricane Flora Takes 42 Lives in Haiti, Hits Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Flora, a killer storm that has taken at least 43 lives, drove back into the heart of Cuba today and gave the Bahamas and southern Florida a little more time to prepare for her powerful and deadly punch.

The night - long battle with Cuba's mountains began to weat Flora down and her winds fell off to 100 miles an hour.

Wilson's weather bureau said the storm—which left a trail of destruction and death across Tobago, Haiti and Cuba—would rejuvenate once she cleared Castro's island.

There were no immediate casualty reports from Cuba, but damage was reported in Flora's high since the eastern and of the island was battered by hurricane winds for more than 18 hours.

Flora's erratic path for the 12 hours confounded weather predictions. But forecasters told residents of the Bahamas Islands and southern Florida to get ready to take emergency precautions.

Forecasters estimated that by tonight Flora would be battering Andros Island, midway in the Bahamas. Small craft in southeast Florida were warned to stay in port.

Flora killed at least 25 persons in ravaging western Haiti Winds, whirling up to 140 m.p.h. destroyed thousands of flimsy cabin homes. It was fared the death toll would about sharply as reports of ravaged villages and communications enabled accurate appraisal.

Before ripping through Haiti and touching the neighboring Dominican Republic, Flora killed at least 17 persons on the island of Tobago off Venezuela.

Damage in Tobago was estimated by the Red Cross at $25,000,000. The Canadian government said it would send help when the island's immediate needs are determined.

Labor Minister Rules Out Any Interference by Govt.

OTTAWA (CP) — At what point does the public interest demand government intervention in the present system of collective bargaining between labor and management?

Labor Minister MacEachen has given his answer to this hotly-debated question by resisting pressure — in Parliament and from the public — to terminate the longshoremen's strike in four St. Lawrence River ports immediately.

It is clear in the Commons Friday his belief that government should not interfere with labor-management in their normal bargaining relationship — even when a strike occurs with widespread repercussions.

The minister, facing his first major test in industrial conflict, refused to stop the strike as long as the disputants were working with a federal mediator to resolve their argument.

Mr. MacEachen said Canada's disruption of Canadian wheat shipments to Russia, the opposition pointed out, the National Farmers Union pressed the government for immediate action to end the dispute.

Mr. MacEachen said Judge Rene Lippe, federal mediator, must be allowed to pursue his tricky job without influence or intimidation from the federal government.

The strike by 3,800 longshoremen at Montreal, Quebec City, Trois-Rivieres and Sorel is legal under Canadian labor law. The workers may enter a conciliation board report we placed in the hands of the labor minister, as required by law.

Mr. MacEachen stressed this

Taxation on Co-Operatives Gives Commission Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—What would happen if co-operatives were treated as any other business for tax purposes? In fact, corporation tax would have to be paid before distribution of patronage dividends, and members would be eligible for the dividend tax credit?

At the royal commission on taxation continued to probe into the implications of the co-op and co-ops Friday, this question was tossed out to some of the Canadian leaders in the co-operative movement who appeared before the commission.

The immediate result in some financial advantage to individual members, said W. C. Hamilton, manager of Co-operative Wheat Producers, but they wouldn't want it this way. "They want to carry on the way they have been."

It would be extremely serious," said Dr. R. S. Staples, president of the Co-operative Union of Canada. "It would mean the end of the co-op movement, but it would be very, very serious."

Romeo Martin of Le Conseil Canadien de la Co-operation, said such a change would be viewed with dismay by farmers. "A co-operative is the only way in which a farmer can live west is something that can help him. It is the only way we can keep the family farm."

The fact that co - operatives can declare patronage dividends from taxable income and reduce such income to three per cent of total capital has not been one of the hottest issues before the six-member royal commission, but it has been discussed.

The doctor, called "Dr. X" to protect his identity, has testified Bewley threatened to report him to a medical association that he allegedly having sexual intercourse with Bewley's wife, the doctor's patient. The doctor denied the allegation.

Bewley said: "He asked if we couldn't settle this out of court like other people do. It was his suggestion . . . I know now I was a dunce."

The doctor said Thursday that Bewley said "if I paid him $1,000 nothing more would be done."

The trial resumes Tuesday.

Parliament At a Glance

FRIDAY, Oct. 4, 1963

Prime Minister Pearson announced the reappointment of Donald Gordon for another term as chairman of the CNR.

Michael Starr (PC — Ontario) sought an emergence debate on the Quebec dock strike but Speaker Macnaughton ruled against it.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called for government action to halt the dock strike and expel Hal Banks from Canada.

Labor Minister MacEachen said he will not interfere in mediation efforts to settle the dock workers' strike.

Mr. Diefenbaker Douglas said the government must share in blame for the strike, which began after an eight-month dispute.

Creditiste MPs continued their filibuster of a money bill, talking to adjournment to prevent it from coming to a vote.

MONDAY, Oct. 7,

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue debate on the blockaded bill. The Senate stands adjourned until Tuesday.

MINERS PROTEST

BETHUNE, FrFrance (AP)—A total of 1,000 miners remained for the second day at the bottom of their mine Saturday in a protest against plans to close it sometime this month. Food, drink and straw for bedding were sent down to the miners, who are at the 300-metre level. Management contended the coal has virtually run out. But the miners argue there still is much left.

Leaders Likely To Reject

MONTREAL (CP)—Top executives of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) meet today to decide on the language of a proposed strike-settling offer to be presented to its members. A top union official said however the proposal is almost certain to be rejected.

No details of the offer, drawn up by federal mediator Rene Lippe, judge of Montreal's magistrate's court, were made public but a union source said they missed the point" of the union demands.

The walkout, which started early Friday in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres, and Quebec City, has resulted in a complete tie-up of the St. Lawrence River ports.

The announcement of today's meeting was made by Judge Lippe after Paul Cutler, counsel for the ILA, told reporters that interference from Ottawa has actually prolonged the strike to end the walkout.

Mr. Cutler said that Labor Minister MacEachen is "deliberately waving a big club" over the heads of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

THREATS A HANDICAP

He said threats from Ottawa that the government has the powers to end the walkout are a "big handicap" and suggestions by Conservative members of parliament that the government force on the disputing parties "is regarded no end."

There were reports that strike officials would seek active support from the Maritimes locals but in Ottawa a union spokesmen said any sympathy walkout would be regarded as illegal.

There was no comment from the Shipping Federation of Canada, representing shipowners, on the proposed settlement to be presented to the 3,800 strikers.

The walkout resulted in some 600 ships being tied up in Canadian ports. But there were no demonstrations in the other ports.

The Canada Steamship Germanela sailed from her dock after a brief stoppage Thursday and waterspraying exchanges between strikers and crew members.

TUG RACES AWAY

A tug boat, scheduled to haul the 20,000-ton liner into the St. Lawrence River, backed away from the dock passenger after being greeted by a hail of stones from picketing longshoremen on the dock.

The liner later backed into the river under her own steam and sailed down the St. Lawrence with more than 300 passengers.

In Montreal's east harbor, police sealed off miles of docks but there was no trouble in spite bands of pickets who took up their posts in front of harbor gates at 12 midnight.

Mr. Cutler told reporters that suggestions the walkout is going to interfere with the shipments of wheat and flour from the St. Lawrence ports to Russia have been exaggerated.

About 60,000,000 of the 228,000,000 bushels of wheat Canada deal are to go through the ports before the winter freeze-up.

Fraud Charge Laid Against Travel Agent

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police issued a warrant Friday for the arrest of Ludwig Katzenjammer in connection with fraud charges.

Peters on a charge of fraud.

About 40 angry creditors who turned out for a meeting to discuss the financial troubles of the Piccadilly Club, home away from home for Canadians in Britain, learned about the warrant being issued for the wholesale boss of Peters was unknown.

The charge against Peters, whose real name is Gerald Saunderson, was placed by the Toronto fraud squad. Peters is also president and manager of Piccadilly Club, which now is under trusteeship.

Peters — broadcaster, impresario, club operator and travel agent—was forced into bankruptcy in August following an uproar when 123 travellers who paid for trans-Atlantic charter flights through the Piccadilly Club were stranded in Canada and England.

Explosions Rip Chemical Plant, Doctor Killed

Flames Destroy Toronto Factory

TORONTO (CP)—A charred body believed to be that of a 28-year-old doctor was found in the smouldering rubble of a east-end waterfront chemical plant today.

Police said the body had not yet been identified, but added that they were almost certain it was that of Dr. H. D. Campbell, Jr., a former worker at the chemical plant shortly before it was ripped apart by explosions and fire at 3:30 a.m.

Flames mushroomed through the three-storey brick building and at least a dozen explosions shattered the interior and blasted the roof to bits.

CAUSE MYSTERY

Firemen, fearful of more explosions that might set off the contents of five 100,000-gallon gasoline and fuel oil tanks 500 yards away, cordoned off the streets to keep bystanders and tators attracted to the scene.

Firemen and Mr. McLean had no indication of the cause of the explosions.

Three hours after the fire was reported firemen appeared to have it under control, although they were having difficulty extinguishing fire in a quantity of sulphur. Firemen also were attempting to keep cool several large tanks in the building, which contained known chemicals.

Dr. Cameron, son of the owner of E. B. Fielding and Anachemia Solvents Company, had been working night and day trying to develop a new anaesthetic Searchers failed to locate him elsewhere. His car was found parked outside the company.

Police said a number of employees ripped the roof of the three-storey building apart leaving it a shambles standing. Flames threw a glow that could be seen miles away.

Three Whooping Cranes Seen In Alberta

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask. (CP) Three whooping cranes were reported Friday to have landed 20 miles south of here Friday night.

Lloydminster fish and game official Wilfred Hall said they had been identified by Fred Bard of Regina, director of the provincial natural history, who confirmed the birds were whoopers. The cranes were spotted near a stubble field by Al Dixon of Paradise Valley.

The birds, almost extinct, travel each year from their nesting in northern Alberta to their winterin, grounds at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas. The whooper population is not in captivity is 31.

Business Boycott Ordered

HANOVER, Ont. (CP)—Union leaders emptied Hanover's factories Friday for a mass rally, and ordered for an economic boycott of the community's downtown area as a form of indirect pressure to settle a prolonged strike at Hanover Kitchens (Canada) Limited.

Production in the town's five major factories was halted for three hours when 700 members of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) left their jobs and marched through unstappled streets for a rally at the town hall.

Thirty-five employees of Hanover Kitchens have been on strike for 44i months. In the last week, the union has taken on ugly tone and cars carrying non-striking employees of the firm have been pelted daily with tomatoes, fruit and the occasional egg.

The town's four-man police force has been augmented with five provincial policemen. Police stood watch during Friday's rally but did not interfere.

URGES RESTRAINT

Regional representative Geoffrey Hall of the IWA told the striking workers to control themselves with restraint, and make this an economic strike and a good one."

He urged members to boycott local merchants and businessmen if they would not support them in their cause to win over Hanover Kitchens' management.

Mr. Hall promised a mass turnout at a town council meeting Monday to demand action and threat of the extra police.

Violent incidents were climaxed with the arrests of five men Wednesday following an attack on three Hanover Kitchens' employees Wednesday en route to the plant.

The men were beaten up with clubs and sticks. Their alleged assailants were remanded Friday in custody to 18 in magistrate's court at Owen Sound, 25 miles north of here, on charges of causing grievous bodily harm.

HURL EGGS

Despite several appeals for moderation Friday, the crowds of non-union workers at the Hanover Kitchens plant was met with another barrage of tomatoes, eggs and stones.

Following Friday's clash, Wesley Rusnasky, 49, of Hanover was arrested and charged with assaulting a police officer and thrown at a car driven by plant foreman Clyde Williams. Rusnasky was released on $300 bail and ordered to appear Monday in court at Owen Sound.

The Hanover Kitchens strike —first in the town in 16 years— began May 21.

Company officials say the main issue is that the union wants a closed shop with compulsory check-off dues which management will not accept.

Young Monk Burns Self To Death, Tosses Saigon Into New Turmoil

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—An elderly Buddhist monk burned himself to death today in front of hundreds of horrified onlookers in the central market, throwing the Vietnamese capital into a new and potentially dangerous crisis.

The suicide, the sixth by Buddhists protesting alleged persecution of the majority under Roman Catholic government of President Ngo Dinh Diem, came only four days after Defence Secretary McNamara left Saigon with a report for President Kennedy on the progress of the Vietnamese war against Communist guerrillas.

One of Kennedy's aims in dispatching McNamara to South Viet Nam was to determine whether the political - religious crisis had hurt the war effort.

Minutes after the monk's charred and blackened body toppled over, more Buddhist priests burried in, tanks and armored cars rolled up and barbed wire barricades were thrown around downtown Saigon.

The monk, in his early 30s, stepped out of a taxicab at the busy central market intersection shortly after noon, sat cross-legged down in the Buddhist lotus position, pulled a can of gasoline from a small cardboard box, poured the contents on his lap and lit a match.

He grimaced briefly as the flames engulfed him but maintained his erect posture as the fire, through his Buddhist faith, baring his gradually blackened body. The lotus position

By J. F. Herman

The October meeting of the Park Dale Ratepayers' Association of Belleville was held in the Community Hall on Wednesday, Oct. 2nd, with president John Bills presiding.

Mr. G. Thompson, chairman of the scouting group committee, reported that a total of 49 boys were attending Cubs. This required two Cub Packs, which means that six more leaders, either men or women, are needed. He asked that anyone interested telephone him as soon as possible.

Mr. Thompson also announced that the Cub Ladies' Auxiliary, assisted by the Group Committee, planned to hold a Variety Show in the Community Hall on Sat., Nov. 23rd.

"I haven't started it, but this Hall will be filled with parents that night, in support of this fund-raising venture."

IMPROVEMENTS MADE

Sports committee member Ron Lapenskie outlined the improvements being carried out in the Park. He noted that there will be two rinks this year, one for skating and the other for hockey. Mr. Vic Allen advised that the City Park Department had enlarged the parking area and bordered it with large cement blocks, at their own cost. A blueprint of proposed and underway parkground improvements was also shown.

Mr. Lapenskie stated that the sports committee is organizing a Belleville Park Dale Minor Baseball Association to be in action next summer on two ball diamonds in the park. Twelve teams composed of boys 9 to 15 years old are planned and financial support is being lined up. He suggested that the Ratepayers' Association could sponsor one of the teams.

Secretary Canon Stratton read a report from Mr. G. Montague, 76 Lemoine Street, who as a special committee-of-one in charge of open dances. It was noted that 15 dances were held in the community hall on alternate Fridays, throughout the last winter. Average attendance was about 60-70, with a maximum over seventy. A total of 28 ladies had assisted in supervising the dances, two per evening, so that only about one turn per season was necessary.

With the first dance of this season taking place on Friday, October 4th, anyone interested is helping was urged to contact Mr. Montague, who has volunteered to continue running these dances for another year.

For adult entertainment, Mr. Vic Allen announced a Hallowe'en dance for Saturday, October 26th. He also stated that the entertainment committee is considering plans for a number of social "get together" evenings, so that residents of the area may become better acquainted and more interested in supporting the Community Centre.

When the agenda item new business was called, Mr. W. Corbin arose to move that a letter be sent to the City Council complaining about the excessively poor condition of the eastern end of Maple Drive, east of Gilbert Street throughout. Seconded by Mr. Jay Rollins, the motion was carried without dissent.

Mrs. W. Trumpour moved that a letter be sent to the Police Department complaining of the fast speeding of motor vehicles, especially at rush hours, Mr. W. Rae seconded the motion. During discussion, Police Community Relations Officer Sergeant Bill Shields urged that all Park Dale residents join the Association, and attend the Community Hall and Park, and in support of their youth organizations.

"If the residents of this area really believe in themselves and their homes," he maintained, "they will support their own community organization." "Talk to do us," he added, "is to admit that the community doesn't matter to them —and that they are quite content to let others carry their share of community responsibilities while they sit back and criticize."

MANY VOLUNTEERS

Volunteers for the membership drive were requested and Mr. Jay Rollins, Mr. V. Allen, Mr. C. Stratton, Mrs. G. Burgess, Mr. J. Ellis and Mr. W. Trumpour, offered to help. It was also suggested that those who had not been contacted during the last membership drive might assist again, and membership chairman Corbin said that he would certainly contact such community-minded residents.

At the close of the meeting, president John Bills expressed his appreciation for the services to two retiring officers, secretary-Canon and treasurer Ivan May.

Children Urged To Have Lights On Bicycles

Belleville police, concerned with the number of accidents involving cyclists in the city, have issued a request to all patrons.

It directly concerns families where children are engaged in bicycle-borne activities, from scouting to piano lessons.

Deputy Chief J. Clair Hayes points out that during the fall, it is often daylight when children are leaving for these destinations. When they return it is usually not before nightfall. "Many children using bicycles don't think to bring lamps with them when setting forth," says the deputy chief. "On their return at night-time this fact can mean the difference between safety and danger on city streets."

Deputy Chief Hayes points out to parents this has been among the worst years for such accidents in Belleville. Two cyclists are among the city's fatal accident victims so far this year.

Division Street Earmarked For Redevelopment by Plan

TRENTON — Division Street east of King Street, has been earmarked for redevelopment by Project Planners under the urban renewal survey presently being carried out in Trenton. Division Street is considered commercial under the town's official plan.

Meanwhile, a local contractor and a member of Division Street property owners report that attempts to improve or enlarge residential property on the street are curtailed at the town office.

A contractor said Friday that he had received a go-ahead from the building inspector, William Anderson, to build a kitchen at the rear of one home on Division Street, on Thursday, Oct. 3, but two men to work. "Later," he said, "when the work was well underway, the building inspector had told him that he could not proceed as the kitchen was being built over an existing cement verandah and would not, the contractor said, have extended the verandah around to any extent. The present roof over the house would have to be extended to serve the new kitchen area.

One man, who already operates a business on Division Street, says that he was refused permission to extend his building at the rear.

In reference to this case, the building inspector stated that the type of construction proposed, (wood), presented a fire hazard to the area.

As to the refusal to issue building permits for the extension of residential buildings on the street, Mr. Anderson said that it was under standable when the area is zoned commercial and houses are earmarked for demolition in the final analysis, council is unwilling to agree to extensive improvements being made to the existing structures.

Meanwhile, surveyors hired by the Canadian National Railway Company have been busy this week making initial plans to make way for the CNR tracks which run parallel to Division Street, between King Street and Dundas Street. Some 40 homes now only 20 feet wide.

Hydro poles will also be moved westward to make room for the widening.

It is expected that work on the widening of the street will start late this fall and continue to be finished before next spring.

Cost of the widening has been estimated at $25,000 of which the Department of Highways will pay approximately $20,000.

With the withdrawal in 1961 of most of the town's contribution to district CAS work, came a withdrawal of part of the service the Belleville unit had previously given to the town and the Trenton welfare department considered this phase of the work.

Ben Bella's peace overtures to the Berber command came after a series of parliamentarians. But instead of sitting down with them for talks, the leaders of the rebellious Front of Socialist Forces issued a defiant statement.

"Why did these deputies fail to denounce constant violence, arrests of militants, internments, tortures and the banning of nationalist organizations," the Berber command said.

The Berbers, a non-Arab minority in predominantly Arab Algeria, called on the parliamentarians to unite with the people to denounce creeping fascism and torture." They demanded a "congress of all revolutionary elements" to solve the crisis.

David Halberstam of the New York Times went to Sharkey's and Wolfkill's assistance and he also was beaten. The newspaper men did not fight back but tried to protect their equipment.

Who taught us to love, and taught us to pray.
Dear mother in heaven, God bless you.
Your memory
Your life was quantities, for always
Not for what you received, but for what you gave.
Just a loving thought, just a silent prayer
A beautiful day of sunshine is dear.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by daughter Lucille and son-in-law Ernest.

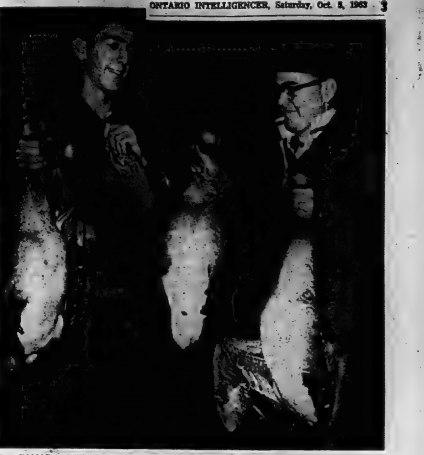
WEIR DAM in the Skootamatta River at Actinolite will enable the Moira River Conservation Authority to get accurate stream flow measurements. The 90-foot long dam allows operation of a round-the-clock stream gauge housed in a small white building in background. Side benefit of dam is to raise upstream water level by about 18 inches.



Record Number Of Firemen Attend Meet

Ninety-six firemen from all parts of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties attended a record breaking meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Firefighters Association in the Batawa Community Centre on Tuesday night. The visitors were officially welcomed on behalf of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada Limited and the community of Batawa by Mr. E. T. Stewart, personnel manager, who said that the work of the organization is fully appreciated in both counties. The fire prevention effort was an intangible endeavor since prevented fire cannot be listed, but the firefighting is another matter. In this field the efficiency of Mutual Aid is clearly portrayed.

President Pat Callahan presided over the meeting. Speakers included secretary Fred Clark of Point Anne; Ulilities Commissioner Clark of Belleville, who demonstrated a new type of hydrant and Chief Vance of Belleville, who outlined details of a poster competition for grade 5 school children in the interest of safety and fire prevention. He also told of the initial steps taken to introduce the financial drive for Muscular Distrophy. Coin collectors will be circulated in the town represented and each fire brigade will give leadership in the local drive. Another speaker of the evening was Arthur Duncan, public relations officer for the Batawa community.

Members of the Trenton Fire Department present included: captain Gerald Louis; engineer E. Stacey; sgts. Robert Mills, J. Thompson, C. Potts and also volunteer firemen R. Deschene, Robert Andrews, A. McNeill and Paul Allore.

After the business portion of the meeting all present were dinner guests of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada Limited for a Thanksgiving turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

Authority to Get Accurate Data on Flows in Moira River and Its Tributaries

Accurate knowledge of downstream flow through all seasons of the year is one of the pre-requisites for any program to improve the water level in any particular watershed.

The Moira River Conservation Authority is well aware of this requirement and is cooperating with the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources to get accurate data on flows in the Moira and its tributaries.

For many years there has been a stream gauge on the Moira River just east of Foxboro and a year or so ago a gauge was installed in the Black River at No. 7 highway to get data on this tributary stream.

And this year a similar gauge has been installed on the Skootamatta at Actinolite, a mile or so above the confluence of the three main tributary streams of the Moira.

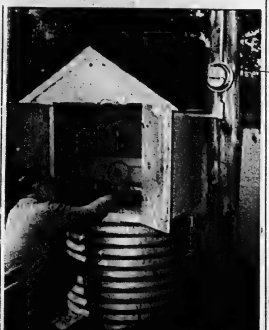
NATURAL LEDGE

The gauge installation in the Moira at Foxboro, and also on the Black River at No. 7 Highway took advantage of a natural rock ledge stream profile to obtain accurate reading but this was not possible in the case of the Skootamatta where a special type weir dam was necessary.

The dam, situated just north of the No. 7 Highway bridge has recently been completed and the river gauge mechanism installed by the Department of Northern Affairs is in operation.

Cost of the weir dam and gauge installation was about $2,000 on which the Authority will receive 50 per cent subsidy from the province.

Graham Bell of Marmora, chairman of the Authority Water Control Advisory Committee, says that accurate stream flow knowledge is essential if reservoir dams such as the Authority has at Lingham Lake are to be operated to best advantage.



ROUND-THE-CLOCK

Data obtained from the operation of the river gauge is primarily for use by the Department of Northern Affairs, but the Authority also is provided with stream information including round-the-clock water levels and stream flow.

The low weir dam on the Skootamatta is approximately 90 feet long with a centre notch allowing for more accurate river-flow measurements. Continuous water levels are recorded automatically on the gauge chart which is removed every 30 days.

Mr. Bell stated that stream flow measurements are only one aspect of the varied program carried on by conservation men in their efforts to retain and improve water levels.

He said local Authority offi-cials two weeks ago took part in a tour of an Ohio State river authority where tests and experiments relating to water levels were literally "astounding."

Injured were Barbara Jones, R. R. 1, Trenton, and two children in her car, Wallace Cameron, 4, and Sheena Cameron, 5. All three were treated for face cuts and bruises. Police charged Miss Jones with making an improper left turn on the four-lane highway.

Youth Given Year In Jail

Assault of a companion while still on probation, has brought a year's imprisonment for a Belleville youth.

Grant Willshire, 19, was recently released on a suspended sentence after he had been charged in Peterborough with escaping custody. The next day in Belleville he was charged with assaulting an acquaintance. Police said the man needed hospital treatment for the injuries.

Yesterday, Willshire was brought before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. While he was not charged with a breach of probation, the magistrate said he was taking that into account in sending Willshire to the common jail for one year.

The Cost of Dispute

Once more, violence has erupted in an Ontario industrial dispute, this time in the town of Hanover.

Beyond the immediate vicinity of that town, however, the incidents are unlikely to attract extraordinary interest, despite the fact police authorities fear the situation is dangerously deteriorating. After all, it is not too many months since the sullen atmosphere of a logging strike in Northern Ontario suddenly erupted into a gun battle that wrought a minor massacre. Who, today, in this area of the province feels unduly troubled when the name Kapuskasing is mentioned?

So Hanover, with its sluggings, smashes and rioting, will not for long claim public attention. More probable than not, it will be dismissed with some vague criticism of either labor or capital — depending which side of the fence one's socio-economic sympathies lie.

And there is the heart of the matter.

For too long, the problems arising from and labor relationships have been considered nobody's business but those of the parties involved. The public directly is rung in on the act only, if the government is instrumental in attempting to mediate; when a sizeable threat to the local or general economy is imminent, or when labor violence rears a vicious head.

This is the traditional practice in this and other Canadian provinces. Non-interference in the affairs of business and labor is a time-honored attitude. However, the times when such an attitude was honorable have drastically changed. They dissolved for good when competitive, international trade became the operative slogan for national economy

In a world increasingly organized for business competition, there is something dangerously haphazard about the manner in which we process solutions to the social problems in industry. A more specific system of dealing with labor-management controversies is urgently required.

The only sure method of achieving this is to prevent, if possible, such controversies, and to foster co-operation between workers and management as the norm.

As a preliminary a start might be made with the institution of a standing council of labor, management and government representatives. Appointed by government, it would apply itself to the problems of industrial relationships as they relate to the overall economy. Working in co-operation, such a unit would function as a constant watchdog — not a hastily-licensed fire brigade ordered to the scene after an alarm has been sounded.

Whatever the solution, some means must be found to dispel the moods and attitudes that too frequently cause, and prevail in industrial disputes in this country. One dissension primes another and the result is a perpetual flickering of work stoppages and productive breakdowns on the national economic graph.

Since Ontario prides itself as Canada's leading industrial province, it would behoove us to make a start here. Certainly we have sufficient reasons for doing so.

Organized Moderation

Prime Minister Pearson told the Canadian Club in Montreal recently that an organized "voice of reason and moderation" is needed to speak against separatism in both French and English Canada. He said French-speaking extremists and their talk of separatism have led to the English-speaking extremist reaction the suggestion that Quebec should go its own way, and the rest of Canada should join the U.S.

"I believe it is high time," Mr. Pearson said, "for the voice of reason and moderation to be heard more clearly, and become better organized for the purpose of being heard."

It has always been time, one suggests, for the voices of reason and moderation to be heard more clearly. But it has always been true, as it is now, that the fanatics will win in any shouting contest. If Mr Pearson can do anything to change this situation, his place in history is secure.

Generous Offer

A TV quiz with a top prize of $100,000 has been cancelled, in the U.S, after only three performances. People, it seems, are no longer interested.

That is show biz, of course. If the people do not come, the show folds, and the sponsor is junked. We will help though, if the network has any trouble disposing of a few surplus first prizes.

Grits Should Heed Warning Of Tory Provincial Win

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—At the close of the Commons' first week of the new Fall Session, echoes of the stunningly decisive Ontario provincial election continue reverberating through the politically sensitive halls of Parliament Hill.

To hear both the Liberal and Conservative MPs talk about it, the Ontario vote has had deep Federal significance—heartening the Opposition, sobering the Government.

The Conservatives crow that it was more than a ringing vote of confidence for Premier Robarts.

They likely insist it contained a very definite element of protest against certain Federal Liberal policies with which the now-resigned Provincial Leader John Wintermeyer so closely and daringly identified himself.

They read into it a very substantial voter and taxpayer distaste against the leading Federal rush into biculturalism and bilingualism and against such other political controversies as Ottawa policies and practices as the Canada Pensions Plan, the continued harassment and even open attack of the business of the Canadian community by certain Cabinet Ministers, and the unsettling prospect of some considerable tax increase.

GO SLOW:

Into what he cheerfully has described as "massive Ontario disenchantment with Liberalism," Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has even lumped that still unfinished Federal pay raise that Parliament generously voted itself.

He interpreted more than they care to show, some of the Liberals worriedly go so far as to admit that if Ontario vote just might have been a warning signal to take it slow and easy with some of the things the Government has been so urgently pushing.

Atop this stop-look-and-listen list are biculturalism and bilingualism.

Members of both parties confess there seems to be something of a feeling of uneasiness in many parts of Ontario and very likely in other English-speaking sections of Canada — about the apparent determination of certain ministers in the Liberal Cabinet to be so arbitrarily "Canadian" before is provide it with all manner of special Federal privilege and favor, nothing if address a premium province, or even as a kind of extraordinary state apart, essentially to be accorded ranking consideration and concession.

There appears to be the very real suspicion of being stampeded into becoming some strange "special country," no regardless of the weight of population or that 10 provinces can't be treated equally on the basis of one and nine.

And oddly, nowhere is this feeling of uneasiness more apparent than on Parliament Hill, where, if you work for the Government, as most people do, you find there is a premium placed on being able to speak or learn French and "switching" on a dime.

HOW COME?

Three days it was summed up best the other day when Carleton University President Davidson Dunton was addressing the Royal Commission on Bicultural ism and Bilingualism (The B and B Commission, as it is popularly known) was asked this question.

"How is it that the CBC carries French lessons on its English network, but no English lessons on its French network?"

Mr. Dunton didn't rightly know and admitting it was "a good question," agreed it might be one the Commission should answer.

Then there is Health Minister Judy LaMarsh whacking away at the Canadian medical companies and the rest of the financial community for even dogging in opposition to the economic realism of her Canada Pensions Plan.

Few of even the hottest-eyed CCFers or New Democrats have managed to thump Big Business as heartily as La Judy.

And this, after the drubbing that Finance Minister Walter Gordon gave business, industry and the investment world with his bombled Budget and tax juggling has been upsetting a lot of people. And not just the the "Men in the Board Rooms" either, but thousands of Ordinary Joes with a few hard-cooked dollars salted away in private pensions, insurance and even stocks and bonds.

And these were only a few — there were others — of the Federal Liberal bones that stuck in the public voters' throat, according to MPs of all parties who have been holding their post-election post-mortem confab on the provincial election here these opening days of the new Commons' Session.

ROBARTS NOT ROBLIN:

There has been another fringe benefit, the Federal Conservatives in the Ontario vote.

Overnight it leapfrogged Premier John Roberts into by far the favorite position to succeed John Diefenbaker as Federal Conservative Leader.

Like it or not, Mr. Roberts now can scarcely avoid being in the running, for in will go his nomination just as surely as the Conservative convention is coming after the next election—and perhaps sooner.

Odd thing is, he hasn't had to lift a finger to became, in a flash, the man most likely to succeed.

Up until election night, Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin, who has been working at it, was seldom favorably with Tory Diefenbaker shoes, far ahead of Hovs Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield, one of the outside "also-runnings."

But Roblin comes from the West, and so does John Diefenbaker.

And the Conservatives have a tradition of alternating leaders between West and East, just as the Liberals do between French and Scotch Canada.

Roberts boosters point out that at this stage he has the Ontario Hydro and the newly up, are so high on him that their chief worry now could easily eliminate the Progressive-Conservative "Golden Boy" George Hees, the Big Business pro-Cabinet Palace Revolution days.

Died is now 68, and grand old warrior that he is, unless an election comes quickly, will be over 70 by the time the next vote hit the Federal campaign trail in earnest.

So watch the Robarts boom.

Vanilla Now Hard to Find

Hamilton Spectator

We enjoy ice cream more than we can say. Especially vanilla. Day after day during the summer months we take a journey to a dairy bar and satisfy it and buy some. Usually a pint, but sometimes a quart; and if a weekend is on the doorstep, we buy a gallon.

But have you noticed how little vanilla ice cream is? It's apparently so "old hat" that hardly anyone seems to be eating it. Peach ice cream is the big thing these days, followed by maple walnut, Neapolitan, chocolate, strawberry, butterscotch ripple. Actually there are about 31 different varieties of ice cream (from peppermint to blueberry supreme) and more are no doubt on the way.

You'd think that even with such competition, vanilla would be popular, but no, in the days of a middle-aged man's youth, it was the big thing. "Make mine vanilla" was a common saying, or "Shall we have vanilla in my villa, Priscilla?" (You can't find us, you just made that up.)

Notwithstanding the nostalgia, vanilla is hard to find these days. For instance, out in Anchester the other night we stopped at a store and went in to buy some ice cream. There was a huge cooler in the store and it was packed with colorful containers. But no sign of the wood vanilla or any of them. Just Neapolitan, lemon ripple, tutti-frutti, raspberry, strawberry, lemon and lime, maple walnut, butterscotch French chocolate, peach pistachio, pineapple, orange, cantaloupe, cherry, chocolate . . .

Leadership Lost

Globe and Mail, Toronto

In this century, the churches generally have been steadily losing their influence and leadership. For millions of people, including many regular churchgoers, the churches have ceased to be a decisive influence on either ideas and behavior and conventional codes. The concerned irrelevant to the conduct of life. For much of this, the churches have only themselves to blame. With certain magnificent exceptions in every denomination, they have tended to hold themselves aloof from the real problems of the times, or to express their concern in pious generalities of small practical import.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Late Thursday night Constable Wright of the city police department saw the forms of two persons lurking behind a tree on the McAnsany Street parking lot. Further investigation revealed the reason for the men's actions; they were stealing a case of beer. The men were escorted to the police station and the beer confiscated. Where the men procured the beverage at such a late hour is still under investigation.

School teachers in Prince Edward County are doing their share to alleviate the current shortage of tomato pickers in that district if the achievement of Mrs. Harold M. Brunsdon, teacher at Wartag's Corners is any criterion. Last Saturday after picking 40 bushels in the classroom teaching the three Rs to children of his school, this man is reported to have picked 14 bushels of tomatoes in something like six-and-one-half hours. His record will possibly take a whole lot of beating.

Despite the fact that it has been reduced to a three-day exhibition, the annual sterling Belleville Fair this week was the largest recorded since 1929, at which time the fair lasted four days. Paid admissions for the three days, totalled slightly over 18,000. It was stated by treasurer Fred Chamberlain that while he added that the total attendance, including school children who were admitted free on each day of the exhibition, would run close to 30,000.

An address commending the good wishes of the members and referring to the pleasant associations under the leadership of Mr. Riggs was made by Mr. Mackenzie Robertson and following the address Mr. Harry Hill presented Mr. Riggs with a new hymnary. In reply Mr. Riggs thanked the members of the choir for their loyal co-operation and kindness and for the gift. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Lack of Calcium Will Make Bones Brittle

By ROBERT G. GOLDING, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband and I have been married for about two months and that is about the only thing we have in common. He likes to stay home and watch TV and I like to go out. I don't drink and he does. He is a heavy drinker. He goes at lunch time, at supper and dinner, and after supper. He drinks at the office and at home. He has a good job.

Our little girl, 7½, weighs 48 pounds and is nearly 4 feet tall. She drinks very little milk, about a half a glass at a meal. My husband is nearly driven to her as "other" a nice young boy girl, etc. I feel she is too thin and that she should eat more and drink more milk, and that the doctor should see her. What is "drink water" instead. He says children have healthy appetites and don't need vitamins.

Well, it's fashionable these days, in certain circles, to criticize milk, but in my opinion this fad will wither.

In this case, there's no reason for criticism of diet. The little girl would be better off if she drank a full glass of milk at each meal but beyond that I'm not inclined to quibble over a quart a day for the boy.

I'm in favor of milk, especially for children and in reasonable amounts for adults. It's good food with good nutrition fat (or skim milk for weight-watchers), goodly protein and a lot of calcium, which is the most important ingredient; plus some lesser materials useful to our bodies. The following vegetable juices also came along the same day:

Dear Sir: I am 75 years old. A member of Group Health. I read that anyone past middle age shouldn't drink milk — that the calcium is all gone from the bones brittle. Any comment? I've averaged a quart of skim milk a day for many years, and it is about a third of my diet. — J. R.

At 75 and in good health, anybody is entitled to tell calamity howlers that they haven't much business criticizing the amount of milk he drinks.

Calcium does not make the bones brittle. But a lack of calcium will make bones brittle. Not so much of a lack that it will cause abnormal fractures when a person has a bump or a fall, and for all normal purposes the bones will be sturdy enough. But over the years of life the calcium tends to drain out from them in the form of deposits in the soft tissues. Then, when a fracture occurs, the bones are brittle and break more easily.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the best way to get rid of a cold in the head? — Mrs. J. L. W.

The best is commonly considered to be to avoid getting it. The next best is strictly technical: Blow your nose in a handful of soggy tissues. Treatment is rather more complex primarily of rest and symptomatic relief.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have foot trouble at the base of my toes and on a couple of occasions my podiatrist irritated them. Should I have them removed? — J. F. C.

Yes, I think that because irritated should be removed. It is a simple procedure.

American forces under Gen. W. H. Harrison defeated a combined British and Indian force near Moraviantown, Ont., 150 years ago today in 1813 during the War of 1812-14. The British commander, Col. Henry Augustus Bruyeres, lost the Indian chief Tecumseh was killed. Following the battle the village of Moraviantown was destroyed.

Plans for Millennium

By Nicole Roberts in Montreal Star

Since March, Mr. John Goodman, who lives at Williamsburg on the edge of Eastbourne, has been getting ready for the Millennium.

As he understands the word, it does not mean the day when everything goes poof, but simply the turn of the millennium.

In the year 3001 the world is due to celebrate its twenty-first birthday — as well it is if you discount all those prehistoric and pre-Christian eras — and Mr. Goodman feels the occasion should not be allowed to go unmarked.

Nothing happened at the last Millennium, when the world went into double figures, merely because there was nobody to take the arrangements in hand in good time.

Who knows whether the Battle of Hastings would have been fought if the year 1066 had been the year of prosperity? All those Normans and Saxons might have been in such a happy mood at the end of the century that they would have taken a different course.

The world, he decided, must not make the same mistake before particularly as our equivalent of the Battle of Hastings would be nuclear war. Already there are frightening conviction to death about the feasibility.

What we needed was a giver and some positive object. He, say, a world birthday party falling ten years, from 1995 to 2005. All that was lacking was the man to organize it.

Mr. Goodman looked into his heart and saw that it was he.

With at least three possibly five National Millennia already planned, a World Millennial Island to be floated 1,200 miles west of the Canaries, at unspecified point of 32½ Islands to be sent up to absorb the population explosion, and to be moved from time to time to keep the traffic flowing, it is fortunate that Mr. Goodman is not, to say, thrust into his hand when it is the clock parted for his own life.

He is a dark, serious man, aged 36, who looks rather like a clerk-turned-accountant who would have if he had not happened to be wearing a green sports shirt when we met him. In fact he is a children's entertainer, who puts on film shows and displays of magic at the longer and shorter engagements, with all the peaks removed for the occasion to provide seven plateaux.

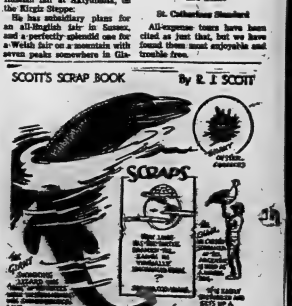
The point of having the Millennial Island is that on it a all national rivalries would be removed and it would become a all citizens of the world share in its construction.

It is to be seven miles square, and made in hinged sections. The point of this is that it is self-evident when you think how crowded we are getting down here.

They will rise by being coaxed from within a central pneumatic tant to gravity described by H. G. Wells, in "The First Men in the Moon."

The one snag about this, Mr. Goodman explained, is "that the atmosphere will remain to be discovered."

But he is confident that it can be done, and that our own recommendation for the British fair is Blanchland House, Northumberland. He is inviting firms to be their acreage and pay in advance, the money to cover the cost of the research.



He has already published in the Times Educational Supplement a healthy conifer, in a red pot in his bedroom.

The United States fair should be at Jetmore, Kansas, and the Russian fair at Aktyubinsk, on the Kirgiz Steppe.

He has subsidiary plans for an all-English fair in Sussex, and a perfectly splendid one for a Welsh fair on a mountain with seven peaks somewhere in Gla-

A Lift For Living

Our Very Existence Depends On Keeping Good Connections

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

October is a tree-conscious month. Across America's northern tier, leaves are changing color before releasing their grip upon the twigs and falling to make a patchwork quilt upon the earth, comforting the ground against the cold of oncoming winter. Leaves have done their spring and summer work. They drank the sun's beneficent light and warmth and breathed the atmosphere's vital gases and made a sugary kind of food, the tree's daily bread. Leaves piped sugar solution into stems, and the stems piped it into twigs, and the twigs into branches and the branches into the trunk which is stabilized and fed water and minerals by the roots.

When leaves die in autumn the whole tree seems dead. But it isn't. The tree rests, remaining very much alive and will awaken next April when spring peepers and robins sing and rains coax greenness from swollen twigs.

But if the tree still lives when its leaves fall, and a tree's life does not depend upon its leaves alone, in what part of a tree does its life reside? In the roots? In the trunk? In the branches? The answer is that the vitality of a tree is dependent upon each portion's maintaining its connective relationship to all the other parts. No member continues to live, completely severed from the rest. All parts belong to each other and support and sustain each other. The well-being of a tree depends upon each part of a tree having good connections with all the other parts. When a few months have passed, spring will free gray new leaves from swelling buds and the somnolent life of the tree will waken and throb in all the parts at once. For all the parts are inter-related and mutually dependent upon one another.

INCURABLE JOINERS

All creation, like the tree, seems caught up in the necessity of everything maintaining good connections with other things. This principle is seen at work in the nature of matter. Scientists say that one of the interesting facts about atoms, the smallest particles of matter, is that they are incurable joiners. They will not roam around alone. If you want to get a hydrogen atom to leave an oxygen atom, you must induce it to join something else, such as an atom of carbon. Atoms do not try to "go it alone."

Our spiritual health depends upon our recognition of the good connections we already have and other relationships that we should develop and nurture. Observe the sense of connectedness voiced in the Lord's prayer. The prayer begins with "Our Father." Not "My Father" but ours. No one of us is his favorite, with a special privilege of receiving God's attention, love, and care. We are all his children, all races, all classes, all creeds. Some are his misbelieving children, some downright evil, and some saintly, but all his children nevertheless, and thus, all brothers and sisters, bound together by family ties. And we are all related to God by bonds of dependence. "Our daily bread" comes from him; though sometimes by circuitous routes. As Maltbie D. Babcock said,

"Back of the loaf is the snowy flour,
And back of the flour the mill,
And back of the mill is the wheat, and the shower, and the sun and the Father's will."

We often fail to recognize our dependence upon God because we bought the bread — "with my hard-earned money." But the connection with God is there traceable through the pulsing life-blood and brain of the bread salesman, the wholesale bread dealer and deliverer, the baker, the miller and the wheat farmer, all the way back to our utter and final dependence upon the shower and the sun and the Father's will."

How little we do for ourselves! We did not arrange our birth. We have not sustained ourselves without the aid of dear ones who nurtured us through days of infant helplessness, nor could we live now without the labors of countless unseen workers whom we can never thank for sowing and harvesting our food, building our houses, furnishing our transportation, printing and publishing our reading matter and performing all the multiform tasks that make living possible. Dare we still boast of being "self-made men"?

We belong to each other and to God. Our spiritual health and our continued existence depend upon recognizing, maintaining and strengthening these good connections.

Famed Cathedral and Perfume Modern Symbols of Cologne

By SHIRLEY and BOB MOORE

COLOGNE, Germany — This historic city was once the second largest in Europe, and to this day its cathedral is probably the most famous in the world. But for sheer popularity, neither distinction matches that of a half-pint, half-heavenly product with which its name is synonymous.

Few creations have as peculiar and accidental a history as Eau de Cologne. The formula came originally not from Germany but from Italy (the Teutons are a close second to the Romans in their reverence for water and its powers); it was a marketed for a century not as a perfume but as a medicine; the name "Eau de Cologne" — water from Cologne — was actually a handy nickname given by its customers, not by the manufacturers; and even its most famous brand name, 4711, was hung on it by outsiders.

As a matter of fact, the latter incident is heralded the start of the modern practice of numbering houses on streets. In 1794, the Mulhens family, one of about 20 toilet water producers here and one of the two major dynasties, was turning out the stuff in a house on the Glockengasse. Cologne was occupied by the French that year, and since there never was a Frenchman who could pronounce Mulhens, Glockengasse, or any other German name properly, the French commander decreed that every house in the city would be numbered for identification. The Mulhens house was 4711.

It was Napoleon who in 1810 put a stop to the manufacturers' unabashed promotion of their product as a panacea. Qouth Johann Maria Farina on his label, "Good in cases of dropsicy, gout, coughs, the pestilence. If a description were to be made of all the ills that this water is incomparably good for, then it would have to include all the illness and weakness to which the human body is subject." Farina signed his name to the label as a guarantee.

Napoleon required that the producers reveal their formulas if the water were to be continued on the pharmaceutical list. Rather than do this, they decreed it a toilet article, and went on to their greatest success.

To this day, the recipes remain closely guarded secrets of each manufacturer. The contents are well enough known — 80 percent pure alcohol, various ethereal oils, orange and lavender. So are the maturing methods, not too different from those of wines.

But proportions and mixing methods are locked up in the safes of each producing family, and only one member at a time knows them. At one time, essences were given code names. Today, when new basic essences are required, the confidant locks his nose in the laboratory to create his symphony in secrecy.

Historic as Cologne's toilet water industry may be, it is only a spray in the bucket of time compared with the city's sublime cathedral. On its site in the centre of town, Christian services have been held for 1,500 years. Before that, a Roman temple stood there.

The cathedral was begun more than 700 years ago, but its famous 500-foot twin spires were not completed until 1880. Its mammoth proportions, remarkable unity of Gothic design, exquisite and intricate decorations and priceless religious artifacts have made it a justifiable target for hundreds of thousands of tourists every year.

SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

Despite its location in the heart of a city that was almost completely levelled in World War II, the cathedral was only slightly damaged — a tribute to Allied marksmanship, ironically. Its stained glass windows were removed for safekeeping during the war, only to be damaged by the sonic booms of jets after the war. Newer sections of the roof were bomb-damaged, but those dating to medieval times stood up.

The shrine of the Three Holy Kings is said to contain the relics of the Three Wise Men of the Bible. Dating from 1181, its front is of solid gold. Mounted on it are three fast-sized gems brought from Constantinople. Once there were 250 like these.

The cathedral holds 20,000 people and is filled several times each Sunday. Its pillars are sunk 50 feet into the ground and rise more than 300 feet to the roof.

What is more likely to remain with the visitor are the pinpoints of its art, such as the 1,000-year-old wood carving of Christ on the cross, an unlovely, even up-close, but enormously representative picture of suffering.

Today Cologne is living in the second son of its history, rebuilt from the ground up and once again a great commercial centre. The stark and spare new steel bridge vaulting the Rhine is today's symbol and makes a strange counterpoint to the cathedral, symbol of Cologne's timelessness. Like the cathedral, the bridge is visible from almost everywhere in town.

MAIL CALL

Question: My daughter recently became engaged and, in a few weeks, my husband and I will attend a dinner at the home of her fiance's parents to meet some of their family and friends. The youngsters met in college and, since he comes from another state, we've never had a chance to meet his parents — although the young man has visited our home frequently. His mother and I have exchanged friendly notes since the children announced their intention to marry.

My husband and I are fairly informal people and usually form first-name friendships with our contemporaries immediately. I have the impression that the young man's parents are older than we are, so, when we visit, I wonder if we should call his parents Mr. and Mrs. So-and-so, or would it seem friendlier to call them by their first names right away? I want to give the proper impression. What do you suggest? — Mrs. C. P., Bayside, N. Y.

Answer: Play it by ear. If they call you Mr. and Mrs., then you should address them equally as formally. If they're much older; it's courteous to let them give the green light for use of first names all around. As far as their relatives and friends are concerned, take your cue from the way you're introduced. If an aunt, for instance, is introduced as "Jack's Aunt Esther-line Smith, but we all call her Kit," then you may, too. Generally, though, it's safer to stick to last names until you get to know the people better and have some indication of how they prefer being addressed.

QUESTION:

Having enjoyed repeatedly making many of your delightful recipes I wonder if you could help me by sending me a recipe for Sausage-filled Potato Dumplings. I have been told this is an old Swedish dish. They are dropped into boiling water. Later they may be sliced, fried in butter and served with a thick gravy. Sounds fascinating. Also a recipe for Rolled Oat Cookies that appeared in a booklet, that juniors may make for the Fair. I imagine this was about 1924 or 1925. Maybe some of your readers might have it or know about it — E. K.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Fricasseed Veal Cutlets; Rich Veal Gravy; Mashed Potatoes (see Friday); Buttered String and Green Lima Beans; Tomato and Lettuce Salad; Melon Ball Fruit Cup; Dad's Cookies (see Friday); Tea.

ANSWER:

POTATO DUMPLINGS WITH SAUSAGE FILLING (Halushky —Ukrainian):

2 cups grated raw potatoes, drained, 1 cup cold mashed potatoes, 1 egg, beaten, 1 teaspoon grated onion, salt and pepper, ½ cup (or more) flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, sausage meat.

Grate enough raw potatoes on a fine grater to make 2 cups of well-drained pulp. The pulp must be as dry as possible. This is best done by pouring the grated potatoes into a sieve with 2 thicknesses of cheesecloth. Gather up ends of the cheesecloth together and squeeze the pulp dry. Press the potatoes through a sieve to assure smoothness. Combine them with the grated potatoes along with the egg and the onion. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Sift the flour with the baking powder and stir into the mixture. The mixture should be thick enough to shape. Form small balls. Flatten each, place a teaspoon of cooked sausage meat in each, seal and shape it into an oval. Drop the dumplings into rapidly boiling salted water, stir gently once, and cook from 5 to 8 minutes by rapid boiling. Remove them carefully to a colander and drain. Place in a heated dish, sprinkle generously with browned butter, and toss lightly. Serve with sour cream or milk gravy if desired.

JUNIOR OATMEAL COOKIES: (Note: I do not know the Junior Rolled Oat Cookies recipe in the 1924 or 1925 booklet to which you refer. What follows is a simplified recipe which children can make.)

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, 1 cup brown sugar (packed) 1 cup rolled oats, ½ cup cooking oil, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 egg, ½ cup Spanish peanuts.

NOTE:

Young cooks should be reminded to turn the oven on in "bake" position to 375 deg. Fahr. so it will be heated when the cookies are ready to bake.

Combine in bowl flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon, ginger, brown sugar and rolled oats. Mix in thoroughly the cooking oil, milk and egg. Stir in peanuts. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls (greased) 2" apart on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake about 10 minutes, just until firm. Makes about 3 dozen.

Holy Trinity, Shannonville Women's Guild held their monthly meeting at the home of Helen Spencer on October 3, with nine members present.

The president, Mrs. Fitzgerald, welcomed all the members and opened the meeting in the usual manner. Roll call showed nine members present and was answered by naming a poisonous article in their home.

The bazaar for November was discussed and it was decided to hold a special meeting on October 17th at the home of Mrs. Fitzgerald to make further plans.

Mr. Cavalier conducted the meeting and there was a discussion on the life of the church and the Sunday School problem.

The hostess served lunch while the members and Mr. Cavalier continued their discussion.

"The long term cost of an electric heating system is lower than any other. No furnace or fuel tank to buy. No annual maintenance costs. If fuel operating costs are comparable with other systems—" says Mr. Lionel Potvin, Moonbeam, Ontario.

"Electric heating rates have dropped so much that the heating cost for our 3 room, 2 storey house is less than we ever paid. And we now enjoy the extra comfort, safety and cleanliness of electric heating—" says Mr. R. G. Ward, Orchard Park, London, Ontario.

"We thought operating costs would be high but were prepared to pay the difference. But electric heating costs in our new 11 room house are actually less proportionately than we paid for our other system in our old house—" says Mrs. Frank Vanderkop, Long Sloan, Ontario.

Just because electric heating is so advanced some people think it costs a lot!

The one big mistake people make about electric heating is that they think it costs a lot.

Yet this simply is not true. Thousands of Ontario home owners now have electric heating and conservative estimates indicate that the number will have increased five times by 1965.

Reduced operating costs. In many municipalities the rate for electric heating has been reduced as much as 30% during the last two years. This means that in some areas it costs less to heat a home electrically than with other systems. In other places, the cost is about the same. In the few areas where rates are still slightly higher, the difference is negligible compared to the extra value you get with electric heating.

Low installation cost. Electric heating is easy to install. There is no fuel tank or furnace. Any home with electric heating should be built to Hydro standards of insulation.

No annual maintenance costs. Annual cleaning and inspection are not needed with electric heating. No dirt is created and there are no filters to replace. Electric heating is a completely care-free home heating system.

ELECTRIC HEATING REVOLUTIONIZES MODERN LIVING

Only electric heating gives you custom-comfort. You can dial exactly and precisely the temperature you want for any room in the house. That's because electric heating offers you a thermostat in every room. And there's such a healthful atmosphere . . . never too dry.

Electric heat is gentle and constant. There are no cold spots or uncomfortable blasts of hot air.

You'll never be disturbed by noises . . . electric heating is the quietest heating system there is.

A safety breakthrough in home heating. The entire system is completely flameless.

The world's cleanest heating system. Next to sunlight electric heating is the cleanest in the world. It cannot create dust, soot, smoke or dirt of any kind. It is completely odourless.

You get more living space. Because electric heating doesn't need a furnace you have extra living area in the basement.

Electric heating gives you a choice of heating systems. Electric baseboard heating fits snug along walls at baseboard level. Insulated electric heating cable is hidden in the ceiling or below the floor. And there are other units; some that can be flush mounted in ceilings or walls. All units are designed to heat your home quickly . . . by the simple turn of a dial.

Guaranteed installation. Choose an electric heating contractor who is qualified to back his work with the industry recognized Triple Seal of Quality guarantee. This guarantee covers both equipment and installation.

THE LONG-TERM ECONOMY OF ELECTRIC HEATING PROVES THAT IF YOU ARE BUILDING OR BUYING A NEW HOME, WHATEVER THE SIZE, THERE IS NO REASON WHY YOU SHOULD SETTLE FOR ANYTHING LESS THAN THE CUSTOM-COMFORT, SAFETY AND CLEANLINESS OF THE HEATING SYSTEM THAT IS REVOLUTIONIZING MODERN LIVING.

For more information and estimates, contact your qualified electric heating contractor or your local Hydro office.

ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME

If you are planning home extensions or your home is not now properly heated you can install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present system.

Parents And Friends Fill Hall to View Graduation Of Class of Technicians

By GLADYS WARD

Fifteen girl students and one male student received their diplomas as graduates of the school of Medical Laboratory Technology, Department of Pathology at the Belleville General Hospital on Friday evening in Education Hall.

Before a gathering of parents and friends that filled the hall, the graduates entered wearing white smocks and carrying sprays of red roses to make a charming picture.

Former chairman of the Board of Governors, Frank Domenico, offered the guests a sincere welcome and hoped that the graduates would find that their past year had been a rich and rewarding experience. Mr. Domenico hoped that a start would be made on the new building next year with better facilities. "You are professional technicians and we are proud of you," he told the graduates.

Dr. R. S. Morphy brought greetings from the Medical Staff of the hospital. Mr. S. J. Johnston, administrator, told the graduates that the staff rejoiced in their success. "Actually your education is just beginning. The modern concept of technology is changing rapidly," Mr. Johnston said.

Dr. A. N. Rota congratulated the class and expressed appreciation for the co-operation and assistance of many people.

PRESENT DIPLOMAS

Mrs. J. Becker, R.T., chief instructor conducted the recitation of the Technologists' pledge and she and Dr. Rota presented the diplomas and pins.

Mr. S. J. Johnston introduced the guest speaker, Mr. S. W. Martin, executive secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Hospital Association, as a man with a formidable list of achievements who could speak with authority and a man who was a dedicated person in hospital work.

"A hospital has four functions," Mr. Martin said, "It must care for the sick and injured, as an educational institution, as a community health centre and as a contributor to research.

"Education is deeply rooted in hospitals and comes from a European origin. Basic education is the responsibility of the leading universities. The greatest proponent of bedside nursing and superior care of patients was best exemplified in Sir William Osler.

"The nursing profession has set high standards for themselves and for hospitals. The Belleville hospital may not have as close ties with a University centre, but you have chosen to cover this area with a growing number of technologists, which is indicative of your intimate concern. Individual classes have been small in laboratory work, and have been used mainly to supply their own staffs. But there are 3,800 new hospital beds this year and the demand is growing for adequate facilities and individuals to teach.

VITAL PART OF TEAM

"Provision for adequate facilities requires a good deal of money. This could be provided by Government funds. Belleville could be a satellite hospital in this area. But the building alone is not enough, we need to provide educated hands to provide the services that brick and mortar can never do.

"You are making an important contribution to the community and society. Our conception of truth is constantly changing. Science is never content with ground one.

"Each member of this class has a special offering of his own. I hope you will stand proud and unafraid facing life with confidence. You are a vital part of a health team, whose clear goal is to serve humanity. You must eventually develop to your finest and best, and develop a character that is strong, good and true."

Miss Patti Waite was Valedictorian, describing the wide variety of experiences and incidents they had met in their course. She thanked all who had helped to instill a sense of responsibility in the class to the hospital, the patient, and themselves.

Light refreshments were served after the graduation exercises, with the assistance of the class of '64.

FLIGHT LIEUTENANT R. S. HYNDMAN
DISTINGUISHED CANADIAN PORTRAIT ARTIST

"We're made so that we love first when we see them painted
Things we have passed perhaps a hundred times nor cared to see;
And so they are better painted — better to us,
Which is the same thing. Art was given for that."
—quoted by Rufus M. Jones in "Spirit of Man".

The long arm of coincidence weaves patterns best seen when looked back upon.

As, for instance:

During World War II years, we'd admired a portrait of a young RCAF fighter pilot, (of course of ours) who was later killed in the war. The portrait, an excellent likeness, had been done by a fellow RCAF fighter pilot and friend; Robert Hyndman. That was all we knew about the artist.

A dozen or so years later, we on coming to live in Belleville, at a coffee party one morning, we met Joan, a pretty, vivacious mother of two small daughters, from Ottawa, during a visit with her parents, Dr. and the late Mrs. Blakelee.

"Joan's husband's an artist," someone said. "You know — Robert Hyndman. . ."

Such was a design of the long arm of coincidence!

Little by little we discover more and more about Mr. Hyndman, a former Edmontonian (his father is Judge, the Honorable J. D. Hyndman of Rockcliffe) who is now recognized as one of Canada's leading artists; whose portrait commissions have taken him to every major city in Canada — as well as England to "do" the Queen.

"Would you say his work first came to the attention of the public during the war years?" we asked Joan, knowing that her husband had been educated in Toronto Academic and Art schools, followed by two London, England years of study before joining the RCAF in 1940, to become a veteran of five years wartime air force service and 135 Spitfire sorties including: sweeps over France, strafing rail and highways, dive bombing ground installations and flying support to the bombers during the invasion of France.

"Yes, definitely," she replied. "This gave Robert first hand impressions which he later put on canvas. His work won acclaim at the War Arts Exhibits in England and some is held by the National Museum in Ottawa."

In 1954, the RCAF sent this artist to Europe to record "on canvas" during April and May, RCAF activities overseas, to be displayed by the RCAF. "In my paintings," Mr. Hyndman said he'd attempted to bring out "the conditions under which Air Force people live on the continent, what they see and do in the artistic settings of the old world as I saw them."

Surely an artist's life is a charmed one. In 1959 Chatelaine Magazine commissioned Mr. Hyndman to make a painting of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, which, says the artist, was "done as regait of seeing the lovely lady on two most interesting occasions, as no actual sittings took place. . .as a very young girl when I first saw her . . .and now a wife, a mother. . . In oil, a medium I favor, I have endeavored to look beneath the serenity of a beautiful face and into the wellsprings of character it reflects."

A versatile artist, who enjoys murals and landscapes as well as portraits, though faces fascinate and interest him and are his first love, Mr. Hyndman is a member, indeed, of that breed of men about whom it has been written: "Your errand here is to enrich the world, and you impoverish yourself if you forget it."

"But why speak of this artist and his work when there is little chance of ever seeing his paintings" you may ask.

As bearer of glad tidings, we are happy to announce: Mr. Hyndman is not only having an exhibition of his paintings here, but has donated a painting for a lucky draw, the proceeds from which is being given to the local society that is his sponsor, namely: The Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Maybe your number will be the lucky one!

Pierre-Andre Boutin (Dorchester). The last three publicly pledged their support for a Liberal government last April, then retracted the pledge a few days later.

The first threat of the filibuster was made by Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) in the Commons Thursday night. It was confirmed by Mr. Caouette in an interview Friday. He said the Creditistes demand formal recognition as a party in Commons seating precedence, an issue now before the privileges committee.

WOULD GET $4,000

As leader of a recognized party Mr. Caouette would receive the new $4,000 annual allowance for leaders of groups of more than 12 MPs. Is is paid in addition to the regular $18,000 salary for MPs.

The Creditistes' demands are being opposed strongly by the 21-member Social Credit group. Mr. Caouette and his 13 followers bolted from the Social Credit party five weeks ago at a convention of Le Ralliement des Creditistes at Granby, Que.

They referred several times into to the possibility that Confederation may break up before the 1967 centennial can be observed.

The remainder of Friday's debate was devoted to labor trouble on the Great Lakes and along the St. Lawrence River.

CALL FOR ACTION

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and other Conservative spokesmen call for immediate government action to settle the strike by dock workers in four Quebec ports which began early Friday.

They said the shipping tie-up in the St. Lawrence could jeopardize Canada's $500,000,000 wheat sale to the Soviet Union and harm the whole economy.

Mr. Diefenbaker also called for faster government action on the proposal to remove Hal Banks as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada by clamping government trusteeship over five maritime unions.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said the government was largely to blame for the Quebec dock strike. The dispute had dragged on for eight months and the government had wasted valuable time in starting conciliation machinery.

Labor Minster MacEachen promised that the government will bring its trusteeship legislation as soon as it becomes clear that a union - sponsored alternative solution is impractical.

Preston Man Rounding Out Century of Life

PRESTON, Ont. (CP) — John Clifford Davidson, a sharp-eyed sports fan who is rounding out a century of life with a birthday today, has faint recollections of Canada at Confederation when he was a youngster approaching four.

He's not certain now how much of the memory of that acclaimant is first hand and how much was planted later by retrospective reading.

But he's proud of the fact that his family is Canadian in the broadest geographical sense; his progeny populate communities as widely separate as Halifax and Yellowknife, Kitchener and Edmonton.

Another of John Davidson's distinctions is linked to the mainstream of Canada's development. He is the oldest of 15,000 pensioners of the Canadian Pacific Railway, an institution that was opening up the West when he was born. He has great - great - grandchildren flirting out there now.

WORKED AS ENGINEER

His son Harvey, a stripling of 75 who with his wife makes a home for his father, is another CPR pensioner. The elder Davidson was a telegraph engineer who retired in 1930 after 27 years. Harvey was a dispatcher who retired in 1953.

His other son, Bert, a neighbor in the Waterloo County town of 12,000 is a youthful 80-year-old who also spent much of his working career in a public service, working from 1920 to 1951 as a transformer operator for the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

A daughter, now dead, was responsible for spreading the family north and westward. A granddaughter, Mrs. Edward Krisch of Edmonton is mother of John Davidson's two great-great grandsons, Greg, 10 and Paul.

Down east he has a granddaughter, Mrs. M. R. Pepper of Halifax. Most of the rest of his nine grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren live within 20 miles of Preston, including former TCA pilot Grant Davidson of Guelph and schoolteacher Ross Davidson of Kitchener, both grandsons.

Harvey Davidson and his wife are holding open house during the weekend so old friends can join kinfolk in paying their respects to the mustached old gentleman, who uses a hearing aid but needs no glasses for his reading or watch baseball, wrestling and boxing on television.

Going Steady Unhealthy, Unwise for 14-Year-Olds

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a 14-year-old girl, and a little nutty. If you can explain why I am like I am, I'll be grateful forever.

I'm going steady with the best-looking kid in the school. Freddie has everything a girl could possibly want. He's smart, handsome, popular and he has flipped over me. But the problem is my crazy feelings.

Sometimes when we are together I am bored and wish he would go home. After he leaves I miss him like crazy and I wish he'd come back.

Last week we were at a flea-hop (that's a dance) and there were two other fellows there that looked good to me. I kept wishing I wasn't going steady with Freddie. When I saw Freddie dancing with another girl, and holding her close, I almost jumped out of my skin.

Why am I hot and cold, low and high? Do you think I'm mentally ill? — BRENDA.

DEAR BRENDA — The high-low, hot-cold routine means you have not yet matured emotionally.

At 14 you should not be going steady with anyone — no matter how dreamy. It's unwise and unhealthy for a girl your age to have a heavy emotional investment in any one fellow.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I bought a home near the high school because we have three children of high school age and I was sick and tired of driving kids back and forth. Unfortunately, the house has two extra bedrooms.

Now it seems my husband's sister wishes to unload her high school girl on us because they live on the other side of town and the bus line does not run within seven blocks of them. In addition to this, my own brother wants us to keep his two sons (weekdays only, he said) because we live near school and his wife must have an operation which will put her off her feet for three months.

Bluntly speaking, my own three teenagers are more than I can handle and I don't want the responsibility of three more. My husband says it's up to me. My mother warns if I refuse I'll be branded by the family as selfish and mean. Help, please. — ON THE SPOT.

DEAR SPOT — Rooming and boarding high school children is an enormous responsibility, not to mention the additional work.

If you do not want to do it, be as blunt with them as you were with me and say no. This makes a lot more sense than knuckling under for fear of what the relatives will say or think.

* * *

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wife Often Must Take Action To Keep Hubby 'Alive' After 65

By THOMAS COLLINS

"The closer my husband gets to retirement, the more fearful I become. . ."

This is how a moderately well-to-do wife this week expressed her sentiments.

"It's not money that concerns me," she said. "My husband will have a pension of about $300 a month, and we have our house and some savings. My fear is the blank wall we are going to be facing the day he comes home.

"He doesn't want to find any new work after he retires. He has no hobbies and says he doesn't want any. Apparently he has not a single interest in life except going to the meetings of the Legion and his lodge.

"He has been drifting toward this nothingness over the last several years. But he has had his job to occupy his mind and about nine hours of his day. There has been reason to go on trying and living. When he retires there will be no reason — no future, no plans, no dreams, no enthusiasm, nothing even to talk about.

"If we were truly a couple, it would help. But like most older husbands and wives we are more like two old people who live together. We are compatible in that we don't fight, but a better word would be adjusted — we've learned what not to do when and how to keep silent.

"What can I do with this dismal picture?"

This wife, and others of you facing a similar problem, can do the following:

1. Understand that human spirit is not dead at 65. The urge to do, to win, to explore, to achieve may have been driven underground by unhappy experiences. But it is alive. Search for the key to revive it.

2. Realize that one thing you do will lead to another you do — always. So make a start toward snapping your husband out of his doldrums, even if it's wrong. Another idea will come to you out of it. Or to him. To do nothing, in hopes that a solution will come in off the street, is to fade away and die.

3. Accept the fact that sex is not going to launch a thousand ships at 65, and that any sort of physical endeavor is not going very far. Look for mental stimulation.

With these matters out of the way, the wife might consider some practical steps:

1. Take the children into your confidence, saying you're afraid Dad is heading for a miserable retirement and asking for suggestions. A visit by you and Dad to any of the children living in another city might strike a spark in him.

2. Draw out some of the savings and make a trip together. Not to Fiba's Peak, but to a place that may inspire him to start living again. To a seaport if he has lived inland, to New York if he's a small town man, or to something strange like a lumber camp in Canada.

3. Use all your wiles to get him to attend an adult evening school. Not because he wants to learn anything but because a classroom is a garden of ideas. And an idea that will revive your husband is your goal.

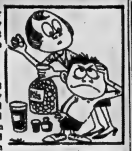
4. Please your husband's boss — he'll blow a gasket if he knows you did it — and tell him you are trying to help your husband plan a worthwhile retirement. Perhaps he can suggest some special talents your husband has, or some interesting connection he can make.

5. Can the local commander of the Legion do something to make your husband catch fire? Or the head of that lodge?

6. Tell your husband, calmly, that you simply aren't going to sit around and vegetate with him. Either he gets out and does something worthwhile, or you will. Then look into a job as a real estate saleslady.

7. If this doesn't make him mad, then look around for something that will. Because getting mad could help him. The racial crisis? Foreign Aid? The Mayor? Drunk drivers? The deplorable conditions in the county jail? Anything. A man who gets mad will usually act.

8. And reserve judgment for a bit on that business of a retired couple being merely two adjusted old people who live together. A good many retired couples — if they are bursting about instead of moping — are not finding it that way, according to reliable sources.



DEAR HENRY — My mother is a pill pusher. Every time I cough she asks me a lot of questions and gives me a pill, "to be on the safe side" she says. I'm not exaggerating either. What should I do?

NOT SICK

DEAR NOT SICK — If your mother gives you a pill every time you cough, and you don't want pills, why do you cough so much if you are not sick?

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — I am 13 and live near a field. All my friends have guns and bows and arrows. When I go out they lend me theirs. My mother says I'm too old to play with guns and bows and arrows and that I'm immature. I don't think so.

BAWLED OFF

DEAR BAWLED OFF — If you want to play with guns, it's pretty obvious that you aren't too old to!

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — I don't mind school that much but after school do they have to pile the homework on?

MAC

DEAR MAC — Complain about your homework . . . have fun

But I've never known complaining . . . to get homework done!

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — I am a boy of 14 and I want a girl friend I met a girl this summer who was visiting neighbors She lives in Illinois and I think she likes me but I am not sure Do you think I should write? I may not see her again for two years.

P. N. B.

DEAR P. N. B. — Just because she is the first girl to ever smile at you it doesn't mean she'll be the last. Just be patient and you are bound to meet another nice girl.

in the Commons. He implied that if the government intervened to stop the lawful strike, it would be moving toward "slave labor."

"I underlines my belief in the right to strike as a part of that process of free collective bargaining which is fully protected under Canadian labor law and which is one of the fundamental rights of Canadian workers."

Government sources say that if the dock strike shows signs of stretching out into a lengthy battle, then the public interest would require government intervention.

The decision on when this stage has been reached in the present dispute lies largely with Mr. MacEachen.

"We intend to take whatever action is necessary in the light of developments in the work of the mediation process," he told the Commons.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The only way the New York Yankees may be able to keep Sandy Koufax from setting another world series strikeout record is by losing to the Los Angeles Dodgers in six games or less. And even that might not do it.

Handy Sandy, who set a one-game record by whiffing fifteen in the series opener, will have a chance to break the record for most strikeouts by one pitcher in a world series of seven games or less.

Hal Newhouser of Detroit Tigers set the record by fanning 22 Chicago batters in three appearances during the 1945 series. Bill Dineen of Boston Red Sox fanned 21, pitching against the Pittsburgh Pirates in the 1903 series. But that one played in the days when it took five victories, went eight games.

Koufax would almost certainly break Newhouser's record — and would have a good shot at Dineen's — if he got three starts against the Yankees. But he won't get three unless the series stretches to seven games.

Sandy, says the story, had actually professed little interest in strikeouts. He says he's more interested in putouts and in some of his best games he has had only a few strikeouts. He fanned four in his no-hitter against the San Francisco Giants last May.

Sandy says he will pitch differently to the Yankees on Sunday. I don't know why. His performance in the opener suited all Dodger fans.

But says Koufax, "you've got to give the hitters credit for being smart enough to figure out if you do that. You have to change from game to game." I know a little more about the Yankees than I did at first, but they know a little more about me, too."

Defenceman Tom Johnson of Boston Bruins, whose professional hockey career was threatened by a severe eye injury less than eight months ago, was named Friday night as a last-minute replacement to the National League All-Stars who meet Stanley Cup holders Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight.

Hockey men gathered in Toronto Friday night for the NHL's All-Star dinner but Sid Abel, coach of Detroit Red Wings, did not take part in the celebrations. Abel, who coaches the All-Stars tonight, learned of the death of his mother, Mrs. Etta Abel, at Melville, Sask., Thursday night. He will coach the team then leave for Melville to attend his mother's funeral Monday.

Abel also confirmed Friday night that another Bruin, Murray Oliver, will join the All-Stars if Stan Mikita's contract problems with Chicago Black Hawks prevent him playing tonight. NHL rules stipulate that a player cannot take part in the game unless under contract before game time.

Mikita, who scored 31 goals and had 45 assists last year, earned $14,000 on the second year of a two-year contract. He was named centre on the first All-Star team.

Abel will have one team line intact — Gordie Howe, Red Kelly-Leo Nevin Ullman from the Wings. John Bellveau and Bernie Geoffrion, Henri Richard and Claude Provost, of Montreal will form two-thirds of the other lines.

The All-Stars also have Andy Bathgate and Henry of New York, the Hawks' Bobby Hull and Dean Prentice of the Bruins.

Pierre Pilote and Elmer Vasko of the Hawks will form one pair on defence and Marcel Pronovost of Detroit and the Rangers' Harry Howell the other. Johnson is fifth man.

Drysdale Faces Bouton Today ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Bold LA Fans See Four-Game Sweep

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The giddy townspeople here no longer were talking merely of a World Series victory over the New York Yankees today. Instead they were boldly predicting a four-game sweep over the proud and perennial American League champions.

A Dodger sweep, only a dream a couple of days ago, was within the realm of realism as the Combatants went into their third game, first on Dodger soil, with the National Leaguers holding a dominant 2-0 lead in games.

Less than a week ago a bettor could get odds ranging from 20 to 25 to 1 if he were gambler enough to take the Dodgers in four straight. The odds now are 5 to 1 for a sweep, 3 to 1 that they'll win the Series.

Should Don Drysdale pitch the Dodgers to a triumph over young Jim Bouton in today's third game they will be a strong favorite to sweep, inasmuch as Sandy Koufax, their ace, is a certainty to pitch the fourth game Sunday.

Despite the Dodgers' envious position, Walter Alston, the ever-conservative Los Angeles manager, refused to enter any statement that might hint of optimism.

ALSTON CAUTIONS

"It's a nice feeling to win the first two games. But this Yankee club can't be trusted."

The Series will be over, of course, if the Dodgers win the third game today and the fourth game Sun day. But Alston wouldn't dare let himself even think of a sweep.

After naming the right-handed Drysdale and the left-handed Koufax as his next two pitchers, he added:

"It'll be Johnny Podres again Monday for the fifth game if he's all right. Sometimes he needs a little more rest. If he isn't ready Monday I could go with somebody else — maybe Pete Richert or Bob Miller—and then open with Podres in New York Wednesday."

The Drysdale-Bouton match will be the first duel between right-handers in this series. It marked the third World Series appearance for Drysdale, who has pitched briefly against the Yankees in the third game of the 1956 post-season classic and defeated the Chicago White Sox in the third game in 1959.

FIRST APPEARANCE

Bouton, who replaced Ralph Terry as the Yankees' No. 2 pitcher behind Ford, was making his first Series appearance. The 24-year-old native of New Jersey won 21 and lost seven during the regular season. Terry, last year's darling and winner of two Series games over the Giants, is destined to play a waiting game in the bullpen.

The Yankees were virtually certain of playing without Roger Maris today. The slugging right-fielder, who suffered a bruised upper left arm when he crashed into the right field barrier while chasing Tommy David's triple Thursday, was not in uniform during the Yankee workout at Dodger Stadium Friday. He complained of pain and said he had trouble trying to flex the arm. He may be lost for the Series.

"It's extremely doubtful whether Maris will play," Houk said, "although a night's rest may change the picture. If he cannot, I'll play either John Blanchard or Hector Lopez in right field. Otherwise, there will be no changes."

TWO DOUBLES

Lopez, who replaced Maris in Thursday's game, rapped two doubles in three times at bat.

Alston decided to keep the right-handed Bill Skowron at first base despite the right-handed opposition. Skowron, originally slated to play only against left-handed pitching, has been a hot hitter in the Series with four hits, including a home run and three runs batted in.

Alston said he would stick with Dick Tracewski at second base, although the injured Ken McMullen was ready to return. Ron Fairly, however, would replace Frank Howard in right field.

"Our theory all year has been to stick with the guy who's hot," said Alston, explaining his decision to stay with Skowron. "And, the way Tracewski is hitting and playing, there is no sense taking him out either."

CROWD CLAMORS FOR SERIES TICKETS — Orderly lines of baseball fans trying to buy World Series tickets all but disappeared at the windows of a ticket booth near Dodger Stadium today where 12,300 tickets for the next three games were placed on sale. A Dodger official stands atop the booth with a portable voice amplifier trying to herd the crowd back into discernible lines. The Dodgers and New York resume the series in Los Angeles tomorrow. All Eyes On Jimmy Brown

Steelers, Browns Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) —It has been said around the National Football League that there's no defence that can stop Jimmy Brown.

Even if that's true, Cleveland Browns' star may not be able to crack Pittsburgh Steelers' line often enough tonight to outdo a strong combination of Pittsburgh runners—John Henry Johnson, Dick Hoak and Bob Ferguson.

Tonight's game at Cleveland Stadium is one of three on tap and the only one in the National League. Sunday there are six NFL games scheduled and two in the American Football League.

The Pittsburgh - Cleveland game promises some of the most rugged action of the weekend. Most of the play likely will be on the ground with only a few passes to loosen up the defences. Frank Ryan, now settled in the role of first-string quarterback, is Cleveland's air arm, but the Browns' big threat in three straight victories has been Jimmy Brown's powerful running.

Pittsburgh's greatest strength has been a defence that has yielded only 31 points in two victories and a tie. Brown will need considerable blocking help to smack through it. The Steelers haven't done much passing, but their ground attack is varied and powerful.

JETS MEET PATRIOTS

In the AFL, New York Jets take on Boston Patriots and Oakland Raiders meet the Bills at Buffalo.

Chicago Bears, heading the NFL's Western Conference with three consecutive victories, play the Los Angeles Rams. Season Sunday against Baltimore Colts.

In other NFL games, the champion Green Bay Packers play Los Angeles Rams; Detroit Lions meet San Francisco 49ers, New York Giants play Washington Redskins, Minnesota Vikings go against St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Eagles meet Dallas Cowboys.

Sunday's AFL games pit Kansas City Chiefs against Houston Oilers and San Diego Chargers against Denver Broncos.

STUDY IL PLANS

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials of the International League spent Friday studying various proposals for the realignment of the triple A minor baseball leagues but reached no conclusions.

Ottawa Riders Go West

Football Standings Up For Grabs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Football fans could be treated to a version of musical chairs this weekend as key standings are up for grabs in four Canadian Football League games in the next two days.

First place in the Eastern Conference could change hands at least once by Monday night and second place in the West could be juggled between Saskatchewan Roughriders, Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Saskatchewan Roughriders will meet Ottawa Rough Riders on home ground. A win for Saskatchewan would give them sole possession of second place and a win for Ottawa, who are now locked in a tie with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes, would put them on top of the Eastern Conference.

In Edmonton, the Eskimos lock horns with the Western Conference leaders, British Columbia Lions.

Monday, Ottawa moves to Calgary Stampeder home territory and the Tiger-Cats take on Winnipeg Blue Bombers who are one point behind Saskatchewan and Calgary.

EFC Scoring Leaders

Toronto Argonauts' Dick Shatto scored a touchdown Friday night to move into the lead in the Eastern Football Conference scoring race as the Argos dropped a 29-13 decision to Montreal Alouettes.

Varsity Wins Golf Title

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The University of Toronto Friday won the senior Intercollegiate League's team championship for the fourth straight year in the annual Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association's golf tournament involving nine schools.

Toronto, led by captain Alby Garbe's 152 36-hole effort, finished nine strokes in front of runner-up University of Western Ontario.

The individual championship was an upset. Harvey Barsanti, an unheralded University of Windsor ace, from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., edged Garbe by one shot to capture the McCall Cup.

Norm Mogil of Toronto was third individually with 154, one shot ahead of Windsor's Sandy Roland, former two-time champion Mike Whitney of Toronto and the University of Waterloo's Frank Pinder.

Woman Wields Knife In L.A.

Ticket-Seeking Fans Start Riot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Stadium guards called for police assistance Friday to quell a disturbance when 8,000 fans tried to get World Series tickets at Dodger Stadium.

Windows for sales to the general public opened at 11 a.m. A Dodger spokesman said most of the tickets were sold out in two hours.

General disorder occurred when a woman brandished a knife while waiting in line to buy tickets for Saturday's game, police said, but a security guard took the knife away from her.

Police Inspector Ed Walker said "some people were touchy, because they didn't want anyone to cut in on the line."

There were 12,300 tickets with a maximum two to a customer offered to the general public. One-third of them were for Monday's game, which will only be played if it proves necessary. Four Dodger wins—Los Angeles leads the best-of-seven series 2-0—would obviate the necessity.

Colts, Mets Will Get Needed Help

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National League, in a move to beef up the struggling Houston Colts and New York Mets, voted Friday night to add at least four relatively proven players to the rosters of each of the two new clubs.

League president Warren Giles said the players would be selected at a meeting in Cincinnati no later than Oct. 16 and probably within two or three days of the end of the World Series, which resumes with the New York Yankees playing the Colts and Mets come into being as new teams in 1962.

Giles, the league's chief executive, announced the selections from the lists at a cost of $50,000 per player.

Giles emphasized that no club would be required to sell more than one player, but was free to negotiate with the Mets and Colts for the other three players would be no more than $200,000. Either the Mets and Colts are not required to take any new players they feel will not be of help.

Cuban Whips Denucci

Fans Riot After Fight!

BOSTON (AP)—Rugged Florentino Fernandez of Cuba knocked out Joe Denucci with a smashing left hand at 2:30 of the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round middleweight bout Friday night.

A riot broke out in the ring after the fight ended.

Fernandez weighed 159½, 5½ pounds less than his Newton, Mass., opponent.

A sweeping left hook to the jaw dropped the New Englander for the full count. It was the first time Denucci has been floored in a pro career of 44 bouts.

The thick - necked Cuban, noted for the power of his left hook, has won all his comeback fights by knockouts since he was flattened in the first round by Hurricane Carter last Oct. 27.

Once a high - ranking contender, Fernandez climbed back into a No. 10 ranking on the strength of his latest knockout string. His record is 37-6 including 30 knockouts. He is 27.

Denucci, 34, has a 36-6-2 record.

The televised bout erupted into a riot when several men dives into the ring with Cuban flags after the knockout. One was wrestled to the edge of the apron and tumbled over the press row. Another man in the ring pulled out a knife but was quickly subdued by police.

Police later said there were no arrests as a result of the disorder.

The first rioters into the ring were Cubans, one carrying a banner reading: "Help us Fight communism."

A second wave apparently was composed of men spoiling for a fight.

Al Balding Top-Tied In Tourney

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Al Balding of Toronto and Phil-Rodgers of Lapelle, Calif., finished Friday's second round tied for first place in the Whitemarsh Open golf tournament with scores of six-under-par 136.

Balding and Rodgers both three-putted on the final green when a par would have given either sole possession of top spot. They were hampered by cold, gusty winds.

Balding shot two Balding fired a 33-35—68 over the 6,807-yard White Marsh Valley course. Par for the course is 34-36—70. Rodgers came in with a 34-36—70.

They overtook the first-round leader, Mason Rudolph, who shot a 72 after a first - round 67. Rudolph dropped into a tie for second place with Tommy Jacobs at 138.

Arnold Palmer, who shot a 71, was tied for third place at 141 with Gene Littler, who ended his second round with a 72.

Al Johnston of Montreal shot a 74, as he did Thursday, and was in 36th place with five other entries. Tied for 12th place with 11 others was Bill Ezzicki, formerly of Winnipeg, who now has a combined score of 76-74—150, while George Knudson of Toronto added a 75 to his Thursday score of 76 to join 19 others in 13th place at 151.

DUCKS ARE STAYING

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ducks Unlimited said Friday waterfowl are staying put on the Canadian Prairies because of warm weather and a good food supply.

Toss Rubbish, Fruit

Hoodlums Mar Grid Game

HAMILTON (CP) — Hoodlums tossed rubbish and rotten fruit at the Scarborough Rams bench Friday night, nearly provoking a riot in an Ontario Junior Football Conference game, won 21-12 by Hamilton Hurricanes.

Police were called in to bring order to the stands after the youthful partisans, who had been swelling up through most of the game, incensed their barrages early in the fourth quarter when two players were ejected from the closely fought contest.

Referee Bill Shephard set Dennis Kisko of Hamilton and Jim MacDonald of Scarborough out of the game for fighting.

"Those are the type of fans we can do without," said Hamilton coach Ralph Agers, 135, Phillipsburg, N. J., 10.

Coach Upsons Curtis of Scarborough commented: "The fans should have known better. Young players are so wrapped up in a game that the slightest thing can get them going."

The teams fumbled their way through a scoreless first quarter, then Scarborough got all its points in a second-quarter outbreak. The Hurricanes evened the count and went ahead to stay, all in the third quarter.

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Wirkowski, who tacked away a seven-year contract as coach of Toronto Argonauts earlier this week, can start thinking about the 1964 season in earnest now.

His 1963 charges just about blew any chances for an Eastern Football Conference playoff spot this year as they absorbed a 29-13 shellacking from Montreal Alouettes Friday night.

Only three teams go into the four-team Eastern playoffs and right now three of them are deadlocked in first place with 10 points each—Ottawa, Hamilton and Montreal. The woeful Argos trail six points behind with a record of two wins and eight losses and with only four games to go in the regular schedule.

The first-place trio may be known up in interlocking games in the next three days. Ottawa Rough Riders face Saskatchewan Roughriders tonight and Calgary Stampeders Monday. Hamilton Tiger-Cats go to Winnipeg for a game against the Bombers Monday.

ARGOS SCORE

The fast-fading Argos played before 23,587 fans, smallest to watch a game at the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium this year. They started to boo the home team even before the game got under way.

The game may have ended Sandy Stephen's career as quarterback with Toronto. The former Montreal signal - caller, replaced by coach Jim Trimble because he was overweight early this season, was yanked out as Argo's quarterback early in the first quarter and replaced by Jackie Parker.

Counting a touchdown in each quarter, the Als went ahead 14-0 after the first, held a 15-6 halftime lead and increased it to 29-6 after the third quarter as Toronto completed gracefully.

Warren Rabb, who quarterbacked Montreal throughout, scored one touchdown and passed for and smash Fullback Paul Barbet, castoff from Edmonton, George Dixon and Dave Hoppman added the others.

Glen Barrutia kicked three converts and two singles.

PLAYS PLANKER

Dick Shatto, Argo's prolific scorer, took a pass for one Toronto touchdown and Parker scored the other. Parker also played most of the game at flanker booted a convert.

Parker also played most of the quarterback slot when Stephens missed on his first four passes. The former Edmonton ace finished the game with 17 completions in 35 attempts and appears to have cinched the signal-calling job for the remainder of the season.

Montreal rolled over Argos along the ground 262 yards to 71. But Parker gave the losers 229 yards in the air to Als' 164. Montreal had 25 first downs, three more than Toronto.

Rabb had only 10 passes and completed eight while Dixon, the Als' leading ground gainer, carried 14 times for 128 yards. Shatto led the Toronto attack, gaining 73 yards on five carries and 40 on six passes. Stephens caught five passes for 100 yards.

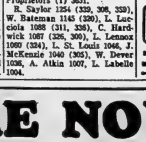
Dodgers Three- To One To Win Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Drysdale, six-foot-six side-winding right-hander attempts to pitch Los Angeles Dodgers to their third straight World Series victory today over New York Yankees.



A capacity crowd of 55,000 is expected in Dodger Stadium to cheer the home town heroes, who won the first two games in New York from the American League champions.

The National Leaguers are facing Jim Bouton, 24-year-old freshman righthander, who had a great season with 21 victories and seven defeats. Drysdale, a veteran at 26, was 19-17 for the season.

The weather man said there is a 40-per-cent possibility of rain but little likelihood of sufficient moisture in Chaves Ravine to interrupt the baseball game.

Baseball Adopts New Rule

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Veteran baseball players who believe they are being assigned off the payroll by the new bonus rule have called on management to come to their aid.

Under the new rule, if a big league club wants to protect from the draft a youngster to whom it may have paid a bonus of $100,000 to sign, it must carry him on its 37-man roster. Sometimes he sits on the bench and sometimes he is sent to the minors and the big league club plays with only 36 men.

The veterans believe this rule can cut short their careers by one to three years since the men dropped to make way for the youngsters are always the older players. Loss of playing years cuts into the rich baseball pension payments for the veterans.

"We have requested some type of financial consideration to modify the bonus rules and protect the veteran," said Robert Carson of Milwaukee, legal advisor of the baseball players.

Bob Friend of Pittsburgh Pirates, players' representative in the National League, and Bob Turley of Boston Red Sox, representative in the American League, together with Carlson presented their case to a meeting of baseball's executive council Friday.

ITALIAN BOAT WINS

TUTZING, West Germany (CP-AP) — Italy won the fifth heat of the Flying Dutchman sailing championship on Lake Starnberg Friday, followed by Poland and Switzerland. The Canadian team of R. W. McKimm and David Corrigan of the Britannia Yacht Club, Ottawa, placed 21st.

SUMMER IN THE ARCTIC — This is a snowy mid-summer scene on Baffin Island where a federal scientific expedition is studying the 2,000-foot-thick Barnes Ice Cap. The study is intended to show what the area will be like as the ice cap recedes and to indicate when it will be ready to be exploited for its mineral wealth. (CP Photo)

New Concept for Study Of Barnes Ice Cap on Baffin Island Devoloped

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—A relic of the last ice age the size of Prince Edward Island soon will give up more of its secrets to inquisitive Canadian scientists.

A new concept for study of the Barnes Ice Cap on Baffin Island has been developed by the geographical branch of the federal department of mines and technical surveys.

Dr. John D. Ives, acting director of the branch, said the latest research approach should enable scientists to find answers to a vast number of unknowns about this strange Arctic phenomenon.

The Barnes Ice Cap sits on top of a plateau in the north-central area of Baffin Island. It is 95 miles long, 25 miles wide and 2,000 feet thick.

"This ice cap presents extremely challenging problems to the scientist," Dr. Ives said. "If we could remove it artificially, then under existing climatic conditions it would not re-form. In this sense it is a climatic anomaly, probably a relic of the last great ice age. All other ice caps and glaciers in this Arctic area are in mountainous regions."

ICE CAP RECEDES

Dr. Ives said the study of the ice cap forms part of a general project to map the land forms and surface conditions of north-central Baffin island. A knowledge of the landscape at present and what it will be like in the future as the ice cap recedes will be necessary before the area can be exploited for its mineral wealth.

The new research concept involves a study of the moraines —ridges of boulders and ice up to 300 feet in height left by the ice cap over the ages as it slowly receded inland.

The objective is to determine the age of the moraines, which will show the rate that the ice cap is receding, give a picture of what the terrain will be like in future and provide information on the date lakes dammed by the cap will drain away suddenly.

The moraines, incidentally, will present a major obstacle to future transportation in this area should it be a source of minerals. They are 20 to 200 feet high, occur at intervals of 150 to 200 feet and vary in length from one-half mile to five miles.

Last summer scientists dug into a moraine near the cap and removed 2,000 pounds of ice. This ice was not from the cap, which is thought to be some 25,000 years old, but from snow piled up at the edge of the cap and covered with rocks as a result of the oscillating motion of the glacier.

This snow contains bits of twigs and pollen which can be reduced to carbon and their age determined by a radio carbon dating technique. This process enables carbon to be dated back 40,000 years.

The 2,000 pounds of ice was melted at a base camp at Fiftyaway Lake on the northern margin of the cap and the sediments in the water allowed to settle for two weeks. Four pounds of material made up of silt, clay, organic matter and graphite was obtained.

This material will be sent to Trondheim in central Norway for the actual radio carbon dating. Before the organic matter can be separated and turned into carbon by a burning technique the other foreign materials must be separated by a flotation process.

LAKE TO DISAPPEAR

Dr. Ives said the new technique offers one of the most exciting methods of dating that glaciology has seen in a long time. Scientists hope to be able to use it to determine the age of almost anything with an ice core.

The geographical branch plans further studies of the cap during the next few years. However, in about five years or less it will not be able to use Fifty-away Lake for its base camp.

This small lake, named Fifty because it is eventually will disappear as the cap recedes the lake grows larger in area and once it no longer is backed by the cap will spill away with a rush.

Dr. Ives said that 300 years ago a lake 30 miles long and 700 feet in depth existed several miles northwest of the present northern extremity of the cap. It drained away when the cap receded to a point where it no longer acted as a strong barrier containing the water. The rush of water was so great that a valley along which it travelled to the sea was stripped clean of rocks and boulders.

ICE MELTER — Rolf Kihl, lab technician with a federal government scientific team studying Baffin Island's Barnes Ice Cap, works with equipment for melting ice from the glacier. The sediment left behind will be sent to Norway where radio carbon tests will determine its age. An object of the work is to determine the rate at which the ice cap is receding and predict when lakes dammed by the cap will suddenly drain away. (CP Photo)

Creators of TV Series Face Occupation Crisis

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television is suffering an occupation crisis.

The industry is running low on lines of work on which to base series. Extent of the crisis is demonstrated by the new shows this season.

There are series based on a bellhop (The Bill Dana Show), teachers (Mr. Novak, Channing), spies (Espionage), a frontier lawyer (Temple Houston), frontier doctor (The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters), marine officers (The Lieutenant), visitor from outer space (My Favorite Martian), circus boss (The Greatest Show on Earth), social worker (East Side, West Side, factory foreman (The Phil Silvers Show).

That isn't all. The Fugitive is a series about a convicted murderer on the lam (he's innocent, of course).

The most bizarre of the new series heroes is the homicide detective of Burke's Law. He also happens to be a millionaire who covers cases in his chauffeured Rolls Royce.

HAS MEMO

I have gained possession of an inter-office memo from a major network. It shows what television moguls are doing to combat the crisis:

To: Production dept.

Subject: Ideas for new series.

1. Hop-O-Wong rides again. A coolie on a railway work gang goes over the hill and becomes a Chinese gunslinger, righting the wrongs against his countrymen.

2. Mortuary Madness. A bunch of wacky undertakers in madcap adventures.

3. Frontier Plumber. A dedicated craftsman helps bring civilization to the backward communities of the west.

4. Teen-age brain surgeon. A youthful twist on the hospital shows.

5. The Ozark Vanderbilts. The hilarious adventures of blue bloods who settle among the mountain folk.

Such programs would merely be stopgap measures, however. The occupational hazard will increasingly plague television. Creators of series might heed the example of The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet, which has survived a dozen years.

Ozzie doesn't have an occupation.

Top Stars in Hitchcock Film Duo

A double barreled great is in store for lovers of Hitchcock thrillers with the special Re-Presentation Double Feature of "The Man Who Knew Too Much" and "The Trouble With Harry," both in Technicolor and due at the Park Theatre on Monday.

"The Man Who Knew Too Much" stars James Stewart and Doris Day and tells the story of an American doctor and his wife vacationing in Morocco who unwittingly become involved in an international assassination plot.

"The Trouble With Harry" starring Shirley MacLaine and John Forsythe is set in Vermont during its beautiful autumn season. The trouble with Harry is that he's dead — nobody knows who killed him or why he was killed — and his body keeps popping up with embarrassing regularity. This is generally conceded to be the funniest of all Hitchcock films. Show starts at 7.30 p.m. "The Trouble With Harry" shown at 7.30. "The Man Who Knew Too Much" at 9.25.

AT THE BELLE — Tuttie, the beautiful Polynesian girl who plays the romantic lead opposite Marlon Brando in M-G-M's presentation of "Mutiny on the Bounty" the most exciting and romantic sea adventure ever told, filmed in ultra Panavision Technicolor, in Pathe Color. Tuttie is playing an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Beasley's Majestic Hour, which returned to winning form in his last start here Sept. 28 after he had lost his first 11 starts of the season, took Friday's featured mile race in straight heats at Greenwood Raceway.

Ridden by apprentice jockey Eric Walsh, a native of North Sydney, N.S., Majestic Hour closed determinedly in the stretch to edge Ace Hanover by Burlington Golf and Country Club Purse by a head over the 24-to-5 favorite, Kin Farms' Winisteo. M. Kilmore's Credit Curb was third only a neck away.

Walsh provided Majestic Hour's supporters with a thrilling ride and paid $8.10 return to win. When coupled in quinella wagering with Winisteo, the pair were responsible for a $20.50 payoff.

The Trots

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Castleton Farm's Speedy Scot captured the $60,000 Kentucky Futurity in consecutive heats Friday and became the second triple-crown winner in trotting history.

Speedy Scot made it look easy as he turned back Florlis, owned by the Arden Homestead Stables of Goshen, N.Y., and Cheer Honey, owned by the Donner Packing Company of Milwaukee.

The winner scored a clean sweep at Lexington after picking up victories earlier in the Yonkers and the Hambletonian. The only other triple - crown winner was Scott Frost, who won all three in 1955—the inaugural year of the crown.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Adopted Older Child

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Thank you very much for your prompt answer, and help. I am now anxiously awaiting the books and booklet you recommended and which I have ordered.

Adopting an older child can certainly be most rewarding. The most important thing to keep in mind, I think, is not to expect too much from the child. For quite a while, it is very necessary for the parents to do a lot of "giving." Insecurity is such a problem.

Our young man, until recently, shut his mind completely on his past, including the first two years after his adoption. He could only remember the recent past. However, he is gradually remembering things and we make sure we don't force anything. I am so delighted to have him (slightly) with us — I ask no more.

Actually, his life and ours is a story in itself, and I find it difficult to condense. However, I did want to write a little more in the hope that some time you can use a little of what I have said to encourage someone. — ADOPTING MOTHER.

DEAR ADOPTING MOTHER — That's wonderful news. Working one's way into the heart of an unsettled child takes not only love but great patience and understanding. The rewards can be tremendous!

DEAR DORIS — Just would like to know what you think. I have a boy not yet three who roughs it up with the older boys and who is certainly not a sissy because he has to stick up for his rights with three others in the family.

But I have a friend with a two-and-a-half-year-old boy who is a lot smaller than he is. Whenever this child hits him, my boy will not hit back. I tell him to stop crying and hit back because this boy also bites and hits with everything he can get hold of; I am against this and do not allow it or mine are punished.

Today this little one hit mine over the head with a hammer, and the mother just sat there and said if he would hit back it would not happen. So I blew my stack and walked out when I saw she wasn't going to punish the child and didn't even go to see if mine was hurt. Fortunately the blow only left a goose egg. — MOTHER OF FOUR.

DEAR MOTHER — What do I think? That you should keep your three-year-old as far away from that little monster as possible. The next hammer blow could cripple him. I would have blown my stack too.

DEAR DORIS — What advice have you for a 19-year-old girl who is always falling in love with men old enough to be her father? The girl in question is my best friend.

These affairs are not "crushes" and have been long and serious. Some of them have been married men. I know nothing morally wrong has taken place. She's not a tramp or anything. —BEWILDERED.

DEAR BEWILDERED — If she is "always falling in love" it is a sure sign that she is not yet mature enough to choose a partner for life. Is she, in fact, in need of "fathering"? Incidentally, if some of these are married men, she is coming dangerously close to being considered a tramp.

(Do you want the name of a Canadian resource which can solve your difficulty? Ask Doris for it.)

Mr. Cutler said that only two of the 38 shipping companies belonging to the shipping federation are involved in the movement of the wheat and flour.

CONTRACT HAS RIDER

The agreement with Russia provides that in the event of a delay through national circumstances such as a labor stoppage the terms of the contract can be renegotiated.

The contract now calls for the entire shipment to be completed by July 31, 1964.

In Montreal three vessels loading wheat for Russia were made idle.

The St. Lawrence ports normally handle an average of about 75 vessels a day during this peak fall shipping season.

Shipping officials estimated losses in Montreal alone could run as high as $2,000,000 a day.

The harbor lineup is duplicated since 1956, and both the other strikes during this period were wildcat.

PROTESTED DELAYS

Stevedores walked out for five days in 1961 and for two days last month to protest what they called unnecessary delays in reaching agreement on a new contract.

Their last agreement expired at the beginning of this year. The longshoremen, who now earn a basic rate of $2.35 an hour, are seeking an increase of 25 cents an hour plus 10 cents in fringe benefits over the life of a two-year contract.

The federation has offered a 16-cent-an-hour package.

This offer was made last March and company and union officials agreed to accept it but the ILA membership turned it down.

A federal conciliation board unanimously recommended a 22-cent-an-hour package but it was rejected by both the union membership and the shipping federation.

Most people do something special for their Silver Anniversary. Mercury creates its most luxurious cars in 25 years.

For most people, a 25th Anniversary is a magic once-in-a-lifetime occasion that demands something very special in the way of celebration.

So it is with Mercury, in this, its Silver Anniversary year.

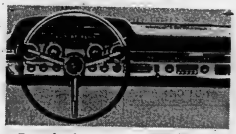
For 1964, all eight Mercurys are special cars. Special in the sense that even if you don't intend to buy a car this year, they may make you change your mind.

As you can see in the picture above, Mercury offers two completely different rooflines this year. The impatient line of the fastback model, in the foreground, typifies the spirit of the Montclair Marauder. While Mercury's famous Breezeway Roof (the rear window lowers) is available on both the Montclair and the ultra-sophisticated Park Lane, shown in the background.

Inside, these special cars are a world apart from most other cars.

Box-pleated fabrics show richness you would be proud of in your own home.

Ostrich-grained vinyls look and feel so much like hand-rubbed leather that most people couldn't tell the difference.



Bucket seats are of a special shell-type design.

Carpeting is deep pile.

Rear seat has a big pull-down arm-rest.

Doors are finished with rich walnut-grained panelling and warm suede.

The optional Swing-Away Steering Wheel allows comfortable entrance and exit.

Even the foot pedals are accented with bright metal.

The Silver Anniversary Mercury isn't available with a six-cylinder engine. It's not that kind of a car. Instead, you have a choice of two big V8's designed to give the self-assured kind of performance befitting a Silver Anniversary car of Mercury's calibre.

And as far as transmissions are concerned — manual, automatic, on the floor or on the steering column, single or dual range — each can introduce you to something new in effortless driving pleasure.

It's an engineering truth that it takes a big car to give you a really smooth ride. That's why Mercury's wheelbase spans a big 120 inches. You drive the level line of luxury on just about any kind of surface.

Any really bad bumps that do come your way are soaked up by a suspension system that allows wheel movement backward and forward as well as up and down.

All the things mentioned above make Mercury a special car on this its 25th birthday. But above all, there's an intangible something else that makes this Silver Anniversary edition a car to remember. That is the anticipation with which you will look forward to driving this car and even seeing it parked in front of your home.

Mercury for 1964, be sure to see it soon at your quality Mercury dealer's.

Longshoremen Make New Offer To End Strike

Executives Given Full Power to End Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) is presenting a new set of contract proposals today as mediation continues to end the St. Lawrence River dock strike.

The ILA's members voted Sunday to give their executives full power to settle the strike without further consulting members, on the basis of the new demands.

Nearly 2,000 longshoremen attended the general meeting in Montreal to discuss the mediation talks.

The vote marked a dramatic change in the members' position, and ended an element of uncertainty that has plagued the ILA negotiations with the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The union executives came to an agreement with the federation but the membership refused to reject it and stuck to their original demands. In September, the members reconsidered their decision and recommendation with which the union's own representative on the board agreed, and again stuck to original demands.

STARTED FRIDAY

The 2,000 ILA members struck Friday at Montreal, Quebec City, Trois-Rivieres, and Sorel, and effectively shut off traffic in the St. Lawrence River just at the beginning of the regular autumn harvest. The strike magnified this year by the scheduled shipment of 60,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour to Russia through the ports.

Phil Cutler, union lawyer, declined Sunday to reveal the nature of the new proposals. He said the federation Judge Jean Lippe, the federally - appointed mediator, should be told first.

In accepting the new demands, the union members refused a basis of settlement put forward by Judge Lippe, a Montreal magistrate with extensive experience in mediating labor troubles.

Mr. Cutler said the new demands are "far from our original demands" and are "quite different" from other proposals made.

He had predicted Friday that Judge Lippe's proposals which he termed as a basis for much on dollars and cents and not enough on fringe benefits like

Says Sales Will Set New Record

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian cows will produce 1,000 pounds of milk for every man, woman and child in the country this year, President J. M. Hartwick of the National Dairy Council said today.

Canada's population totalled 19,000,000 persons last week and farmers and processors will distribute 19,000,000,000 pounds f milk in some form at home or among more than 50 countries in the export field, Mr. Hartwick told the council's annual meeting. Sales in 1963 would achieve a record. Text of Mr. Hartwick's remarks was released to the press before delivery.

"The past year has shown that dairy farmers now are more aware that production must be tailored to meet effective demestic and export demand and that public funds cannot be used indefinitely to pile up the limited amount each year after year," said Mr. Hartwick, a Picton dairy farmer.

He foresaw a generally accepted a "reasonably satisfactory" state of equilibrium between total milk supply and demand in 1963-'for the first time, in several years.

Mr. Hartwick said that in 1963:

Canadians would buy substantially more than 6,000,000,000 pounds of fluid milk products, an average of 320 pounds each.

A record 360,000,000 pounds of butter would be eaten—about than 50,000,000 pounds higher than in 1963 when margarine first appeared.

Ice cream sales were running six per cent higher than in 1962 or thirty times the rate of population increase.

A cheese-eating record would be established — indicating a growth in the last 15 years of an average 10 per cent annually at a 1963 level of 358,000,000 pounds.

May Meet Around Clock

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—A crisis atmosphere spread over Parliament Hill today as the government took up the challenge of Real Caouette's Creditistes to block all legislative action.

The Creditiste challenge coined Monday on a government measure seeking parliamentary authority to sit October and November expenses.

In reply to the Creditiste blockade gag measure, the government gave notice that it will ask the Commons to suspend rules governing the adjournment hour, raising the prospect of round-the-clock sitting.

The Creditiste blockade was imposed last Thursday night when Creditiste Leader Caouette announced Friday it applies to all government legislation until the Liberals provide for recognition and precedence as the third-ranking opposition group in the Commons.

NOT NEW

"Sitting round - the - clock sessions are not new for the Commons. In 1913, during debate on the Conservative government's naval aid bill, the House sat for two weeks without interruption.

In Chicoutimi, Que., Mr. Caouette said that before the government begins 24-hour sittings it should "sit normally and recognize Le Ralliement."

Creditiste House leader Gilles Gregoire said the government "should stick to regulations which do not include 24-hour-a-day sessions."

The question of the Creditistes' ranking went before the Commons privileges committee last Friday. The committee was scheduled to meet again today and there were no immediate signs of a quick decision.

Principal sticking point of the rules on length of speeches and numbers of speakers, the Creditistes launched further legislative action.

FACE MARATHON

The government's move to clear the way for round-the-clock sittings would force the Liberals and Creditistes to stage a marathon filibuster or drop their gag motion.

Suggestion Would Help Unemployed Insurance Fund

Quebec (CP)—C. A. L. Murchison, commissioner of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, said today that the unemployed insurance fund could be lifted "out of the red" by implementation of certain recommendations of the Gill committee.

The Gill committee, headed by Ernest C. Gill of Toronto, president of the Canada Life Assurance Company, reported to the government on basic principles and provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Act and regulations. The report contained 45 major recommendations.

Mr. Murchison told the annual meeting of the Canadian chamber of Commerce that the committee's recommendations represents a "package deal" under which sound insurance principles might be restored to the unemployment insurance plan.

The fund contained a balance of $7,100,885 at Aug. 31. In 1956 the fund contained more than $900,000,000.

Part of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Mr. Murchison summarized the means whereby an anticipated annual deficit of $102,000,000 might be offset. It had been estimated, he said, that six of the committee's main recommendations could account for $125,700,000 annually on the credit side.

The six recommendations and the savings to be realized as listed by Mr. Murchison:

1. Broadening of coverage to include several classes of workers not now insurable, such as employees of governments, hospitals and charitable institutions, teachers and those earning more than $5,460 a year—$51,000,000.

2. Withdrawal of fishermen's regulations—$9,000,000.

3. Reduction of the maximul duration of benefit period to 36 weeks from 51—$27,000,000.

4. Reduction of seasonal benefits payable to workers whose regular employment involves an unavoidable off - season — $38,600,000.

5. Reduction in allowable earnings while drawing benefit —$5,000,000.

6. Hlthdral of benefits now paid to claimants while undergoing approved training or vocational training, with training allowances from other sources taking their place—$5,700,000.

Board Hears Suggestion Canada Become Tax Haven

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada shouldn't be content just being in a position to tax parallel with other countries, Imperial Oil Limited said today. It should, to some degree, aim at being a tax haven.

In a brief to the royal commission on taxation Imperial Oil said there were no immediate signs of a quick decision.

Principal single item of the rules on length of speeches and numbers of speakers, the Creditistes launched further legislative action.

"... Even if it could be satisfactorily indicated that the inside tax burden is not higher in Canada than elsewhere, the ability of the peculiar Canadian economy to carry such a high would still not have been proved.

If Canada is to correct her balance of—payments difficulties, absorb unemployment and stimulate Canadian ownership of industry, it must "compete successfully with other countries" in general with other economies which do not face the problems of small and scattered markets and high transportation costs to which Canada is subject."

In this respect, said the brief, Canada should aim at the closest possible scrutiny" of the practice of using the tax structure of one country for economic planning. "It is, for example, genuinely in the long - term public interest to divert economic resources to 'depressed' areas, at the cost of the abilities of scientists.

"The economy need for greater simplicity and clarification in the tax structure.

The company asked the commission to study ways of reducing the burden of corporation taxes, even at the cost of increasing consumer taxes. The existing rates of personal in-

Charges of Brainwashing Causes Controversy in B. C.

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — A charge of brainwashing by socialist teachers in a gigantic conspiracy to take over the whole school system in British Columbia.

The charge was levelled by Harold Hine, brother-in-law of Leslie Peterson, Social Credit education minister.

Aiming his remarks at the New Democratic Party, Mr. Hine said in an interview Saturday that not only are socialist brainwashing schoolchildren but pupils, but the whole plan was part of a conspiracy to take over teaching in the school and to take over the school boards.

He said socialists are hiding behind the cloak of the aim of allowing them to get at the minds of children. Social Credit MLA Dan Campbell backed Mr. Hine's charges at a Social Credit meeting earlier this week.

The British Columbia Teachers' Federation replied that Mr. Hine had produced no evidence and had no right to make "wild statements" without backing them up.

Robert Strachan, British Columbia leader of the New Democratic Party, said Mr. Hine's charges were "wild" political statements.

"He may be speaking for the minister of education."

Mr. Hine told reporters that a teacher is "not entitled to indoctrinate children in his charge with his own political philosophies within the classroom."

Mr. Hine said Saturday he had "plenty of specific instances of this and I'll be brought down to a pinpoint—it would defeat my objective."

Buddhist Problem Settled

SAIGON (Reuters) — President Ngo Dinh Diem said today South Viet Nam's Buddhist problem has been settled and the Viet Cong Communists are facing inescapable defeat.

In a speech prepared for the opening session of the newly-elected National Assembly, the president said he regrets that the Buddhist problem is being debated in the United Nations.

Diem reported a budget deficit of $129,000,000, which he attributed to lower receipts due to reduction of United States aid.

The pro-government English-language Times of Viet Nam says in an editorial today that U.S. aid has been suspended since Sept. 16, putting pressure on the Diem government.

REVIEWING AID

American officials said the U.S. government is reviewing its aid program and in the meantime has announced it will finance further imports in certain categories pending appropriation for the current U.S. fiscal year.

Diem, addressing the country by radio, said the situation in the Viet Cong had created fairs" in a last attempt to achieve victory.

The president said the government regretted seeing "some nations' unfriendly attitude" by false information on Viet Nam's internal situation and the Buddhist question, had obtained inclusion on the UN agenda of a problem already settled.

(The UN General Assembly in New York is due to debate today a charge that the Viet Nam government is seriously violating human rights in repressing Buddhists. Sixteen countries, led by Ceylon, are behind the request for UN action.)

USE SAME TACTICS

In the military field, Diem reported that government forces were are using guerrilla tactics, forcing the Viet Cong to fight counter-guerrilla war.

From January, 1962, to July 1963, the government lost 12a dead, while 25,000 Viet Cong communists, he said.

He said more than 10,000 Communist sympathizers had turned themselves in since the government's open arms policy was instituted on May 1.

Diem said more than 8,000 strategic hamlets, out of a total number of 11,864, already have been built, sheltering fore than 10,000,000 of the country's 15,000,000 population.

He said the target number should be completed by the end

World Plowing Match Starts At Caledon

CALEDON, Ont. (CP) — Canada plays host to the world plowing championship this week for the second time in the event's 37-year history.

Thirty-six competitors from 18 countries will vie for the world plowing crown at the Conn Smythe farms, 35 miles northwest of Toronto.

Competition Wednesday will officially open the matches Tuesday. The 11th Canadian championship and the 10th International (Ontario) match are also being staged in conjunction with the world competition.

Canada's hopes in the world competition rest with Toby Trimble of Portage La Prarie, Man., and Grant Wells of Stouffville, Ont. The events starts Thursday and the winner will be named Saturday.

Canada has won world title twice in the last 10 years. Jim Eccles of Brampton was the winner at the first match in Cobourg, 1953. William Dixon, also of Brampton, was the second Canadian to take top honors, winning the title in 1961 in Paris, France.

Last year Hans O. Sylling of Norway won the crown in East Flevoland, The Netherlands.

Half Main Crop Said Wiped Out By Winds, Rain

Storm Said Readying For Another Attack

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—For the fourth consecutive day hurricane Flora lashed Cuba today, dealing a crushing blow to the already staggering economy of Sidel Castro's Communist regime.

Half of the island's sugar, rice, coffee, cotton and cocoa crops were reported wiped out by the wild wind and the torrential rain, and Fora still isn't through with Cuba. Forecasters believe the storm has started on its way across the nation again.

The Miami weather bureau said Flora, after sitting in one spot just south of Cuba for 36 hours, striking out at Oriente, and Camagey provinces, now has begun a slow northward drift. This would take the 100-mile-an-hour storm across Cuba for the second time, bring the Bahama Islands once again within range, and threaten Florida.

Besides the crop destruction, the Cuban radio told of collapsing homes and buildings serious floods and the evacuation of more than 40,000 persons from Santiago de Cuba and Victoria de las Tunas—a pleasure of havoc in Oriente and Camaguey provinces.

HAIT HIT HARD

Only two deaths thus far have been confirmed in the guarded reports from the radio. The crews of two coastal fishing boats are missing in savage seas off the south coast. More than 400 bodies have been counted in Haiti.

Oriente is the principal sugar producing province of Cuba and Flora in four days probably has done more damage to the island than the anti-Castro rebels have done in four years with sabotage.

The 9 a.m. advisory placed the storm center near latitude 21.0 north, longitude 78.0 west, or about 390 miles south-southeast of Miami.

Gale winds whirled outward 400 miles to the north, well up into the Florida Keys and 300 miles to the south over Jamaica. One death has been reported in Jamaica's flooded Kingston area. Rain extended into the Bahamas.

The big storm churned up angry seas in the northwest Caribbean, southeast of Cuba, and in Florida-Bahama waters. Gale warnings flapped as far north as Stuart, 100 miles southeast of the way up Florida's Atlantic coast.

Before Flora battered Cuba, she killed 17 people on Tobago island, off Venezuela, then took a sullen course over Haiti. Many Haitian villages were reduced to rubble.

Union Gives Offer to End Long Strike

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — An unofficial union offer and a hastily - arranged union - management meeting today may end the 4½ - month Hanover (Canada) Limited ice strike here.

Company general manager A. K. Starke said Sunday night an offer made by Geoffrey Hall, regional representative of the International Woodworkers of Amenia CLC may have reduced the "area of disagreement" between the company and its 63 striking employees.

The IWA representative, who walked out May 21 in a contract dispute.

The demands presented, the company accepted 11, turning down those which included clauses making the plant a closed shop with dues checkoff. Mr. Starke said Mr. Hall's statement, which he would not relegnize as an offer because the parties are not negotiating, indicated that the union would drop some demands.

NOT RESUMPTION

Mr. Starke said the meeting could not be construed as a resumption of negotiations for a working agreement.

He said: "We simply want to find if we have enough common ground to be considered a resumption for negotiations. And we want to find a way to prevent many more days and the possibility of someone getting killed."

Tickets were banned early in the strike by a court injunction, but restraint in the strongly-unionized town collapsed a week ago with rock-throwing incidents.

Skirmishes became more frequent and violent and 90 provincial police were called in to help the local four-man force.

Friday, the union called out its 70 workers, members of five major furniture factories,

Late Afternoon on Schooldays Most Deadly Time for Children

TORONTO (CP)—Late afternoon on schooldays is the most deadly time for city children, a study covering the years 1958 to 1962 into the 713 pedestrian traffic mishaps to Vancouver children under 15 years of age, indents injured 749 children.

Dr. Read, professor and head of the department of preventive medicine and pediatrics at Queen's University, Kingston, formerly was an assistant professor at the University of British Columbia.

The article reveals that three-year-old boys, running from between parked cars, are the children most frequently hit.

Generally boys seven to seven years old has the highest number of victims and traffic accounts for one child in every inch-dence of head injuries. The older—and taller—a child becomes, the less likelihood of a direct blow to the head.

The authors say boys around the age of eight are vulnerable because they are prone to show off tendencies.

A common cause of accidents is found at city intersections where the driver in the curb lane is slow to allow a child to cross but the centre-lane motorist continues and does not see the youngster until it's too late.

With the finding that taxis and buses had the lowest rating in accidents surveyed, the authors speculate that selection of drivers, their training and experience is responsible.

Perhaps many of the accidents happened when the driver was homeward bound and were most prevalent on schooldays.

Job-Retraining Course To Run at Quinte Secondary 24 Weeks, 5 Nights a Week

Belleville's Quinte Secondary School shortly will become another local centre in a nation-wide chain that is racing a social experiment against a massive economic threat.

The experiment is job-retraining. The threat is job redundancy.

Starting Monday, November 18th, the workshops and classrooms at QSS will begin teaching those citizens in the Belleville area, who voluntarily accept the fact their futures depend on such courses.

Under expert guidance, they will embark on 24 weeks, five nights a week, in courses of their choice. They will be brought together under what is department-deptly entitled Program 5 - - the co-operative effort of provincial and federal governments, with local assistance, to retrain against a season, at least, of the national unemployment front.

"There's going to be a lot of heavy work in this thing," says QSS principal Leslie Reid, selected as co-ordinator for the local implementation of the scheme.

KNOWN AS PROGRAM 5

His words indicate the enormous responsibility that lie behind the cryptic clinical designation of the plan, known as Program 5. Its patients will likely include the unemployed from every age group below retirement brackets.

As the revolution in industrial technology casts off workers by the score and the demand on employment possibilities for unskilled, semi-skilled workers, shrink daily, job retraining is the key to its present survival - and future opportunity.

Right now, government and social leaders are banking on education to take care of the upcoming generation's problems and it steps into active society. The student, or parent, who hasn't realized this, is already running into trouble. For some of them, it is too late to retrace their academical steps. These, possibly even younger than they were, will be among the more senior members of the unemployed, who will be entering QSS November 18th.

MANY COURSES OFFERED

The courses offered are basic commercial and clerical, machine-shop practice, building maintenance, electronics (radio and TV), welding and restaurant services and merchandising.

Registration will be done through the city offices of the National Employment Service. Subsistence allowances, ranging from $ 33.38, depending on individual circumstances recognized by the federal government, will be paid each pupil.

The Quinte Retraining Program will be put in practice at QSS will rule against slackers - without setting down specific regulations. Since they must not interfere with the regular school day, courses will begin at 6 p.m. and last through to 11.15 p.m. That time element alone, to be observed five nights a week for six months - will undoubtedly eliminate waiters.

Vice-principal John Hayman and QSS technical director will act as assistant co-ordinator and consultant supervisor, respectively.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

The sports chairman reports that everything is pretty well organized for the safari to Toronto next Saturday when they have bidding of the 401s are waiting with smiles upon their faces, but with threats of vengeance in their hearts. George could use a couple of drivers for the rifle team, where the competition will probably be the strongest. He would like anyone who is a good shot to contact him and he will appreciate it. The bus will leave from the Queens Hotel at 8.30 a.m., October 12.

Monday night the Darts Association start their new season and it has all the appearances of being larger and better than ever. The score board and schedule have been completed and in the club room and their is also a list of rules that the players are asked to read so that there has been some changes made. Each captain will have a copy of these rules.

The A. & P.S.O. advises that any veteran or veterans' dependents who has not got down to have their signatures witnessed, will phone the club rooms and leave their name and address, he will willingly call at their homes and do this for them.

The sick chairman, Perce Reid reports that Comrade J. MacKay has been admitted to Belleville General Hospital and is in the Ward 4. Comrade Ab Brenton is still in Room 249, both are able to have visitors during visiting hours. "Wee-py" O'Brien is still about the same and is in Kingston General Hospital. Comrade Bert Wells continues to hold his own, he is in Ward 2, Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto 12. If any member would like to drop in to see them.

GET READY FOR DINNER

The entertainment chairman and a special committee are quite busy starting to get arrangements under way for the annual Remembrance Day dinner. He is also working on a plan to have a social evenings for members, their wives and guests now the long winter evenings are starting. The plan is still in the tentative stage so there is no more to tell informa- tion as yet but when it becomes available, the news will be passed on by this column. A number of the members enjoyed a quiet but pleasant evening at the Saturday night stag party and a feed of chili-con-carne prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary was very much appreciated.

The President wishes to urge the members to attend the General meeting at 8.30 Thursday 10th of October. As the club activities are increasing with the winter season coming on there are a number of projects to be discussed, also the need for the meeting and help out with your ideas.

A face that has been familiar around ANAF Convention for years will be sadly missed in the future, as Charlie Yeung, who has held executive positions in Unit 33, Quebec Provincial Command and who was a vice-president of Dominion Command last year, quietly passed away last Wednesday 2 October. He was a veteran of the First Great War and was with one of the First Canadian Units to see action in the Second Great War, having been taken prisoner-of-war at Hong Kong where he was a captive for four years. His cheerful smile and welcoming hand will certainly be greatly missed.

STUDENTS ARE GUIDES

Interesting item: Canadian students are guides at Vimy Park. Since April 1 of this year, the Department has had available at Vimy Park, near Arras in Northern France, three student guides to conduct visitors through a part of the tunnels which, for the early part of 1917, were incorporated into the Canadian front line. The 250-acre Park was deeded to Canada by France in perpetuity in December, 1922. The guides, who are bi-lingual are post-graduate students from Canada studying in France. Both men and women students are employed, some for one month and others for longer periods depending on the time they have available from their studies. So far, students from Ontario, Quebec and Maritime Provinces have been used.

Persons of all nationalities visit the Vimy Memorial each year in increasing numbers, and a growing proportion of these visit the tunnels which sheltered the Canadian assault forces prior to the attack on April 9, 1917. While escorting the visitors through the underground workings, the guides describe their history and use during World War I. The guide service could not function without the tunnels.

Dates to remember, Thursday 10 Oct., General meeting. Saturday 12 October, 48th Sports Day. Saturday 12 October, Hastings - Pet's Reunion, Peterborough.

of the year.

Diem's speech followed another Buddhist "protest" incident Saturday when a young Buddhist priest doused himself to death just outside the mission here.

The pro-government Times of Viet Nam accused foreign newspaper men in South Viet Nam of "stage-managing" the fiery suicide.

The newspaper made the charge at eight American newspapermen arrived here to get a firsthand view of the conflict between South Viet Nam's Buddhist majority and the government of Roman Catholic President Diem.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge delivered a sharp protest to the Diem government against the beating of three American newspaper men.

Lodge's protest followed a statement in Washington by U.S. Secretary Rusk that the South Viet Nam government had broken repeated assurances that newspaper men would not be harmed.

"This matter is being pressed further," Rusk added.

Ne Win of Burma Is Man In Hurry to Get Things Done

By DON RUTH

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Ne Win is a fan in a hurry to get things done.

The 53-year-old general's effort to make Burma a neutralist-socialist state is going to succeed — or fall on its face worse than any attempt to achieve parliamentary democracy that this strategic nation has seen since it won independence.

You can get bets on either side in Rangoon.

The nation of 30,000,000 is getting a taste of strong leadership. Ne Win is a sharp contrast to deposed Prime Minister U Nu, whose indecision triggered an armed forces coup in March, 1962.

A 17-man revolutionary council, composed of military men turned politicans, is calling the shots under the direct guidance of Ne Win.

Through a vaguely defined "Burmese way to socialism" program, it has in 17 months systematically set its sights on these targets:

1. Control of the nation's wealth, which is topped by rice production, through nationalization of natural resources to insure fair shares for all.

WILL FIGHT GRAFT

2. Establish a strong national government free from graft and dishonesty.

3. Improve the lot of the Burmese worker, especially peasants who fake up nearly 75 per cent of the labor supply.

4. Restore internal peace through negotiations with insurgent groups.

The bitterest critics of Ne Win's government do not question the sincerity of the general and his colleagues. Their speed brings charges of things going from bad to worse.

Ne Win is quick to silence opposition. He feels the politicians have had their chance and made a mess of things. He has kept the popular Nu in custody, charges of obstructing his government.

One of its pet projects has been to put an end to foreign economic control, mainly by the Chinese and Indians, over Burma's economy. His latest moves in this direction is a stringent income tax law effective this week. Hundreds of Indians are leaving the country and trying to get their wealth out.

The government on the last 17 months nationalized the banks, seized control of the multi-million-dollar rice export business, took over all export - import trade and virtually eliminated private industry.

Birth Control May Be Debated In Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic clergy from Holland solemnly wagged a finger and said today: "We cannot act any longer as if there is no pill in the world."

He referred to the contraceptive pill.

This and other developments in medical science are at the base of a dialogue now proceeding in the Roman Catholic church concerning its attitude to medical aids in the field of birth control.

In the United States, Britain, Latin America, India and elsewhere, the discussion continues, loaded with battles about the population explosion and demands made on the consciences of individual Roman Catholics by the rigid law of the church in this area.

Birth control is expected to be debated in depth some time during the Vatican ecumenical council.

Catholicism always has maintained that marriages exists for the procreation of children. As long ago as 1930, Pope Pius XI declared in a famous encyclical:

"Any use whatsoever of matrimony exercised in such a way that the act (of sex) is deliberately frustrated in its natural power to generate life is an offence against the law of God and of nature, and those who indulge in such are branded with the guilt of a grave sin."

WASN'T CHANGED

The attitude of the church has not changed perceptibly since, but some Catholics now are asking for redefinition of the position. They want to know to what extent medical advances may be acceptable to the church without causing offence to the natural law long defended by the faith.

In Holland, a progressive Dutch Roman Catholic bishop recently said the question of birth control was to the conscience of individuals.

"By that he did not mean that a man can do what he likes," said a spokesman for the Dutch contingent of bishops attending the current session of the Vatican council. "The conscience of the individual has to be informed by divine law and the instruction of the church."

The instruction of the church is that Catholics are barred from using artificial means of contraception to prevent pregnancies.

'Mac Must Go' Pressure Seen Within Party

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — Fresh "Mac must go" pressure was reported today that "disillusionment Conservative party today as Prime Minister Macmillan headed into what could be the most fateful week of his political career.

Macmillan met with the Earl of Home, his foreign secretary and trusted friend, Sunday and much of their discussion was believed centred on a pamphlet issued by the right-wing Monday Club.

The pamphlet said a reappraisal of Britain's leadership was needed and that "this will not happen until new leaders emerge to dispel the existing lethargy."

It added that "disillusionment with our leaders tends to stifle business ambition and, at the safe time, has brought about a greater acceptance of Britain as a second class power."

JACK CLARKE

A&P Manager Honored With Plaque, Cheque

After 25 years with the A and P chain stores, Jack Clarke is not quite sure he likes the thanks he got. The plaque and the check presented by the company were fine, but the extra he found a bit tiring.

Bill Gibbon, manager of the Belleville Plaza A and P where Jack is produce manager, put a sign in the window telling about Jack's long service. That wasn't bad, but the sign suggested everybody come in and shake hands with Jack. And nearly everybody did. The sign was up for nearly a week, and during that time Jack didn't get much rest.

It's down now though, and Jack is back to his regular routine. His hand is still a bit stiff, though.

Obscurity Is Suspect

Stratford Beacon-Herald

When you read something that you just can not understand, it is proper to be somewhat humble about not understanding and admit that you may be too stupid, or too ignorant, to grasp the meaning.

It is not proper to be entirely humble. There is the other possibility, that the man who wrote it was too stupid, or too ignorant to write clearly. There is a third possibility, too. The man who wrote it may have had nothing to say, and therefore may have written a lot of words to conceal his utter lack of ideas.

A new book by James D Koerner, titled, "The Miseducation of American Teachers," gives another example of the kind of stuff that is being written by education experts in the United States. The theme of the Koerner book, briefly, is that a great deal of solemn nonsense is being foisted on fledgling teachers, by phonies who would like to be rated as specialists in the alleged art of teaching teachers how to teach.

One example, quoted by Dr. Koerner, is this one:

"Responsibility for being is manifested in the evolving attitude toward self which we recall which each person is affecting. This attitude forms successively in relation to what a person's accomplishments of his identities as person, child, friend, boy or girl, student and player, husband or wife, parent citizen of man, of America, of the resolution of these several identity crises are cumulative. Together they form the identities and the accumulating attitudes toward self in world form the substance of what is called conscience attempts to maintain productive character in emerging personality."

We do not understand this passage at gobbledygook. We think that the reason we do not understand is that there is nothing there to understand. It is a mush of words, stirred together by a solemn ass.

For quoting it we take pleasure in quoting the comment of J. B. McGeachy, associate editor of the Financial Post, who is reviewing this same sample of education. Mr. McGeachy observed: "Now what in hell all that may say so, does that mean? It means nothing whatsoever. It communicates no intelligible or useful meaning to anybody. It is just an example of not the worst, of pedagogical nonsense. I like teachers, almost as much as taxi drivers and certainly a lot better than tax collectors, but I think they have got involved in a dreary world of words and bogus theories. They are kidding themselves, and a lot of other people, too."

No reader should have any difficulty in grasping Mr. McGeachy's meaning.

Hard to Count Farmers

Stratford Beacon Herald

Anyone who drives the highways, and looks at the countryside, is aware that there has been a great increase in recent years in the number of people who live in rural areas, but are not full-time farmers. Trustees of rural school sections, which are near urban centres like Stratford and Goderich are aware that many children are quire schooling whose parents are paying taxes, not on "allscale farms, but on small-holdings. Township road superintendents know that there is increased traffic, in recent years, on township roads, because of the number of people who live in rural areas, and drive daily to work in places like Mitchell or Clinton.

One of the difficulties in coping with this change of rural living, is to ascertain what is going on, and to know what the pattern is at any given time. To find out how many rural people there are in Perth one could consult telephone lists, without knowing which telephones serve full-time farmers; one could consult the census, and get the figures as they were two years ago; one could consult assessment rolls without knowing which of the assessed farmers are farming their land, and which are renting it, and just living in the house.

Three Years to Go

With little more than three years to go, Quebec is ahead of its sister provinces in preparing municipal projects for Canada's centennial.

A report from Quebec City reveals that the dozen or more schemes blue-printed by local communities, range from a concert hall for Sept-Iales to a park for Coaticook, near the Vermont border. Ironically, the province which too many Canadians of Anglo-Saxon stock suspect of inflexibility to Confederation, is strides ahead in celebrating the birth of modern Canada.

The only hitch is that a centennial committee set up by the Quebec government—its approval of the projects brings a one-third contribution to the cost, plus one-third from the federal government—is not yet operation.

However, the situation is similar in Ontario, where the provincial government apparently has not yet even established a committee to handle applications from the municipalities for such projects.

If the senior government has been so slow to have the enthusiasm at a local level? If Belleville is no exception, many communities have been paying scant attention to possible centennial year projects. Idealistically, this is poor patriotism, realistically, it is poor municipal business. In their wisdom, Canada's senior governments, by promising to split costs three ways, obviously saw a chance of combining patriotic expression with community improvement.

Even the most rarefied of idealists should know a bargain like that when he sees it. And few, if any, of our communities can afford to ignore local improvements. The opportunity to enhance one's municipality with a park, recreation centre or some similar project designed for public use, at one-third actual cost, is not one to be missed.

On the idealistic side of the national coin, is it too much to expect civic enthusiasm for an event that celebrates the birth of our nation?

In Belleville, at any rate this has seemed the case up to now. With just three years left to select and complete a centennial project, the time to take such action is rapidly narrowing. A step in the right direction would be the appointment by our city fathers of a special centennial committee. This should be composed of citizens—not necessarily councillors—with the enthusiasm, imagination and ability to conceive, and complete, a lasting expression of national pride within the boundaries of this community.

Take Out Order

Editors across the country are reprinting, usually without comment, a report from Frobisher, in Labrador, as printed in the English "Time and Tide."

According to the report, three U.S. generals from a nearby airbase walked into a store in the town one summer's day, looking for charcoal. They planned a barbecue for the evening. No charcoal in the store, so they went into a huddle.

According to the reprinted reports, one said "What the heck, let's send a jet down to Goose Bay, (that's about 500 miles from Frobisher), for 40 pounds of charcoal and five cases of beer and it will be here in time for supper."

We were tempted to follow the trend, and reprint the item without comment, but then a horrible thought struck us that those generals develop a taste for caviar, would they fly to Moscow?

Let's hope the Russians can tell the difference between jets sent to drop bombs and jets sent to collect groceries.

Expert's Opinion

The Supreme Court of Canada Tuesday rejected an appeal by Arturo Rodriguez Espaillat against a July 1962 deportation order. Espaillat was head of Dominican Republic security forces under Dictator Trujillo.

During September, Espaillat told newsmen that it would be "my death warrant" if Canada ships him back to the country whose rape he shared with Trujillo. But the government in the Dominican Republic has changed again, and Juan Bosch, the president elected after Trujillo was ejected, left the country Monday. The same day, Espaillat said he was no longer afraid to return to the republic.

Is any further comment required on the new regime in the Dominican Republic?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

29 YEARS AGO

October 7th, 1943.

Colder nights and the advanced season took its toll in decreased cheese gradings in the Central Ontario district. Gradings for the week were only 9,236 as compared with 10,367 boxes for the week previous. Top grade cheese accounted 95 also dropped considerably over the district with only 178 being graded in Belleville as compared with 567 the week previous, while at Campbellford the count was 76 as compared with 118 for the week before. Gradings at Belleville for the week were 6,283; at Campbellford 1,868; at Kingston 1,040 and at Trenton 80 and at Peterborough 63.

How many potatoes in a bag has been a fruitful Guinea question to answer ordinarily but it would not be much trouble if they were all of the size demonstrated on Belleville market, Saturday. Along with his general display of market produce, Mr. Clarence Vancleif, of Centre, Prince Edward County, had on display a half-bushel basket in which there were 14 spuds weighing exactly 100 pounds, several of them weighing over two pounds each.

One of the first cases of its kind reported locally was is evidence in Belleville on Monday when a local woman was apprehended by city police on a charge of being absent from her C.W.A.C. unit in Ottawa, without proper permission to be away. Regardless of excuses she was held for military escort to be returned to her unit.

Strictly Personal

Old-Style Family Unit Now Obsolete

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The high incidence of troubled youth in our time — of which juvenile delinquency is only one aspect — is caused by many combining factors, and it would be foolish to isolate one factor for special blame.

Yet it seems to me that, if society is a seamless garment (as I believe), the problem of the young is related to the problem of the old. In our society, in our time, both the young and the old are detached from the core of family life.

This pattern is distinctively new in the 20th century. We live in the age of the "atomized family" — father, mother, and children living around them the axis of a common income. The old-style "joint family" has all but been abolished, except in parts of Europe or in some rural communities.

I was the last of my family to have been born in a house that contained not only parents, but grandparents and uncles and aunts as well. I was born in a three-generation house, but my children were not, and their children be. Each family substitutes for a real one, and children is now its own separate galaxy.

As a result, there is isolation at both ends. The old people live alone, or in dreary nursing homes (except for the few who can afford otherwise); while the children grow up lacking the attachments to and with the adult world that was formerly provided by the living.

Whether disadvantages may have inhered in the old system, I think that its breakdown has significant relation to the widespread discontent among young people and the increasing sense of forsakenness by old people. Any feeling of continuity through the generations is lacking.

It is this continuity, this sympathy, that we still find (although diminishing) when we visit a country like Italy, where the generations interminglo freely within the same house and neighborhood. But America is essentially the country of the young middle-aged: the children have their own world, and the old people are pushed into limbo as speedily and as decently as possible.

The history of mankind, the truncated parent - and - child family is a social novelty and a genealogical burden. Discipline is harder, recreation becomes structural and unreal, there is family living, indifferent sitters take the place of grandparents or uncles and aunts; in short, the home turns into a launching-pad and is no longer seen as a living unit. It is a strong conviction that we will not solve the "problem of the young" until we attack the "problem of the old" at the same time.

Nuffield 'Alger Hero'

Guelph Mercury

Recently in England, weekend by car, operations and a heart attack. Gentleman Richard Morris, Viscount Nuffield, died at the age of 86. He was a remarkable man, and the story of his life reads like a book by Horatio Alger.

Our younger readers may not recognize Horatio, as his works are not read with avidity by the younger generation today. However, those of more mature years will recall that Horatio Alger was a prolific and popular author quite a few years ago. His heroes were poor boys who surmounted the difficulties of life, and from poor beginnings rose to lofty eminence in the business and financial world.

Such a man was Viscount Nuffield. He was the son of an accountant, who fell upon hard times, so that the boy, who wanted to be a doctor, was forced to leave school at the age of sixteen and become a bicycle mechanic at 70 cents a week. As was the case with his American prototype, Horatio Alger, Nuffield was a mechanical genius, and in 1910, with $30,000 in savings, and the balance of money in borrowed capital, he entered automotive manufacturing in a factory on the outskirts of Oxford.

He was extremely successful, eventually reaching an annual output of 150,000 cars, and in 1925 merged with the Morris Motors British Motors Corporation. He became Britain's most generous philanthropist, giving away every close to $100,000,000 mostly in medical and social grants. He retired, at 71, to devote the remaining years to philanthropy, and it is said that six secretaries were kept busy answering the requests for funds which poured in at the rate of about $.000 weekly. At the time of his death Nuffield foundation was holding Morris stock worth about $100 million.

It might be thought that this would be a fairly satisfactory way to spend one's declining years, but shortly before his death he said in an interview on occasion, "they like me for my money instead of myself," a statement that was probably no more than one philanthropist.

Those who have read "Tinson of - Athens," or those who saw it performed in Stratford this summer will recall that this is the story of a man, befriended by self-seeking politicians, artists, and hangers-on, who finally leaves him when he loses his money. Timon serves them a final banquet at which he serves stones, which he throws at them, and then he retires to eat roots in the forest until he dies of disgust.

At least, Viscount Nuffield did not end his earthly span in this inglorious fashion, and if he did not escape both the sincerity of some of those seeking his bounty, is this not how philosophers are made? It is doubtful that you can't take it with you, but it is certain that William Morris will be remembered for his charities, not because of what he did, but because of what he gave away.

Tough Times For Bachelors

London Times

Kicking a man when he is down is an unsportsmanlike practice and so sympathy may be extended to bachelors who have been given official status as untrustworthy types behind the iron curtain. Bachelors have been better days. Strong are the reasons of state no doubt are for the decision to put them in this way it will seem sad at least to those who remember the happy breed of heyday. Every well - equipped family had at least one cheerful bachelor uncle. This was excluding young ones, who were well liked and in full swing through a phase. They did not assume an avuncular rank until they had settled down and from different angles — they were good value. Their chief duty was to forget them under fire, which left them unembarrassed to match pleasure to the marksmen and women. Nephews and nieces looked forward to these visits, and (or so it appeared to the young) more broadminded, with more time for them, than their entertainments, and freer with their money than elders with family commitments.

Comfort was theirs in those snug chambers from which all efforts to dislodge them had long since been abandoned. They were well looked after by a devoted retainer or at least luckiest by a married couple. Sentimental souls may view contemporaries of these denizens from the front line in the battle of life with compassion and the same stories of how they had had a "disposition" in a cover anywhere in the world (Bonaparte, Napoleon, and Napoleon, Emperor of the French, were brothers or cousins, Napoleon and Napoleon, Emperor of the French, were brothers or cousins, Napoleon and Napoleon, Emperor of the French, were brothers or cousins, Napoleon

Soviet Union Said Short Of Cigarettes

CP from AP-Reuters

MOSCOW — The government newspaper Izvestia says there is a shortage of cigarettes in the Soviet Union.

At the same time, the Canadian Embassy revealed that a five-man delegation has arrived here to sell tobacco.

Canada has not previously sold tobacco to the Russians.

The Canadian delegation has been touring Europe and is expected to stay here until next Wednesday. It arrived Friday from Warsaw, Poland, and members of it met Saturday with officials of the Soviet Trading Corporation Razmoexport.

Izvestia admitted there is a shortage of cigarettes, but it claimed this was caused by a shortage of railroad cars.

The newspaper quoted government officials as saying that 8,000 tons of tobacco are lying unused in Soviet ports because no railroad cars are available.

In Moscow, cigarettes were reported generally available in downtown tobacco shops but in short supply in outlying districts.

The Canadian delegation's talks here were expected to continue today.

promise, the government motion was scheduled to come up for consideration at the opening of the Commons at 2:30 p.m. The Creditiste could delay a decision on it only for about eight hours.

The problem stems from the August split in the Social Credit party. Mr. Caouette, deputy Social Credit leader at the time, and 12 Quebec MPs severed all ties with national Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, who was left with only 10 supporters.

When Parliament re-assembled Sept. 30, the 17-member New Democratic Party claimed precedence in debate and ranking over Social Credit. As the second - ranking opposition party, it then would be in an important tactical position for moving non-confidence motions.

CONCEDE SECOND

Mr. Caouette's Creditistes and Mr. Thompson's Social Credit group conceded the New Democrats should be entitled to the second-ranking opposition spot occupied by Social Credit before the August split.

But the Creditistes and Social Credit each claimed the third-ranking opposition spot. Creditistes argued that the Creditistes hadn't been elected in the April 8 election as a party but as part of the Social Credit party.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton asked the Commons for guidance and the matter was sent to the privileges committee for study.

'Juno and the Paycock' Given Fine Presentation By Crest Theatre of Toronto

By BARRY MULHALL

Bellevillians rarely get to see professional theatre on their doorstep.

The fact it is guaranteed an appreciative welcome and appreciative audiences, was proven here Saturday at BCIVS when Toronto's Crest Theatre presented O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock."

The production was a 100-per cent proof success and unreservedly left district theatregoers with the hope that similar occasions can be repeated here more frequently.

Such events top off, and emphasize, the function of local players in making theatre a live experience in the community. Such events, as the Crest's visit, also stamp theatre locally as an experience not to be readily missed.

Critically, the Crest presentation here seemed to emerge rather fluntly. There may be a number of reasons for this, among them the fact that "Juno", 40 years and 3,000 miles away from its background events, is not as fresh here as it might be. For contemporary audiences, it is difficult now to appreciate that "Juno", was one of the creations of O'Casey's Dublin period that raised hell along the banks of the Liffey. In fact, among the first nightgowners were a theatre party of Dublin Metropolitan policemen restraining outraged Irishmen from tearing apart the Abbey Theatre with bare hands.

THIRD ACT DRAMA

However, the essence and themes of the play are always there. Originally written as a tragedy, the Crest presentation here was locally billed as a comedy-drama. That's how it appeared to rate. The first two acts were overwhelmed in comedy. The third and final act was drama. But the connecting links between both phases at times seemed obscured. This impression left was that the emphasis on comedy in the first 90 minutes, created a false expectation for the almost wholesale human destruction of the last act.

At a pivotal character, O'Casey's "Juno" is the Mother of Courage herself. Fiercely gentle, earthy tender, she shepherds her family through every vale of vicissitude.

Maureen Fitzgerald grasped the character and played its every inflection to the hilt. It was a moving, beautiful portrayal. If anything, her final and climatic scene — the cry of perpetual faith in what should seem as unjust God ("Sacred heart o' Jesus, take away our hearts o' stone and give us hearts o' flesh") — was marred only by the atmospheric earlier created for the audience by the overall production.

Opposite her, as Captain Boyle — the paycock of the title — was Robert Christie. His portrait of the strutting, worthless husband was carried off with the delightful professional ease of one of the country's leading actors. However, at times, his Boyle did appear to lack depth.

Gerard Parkes as Joxer, Boyle's crony, was the epitome of the Dublin slum today, his loyally gauged to the purchase of the pint of stout. After Miss Fitzgerald, he shared top honors in the presentation here.

TALENTED ACTRESS

The sensitive performances of Toronto's Jackie Burroughs, as Mary Boyle, and Neil Dainard as brother, Johnny, were eloquently dramatic supports for the performance of Miss Fitzgerald. Mr. Dainard is a graduate of Canada's National Theatre School and a talented one.

The polished portrayals of William Brydon and Michael Tait, both leading actors in their own right, were well-rounded additions to the production.

Audiences here will also remember Barbara Byrne as the redoubtable neighbor, Mrs. Madigan — one minute a perky wren, the next a lecherous harridan.

With Sean Sullivan and Sarah Moffat rounding out the principal roles, the Crest has assembled a top - flight cast for its production to be staged at home in Toronto later this month.

The play also calls heavily on minor players — among them Saturday night Nicky Thomas, of Belleville, called in by the company for the presentation here.

BOTH IMPRESSIVE

Among the minors, one detail, inconsequential, but apparent Saturday night, was the appearance of the two gunmen who finally dragged Juno's son to his death. Both actors were impressive. However, while clad in traditional trench coats, both looked more like two determined chaps from police college, than the menacing representatives of an eternal underground. Perhaps the arming of one of them with a prop Luger, or some such deadly contraband, might have more effectively underlined the drama of their fatal visit.

The Crest production was brought to Belleville under the sponsorship of this city's Theatre Guild. The Guild can only be congratulated for its enterprise in promoting professional presentations, such as these, for the Quinte area, augmenting its own local activities. Long may it continue to do so. Occasions such as this are few and far between in contemporary Belleville.

No Promises Made Says CBC Spokesman

OTTAWA (CP) — A CBC spokesman said Sunday night that the corporation had not promised the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists that it would increase its spending on Canadian shows.

He was commenting on a union statement which said the CBC had failed to keep its promise to expand the proportion of its budget spent in Canada on Canadian performers.

The spokesman said the CBC was in no position to make such a promise. But the publicly-owned corporation had agreed to initiate a joint study with the union to see what could be done to increase the use of Canadian talent.

"The members of the committee met once and agreed on the terms of reference for the study," the spokesman said.

Since then the CBC members had made several unnecessary attempts to bring about a second meeting. But union members of the committee had not replied to requests for the session.

The spokesman also replied to union general secretary Marcel Francq's statement that CBC president Alphonse Ouimet had not signed an agreement negotiated between the CBC and the union.

He said the agreement had been signed by James F. Gilmore, the CBC executive responsible for the negotiations.

High Cost of Crime In Misery and Money

The W.C.T.U. held their regular monthly meeting in the YMCA on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs Hayes giving the devotional.

The clip sheet on "Crime and Alcohol" was given by a panel under the direction of Mrs. B. Way, Deputy Commissioner George B. McClellan of the R.C.M.P. told the Empire Club of Canada in Toronto, "crime and violence in this country are costing each and every one cold hard dollars in the maintenance of police forces, the detection of crime, loss of life, loss by theft and fraud, maintenance of prisoners and penitentiaries, rehabilitation and parole of prisoners.

"There is a cost aside from money which cannot be estimated; human misery, mental and physical agony on the part of those who have suffered at the hands of criminals and those who are left behind when the criminals pay the penalty for their crime.

"In seven Canadian cities alone thieves and bandits stole $6,980,925. Of this amount only $3,750,527 was recovered.

CHRISTMAS THEFTS

"In the United States and Canada employees are stealing $4 million a day from their employers. In Ottawa it has been estimated that shoplifting accounted for $1,000,000 a year. Three percent of all goods moved out of Canadian stores last Christmas had been stolen. Fraudulent cheque artists are said to have obtained $1,541,944 in 1961. The cost in human life in one year was 3,626 persons killed and 99,283 injured on Canadian streets and highways."

Col. Dr. Bramwell Cook, secretary of the Salvation Army, New Zealand, stated "The cause of 30 per cent of all crime can be traced to drink; 40 per cent of all divorces are provoked by drinking problems. Half the total committals to prison are due to drink and drink is responsible for nearly half of the total accidents in traffic.

VICIOUS CRIMINALS

"We are appalled," said the commissioner of the R.C.M.P., "by the viciousness of the youthful criminal today. He is not satisfied to rob, he is only satisfied if he has inflicted pain or injury on his victim. He moves in a gang, he lurks in dark streets and his victims are women, old men, the weak, the helpless and the sexual deviant who is in no position to complain."

According to a Toronto paper 90 per cent of juvenile delinquency in Canada involves the use of alcohol. Close to 10,000 have been treated by the Ontario Research Foundation since 1950 for alcoholism and many of these began drinking between the ages of 14 and 18.

The Commissioner described the condition as a product of irresponsible homes and irresponsible parents and must be corrected in the home.

The threat offered by the forces of crime today is to your pocket, your home, your family and perhaps your life."

Nearly 200 years ago Edmund Burke warned, "The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil, is for good men to do nothing."

FACTS RELEASED BY THE TRENTON MEMORIAL HOSPITAL BOARD

MEMBERS: S. O. Graham, O. M. Newton, K. J. Couch, E. H. Baker, H. Sager, Gerald Weaver, George Williamson, Dwight Rumsey, Mrs. Nellie Bain, Dr. J. D. Beecroft, Dr. W. L. Griffiths, Mrs. Clifford Baker.

The Board of Governors understands that a statement made by the Executive Secretary of the Hospital Employees' Union, on behalf of Council, was read over radio station CJBQ Belleville on October 1, 1963; this statement was directed to the Building Service Employees' Union and is understood that Mr. Hearn, Executive Secretary, replied to this statement; the statement has never been directly communicated to the Board of Governors by the Department of Labour.

Mr. Hearn, the International Vice President of the Union, is reported to have replied to this statement by saying that the Honourable Mr. Rowntree had fulfilled his undertaking to him (Hearn) of September 3rd, 1963. Further Mr. Hearn stated, that in the event a settlement of the dispute is reached, then, if the Department of Labour does not have legislation for compulsory arbitration "on the books" at the end of the coming session, the strike will be on again. The Board feels that it need not comment in so far as these discourses are concerned.

Mr. Rowntree is reported to have stated that a stoppage of work by the employees is undesirable. The Board of Governors would not agree more, but a strike is not undesirable to the Union. This Union on June 5, 1962, some two months before the report of the Conciliation Board was released took a strike vote, and since that time the publicity displayed good faith by requesting meetings, and at the same time threatening strike action. The Hospital, by that kind of a settlement may result from a situation such as this? The answer is no doubt in the Union demands and if not, there will be a strike; there can be no freedom of negotiation when the one party holds a threat and the potential of, even as in this case, partial potential to carry out a threat.

Mr. Hearn is quoted in the Belleville Intelligencer of October 1st to the effect, that the Hospital Board has made a commitment to the Department of Labour. The Ontario Hospital Services Commission that no layoffs, or dismissals would take place while the dispute was in abeyance. The Board categorically denies that any such undertaking was made by the Board, or any member of it, at any time, to any person, department or commission.

The Labour Relations Act and the proceedings thereunder that is to say, negotiations between the parties, negotiations before a Conciliation Board appointed by the Department of Labour, and negotiations before a Conciliation Board convened by the Department of Labour, all of these procedures have been followed in a leisurely manner by the Hospital. Subsequent to the release of the Conciliation Board's report on August 9th there was a request by the Honourable Minister of Labour for two-weekly meetings, while the Union publicly proclaiming that it wished to negotiate, this same Union launched an application to prosecute the Hospital for bargaining in bad faith; in view of the threat to strike, and the threat to prosecute, the Hospital Board was left with little choice but to make itself impossible to negotiate on equal terms with the Union. By coincidence or otherwise, throughout the negotiations, at other times before meetings were to be held, the Union made some prosecution, or laid some charge or some complaint against the Hospital, and at each meeting the Hospital was placed in a position of bargaining with the possibility of prosecution, hanging over its head. It is believed by this Board, that this is not the proper atmosphere for negotiations.

Everyone must be aware that compulsory arbitration is a drastic measure which may be taken by the Government; this course is the position of encroachments on liberty, autonomy and the fundamental rights of individuals; compulsory arbitration could set a very dangerous precedent in so far as compulsory arbitration is concerned. This Board may only urge the legislature of our Government to regard all aspects of these grave problems when it entertains such legislation.

The Hospital when faced with a strike situation set for October 1st took the precaution of arranging for additional workers to replace workers going on strike. Under the Labour Relations Act, the Hospital could have locked out the employees going on strike seven days after the report of the Conciliation Board was released on August 9, 1963: it did not do so. In the next few weeks the Administration of the Hospital temporarily had off two union members. The Union has flatly stated that these persons were fired, which is untrue. Perhaps this may be construed as a lock-out, if this is so, it is just as legal as a strike, at this stage, at this moment, for the Hospital to attempt to bring further proceedings against the Hospital on the grounds that it has dismissed these employees simply because they belong to the Union for a survey, if one may legally strike, the other may legally lock out. Since, apparently, there is to be no strike for the time being, these employees may be called back to their jobs by the Administrator.

The Union has finally presumably, for public appeal concentrated on wage demands. The Union and the employees know their rights under the Union's certification the Hospital had written agreements with each employee, covering such things as term of employment, fringe benefits, and particularly wages, over a five year period. By these agreements, the employees were to receive annual wage increments, however, under the Labour Relations Act, once there is a Bargaining Agent, or in other words a Union, the employer, of its own volition, may not alter the hours of work, conditions of employment, or wages, until, in this case phase the report of the Conciliation Board has been released to the parties. Consequently, the normal increases of wages have not been paid for over one year. The Hospital has placed this money in a special account and since the report of the Conciliation Board has been released to the parties, it now proposes to pay the employees what it originally agreed to pay; the Board feels morally bound to do this.

The Hospital Board has publicly remained silent throughout the negotiations and more particularly since the proposed strike was announced; unfortunately, the Chairman of this Board has received the brunt of abuse in the form of personal attacks. This Board wishes to go on record to the effect that all decisions made by the Board, in and concerning the negotiations with the Union, have been unanimous. Recall has been made that the bettered that meaning could be accomplished by public dictum and contradiction, we are saying now nothing that is not known by the Union and we are saying these few words to briefly indicate our position to the public and to refute certain statements made by Mr. Hearn of the Union.

The members of this Board have nothing personal to gain in this dispute, but it is felt that it must stand up for its principles and maintain its integrity in the interest of the Hospital. This Board has been, and is prepared for a strike; it has full confidence that the Hospital will maintain the high standard it has set throughout the years, detailed plans for employment of personnel, delivery of supplies, and all things necessary for the care and comfort of the patients have been carefully worked out; this Board has not, and will not be responsible for any threats or any discomfort, or harassment of patients by those entrusted with the care of the patients to strike, or, to cause any form of dissension in the Hospital whereby the patients may suffer.

The Hospital Board has always had the highest regard for its employees, but it has wondered at times if the employees have been fully appraised of the proceedings which have taken place. The Union seeks to place the entire blame for a strike on the shoulders of the Board, yet should there be a strike, any hardship, or serious effects brought about thereby, the strike will be entirely due to the employees; their answer seems to be, "if we do not get an agreement, then we will strike . . . if someone should suffer because of that strike, we are not to blame . . . we simply left our jobs."

Friendship With Strangers Always a Risky Business

DEAR ANN — That letter from Gypsy, the middle-aged, rich widow who was willing to buy herself a husband started me thinking.

In know you don't believe in Lonely Hearts Clubs, and neither do I. But since you hear from so many fine people who yearn desperately for companionship you could perform a marvelous service by helping these lonely people find one another.

ANN LANDERS

Of course you would have to screen these applicants carefully. They would be required to furnish you with character references written by a clergyman, a neighbor and an employer. You might even set up an interviewing bureau in your home so you could personally meet these people in a non-commercial setting and then decide which individuals should be brought together.

You could match people according to religion, educational background, interests and so on. Think of the lives you could change. — J. L. P.

DEAR J. L. P — It sure could change lives all right — including mine. All I need is a lonely hearts operation in my own home.

Playing cupid for strangers can be dangerous, vicious business, and I don't care what high-sounding, respectable name you give it. Obviously there are many decent people who are lonely but I would not risk subjecting them to the opportunistic, unscrupulous characters whose lives are so messed up they must seek friendship with strangers.

The "getting people together" through the column pitch is made dozens of times every week and it will continue to get the same answer — No!

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Do you think parents should discuss their children?

Both my son and daughter have made unfortunate marriages. My husband says so far as he is concerned they are dead. I am not apologizing for my children, Ann. They were of legal age when they botched their lives, but that is their own business and they are paying for their mistakes.

My husband will not permit our children to come to our home and he says I am being disloyal to him when I visit them in their homes. He becomes furious when he hears me talking to one of them on the phone. I love my children, in spite of their failures, and my grandchildren are a source of continuing pleasure. I couldn't bear to put them out of my life.

This problem has caused considerable friction between my husband and me. Please express your views. — OHIO MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — If your husband doesn't wish to see his children, that's his business. But he has no right to demand that you stay away from them.

Don't invite the children to your home when your husband is present, but go to their homes when you with and above all, don't allow this tyrant to impose his will on you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Do you believe in a jinx? A certain corner in our town seems to have a curse on it. There have been more accidents at that one place than anywhere else in the city.

I've had two minor accidents at this corner and both these accidents have me baffled. The corner is well lit and there are stop signs on both sides. Once I ran through the stop sign although I've known for years that there is a sign there. Another time I was daydreaming and bumped into the car ahead.

I don't believe in jinxes and yet how do you explain this? — KOOKY KATE.

DEAR KOOK — Avoid that corner. Not because it is jinxed — I don't believe in jinxes — but because you have a fix on it and you always will have.

* * *

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

TIPS ON ATTENDING FOOTBALL GAMES

Someone remarked the other day that women and football seem to go together like ham and eggs.

If I can speak for the other football fanatics of my sex, we are probably attracted to the game for its fast action and general excitement. And the cold air does bring out the color in our cheeks, presumably making us more attractive.

But, alas, our knowledge of the sport itself is almost beyond comprehension.

My husband, an understanding soul, reassures me on this point. He says that many men have only a fogey notion of what is happening on the field. Major rules are changed from year to year, he says, and new ones seem to be established only to justify the existence of rules committees.

Yet the male spectator still manages to know the number of downs, yards to go, the names of the top scorer, who's carrying the ball, and the time remaining in the game.

These are the fly points, according to the men at home, that a female spectator is apt to ask about at the precise moment the quarterback is launching a 40-yard forward pass.

Here, then, are some tips to the ladies who want to be invited to football games:

Buy a program and study it carefully before the game starts. It not only lists the players by number, but it usually has a wealth of background information on the game being played.

The program may also have diagrams illustrating the referee's hand motions for the various fouls and penalties. (No, dear, he's not doing a ballet step; his hands on hips mean an "offside" penalty.)

Even the smallest stadium has a scoreboard which, not surprisingly, gives the score. It also records minutes to play and yards to go for first down.

Oh yes, there are eleven men on a football team. That's one of the first things I learned — in addition to keeping my mouth politely shut, of course.

Party-Favorites Repeated

by Mary Moore

A decision had to be made. We have received this month such a tornado of requests for party dishes and desserts that serve a large number that we have run out of surplus copies.

Sterling Gombo and Deluxe Chocolate Party Dessert are great favorites of hostesses in repeating them today. Please clip.

SHRIMP GUMBO (serves 15):

Three packages fresh frozen shelled and cleaned shrimp, 3 cups water, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1 small onion, sliced, 1 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon mixed pickling spice or "shrimp boil" spices, 1 cup raw long grain rice, drained pulp from two 20-oz. (No. 2) cans of tomatoes, 2 sliced green peppers, 1 lb. washed and sliced mushrooms. To the shrimp in a large pot add the water, vinegar, onion, salt and mixed spices. Bring to boil and cook gently, covered, for 10 minutes. Add rice and cook, covered, until rice is tender — about 25 minutes. (I drained off about 1 cup of the excess liquid at this stage.) Add all remaining ingredients (tomato pulp, green pepper and mushrooms) and bring to boil, (Note: I made this Gumbo a day in advance so as soon as it came to boiling point after vegetables were added, I removed it from the heat and covered it and stored it in the refrigerator until nearly serving time.) If you are going to serve it right away cook the vegetables only about 5 minutes for the pepper should be bright green and the mushrooms need only about 1 minute of cooking. This is a large amount so it may be served from a preheated soup tureen, or do as I did — serve it from a chafing dish, on or with split tea biscuits. I recommend and served 15 generously with seconds out to 60c per person. A this dish highly for it cost $4.00 perfect party dish.

DELUXE CHOCOLATE PARTY DESSERT (serves 15):

4 squares unsweetened chocolate, ¾ cup white sugar, 1-3 cup milk, 6 eggs, yolks and whites separated, ¾ lb. unsalted butter, 1½ cups sifted icing sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 3 dozen split ladyfingers, about 1 cup strong, cold coffee, ½ pint heavy cream, whipped, about 1 cup shaved or shredded Brazils or pecans or pistachios.

Dinner Menu

Vegetable Soup; Sliced Cold Double Loin of Pork (left-over from Sunday); Tomato Butter; Scalloped Potatoes; Fried Green Tomatoes; Pumpkin Pie; Coffee.

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over hot — but not boiling — water. Combine white sugar, milk and egg yolks. Add to chocolate and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Cool to room temperature. Be sure there is no warmth left in the cholocate mixture. Cream butter well. Beat in icing sugar. Fold into chocolate mixture. Add vanilla and stiffly beaten whites. Line one buttered 10" angel food cake pan (with removable centre) with split ladyfingers which have been quickly dipped in and out of strong cold coffee. (This is a job which requires patience. The skill with which you do it gives the professional appearance to the finished dessert.) Pour the cholocate mixture into the ladyfinger-lined pan, filling it brimming full then heaping the rest on the counter to make the chocolate mixture flow into the crevices between the ladyfingers. Smooth the top, cover with foil and chill overnight for 24 hours. Turn out on serving dish by loosening sides with knife and tapping bottom of pan in hot water for about 5 seconds. (It is simple to unmould it if you use an angel food cake pan with removable bottom.) Garnish top (or edges if you side) with sweetened cream whipped cream and sprinkle it with shredded nuts (and/or shaved bitter chocolate). Serve very cold. It shees neatly.

Let Mother Put Child On Table

VINELAND, Ont. (CP)—The indirect approach is the best way of examining children, Ontario general practitioners have been told.

Dr. Rodney Fowler, assistant physician at the cardiac clinic of Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, told 200 family doctors how he goes about examining the heart of a young child.

Boys and girls up to two years "consider it a serious affront to have a cold stethoscope placed smack in the middle of their chest," he said.

"You should let the child look at the stethoscope, handle it, put it in his mouth. Then warm the diaphragm and start well away from the chest, working gradually toward it."

Some other advice given to a seminar of members of the Ontario chapter of the College of General Practice of Canada:

Never take a child from his mother to plop him on the examination table; let the mother do it.

And keep a supply of "toys" on hand—tongue depressors, for example—to keep the patient's hands occupied.

DON'T BE A CARICATURE

The "All-American Dream" includes a sense of humor, popularly pronounced sense of "yumer." Pounds of prose have been composed on the subject of humor and-or wit, with no conclusions reached, except for the universal belief that a sense of "yumer" is a good thing to have. As women, according to folklore, are supposed to be a humorless lot — not a quip in a carload — prefer to regard a sense of the ridiculous as being of primary importance, at least in the area of fashions. The woman, who is unaware of the importance of a sense of the ridiculous, is on dangerous ground when she plans and buys her wardrobe.

A blind acceptance of all the pearls of fashion wisdom, thrown at the female population by the press, radio and television, can result in parodies of fashion. We are constantly being fed a contradictory diet of advice. For example, we should be serene and energetic, boosters of the male morale and dependent on the male's superior judgement.

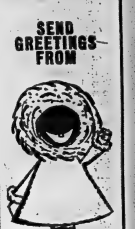
Not often are we advised to be ourselves — to think for ourselves — to pick and choose from the myriads of looks, trends and assorted styles and fashion images until we find the clothes which suit us as people, living a variety of lives.

Unless we learn to be discriminating, we are in danger of becoming like the mythological creatures — the caricatures of fashion.

SPORTIVE LOOK

This autumn it is easier than ever to fall into this trap. The most popular look — the sportive look, or in some adaptations the "little boy" look, is essentially a young fashion. The slim, young girl with a gamin face, will look very appealing in this season's jerkins, slouch hats, tweedy, pleated skirts and turtle-necked sweaters. A heavier sister, even though near in age group, will only succeed in looking ridiculous if she slavishly follows her in this fashion.

That does not mean that those women, larger than size seven, older than eighteen, are completely out of fashion's focus this season. It just means that most of us will have to be more discriminating before making some of these fashions our own. Both Gordon and Dalhousie took their generation's version of the sportive look and gave it their individual signature. In the process, they created enduring classics which have become a part of every well-dressed woman's wardrobe.



This season's cape, the full skirted, low-heeled walking shoe, the up-dated shirt have a role to play in every woman's fashion plan. This is provided that they are selected with care and with an eye to proportion, color, utility and suitability.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Be sure to check your records for your favourite recipes. Then, mark them with a check (✓) or a star (★) in the table of contents. Those with white fish, seafood and canned tuna or crabmeat will make it into the jotter.

Wants to Get off Her Feet

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Could you please advise me as to how one goes about finding a new job? They tell me that the Unemployment Insurance will not help as long as you have a job.

I am presently employed as a head cashier in a large chain store and, although the pay is good and the work very challenging, my feet cannot take much more. I have only grade ten education, but feel that all the experience I have had in public relations and handling of personnel should help me find something worth while. I do hope you can point me in the right direction. — HEAD CASHIER.

DEAR CASHIER — The right direction is your nearest National Employment Service office. Counsellors there help everyone — employed or unemployed — to find the niche which suits their talents.

Just don't give up one job before you find another. With your experience there should be a bright future for you in responsible work handling staff and serving the public.

DEAR DORIS — I am 15 years old and want to quit school. I know I flunked grade 9 and repeating it won't help me any. If I do quit I don't want to stick around home and live off the earnings of my parents like other kids.

I assume that there aren't any courses a 15-year-old girl can take. I was mainly thinking of typing, since I managed to get an A in typing. My problem is, what can I do? — DEFEATED.

DEAR DEFEATED — I'd say repeat grade nine. You're going to need all the education you can absorb if you really want to take yourself off your dad's hands.

An A in typing sounds hopeful, and this could be developed into a career as somebody's secretary, once you learn the rudiments of English. I'll tell you about courses in stenography when you are ready.

DEAR DORIS — Will you please send me information regarding story manuscripts — spacing, number of words, etc? Does one send to a magazine directly, or need an agent? — STORY TELLER.

* * *

DEAR STORY TELLER — Double or triple spaced typing makes for easy reading. Stories may be short shorts (almost like the ones in this column) or much, much longer. Take a look at the magazine which interests you and see how long the stories are.

When it comes to marketing your efforts, agents are sometimes helpful; not essential. Lots of writers deal directly with their publishers, often sending out manuscripts several times in the course of making a sale.

To S. W., Vancouver — For information about literature on the facts of life, write again, this time enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Confidential to HEARTBROKEN — Some guy blades take delight in boasting of conquests — whether what they say is true or not. Since Billy the Boaster had no such affair with you, say so and stop worrying. Your own True Love has other ways of knowing that his girl is a lady.

DEAR DORIS — I am 17 and madly in love with a girl aged 14. They say it's impossible, but she haunts me in everything I do. She's in my dreams day and night. Whenever I'm around other girls I'm always comparing and loving her all the more.

The trouble is, in no uncertain terms she told me to get lost. On account of my devotion to her, no other girl will go on dates with me. It's driving me daffy. What can I do? — LOVESICK AND HEARTBROKEN.

DEAR L. AND H. — Your idea of a love affair and hers are obviously different. Can you remember when you were fourteen?

Better to follow her advice and lose yourself — with someone closer to your age. But don't insult that someone by mooning over Age Fourteen while you are with her.

* * *

Confidential to IN LOVE — If you want a private reply about your problem, you will have to send me your name and address on a five-cent-stamped envelope.

British Papers Claim Hitler Knew About Dieppe Raid Before It Ever Took Place

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Two decades after the event, British newspapers flared forth this week with the claim that Hitler knew about the Dieppe raid before it ever took place.

In the most intriguing postmortem yet on one of the most discussed battles in Canadian military history, it is even suggested that the Germans were tipped off to the coastal clash by an advertisement appearing in London newspapers dated Aug. 13, 1942.

That was six days before the Canadian-led dawn assault on the French coastal resort. The force numbered 3,363.

Ever since, arguments have raged as to whether the ill-fated assault was a mistake or a necessary prelude to the Allied invasion that came two years later.

This week Dieppe came back into the news as:

A young British historian, David Irving, was quoted in The Evening Standard as saying he had uncovered "startling new evidence" that the Germans knew exactly when the raid was coming.

Ulrich Kessler, a German general who was director of Atlantic command air operations at the time of the raid, said in an interview the German air force was in possession of the British naval code before and after the Aug. 19, 1942, attack.

The Daily Sketch said an innocent - looking newspaper advertisement might have tipped the secrecy lid off Dieppe.

APPEARS IN LISBON

The advertisement appeared in British papers sold at a shop in Lisbon. It showed a woman clipping a bush—using powerful wirecutters instead of shears—beside the words: "Beach coat for Dieppe."

The Daily Sketch, which reproduced the advertisement, said it caused a stir among Allied psychological warfare experts, who reasoned that it might be a message meaning: "Beach — combined operations at Dieppe."

The ad was for Sylvan soap flakes. The message was that British women should use the "gentle" flake to wash beach-coats brought back from holidays in Europe. This raised suspicion because the number of beachcoat - bearing housewives would be limited.

The beachcoat had six button holes—the number of days to the raid.

And the letters "Cana"—presumably an abbreviation for Canada—could be seen in the folds.

RAISED A FLAP

The Daily Sketch quoted an official who worked in the psychological warfare executive as saying the advertisement raised a "terrific flap" at the time and was handled at the "very top," but nothing more was heard.

The Evening Standard article quoting historian Irving said the Germans knew so much about Dieppe that they rigged a simulated raid Aug. 15, 1942, four days before the real thing. "It was the deadliest sand-game in history," the paper said.

Week before the raid, the paper said, Hitler sent a top secret signal saying it was most urgent that the Dieppe-Le Havre area should be considered as in particular danger of invasion.

The German General Kessler, now retired and living in southern Germany, told interviewers that two days before the raid he presided at a conference "at which we agreed that a raid was imminent and that Dieppe was the target."

Business in Canada Now Forging Ahead to New Gains Chamber of Commerce Told

By KEN SMITH

QUEBEC (CP) — Business in Canada has overcome a period of shocks to its system and now is forging ahead to make new gains, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce was told today.

D. L. Morrell, the chamber's general manager, told its 24th annual meeting that although some forecasts see a downturn in the business cycle in 1964, "present trends do not point in that direction."

He said that "while there may be some unevenness in business throughout the year, forces at work now indicate a year of slowly rising business activity."

The annual meeting, formally opened Sunday night, runs until Wednesday.

Later today the 800 delegates from across Canada are to start hammering out policy.

Likely to spark controversy are resolutions dealing with the government's fiscal and monetary policies, taxation, development in international trade and especially forthcoming negotiations on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and the question of whether Canada should join the Organization of American States.

LONDON PRESSING

The chamber's policy in recent years has been to press the government to seek closer ties with Latin America without actually joining OAS. This year, the London, Ont., chamber has asked that the national body seek out in favor of joining.

The report on Canada's business scene emphasized that Canada cannot afford to jeopardize its position internationally by taking any action that could make other countries lose confidence in its future.

It noted that although Canada's balance of payments has shown a "distinct improvement" the gains made in that field are not firm enough for the country to take any risks."

The report also warned the government that additional costs to business from the proposed federal pension scheme "or competition among governments over pensions" could bring current successes in export markets to a halt.

"The competitive advantage in international markets gained from the devaluation of the dollar is non-recurring," it said.

"In the future, price and quality, particularly in manufactured products, will be decisive in foreign markets."

PICTURE BRIGHTENER

It points to five developments which offer a brighter picture for the businessman:

Farm income will be at record levels;

Second dary manufacturing, which accounts for one-fifth of Canada's exports, shows a 20-per - cent increase in export sales this year;

Construction contract awards are at an all-time high. Home building is up 15 per cent and engineering projects, such as highways, have shown a marked increase;

New orders for machinery and equipment are rising and total capital spending is expanding moderately;

Corporate profits are holding up well and could show an increase of more than seven per cent this year.

Malaysia Prime Minister Asks Sukarno's Overthrow

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — As the leader of Malaysia sees it, President Sukarno of Indonesia must be stopped from trying to seize more territory.

And the way he can be stopped, says Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of this fledgling nation, may be "to bring home to the people of Indonesia the need for the overthrow of that diabolical type of government."

"It has done nothing for the Indonesian people—except bring them misery, misery and more misery," he said in an interview Saturday. "They must be encouraged to fight against an unjust government which does not fit in with modern ideas and modern civilization."

Sukarno, leader of a nation of 100,000,000 has vowed to do away with Malaysia, a union of former British colonies with a total population of 10,000,000.

MUST DISCREDIT REDS

Before Malaysia will come to terms with Sukarno, said the Tunku, the Indonesian chief must discredit the Indonesian Communist party and destroy its influence. The Indonesian party is the largest in the world outside the Communist - ruled countries.

This toughened the terms already laid down by the Tunku, including a demand that Indonesia halt aggressive actions on the Sarawak border, that Indonesia and The Philippines adhere to agreements reached at a conference in Manila in August, and that they return their relations with Malaysia to normal. A crisis has been burgeoning between Malaysia and Indonesia ever since the Malaysians broke diplomatic relations with Indonesian government and the government of The Philippines because the two refused to recognize the federation. Malaysia was born Sept. 16.

VICTORIA (CP) — Cancer research in Canada may have to be cut back as a result of sharp reductions in the United States budget, a researcher said Saturday. Dr. D. Fire Destroys Army Canteen At Camp

PICTON — The Gunners' canteen at Camp Picton was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. The 80 x 40 building contained a lounge and a wet canteen. The walls were covered with shingles and the roof with asphalt.

The fire had broken through the roof when it was discovered about 6.30 a.m. and was then beyond control. The fire department at the camp was quickly on the scene. Nearby buildings were not endangered.

Cause of the fire is not known and there is no official estimate of the amount of the loss.

This is the first fire in the camp since 1956.

come tax also should be closely studied.

"U.S. HAS ADVANTAGE'

Much of the company's brief dealt with the oil and gas depletion regulations in income tax act which, said the brief, put U.S. companies at an advantage over Canadian firms working in this country. The complex regulations should be replaced with a depletion allowance equal to 25 per cent of producing revenues.

A sort of "castle system" has developed in the taxing of energy supplies, the commission was told, and petroleum products are bearing an "exceptionally heavy" burden.

Nuclear energy probably receives the greatest allowances, with special tax exemptions for uranium and government support for nuclear plants. The majority of electric power companies are tax exempt because they are owned by governments. Even coal transportation is subsidized, and natural gas got government assistance in pipeline construction.

The petroleum industry enjoys none of this assistance. This "survey indicates that petroleum has been singled out because it provides energy in the form most urgently and spontaneously demanded by the community — and therefore is most vital to the community's well-being."

NEED RECOGNIZED

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian government realizes its immigration practices must be improved, a Liberal backbencher said Saturday, but there is no suggestion that Canada will adopt an open-door policy. The statements by Ian Wahn, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto St. Paul, came at a conference called by the Jamaica-Canada Association.

Trouble Spots In Latin America

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

picture of troubles afflicting nations o Latin America:

Argentina: President Arturo Frondizi was deposed by army navy and air force leaders March 28, 1962. They accused him of going soft on followers of ousted ex - dictator Juan Peron. Dr. Arturo Illia, slightly left-of-centre country doctor, assumes the presidency Oct. 12 from President Jose Maria Guido, who was appointed by the military to serve as interim government head.

Peru: Military ousted president Manuel Prado July 18, 1962 just as his six-year term neared the end. Army leaders charged the election of his successor was fraudulent, but the military's fire was aimed at Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, leftist but non-Communist head of the American Popular Revolutionary Alliance. On June 9, 1963, new elections were held and Fernando Belaunde Terry, head of the Popular Action Party, was elected. He was sworn in July 28.

Ecuador: High-living Carlos Julio Arosemena was ousted as president July 11, 1963 by military leaders who branded him a drunk and sympathizer with Communists. A four-man military-junta headed by navy Capt. Ramon Castro Rijon, assumed control.

Dominican Republic: President Juan Bosch was removed Sept. 25, 1963 by military leaders who blamed him for economic chaos and softness toward Communists and followers of Cuba's Fidel Castro. A military junta took control but set up provisional civilian administration pending new elections.

Honduras: Predawn military strike unseated president Ramon Villeda Morales on charges of Communist infiltration, administrative chaos and political unrest Oct. 3, 1963. Col. Osvaldo Lopez Arellano proclaimed himself provisional president.

Trouble also is brewing in:

Brazil: This largest of the Latin-American nations is basically in deep economic and financial troubles. Leftists, threatening strikes, demand higher wages. Right-wing pressure appears aimed at the removal of President Joao Goulart, once an outspoken leftist who now calls himself a moderate. Opponents charge he is incapable of guiding the nation through economic strife. Goulart is seeking a 30-day state of siege.

Venezuela: President Romulo Betancourt is the target of the pro-Communist Armed Force for National Liberation which seeks to terrorize the oil-rich nation through bombings, killings and sabotage. Betancourt's government denies persistent reports in Caracas that right-wing military leaders are pressing him to take firmer action against extreme leftists.

Colombia: Terrorism by extreme leftists is on the increase and the government of conservative President Guillermo Leon Valencia is under fire because of a dive in the nation's financial situation.

to a mass rally at the town hall. A responsive, cheering mob roundly applauded every union denunciation of the Hanover Kitchens Company and were prepared to stage another demonstration as working hours today if the situation had not improved.

URGES BOYCOTT

In an attempt to force the issue at Friday's rally, Hall urged a boycott of the town's merchants and businessmen to apply pressure on them to approach Hanover Kitchens' management and appeal for a settlement.

Mayor Mrs. William Boeglas, whose furniture-worker husband is an IWA member, said council will hold a strike meeting tonight in an effort to bring an end to the strike.

She said: "The agony of it is that several years ago the National Film Board used Hanover's good labor-management relations as the focal point of a film entitled Strike Town."

The Hanover Kitchens strike is the first in the town since 1947.

The union has promised to ask council for the withdrawal of the 50 OPP officers, but the police will be on hand today to guard 45 Hanover Kitchens' employees as they go to and from the plant.

Longshoremen

working conditions, vacation, retirement, and medical plans, would be rejected.

DEMANDS BOWNT

Some sources indicated the new union proposals would scale down some demands, but emphasize increased welfare and other fringe benefits.

The strike, which some authorities estimate is costing $3,000,000 a day, has been peaceful enough in Sorel and Trois Rivieres but has led to violence in Quebec City and some skirmishing in Montreal.

Crew-members of the passenger liner Carmania traded stones and other missiles with strikers on the docks in Quebec City Friday night, and one Carmania crew member was shot in the thigh. The ship left for Southampton and Le Havre with three bullets holes in her side.

Saturday in Montreal, longshoremen swarmed over barricades put up by harbor police and convinced members of an independent union to quit loading the Irish Rose, a freighter bound for Newfoundland.

HELD UP TRUCK

ILA pickets also held up a truck briefly as it tried to enter the harbor, but there were no injuries in either incident.

The longshoremen have been working without a contract since the beginning of the year.

They originally asked for an hourly wage increase of 35 cents an hour spread out over a two-year contract, plus 10 cents in fringe benefits.

The March agreement, rejected by members, called for a 13-cent increase over two years and four cents in fringe benefits.

The rejected conciliation board report recommended a 22-cent package increase over two years, of which three cents would have been in fringe benefits.

CAMPBELLFORD

Police Constable Suspended, One Resigns from Force

CAMPBELLFORD — A meeting of the Campbellford Town Council in committee-of the whole last week, authorized the advertising for two unspecified number of constables for the town's police force.

This came about following the resignation of one constable and the suspension of the second, which has left the town with only the chief.

The resignation of Constable Clarence Duncalfe, which was tendered two weeks ago, was officially accepted at this meeting. Constable Duncalfe who has been a member of the police force for eight years, resigned for personal reasons.

The second constable, Jason Field, has been given notice that he has been suspended due to his involvement in a motor vehicle accident in which charges were laid by the O.P.P. The suspension is automatic under the Police Act and council instructed Chief Constable Sam Baird to suspend Constable Field until further notice.

The accident in which he was involved occurred a week ago on the River Road north of Campbellford, when Field's car struck another. There were no injuries but damage amounted to more than $500.

Council also asked the Attorney General's department to have a staff inspector of the Ontario Police Commission inspect the Campbellford police department and report on its adequacy and proficiency.

In the meantime, the town has only one officer, Chief Constable Sam Baird, to handle the police duties. Officers and cars of the Campbellford detachment of the OPP have been assisting during the past week in patrolling of the town, part clearly at night, and security checks of business premises are being carried out. The town requested the aid of the OPP following the meeting.

On a recent trip to Toronto, Mayor Morley W. Tanner spoke with Attorney General Fred Cass, commending the Campbellford detachment for their co-operation.

'Let's Clean-Up, Not Burn-Up'

A Check List for your Guidance

Clear out debris: Get rid of rubbish or anything combustible that you're not going to use in attics, closets, cellars, garages. Rubbish, such as old papers and rags, is a fire hazard. If not only starts fires itself, but furnishes fuel for fires starting from other causes. Clean these hazards out of your house, store or factory.

Watch outside fires: Clean up your yard. Keep grass cut low around buildings. Never burn papers on a windy day when there's danger of sparks setting fire to any house, shrubbery, clothing or outbuildings. Use an incinerator whenever possible.

Clear out paint and oil rags: Destroy rags or keep in closed metal container; hang up mops and paint soiled clothing so air can circulate around them. Paint or oil-soaked rags heat up from chemical action, burst into flames. Clean-up after paint jobs.

Check your fuses: Use 15 ampere fuses in regular household circuits, and don't make emergency repairs to fuses: keep wiring in good repair; have all work done by an expert electrician. Fuses protect your appliances, your house and your family from damage and possible fire when wires are overloaded or a short circut occurs.

Avoid flammable liquids: Remove them from your house. Hundreds of persons are killed annually trying to clean with gasoline, benzine or naptha. A tiny flame or spark — even from static electricity — will ignite gasoline vapor. Play safe! Do not use highly flammable or explosive fluids for dry cleaning!

Check stoves and heaters: Clean and check all heaters and have repair work done. Radiated heat from hot stovepipes, furnaces, and stoves will char beams or partitions too near them, causing a fire that will damage or destroy the house.

Portable heaters: Place portable, openflame heaters so they can't be knocked over or tipped. Avoid using rubber hose as fuel conductors for gas heaters; rigid metal pipes are safer. Always store kerosene outdoors, fill lamps and heaters outdoors. Don't carry or fill heaters while they are lighted. Keep a door or window open slightly while heater is burning.

Check pipes and chimneys: Clean soot out of chimneys and smokepipes. Check for cracks and holes; have chimneys repaired — where mortar or bricks are loose — and replace pipes if necessary. Dirty and defective chimneys are a leading cause of fires.

Check ash receptacles: Always put hot ashes into covered metal containers. Hot ashes in wood boxes set fire to many houses. In the cellar this is particularly hazardous, because flames quickly spread up through hollow walls of buildings.

Fireplace care: Use a wire-mesh screen in front of fireplace. Be sure the fire is out before you retire or leave the house. Sparks from unguarded fireplaces can start serious fires.

General repairs: Plan painting and renovating this Spring. Remodel and modernize your home for greater safety. Replace faulty stair treads. Install a heavy Dash-type door at head of cellar stairs, fitted tightly and kept closed. This will hold basement fires in check.

Smokers: Don't smoke in bed. Smoking in bed can be fatal. Fumes from burning cloth may overcome or asphyxiate you before fire reaches you. Place plenty of ash trays about your home for smokers. Keep matches in safe containers and away from young children.

Finest Livestock Show, Good Racing and Program Features of Tweed Fair

The curtain was rung down Saturday on the 1963 Fall Fair season as a big crowd turned out a Tweed to see what was the finest livestock show in the history of the fair.

Easily three times as many cattle as last year were on display, while the horse show was also a record for the annual Tweed fall classic.

And bigger things are in store for Tweed Fair next year.

By that time the Tweed Fairgrounds will have new accommodation for agricultural displays which will be housed in the new Tweed Memorial Arena now under construction.

Saturday's fair program had something for everyone. A parade featuring prancing majorettes started off the show in the early afternoon and from then on there was never a let-up.

Even the weather gave every co-operation on Saturday. Despite the October date, fairgoers took advantage of the warm day and turned out in their shirt sleeves.

JUDGING RINGS CROWDED

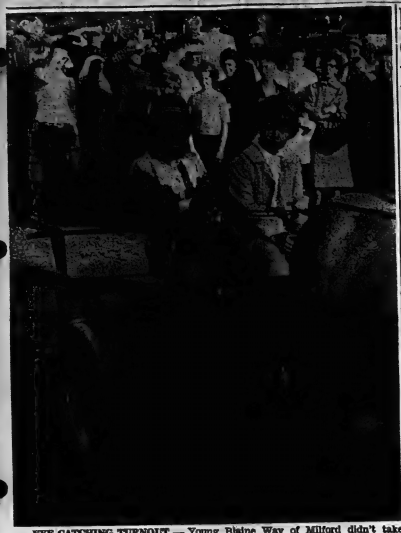
The cattle and horse judging rings were crowded throughout the afternoon; there were two classes of harness racing; pony shows and carriage races.

The Tweed 4-H Calf Club held its achievement day with 27 members completing the year's project. Also at the fair other county 4-H calf clubs turned out for inter-club competition and the honor of taking their calves to the Ottawa Winter Fair later this year.

Over 4n the agricultural building the baby show drew the attention of young parents and women in general.

And interspersed between harness racing bests was the grandstand show featuring professional entertainment. A silty handed magician entertained with a full repertoire of disappearing sets while a silty costumed stepper proved that step dancing is still popular.

MANY ENTRANTS



A blueberry pie eating contest attracted more than 20 entrants, both boys and girls, who didn't mind a bit ending up with pie smeared faces. A cash prize for all entrants helped to brighten faces.

And so the fall fair season is ended for another year in Hastings.

Mervin Hannah, the foster father said the children apparently slept by some bushes Friday night. They got their feet wet wading through a stream, lost their shoes and were wearing some old boots they had found when police discovered them plodding along a Pickering street.

The children, tired and hungry when picked up, were well enough to go to Sunday school.

Association Asks French Be Taught in Schools

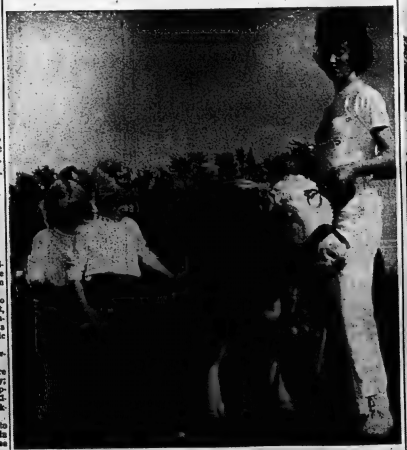
OTTAWA (CP) — L'Association Canadienne - Francaise d'Education d'Ontario decided at a weekend convention to ask the Ontario education minister that bilingual secondary schools in the province be renamed Franco-Ontarian schools.

The resolution said the association wanted legal and constitutional recognition of Franco-Ontarian secondary schools.

The association also supported a recommendation of presidents of the 12 Ontario universities that French be taught in secondary schools in the province.

It called on the Ontario education department to "authorize the formation of a college of education at the University of Ottawa to answer the needs of the population of eastern Ontario."

Two other resolutions asked that French become the first language for teaching and communication in bilingual secondary schools and that 13th grade examinations be prepared in French.



The minister o education also will be asked, as an experiment, to designate one existing bilingual secondary school as a French and Roman Catholic public school.

Roger Seguin, an Ottawa lawyer, was elected president.

Elected vice-presidents were Alphonse Charette, Sudbury; Rev. Andre Simard, a Redemptorist priest from Hamilton; Elmer Smith, Timmins and Markland Smith, Ottawa.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

"There's no substitute for experience," said wise old Casey Stengel last Wednesday morning before the first ball was thrown in Yankee Stadium to begin the Los Angeles four-game sweep over the Yankees.

Jim Bacon, writing for The Associated Press, said Stengel was conquering Bill "Moose" Skowron, longtime Yankee hero who was traded to the Dodgers during the winter to make room for 23-year-old Joe Pepitone at first base.

Today, amidst the ashes of the series, the veteran Skowron emerges as one of the Dodger heroes. Pepitone with one of the most costly errors in baseball history, is the "goat."

The slender, Hercules Italian youth swore softly to himself in the dressing room. "You play good all season and then blow the big game. It has to happen to somebody and I guess it might as well be me."

Bacon writes:: "As Pepitone tossed off his cocky Sunday in the Yankee dressing room—a place that resembled the main mausoleum in Forest Lawn cemetery in many ways, he added:

"Clete Boyer's throw was good. I lost it in the crowd. I just saw a white spot. It hit my wrist then forearm and finally my chest—every place but my glove."

Clete Boyer, going three feet in the air like a graceful bird, made a sensational stop of Jim Gilliam's hard smash down the third base line in the seventh inning with the score tied 1-1.

Boyer, with one of the surest arms in baseball, made a perfect throw. But it sailed past Pepitone and rolled toward the stands. By the time Pepitone retrieved the ball, Gilliam was on third base on what should have been an out.

Then Willie Davis drove a long fly to Mickey Mantle in centre. The Mick threw a strike to home plate but Gilliam could have crawled the last twenty feet and still have scored.

Skowron, who batted only .228 during the regular season, hit .385 for the series—even with a hitless day in three times up in the final game. He had five hits in 13 times at bat, including one homer and drove in three runs.

In the Dodger dressing room, Skowron's team-mates happily sang a parody on Walt Disney's Mousketeers—but the Dodger version, in tribute to one of the happier trades of the year was called "Mickey Moose."

Over in the solemn Yankee dressing room no one sang—or even smiled.

And Pepitone, curly-haired and a powerfully-built 185-pounder grabbed a towel, uttered another swearword or two, then walked to the showers.

His hand went up to his eye, Bacon recalls, and brushed away a tear. Then he looked sheepishly at this team-mates hoping they hadn't noticed.

His team-mates missed it because most of them were crying inside. It's easy to cry when you're out $4,000 or so—the difference between winning and losing the world series. And the Yankees don't lose often.

In The Dressing Rooms

By CHARLES MAHER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Something, maybe the Hollywood influence, induced Los Angeles Dodgers to come up with a new ending this season.

A year, after they blew the National League pennant to San Francisco Giants, the scene in the Dodger dressing room was one of utter despair. The doors were locked for an hour. When reporters finally got in, they found the floor cluttered with half-empty bottles and half-loaded athletes.

Cameramen were summoned Sunday to re-shoot the last scene. They finally got their happy ending.

The team that had pulled one of the most astonishing fainting spells in baseball history in 1962 had pulled one of the neatest tricks of the generation a year later by taking the World Series from New York Yankees in four straight.

FOUR CHAMPAGNE

In 1962, they were pouring bourbon for each other. In 1963, they were pouring champagne on each other.

The celebration barely had begun when Yankee manager Ralph Houk, no stranger to victory parties, walked in to congratulate Dodger manager Walter Alston.

"You had it coming to you," Houk said graciously.

"We just caught you in a slump," said Alston.

The rest of the dressing room dialogue was predictably exhibitarant. Until Frank Howard, the bonyasesque outfielder, got into the act.

In the fifth inning, Howard hit a ball 450 feet and became the first man to homer into the second deck in left field at Dodger Stadium.

Howard, incredibly, brushed it off like a bad-bounce single.

"I can't say it gave me a bigger thrill than any other home run I've ever hit," he said. "I've hit a lot of balls farther."

In a corridor outside the dressing room, Pete Richert was pouring champagne over the head of Ron Fairly.

"I've said nine that greasy kid stuff," Fairly said.

Other clubhouse quotes:

Bill Skowron: "After the season I had, this Series was the biggest three days of my career."

Dodger general manager Buzzie Bavasi: "If we'd played like this all season, we would have won by 30 games."

"We played a good series," Houk insisted. "And we'll win a lot more Series in the future."

"The kind of pitching the Dodgers had would beat the best team that ever played," said Dodger general manager Roy Hamey.

"We just never had a chance to hit-and-run," said Bobby Richardson. "We never had anybody on base."

Yankees Humbled Four Straight ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Koufax Brilliant In Dodger Sweep

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers' incredible four-game World Series sweep over the New York Yankees could be the start of a new dynasty and the end of an old one.

The world champion Dodgers, loaded with youth, speed, confidence, pep and pitching, could rule the National League for years to come.

The ability to draw upwards of two million annually in this ever-growing area and their spacious new stadium is bound to pour additional millions of dollars into already bulging treasury and enable the front office to pay handsome bonuses to promising youngsters.

The humiliating four - game downfall not only is a loss to the Yankees' pride and prestige but is bound to encourage the rest of the American League clubs which have acted as puppets on Yankee strings for many, many years.

WALT ALSTON

Sandy Koufax' brilliant work Sunday in the 2-1 Dodger hay-maker proved again what the Dodgers had shown during the entire Series—that strong pitching can beat good hitting, even such power-hitting teams as the Yankees.

SLUGGERS STIFLED

The three Dodger starters—Johnny Podres, Don Drysdale and Koufax, with a one-inning assist from relief ace Ron Perranoski, stifled the Yankee sluggers with only 22 hits, an average of under six per game. Koufax, who started the sweep with a 5-2 victory over Whitey Ford in the opener, permitted only six hits Sunday and lost his shutout when Mickey Mantle homered in the seventh.

The Yankees scored only four runs in four games.

"The Dodgers' great pitching beat us, nothing else," said Yankee Manager Ralph Houk, who accepted the defeat, his first in three World Series, philosophically. "We simply couldn't score enough runs."

"I've never seen such tremendous pitching all around in my 10 years with the Dodgers," said Los Angeles manager Walter Alston, who also had led Dodger teams to world championships in 1959 and 1963.

BEAT GREAT TEAM

"This was the most gratifying victory of all. We beat a great team, one which has been called by some of the greatest Yankee team of them all."

The Dodgers didn't exactly knock down any fences themselves. They had only 25 hits, two on Sunday, but as Alston said:

"We got our hits when they counted the most. That's the way we've played all year. We never hit much but we won the key games, and got the key hit when we needed it.

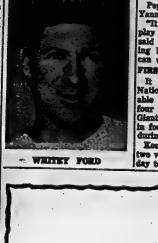
Ford, who lost the first and fourth games, pitched brilliantly Sunday. He permitted only two hits, both by big Frank Howard, who broke the scoreless pitching duel with a 400-foot home run in the fifth inning.

THE RUTH'S RECORD

The winning run was unearned. It came in the bottom of the seventh after the Yankees had evened the score on Mantle's 18th Series home run, which tied Babe Ruth's record for most homers in Series play. Jim Gilliam opened the Dodgers' seventh with a high bouncer to third. Clete Boyer made a leaping stop and good throw to first but Joe Pepitone let the ball go through him. By the time the first baseman had retrieved the bounding ball, Gilliam was on third. He scored on Willie Davis' sacrifice fly to Mantle in deep right centre.

"I lost the ball in the sun and in the white shirts of the grandstands," Pepitone said in disgust. "It hit my wrist, then my forearm, then my chest. All I could see was shirts."

Pep's misplay was the only Yankee error of the Series.



"It was not bad defensive play that cost us the Series," said Houk. "It was good pitching by the Dodgers. No team can win without scoring runs."

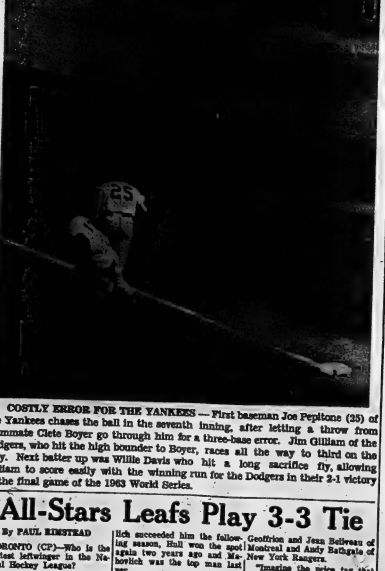
FIRST SWEEP

It marked the first time a National League team had been able to sweep the Yankees in four straight. The New York Giants of 1922 beat the Yankees in four but there was a 3-3 tie during the Series.

Koufax, the Series hero with two victories, fanned eight Sunday to boost his two-game total to 33, a record for a Series of seven games or less. Bill Dinneen of the 1903 Boston Red Sox fanned 29 Pittsburgh Pirates but that was in an eight-game series.

It was only the second time the Dodgers had beaten the Yankees in eight post season clashes. The only other win came in 1955 when the Dodgers were in Brooklyn.

— WHITEY FORD



MICKEY MANTLE

SANDY KOUFAX

FRANK HOWARD

COSTLY ERROR FOR THE YANKEES — First baseman Joe Pepitone (25) of the Yankees chases the ball in the seventh inning, after letting a throw from teammate Clete Boyer go through him for a three-base error. Jim Gilliam of the Dodgers, who hit the high bounder to Boyer, races all the way to third on the play. Next batter up was Willie Davis who hit a long sacrifice fly, allowing Gilliam to score easily with the winning run for the Dodgers in their 2-1 victory in the final game of the 1963 World Series.

All-Stars Leafs Play 3-3 Tie

By PAUL RINSTRAD

TORONTO (CP)—Who is the greatest leftwinger in the National Hockey League?

Paste pictures of Frank Mahovlich and Bobby Hull on opposite sides of a coin and flip—it's that close.

Mahovlich scored two goals and earned an assist Saturday night to help the defending Maple Leafs tie the NHL All-Stars 3-3. Hull, stronghoy of the Chicago Black Hawks, scored the most spectacular goal of the night.

They proved they should share the All-Star left wing spot for quite a few years.

And the coming season will be their personal tie-breaker. Hull was the first-team left-winger four years ago, Gordie Howe, Hull, Bernie Geoffrion and Jean Beliveau of Montreal and Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers.

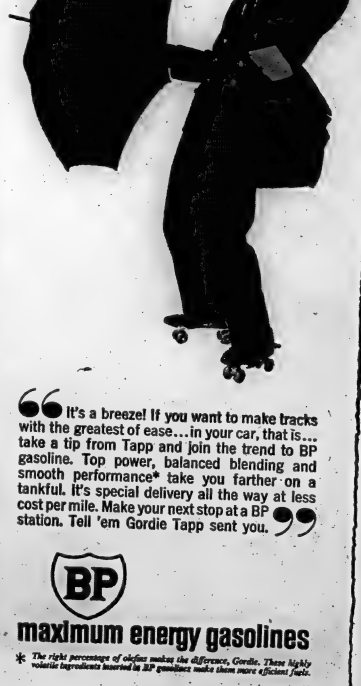
"Imagine the price tag that bunch would bring," whistled Abel.

All proceeds went to the players' pension fund.

In windup exhibitions over the weekend, Bots Bruins dumped Springfield Indians of the American League 5-3 Saturday night at Springfield; Montreal edged Omaha Knights of the new Central Professional League 4-3 Sunday night at St. Paul.

The NHL season opens Tuesday night with Montreal at Boston.

Abel, Detroit manager-coach who handled the All-Stars, wishes he could take his powerplay back to the Red Wings.



He had Howe, Hull, Bernie Ilich succeeded him the following season. Hull was the spot again two years ago and Mahovlich was the top man last year.

Veteran Eddie Litzenberger scored the other Leaf goal before 14,004 fans at Toronto.

ADD ALL-STAR GOALS

Henri Richard of the Montreal Canadiens and defenceman Marcel Pronovost of Detroit Red Wings were the other All-Star marksmen.

The teams were tied 3-3 after one period and each scored once in the final period, the Stars overcoming three Toronto leads.

Drysdale Tossed 3-Hitter In Third

Wins Third Game Sunday

Spun 1-0 Win

By JAC KHAND

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Drysdale, a tall, handsome part-time TV actor, pitched Los Angeles Dodgers to their third straight World Series victory over New York Yankees Sunday with a three-hit 1-0 triumph.

Once again the Dodgers pinned the Yanks to the mat by taking an early lead. In this case it was only one run but it did the trick with Drysdale, with one out in the first, Gilliam worked 24-year-old Yankee right-hander Jim Bouton to a 3-2 count and finally walked. Willie Davis lined out wickedly to Johnny Blanchard, who was filling in for the injured Roger Maris in right field.

DON DRYSDALE

Bouton was working carefully on Tommy Davis until he let his fifth pitch bounce into the dirt away from catcher Elston Howard for a wild pitch. Gilliam quickly dashed to second.

Davis, hitting star of the season, then smashed a single through the usually dependable Bobby Richardson and rolled into short right centre, far enough to permit the speedy Gilliam to score the only run.

GIVE THRILL

The futile Yanks gave the crowd of 55,912—largest in the history of Dodger stadium—a thrill on the last out. Joe Pepitone tore into a Drysdale pitch and rifled it to deep right field near the Yankee bullpen. Ron Fairly raced back and pulled it down about five feet short of home run territory.

Drysdale, a 19-game winner this year when he was chosen as top pitcher in the majors, had been saved for the Dodgers' home opener so that the left-handers, Koufax and Johnny Podres, could pitch at Yankee Stadium.

He struck out nine men and walked only one. He fanned Mantle, Howard, Tom Tresh and Bouton two times each and got Boyer once.

Besides Mantle's burst single in the second, the only Yankee hits were singles by Tony Kubek in the sixth and eighth innings.

Bouton had trouble with his control. The Dodgers got only four hits off him in his seven-inning string and all four were singles.

Player Dies After Game

AURORA (CP) — A 23-year-old soccer player collapsed Saturday as he was running down the field and died in hospital at Toronto several hours later.

Harry Nabeurs, Dutch-born secretary of the Newmarket District Soccer League, was playing for Aurora Seconds when he fell unconscious. He regained consciousness shortly after and was taken home to bed, but died a relapse and was taken 25 miles south of here to Toronto.

A broken blood vessel was believed to have caused his death.

Win Third Game 15-7, Title

Chatham Defeats Jones

A nine-run explosion in the second inning carried Chatham Knights of Columbus to their second consecutive OBA Juvenile "A" baseball championship in Campbellville Sunday afternoon.

Chatham whipped Belleville Jones Motors 15-7 in the third and deciding game of their title series.

Jones jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first and fell apart completely in the second frame. Everything went wrong with Chatham taking advantage of dropped popups and other Bellevillle misplays to surge into the lead.

All in all, the winners sent 14 men to the plate, the first nine of them scoring. Four hits, three errors, three walks and three fielders' choice plays told the story.

Herb Wakabayashi climaxed the big inning by slamming a grand-slam home run some 350 feet over the fence. On Saturday, the sturdy Japanese athlete had scored six touchdowns in a football game.

Wakabayashi also received credit for pitching yesterday's win. He gave way to young Ron Boyle in the last 1 2/3 allowed eight hits between them with Twigg getting seven of the club's ten strikeouts. They walked four.

Bill Beresteock, Frank Farrell in the second and Dave Lewis in the fourth, pitched for Belleville. They had six strikeouts, nine walks.

Eddie Wright was top man in the Chatham club's 15-hit attack. He banged out two doubles and two singles in five trips. Herb Wakabayasil had his bases-loaded homer and a single while Bob Lahey hit a double and single. Other safeties were shared by Bill Russell, Ron Twigg, Denomy and Jim McKeon.

Larry Lewis belted a long two-run homer for the Jones Boys, while Carl Boomhower had a solo homer and a single. Gary McMillan had a pair of singles, Bill Barberstock a single, Bob Moon and Bob Boyle a single apiece.

Galt Defeats Kenmors For Title

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The sweet smell of success evaded the Belleville Kenmore hawks yesterday afternoon, but the odor will linger for a long while to come.

Kenmore came within one pitch of capturing their second straight OBA Senior championship before bowing to Galt Terriers 6-3 in Sunday's third and deciding game.

The clubs divided a double-header on Saturday, Galt winning the opener in the afternoon 7-6 and Belleville copping the evening tilt by an identical score.

Kenmore led the Terriers 3-2 with two out, a man on third and a full count on the batter in the ninth inning yesterday before the roar fell in, to the tune of four Galt runs.

Small crowds attended the three games although Sunday's attendance, near 300, was the best here in some weeks.

Galt had threatened in the previous times, outhitting the homesters by a wide margin, Sunday but sharp defensive plays, including DP's, pickoffs and cutdowns on attempted steals protected the Kenmore slim margin entering the ninth.

Pinch - hitter Ross Paton bloaped a single to left to open and moved to third on Clarke's sacrifice and Thompson's ground out. The Kenmore Sid Forster lifted pitcher Bill Latchford in favor of lefty Stan Reid at this point, to face the tough left-handed section of the Galt batting order. Reid had recelled it relief on Saturday.

The move backfired this time however, Reid went to three and two before walking Wray Upper. Upper went to second when Mavety chose to ignore him, holding Paton at third.

Larry Cunningham, who had tagged a bases-empty homer to whittle a 3-1 Kenmor lead in the seventh, popped to short right-centre, the ball falling inches from the glove of Follwell, Carr and Elliott. He pulled with a double and a 4-3 Galt lead.

Larry Soden replaced Reid but Roger Dewesale smashed his fourth hit of the day, a long homer over the left centre field fence, to make it 5-3. Kenmore went down in order in the ninth.

A walk and Dewesle's hit, sandwiched between two errors, plated the winners' initial run in the third.

An infield bobble and Pete Weston's triple, which shattered right fielder Bob Brain's face with a bad hop, plus Duffy Fulwelli's single, put the Kenmors ahead 2-0 in the second.

Larry Mavety singled home their third run after a walk and an error on Moe Hunter's sacrifice in the third. The Kenmors never got a hit after that. Latchford's walk in the seventh was the only runner they had after the third inning.

Lefty Ken Lavis allowed the three hits and got ninth-inning relief from John Clark for the winners. He fanned three, walked two, Clark whiffed one.

Stan Reid was charged with the loss, facing just two batters, while Latchford gave up ten of the winners' 12 hits. He struck out eight, walked three.

Dewesale with his homer and three singles and Cunningham with a homer, double and single paced the Terriers. They were helped by a pick of the winners defensively throughout the series.

Over the three games, Galt outhit Kenmore 33-18 but committed 14 errors compared to Belleville's three by Galt.

Brain, the injured Galt player, was taken to the hospital here, badly cut and with possible broken cheek bone and nose.

The series, which saw much complaining about the officials, was a little quieter yesterday but not much. Galt boss Terriers continued to argue almost every call that did not favor the club.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

On Saturday, the clubs played exciting bot for from good ball with errors, hits and arguments with the officials the order of the day.

In the afternoon tilt, Kenmors overcame a first-inning 4-0 lead to go ahead 6-4 at one time but a bases-loaded single by Roger Dewesle drove in the tying and winning runs for Galt in the sixth.

Ross Paton gave up 10 hits, fanned seven and walked none to get the win, surviving a two run double by Mavety and Brain's two-run homer in the Kenmors' five-run third inning.

Bill Latchford lost, giving up eight of Galt's nine hits while walking seven in 5 1/3 innings. Stan Reid pitched excellent ball, fanning eight, from the sixth inning out.

Dewesle, with a double and two singles and Wray Upper, with two hits, paced the winners. Claude Carr, Pete Weston, Larry Mavety and Pat Asselstine each had two hits for Belleville, Court Bradley getting his homer and Jack Elliott the other safety.

Plate umpire Al Kelleher threw John Clarke and Bob Brain, of Galt, and Kenmors' Sid Forester out of the game during the afternoon.

At night, Kenmors fell behind 3-0 before they got to bat then later overcame a 6-3 deficit to win in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Pat Asselstine's singing double, with one out, an intentional walk to Elliott and Larry Mavety's tie-breaking single through the middle gave Kenmors the final 7-6 win.

Kenmors managed only five hits, one an RBI double by Larry Soden that appeared to be well over the left-centre field fence for a homer. Claude Carr and Moe Hunter also had singles.

Soden pitched the win, despite 12 Galt hits, striking out nine. John Clarke, in relief of Ken Lavis in the first, was the loser.

Ron Boomer, with three, Fred Thompson, Larry Cunningham and Ron Smith each with two, were top Galt hitters.

Soden had helped the winners score three in the seventh and eighth to set the stage for Mavety's winning blow.

Yankees Get $8,000

Pot O' Gold For Dodgers

Mel Allen Loses Voice In Ninth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Each winning Los Angeles Dodger may take home about $12,000 and each losing New York Yankee can console himself with about $8,100 from the World Series player pot. Both will be records.

No official figures can be released until commissioner Ford Frick's office has checked the figures. That probably won't be finished for several days.

Frick's office also comes up with the pay cheques for the players on the second, third, fourth and fifth place clubs, all of whom probably will receive record slices.

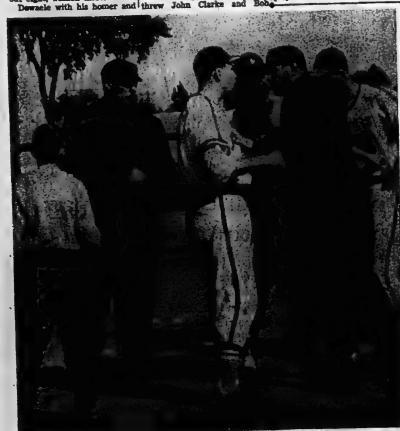
The player pool of $1,917,746.43 was a record, bypassing the old mark of $893,301.40 for the Dodger-Chicago White Sox series in 1959.

When the Dodgers closed out the Yankees in four straight, the club owners and the two leagues missed out on a possible $1,000,000. The players get the lion's share of the money in the first four games, but after that the money is divided four ways among the two participating club owners and the two leagues' shares and the commissioner's 15 per cent are deducted.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Veteran sportscaster Mel Allen, the Voice of the New York Yankees for many years, suffered one of broadcasting's most unfortunate fates Sunday.

He lost his voice in the tension-packed ninth inning as the Yankees made a final bid to catch the Dodgers.

Vin Scully, the Voice of the Dodgers who shared television duties for the series, said Allen "just lost his voice and we figured he'd better rest his throat for perhaps an inning."

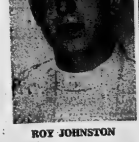


"It was just a laryngitis attack," said Tom Gallery, NBC sports director.

Swedes Go Back Home

TORONTO (CP) — Two Swedish amateur hockey players, who trained with the National Hockey League champion Toronto Maple Leafs this fall, have decided to go back home to their engineering jobs.

Both goaltender Kjell Svensson and left winger Carl Oeberg rejected minor league contracts in the Leaf chain and will return today, Toronto officials said Sunday.



Ulf Sterner, the Swede who is scheduled to have a five-game NHL trial with New York Rangers, has said he will stay if he plays in the NHL.

"DON'T GIVE ME TROUBLE" — Plate umpire Al Kelleher is slightly outnumbered in one of the heated arguments with Galt Terriers which took place in the opening game of the OBA senior finals here Saturday. As usual the official had the final say. Base umpire Jim Tedworth takes a grim view of the action.

RUGGER TEAM LOSES

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuters) — Toronto Balmy Beach lost to Edinburgh Royal High School 23-3 here Saturday in its opening game of a six-game rugby tour of Britain. The Canadian forwards battled hard but their backs were outclassed by the Scottish three - quarters whose speed and passing proved too much for the visitors.

Podres Says of Koufax

"Greatest Pitcher Ever Seen"

By JIM BECKER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A couple of weeks ago, while the Dodgers were away winning the National League pennant, there was a political rally in the big baseball park here for Barry Goldwater.

As the Arizona Senator was speaking, a spectator repeatedly shouted:

"Take him out and put in Koufax."

If there were any political offices open here they would go today to Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodger left - hander, without the formality of a ballot.

Koufax won half the games in the astounding four-game World Series sweep over New York Yankees, the opener Wednesday and the closer Sunday, to cap a glorious season.

SAYS HE'S GREATEST

"He's the greatest pitcher in baseball," said Johnny Podres, the lefthander who won the second game. "He's the greatest I've ever seen."

And the Yankees, who said before the series started that Koufax was great but, after all, "he's only human," weren't so sure now.

JOHNNY PODRES

The only thing that has stopped the Dodger ace since he emerged from the ranks of the flame throwers and went to the head of the pitching class two years ago has been a mysterious numbness of the index finger of his pitching hand last season.

He missed the last half of the season, and the Dodgers missed the pennant. For a time doctors feared they would have to amputate the finger, but new drugs restored the circulation and saved his career.

He went on to a 25-5 season, a 1.88 earned-run average and a flock of strikeout records, capped by the hero role in the series.

What next?

HAS NO GOALS

"I have no goals," said the 27-year-old Brooklyn boy. "I just want to make it in spring training next year, and have a good year. I'm not aiming at anything."

Right now, winter officially begins," Koufax said. "I'm glad the season's over so I can play some golf."

He's a "plus 10" handicapper.

"I'm no good," he said, "I just started."

Manchester Demotes Tottenham

LONDON (Reuters) — Manchester United, last season's Football Associated Cup winners, knocked Tottenham out of the first division of the English Soccer League lead Saturday with a 1-0 victory at Bolton.

Spurs, looking for their first win at Sheffield United's ground in 28 years, were cheered by a 31 half-time lead but the Yorkshire side fought back to tie 3-3 and rob the Londoners of a clear lead.

Meanwhile, Arsenal came back from a mid-week defeat to slam hapless Ipswich Town 6-0 at Highbury.

Liverpool almost match Arsenal's scoring feat, beating Aston Villa 5-2 after the Midlands side had done well to be tied 2-2 at half-time.

In a clash between promoted sides, Chelsea scored its sixth tie in 12 league matches with a 3-2 score with Stoke City.

South African Eddie Firmani signed by Charlton Athletic for £12,000 ($33,000) from Italian club Genoa, scored two goals against Manchester City in his first game in English soccer for eight years. Charlton won 3-1.

Odham Athletic took over the lead in the third division by beating Colchester 5-2.

Gillingham, last of the unbeaten teams in the Football League extended its run at the expense of Halifax Town, winning 3-1.

Mrs. Bing Crosby, Leading Lady in Bob Hope Show

By BO ETHOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Do you think it's significant," asks Bob Hope, "that this time they give me a leading lady who is also a nurse?"

Not only a nurse, she's Mrs. Bing Crosby.

This peculiar turn of events is happening on the high-rated Bob Hope Chrysler show. Besides six variety shows, the comedian is doing two hours with plots. One of the latter is called The House Next Door, in which Kathryn Crosby, formerly Kathy Grant, plays his wife, Jill St. John is the girl next door.

Ask Mrs. Crosby how she likes working with Hope and replies, "Shsh, but then I know Bob; we lived together for three months in England."

The Crosby and Hope families shared a castle two years ago when the husbands were making The Road to Hong Kong.

After a period of Crosby bearing (Harry, 8, Mary Frances, 6, Nathaniel, 2) and nurse training (she got her degree, now is studying for a state licence), Kathryn is once more paying some attention to her acting career, largely at the insistence of her agent, veteran talent mentor Max Arnow.

SAW PROMISE

While talent head of Columbia, Arnow saw promise in the young girl from Houston, newly dropped by Paramount. (Her tenure at Paramount, wasn't a total failure; she met Bing there).

"Max convinced Columbia to sign me," Kathryn recalled.

"When she indicated a desire to resume her career, Max booked her into summer theatres in Sunday in New York. The result was a business and critical success in such places as Indianapolis and Warren, Ohio.

Most important of all, she sold one theatre-goer—Bing.

"He had never seen me work," she said. "After seeing the play, he decided to hire me for his next television special."

Despite such complaints, Bing seems to approve of his wife's career. He is entering a period of activity, with television specials and a movie with the Crosby Sinatra gang lined up. That means less time for the Crosbys at their various vacation homes, which include Palm Springs, a ranch in northern California and a new house at Las Cruces in Mexico.

WINS FRIZETTE

NEW YORK (AP) — Tomah, odds-on favorite of an Aqueduct Saturday crowd of 44,113, took the lead midway down the backstretch and held on to capture the $119,200 Frizette Stakes. Four of the last six Frizette winners have gone on to be acclaimed champion two-year-old filly of the year, and unbeaten Tomah is well on her way to the title. She could clinch it by winning the $125,000 guaranteed Gardenia Oct. 26 at Garden State Park.

Jackson Leads Riders To Top

Ottawa Whips Saskys; Lions Swamp Esks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Russ Jackson is a fellow who doesn't believe all this guff about an unbeatable defence.

The razor-sharp quarterback of Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday night pierced Saskatchewan Roughriders and tonight hopes to do the same to Calgary Stampeders.

Jackson's crafty signal-calling led Ottawa to first place in the Eastern Football Conference with a 28-13 win over Saskatchewan of the Western Conference in an interlocking game, in a WFC encounter Saturday night, the leading British Columbia Lions took a firm grip on first place with a 40-1 win over the hapless Edmonton Eskimos.

Ottawa riddled the toughest defence in the country at Regina—scoring four touchdowns against the same Saskatchewan club which had allowed only one in six previous games.

The Rough Riders now have 12 points on a 6-3 record, two more than Hamilton Tiger-Cats (5-4) and Montreal Alouettes (5-5) in the East. Toronto Argonauts 2-8 are last.

In other action tonight, Hamilton plays at Winnipeg.

A victory for Blue Bombers, defending Grey Cup champions, and a loss for Calgary would boost Winnipeg into second place.

Ottawa, with Jackson riddling the Saskatchewan pass defence and backed by Whelan and Ernie White going for big gains through and around the line, scored its four touchdowns before 14-551 Regina fans.

Thelen, White, flanker Whit Tucker and halfback Don Stewart scored the touchdowns. Fullback Rick Black added two singles and tackle Moe Racine kicked two converts. Ottawa led after 15 minutes, 15-6 at half time and 21-13 after three quarters.

TRIPUCKA CLICKS

Ezzo Gotta scored both Roughrider touchdowns on passes from veteran quarterback Frank Tripucka. Tackle Reg Whitehouse converted one and Jackson completed 11 of 17 passes for 216 yards and Thelen and White accounted for the majority of Ottawa's 275 yards rushing.

Quarterback Joe Kapp unleashed a mighty aerial attack to lead Lions to victory before about 14,000 fans in Edmonton. He fired three touchdown passes and set up two others with a first-half passing attack that accounted for 363 yards.

Kapp's touchdown tosses went to Ron Morris, 13 yards, and Willie Fleming, 39 and 63 yards. Kapp and fullback Nub Beamer scored the other touchdowns on one-yard plunges. Rookie Peter Kempf boosted two 40-yard field goals and converted three touchdowns. Defensive half Neil Beaumont added Lions' other point with a single.

'Liz' Stunningly Beautiful In Hour-Long London Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It would have been great if every viewer who watched Elizabeth Taylor in London Sunday night could have taken the hour-long tour of the city with the aid of a color television set. The show was stunning in its beauty.

(British press correspondents in New York criticized the show and one, Anthony Gilbey of the London Daily Sketch, asked "does London deserve this?" Londoners will see the program in November.)

Miss Taylor—whose qualification for CBS tour guide was that she was born in Hampstead—was almost unbelievably beautiful, too.

The bouquets, however, must go to the creators of the imaginative program, particularly to the men behind the cameras and the writers, one of whom was S. J. Perelman.

OFF-BEATS SITAR

There were glimpses of London Bridge, Westminster, the Tower and the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace, but it was the off-beat material that fascinated most—Billingsgate fish sellers exchanging insults, a street sweeper complaining about dirt, a cabbie mourning the obsolete traffic regulations, a Saville Row tailor fitting a customer in a riding coat while the would-be hunter sat astride a wooden horse.

Though it all, aloof and lovely, floated Miss Taylor, usually over-looking the Thames and usually with a book in her hand. Her commentary was warm, learned and leavened by occasional humor.

Bob Hope's new NBC anthology series started Friday night with a disappointing drama called "Killing at Sun-dial. It was written by Rod Serling and one expected better things from him.

GRIFFITH WINS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) Welterweight champion Emile Griffith scored a split 10-round decision Saturday night over middleweight contender Jose Gonzales of Puerto Rico in a non-title bout. Griffith received the votes of two of the three officials. The third scored the fight a draw.

Palmer Birdies For Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Arnold Palmer shot a birdie on the 71st hole Sunday and won the $26,000 first prize in the Whitemarsh Open tournament by a stroke over fast-finishing Lionel Hebert.

Palmer finished with an erratic 74 for 283 and boosted his record money winnings for the year to $187,855.

Hebert, 35, birdied the final two holes for a 71 and 282 to grab the second place cheque of $13,500. Sam Snead, still master at 51, breezed home tied with a stumbler-up 68 to take Toronto's Al Balding, who went one-over par on the final hole for a closing 72 and a 283 total.

Mason Rudolph, who started the day tied with Phil Rodgers for second place, three shots back of Palmer, stumbled to a 74 for 284. Rodgers went one over par on four of the first five holes and staggered in with a 77 for 287.

ITS RICHEST PRIZE

Palmer thus adds the Whitemarsh prize, the year's richest on the regular circuit, to the $22,000 he won in the Thunderbird and the $23,000 he collected in the Cleveland Open. But he hasn't won a major title this year.

However, the players who had won such titles fall far back of him in this event played over the 6,807 - yard, par - 72 course in perfect weather.

Julius Boros, the U.S. Open king, rallied with a 67 for 285 and Jack Nicklaus, holder of the Masters and PGA crowns at the age of 23, also shot a 67 for 289. Bob Charles, the British Open champion from New Zealand, closed with a 73 for 290.

Defeat Varsity, McGill

Queen's, Mustangs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A pair of fumbled punts spelled the difference Saturday at Queen's University College Gaels and University of Western Ontario Mustangs won their opening Intercollegiate Senior Football League games.

Queen's beat University of Toronto Blues 21-14 at home, scoring a fourth-quarter touchdown when guard Bill Miklas recovered Mike Kelly's end-zone fumble of a kick by Harold Rose of the Gaels.

Western edged McGill University Redmen 16-13 in Montreal, scoring the winning touchdown after recovering a fumble of a punt by the Redmen on the McGill 10-yard line.

In Kingston, the Gaels had to fight back from a 7-0 halftime deficit to stop the surprising Blues. They did it when quarterback Carl Connor combined from the running game to long payoff passes.

He combined with Bill Edwards for a 76-yard pass-and-run play to tie the score in the third quarter, and later threw 31 yards to Bayne Norrie for the third touchdown in the final quarter. Edwards converted all three touchdowns.

Quarterback Bryce Taylor sparked the Toronto attack. He threw 12 yards to Ken Davison for a first-quarter touchdown, scored himself on a 10-yard end run, and kicked both converts.

Western, with a highly - regarded offence, couldn't penetrate a stiff Toronto defence until Conner threw to Edwards early in the third quarter. The Gaels took a 7-7 lead at 2:09 of the fourth quarter on Miklas' touchdown. Taylor then tied the score after defensive end Dave Buckman recovered a Queen's fumble on the Gaels' 19-yard line.

Toronto tried a short kickoff after the touchdown, but Don Rasmussen fell on the ball for Queen's at their 49-yard line. On the next play, Conner connected with Norrie for the winning touchdown at 2:40.

At Montreal, middle end Pat McConnel led the Western scoring, picking up a touchdown and two singles. Quarterback Bob Israel scored a touchdown and Jim Weber booted a convert.

Whip Steelers, Colts

Browns, Bears Unbeaten

NEW YORK (AP) — Substitute quarterback Rudy Bukich, working with Rookie Bill Hull and Mike Ditka on a 44-yard touchdown play in the fourth quarter, pulled Chicago Bears to a 10-3 victory over Baltimore Colts Sunday and kept the Bears undefeated in the National Football League.

Bukich came off the bench in the third quarter, replacing Billy Wade, and with just minutes remaining in the final quarter called the key play. He pitched a pass over the middle to Hull while Ditka threw a defencemen Bobby Boyd to spring Bull loose.

The Bears and Cleveland Browns, 35-33 winners over Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night on Frank Ryan's three touchdown passes, are the only undefeated teams in the league.

Green Bay's defending league champion Packers took charge on Herb Adderley's 93 - yard touchdown run with the opening kickoff and rolled over Los Angeles Rams 42-10 for a 3-1 record that left them in second place in the Western Conference behind the Bears.

CARDINALS WIN

In the east, St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants at 3-1 trail the Browns. The Cardinals crushed Minnesota Vikings 56-14 as Charlie Johnson passed for 301 yards and three touchdowns.

Y. A. Tittle also pitched three scoring tosses in the Giants' 34-14 victory over Washington Redskins.

Philadelphia Eagles won their first game of the year as Dallas Cowboys and Detroit Lions kept San Francisco 49ers winless with a 26-3 halftime lead in other games. The seven-game weekend NSL program pulled a record attendance of 1,000,000.

In the American League, Gene Mingo kicked five field goals and set up another with a 20 of Denver Broncos' points in a 50-34 victory over San Diego Chargers that left the Bolts in second place behind Houston Oilers.

Saturday night, New York Jets defeated Boston Patriots 31-24 and Buffalo defeated Oakland Raiders 12-0.

COMBINES DORY AND YACHT — Patricia, a 28-foot yacht built on the lines of a fishing dory, has been designed by James M. Harding, a member of the Nova Scotia legislature and a lawyer from Shelburne. Mr. Harding, who plans to have the craft mass-produced, has sought to combine the seaworthy qualities of the dory with the family comfort of a yacht, and at reasonable cost. (CP Photo)

Space-Woman Hopes to Be On Moon Trip

CP from Reuters-AP

HAVANA — Soviet spacewoman Valentina Tereshkova says Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin will command the first flight to the moon and she will go with him.

Speaking on Cuban television Thursday night, she said she also would propose that a Chinese woman be included in the team being gathered for the Soviet bid to reach the moon.

Gagarin was Russia's first cosmonaut. It was announced recently that he had started space-flight training again.

Miss Tereshkova also said Russian scientists "will invent artificial gravity" to overcome the problem of weightlessness in space and facilitate the setting up of an interplanetary station.

In an article in an East Berlin paper Friday, Gagarin was quoted as saying he hoped to be one of the crew in Russia's first interplanetary flight.

In the article, written for the East German Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland, he said it would be "rash to assume that interplanetary flights would be a matter of the next few years."

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the giant space tracking station at Jodrell Bank near Manchester, England, also said Friday the Russians are far from being ready to land human beings on the moon.

He was commenting on the report by Miss Tereshkova who said Russia would soon launch a rocket to the moon carrying a man and a girl.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yuri A. Gagarin, the first Soviet astronaut, had been expected to spend two days in New York city starting Tuesday. but the state department indicated Friday night there may have been a change in plans.

Gagarin, accompanied by his wife and six other Soviet citizens, not identified, were expected to visit New York en route to the general conference of the International Aeronautical Federation in Mexico City Oct. 12-20.

Valentina Tereshkova, Russia's only woman astronaut now visiting in Havana, also is expected to attend the Mexican conference. Going direct from Cuba.

LONDON (CP) — Britain's General Post Office has reminded the public that the Canadian magazine postal rate which allowed publications to be sent to Canada at less than a quarter of the usual cost, was discontinued last July. It's a Dory, It's a Yacht It's a Dandy All Around

By ED WALTERS

SHELBURNE, N.S. (CP)—A yacht and a dory have few similarities but combine the two and the result is what James M. Harding believes is the answer to many an amateur skipper's prayer.

Mr. Harding, a Shelburne lawyer and member of the Nova Scotia legislature, is an ardent sailor who loves to take his family for a cruise under sail.

He had long been bothered by the fact many sailing yachts have a nasty habit of pulling the lee rail under water in strong winds — something that doesn't make for comfortable family cruising. Also yachts big enough to take the family afloat cost more than a lot of hopeful sailors could afford.

He was familiar with the seaworthy qualities of the lowly dory, a flat - bottomed, flare-sided craft developed by Grand Banks fishermen. One of the dory's characteristics is its ability to take a lot of heavy weather punishment without capsizing.

STAYED DRY

Last year Mr. Harding put into action a plan which likely would have delighted one of his ancestors, Donald MacKay, a famous clipper-builder of the late 19th century.

He designed on dory lines a 28-foot boat fitted with a four-foot - nine - inch fit keel and ketch-rigged.

When launched early this summer and taken for a cruise the craft proved to be well-balanced in sail plan and design. She kept her dry in above water sailing close-hauled in winds of more than 20 knots.

Her underwater hull shape is the same as a dory's with the exception of the afterpart which has a turned-in chine. The stern is also wider.

Christened Patricia, after Mr. Harding's wife, the boat is decked over and has a roomy cabin capable of sleeping four.

It can be fitted to sleep six. A small outboard motor can be fitted to the stern.

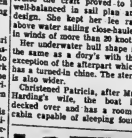
The mainmast is 34 feet above the deck while the mizzen is five feet shorter. Her total sail area of 413 square feet is balanced by a 1,130-pound cast-iron shoe on the keel.

Mr. Harding said she rides easily in heavy waves and keeps a dry deck longer than most other craft her size.

The boat is fitted with five sails, a jib, staysail, mainsail, mizzensail and mizzen staysail. The 171-square-foot mizzen staysail is set between the masts and when furled reduces the canvas area to 442 square feet.

Mr. Harding plans to combine the jib and staysail into one large headsail for easier handling.

He now is looking for a boat-builder to go into full-scale production, using Patricia as a prototype for future models.



The completed boat, including sails and rigging, would be sold for around $4,750; he says, considerably cheaper than other type yachts of comparable size.

The craft is stoutly built of saw-oak frames and one-inch planking, including the deck. Mr. Harding said he had considered using plywood but it would have been far more expensive.

TOO HAZARDOUS

LONDON (CP) — A Zurich restaurateur who turned his establishment into a British pub has had his fair plans to keep it that way. But the clubroom is coming down because it is "too dangerous" a game.

Tips on Planting Evergreens

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Evergreens from the nursery are usually balled and burlaped. This means that the roots have been pruned several times before the plant is dug and that a ball of soil is retained with the roots, which are wrapped in burlap. This root pruning forces the plant to develop an easy short feeder roots and it is in good condition for transplanting. The roots of evergreens dry out very quickly and the broken ends of the roots, if exposed to the air, are sealed with a resin formed by the leaking sap. This prevents the roots from taking up water and makes recovery slow. Keep the roots covered and damp and get them into the soil as soon as possible.

If you are buying from a local nursery you can prepare your soil before going to buy the plants. If not, as soon as you bring them home cover them with damp sacks or cold sheets in while doing the digging.

If you are transplanting evergreens on an open site, prepare the soil before digging the shrubs. Dig in plenty of humus, such as peat moss, and add a cupful or two of bone meal working them up well in the soil. Where the soil is heavy clay add some coarse sand or fine gravel.

Do not plant evergreens in a wet spot. Roots need moisture but must have good drainage. Soil that is constantly wet becomes sour and air cannot penetrate it. Roots must have air as well as moisture and food.

Use a sharp spade to dig up the shrub. Cut a circle around it about one and a half to two feet out from the main trunk. Cut down straight the full depth of the spade.

If the roots are too thick to cut through with the spade, you will have to dig a trench around the shrub and cut, or saw, the roots. When all the side roots are severed work the spade under the plant from all sides. Lift the root with as much soil as you can retain. This ball of roots and soil should be at least a foot deep, better 16 inches, if the shrub is large.

RETAIN MOSS, BURLAP

Lift and place on a canvas or burlap bag and carry to the new position. If the shrub is from the nursery cut the cords around the ball but do not remove the moss and burlap. If the wrap is plastic take off and discard.

Do not plant any deeper or higher than the shrub was in the nursery. You can see the soil line on the trunk.

Firm the soil well, tramping it down firmly. When the hole is almost filled allow a space to collect water, let the hose run slowly for some time to give a good soaking. Fill in with soil and add a thick mulch to conserve the moisture. It will need no more water for a week or ten days. Give another good soaking if the weather is dry. See that all evergreens have a good soaking before the fall freeze up. Their foliage loses moisture all winter and they cannot take it from frozen soil. This is often the cause of winter kill.

Caouette's Group Of Socreds Lift 3-Day Blockade

Govt. Swiftly Gets Money to Pay Bills

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—In a photo finish, the Ralliement des Creditistes lifted its three-day Commons blockade of urgent supply measure late Monday night and the government swiftly got the money to pay its October and November bills.

Real Caouette's 13 - man creditiste group, in a surprise move, abandoned its threatened filibuster, designed to gain it recognition as the third-largest opposition party.

That issue of party status remains to be settled by the 29-member Commons committee on privileges, which in two meetings Monday made little headway towards solving the problem created by the split between the Creditistes and Robert Thompson's 11-member Social Credit group.

The Creditistes mounted the blockade in the Thursday, demanding recognition as a separate party ranking ahead of the Thompson group as the condition for allowing passage of a government interim money bill supply bill.

PRESENTS MOTION

The Commons was faced with a deadline Monday when it met Monday. The government presented a motion for around-the-clock sittings of the House to pass the supply measure. J. W. Pickersgill, government House leader said there was "no option" in view of mid-October pay cheques which had to be ready in time.

The government motion itself could have been debated at length.

Mr. Caouette accused the government of blackmailing his group.

Mr. Thompson and T. C. Douglas, NDP leader of the Creditistes leader, said the Creditistes were blackmailing the Commons.

Surely, said Mr. Douglas, seating arrangements for parties in the Commons "are rather unimportant compared with the conduct of the public affairs of Canada."

A way out of the impasse was proposed by Gordon Churchill, Conservative House leader, backed by Mr. Douglas. After some procedural manoeuvring it was agreed:

Under it, the privileges committee was empowered to meet while the Commons was in session to consider the issue of precedence for the Creditistes.

As the committee stopped this issue during the evening, Commons debate droned on with speeches by Creditiste members marking time. At 9:45 p.m. EST, 15 minutes before the Commons adjournment time, the committee recessed for lack of a quorum—a usual occurrence.

Govt. Hits Union Pay Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government said Monday it has ordered the maverick Seafarers' International Union of Canada to surrender vacation pay earned by its sailor members.

It was the first direct crackdown by the government on the powers wielded by SIU President Hal C. Banks over his 15,000 members.

The move to block further operation by the SIU of its vacation pay plan was recommended by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris as part of his blueprint to cleanse the Seafarers' union and remove its present leadership.

The judge told Mr. Banks, 54, that the vacation pay plan as a means of exercising control over its members.

Labor Minister MacEachen told the Commons the SIU has been ordered to return an estimated $200,000 in its vacation pay fund to shipowners for remittance to sailors.

He said 42 shipping firms holding contracts with the SIU have been ordered to cease sending vacation pay money to the SIU pipe of instead paying it directly to their employees.

IGNORES CONDITIONS

The SIU has been running the vacation pay plan since 1960, without complying with conditions set out by the federal labor department under the Annual Vacations Act. By October, 1962, $1,212,000 had been paid into the fund by shipowners and $896,000 withdrawn by the SIU for return to sailors entitled to vacation pay.

That left more than $300,000 in the kitty a year ago, an amount officials here believe has increased in the last 12 months.

Mr. Justice Norris said the shipping companies had "no option" in view of mid-October pay cheques which had to be ready in time.

The government motion itself could have been debated at length.

Mr. Caouette accused the government of blackmailing his group.

Mr. Thompson and T. C. Douglas, NDP leader of the Creditistes leader, said the Creditistes were blackmailing the Commons.

Bogus $10 Bills Passed In City During Weekend

Lost in the massive weekend shuffle of shopping dollars, a batch of bogus $10 bills were surreptitiously cashed in Belleville over the weekend.

So far, only 12 counterfeits have come to light, but that's sufficient to make police egg on the search among local merchants, banks and trust companies for other phoney bills unwittingly cashed as the real thing.

Two separate bogus denominations have been unearthed by city detectives.

These are the numbers to watch:

E/D 9675782

and

W/D 8764652.

The first serial numbers have been traced by Belleville police to an underworld issue circulated sometime in the midsummer of 1962. At that time, bills with that serial number began appearing in communities east of Kingston and were the objects of a province-wide RCMP alarm.Money were believed at that time to have been offered for sale to Montreal dispossers.

It was this denomination that first was discovered in Belleville yesterday.

PROVE GUESS RIGHT

Minutes after it was turned in at Belleville police headquarters by Chief Constable J. E. McLauchlan began probing the obvious possibility — that quick-change artists had used busy weekend shopping traffic to mask their activities.

By late afternoon detectives had proved his guess right. Through the day, banks were alerted to dribble in until officers had counted up to 120 counterfeit bills recommended for merchandise and real cash at various city stores.

None of the cashiers could recall cashing the bills. The identity, of the bogus bucks passers were reported by police as still anonymous.

Meantime, the hunt goes on for more of the bills, which police fear may still lie unrecognized somewhere in the city.

The bills, police admit, are good replicas. While lighter in tone than the original and easily torn, they are not readily distinguishable at a first glance.

Meantime Chief McLauchlan has asked all business to bear in mind the numbers quoted above and contact his department immediately they suspect the identity of any $10 bill.

Union, Owners Closer

By GEORGE PRAJKOR

MONTREAL (CP) — The St. Lawrence River dock strike goes into its fifth day today with some indications that union and employers are a little closer together, but not close enough for quick settlement.

Phil Cutler, lawyer for the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC), reiterated the union's fear that the federal government would intervene to end the strike to protect Canada's recent sale of wheat to Russia.

He said the Shipping Federation of Canada, representing employers, "has got to learn orders the men back to work they will not go, he said, and if there are ordered they will disobey and disperse or move from Cuba.

The storm plunged Cuba's Communist regime into the worst economic disaster of its nearly five years in power. The government reported 11 dead.

In Jamaica, nine persons lost their lives as Flora's tailwinds hammered that island with floods, rain and gales.

Flora, the most destructive storm in more than 20 years, killed at least 17 persons in Trobago early last week and caused damage estimated at $60,000,000.

COPTERS START SURVEY

The U.S. aircraft carrier Lake Champlain reached Port au Prince, capital of Haiti, with helicopters that began a survey of devastation.

Flora prostrated western Haiti on 24 hours—after devastating Tobago, off Venezuela — then jumped the Windward Passage to Cuba Friday.

Almost all of Haiti's crops were under water and there was widespread damage to communications. Most roads were impassable.

Many of Haiti's Negroes live in flimsy huts which provide little protection against severe storms.

Agriculture officials in Havana said half of Cuba's crops were destroyed by winds and rain.

The storm in 75 years has pounded one area for such a long period.

Havana was lashed by fringe winds and rain squalls, but suffered little damage. But in the 1,000,000 residents will be rationed further because of storm damage to thousands of acres of cof'ee, cocoa and rice crops. The entire coffee and cocoa crops have been destroyed, one senior official said.

FEARS REVOLT

The government said Havana's residents will go on half rations of beef and vegetables and drink no coffee before the arrival of 3,000 tons of coffee rom Brazil.

Living Index Down In September

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian living costs declined slightly during September as lower food prices eased the consumer price index by half a point to 133.4 at Sept. 1 from 133.9 a month earlier.

However, the index, based on 1949 equalling 100, was still 2.9 points ahead of the comparable figure of 131 at Sept. 1, 1962, the bureau of statistics said today.

The decline followed three consecutive monthly increases which pushed the index to a record high of 133.9 at Aug. 1.

Besides the food index decline, moderate decreases were recorded in the health and personal care index. The housing, clothing, transportation and recreation and reading indexes were at slightly higher levels while the tobacco and alcohol index was unchanged.

The decline in the index in August followed a drop during July in industrial wages. At Aug. 1, latest date available, the index of average industrial wages and salaries was 168.4 compared with 194.7 a month earlier and 188.3 a year previous.

The wages index, based on 1949 levels equalling 100, represents an average of total wages paid by firms employing more than 19 persons in a wide range of industries.

The food index during August decreased 1.3 points to 131.3 from 133.2.

BATTLE PIGEONS

BERLIN (Reuters) — "Operation pigeon 1963" began at dawn Tuesday in the streets of West Berlin—its purpose was to kill 60,000 of the city's 80,000 pigeons with poisoned bread crumbs. Similar action against the pigeons last year was cancelled after vigorous protests from bird - lovers. Authorities consider the pigeons a health menace.

Hurricane Kills 4,000 In Haiti, Hits Cuba Again

100,000 Haitians Reported Homeless

CP from Reuters-AP

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti—Flora, a hurricane of unexpected endurance, lashed Cuba for the fifth consecutive day today after leaving a reported 4,000 Haitians dead in her wake.

With an estimated 100,000 Haitians homeless in the Negro island republic of 4,000,000 people, President Francois Duvalier of Haiti declared a "national disaster."

Flora's winds subsided to 75 miles an hour minimum in strength for a hurricane—but there was no indication when the severe drenching rains would dissipate or move from Cuba.

The storm plunged Cuba's Communist regime into the worst economic disaster of its nearly five years in power. The government reported 11 dead.

In Jamaica, nine persons lost their lives as Flora's tailwinds hammered that island with floods, rain and gales.

Flora, the most destructive storm in more than 20 years, killed at least 17 persons in Trobago early last week and caused damage estimated at $60,000,000.

COPTERS START SURVEY

The U.S. aircraft carrier Lake Champlain reached Port au Prince, capital of Haiti, with helicopters that began a survey of devastation.

Flora prostrated western Haiti on 24 hours—after devastating Tobago, off Venezuela — then jumped the Windward Passage to Cuba Friday.

Almost all of Haiti's crops were under water and there was widespread damage to communications. Most roads were impassable.

Many of Haiti's Negroes live in flimsy huts which provide little protection against severe storms.

Agriculture officials in Havana said half of Cuba's crops were destroyed by winds and rain.

The storm in 75 years has pounded one area for such a long period.

Havana was lashed by fringe winds and rain squalls, but suffered little damage. But in the 1,000,000 residents will be rationed further because of storm damage to thousands of acres of cof'ee, cocoa and rice crops. The entire coffee and cocoa crops have been destroyed, one senior official said.

FEARS REVOLT

The government said Havana's residents will go on half rations of beef and vegetables and drink no coffee before the arrival of 3,000 tons of coffee rom Brazil.

The American Red Cross cabled Cuba's Red Cross and office of relief supplies and workers.

The third, Belgian - born Georges Schoeters, 33, was sentenced to a total of 10 years on five charges of causing explosions and one attempted explosion.

Hudon, a draughtsman, and Villeneuve, a student, also received five-year sentences for causing explosions and placing explosives, to be served concurrently.

GIVEN 10 YEARS

His was the only life lost in a wave of bombings and attempted bombings that swept over Montreal between March 7, when kerosene incendiaries were thrown at three armories, and May 20, when a bomb exploded behind another armory. But an army officer's quarters, Sgt.-Maj. W. R. Leja, 43, was maimed during a series of mailbox explosions in suburban Westmount May 17.

Two students, Denis Lamoureux, 20, and Francois Gagnon, 19, were sentenced to four and three years respectively for causing explosions and bodily harm through criminal negligence in the Westmount bombing.

Selassie Given Warm Reception By Officials, Friends at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia began the second day of his state visit to Canada today by attending a garden party given by the famed Royal Canadian Mounted Police musical ride.

The emperor later will place a wreath at the National War Memorial and then attend a luncheon in his honor given by the Canadian government.

His official day ends when he will give a press conference on Parliament Hill.

The bearded emperor, dressed in a field marshal's uniform, stepped from his aircraft at Uplands Airport Monday afternoon to begin his three-day visit. With him was an old personal friend, Robert Thompson, leader of Canada's Social Credit party.

Mr. Thompson became a close friend of the emperor during his 15 years as a teacher and adviser in Ethiopia.

Also on hand to greet the emperor were Governor-General and Mme. Vanier, Prime Minister and Mrs. Pearson, members of the cabinet, diplomats and other dignitaries.

But the emperor's first greeting went to some young students attending Ashbury College, a private school in the wealthy suburb of Rockcliffe. The boys were his grandson, Prince Michael Makonnen, and great-grandson Michael Mengesha.

In welcoming the emperor to Canada, Prime Minister Pearson said Haile Selassie was "the embodiment of the movement of history. Upheld by the principle of independent states which is sweeping across that continent."

Governor-General Vanier said the emperor's wisdom and courage had captured everyone's admiration.

In a brief reply in Amharic and French, the emperor said he reaffirmed his dedication to the cause of freedom and peace. He said he hoped his visit would help develop the friendly sentiments between Canada and Ethiopia.

Tories Are Divided On Successor

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—British Conservatives are agonizingly suspended in a crisis of succession.

They are torn between desire for change and uncertainty about who the leader should be.

They would like Prime Minister Macmillan to step down gracefully within the next few months, but are divided as to whether his successor should be Viscount Hailsham, the Earl of Home, Reginald Maudling or Richard Austen Butler.

Amid all the muttering, Macmillan remains surprisingly tenacious. At the height of the summer scandals over sex and security, it was widely assumed his days were numbered. He will be is still prime minister and no clear-cut heir apparent has emerged.

WONT BE PUSHED

It is understood that Macmillan is determined to pilot the Profumo affair to its conclusion. That is, he will remain in office at least until after the parliamentary debate on the Denning report, expected in the first half of November.

Lord Denning inquired into security aspects of the affair between former war minister John Profumo and playgirl Christine Keeler. Macmillan regards the report as almost complete personal vindication, despite criticisms voiced in it.

The next step in the leadership debate is expected this week. Starting Wednesday, the Conservatives will hold their annual party conference at Blackpool, and in the windup address Saturday the 69-year-old Macmillan will probably make some guarded reference to his intentions.

Meanwhile, each day brings a fresh speculation. A right-wing

Phone Tips of Bombing, Shooting Fail to Halt Valachi Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gangster informer Joseph Valachi resumed testimony today as U.S. marshals beefed up their protection of him because of mail threats against the star witness that bombs would be planted and he would be shot to get a chance.

McShane said the Senate caucus room, scene of the hearings, was searched this morning and nothing was found.

The guard of U.S. marshals that flanks Valachi as he walks down the hall and then sits behind him in the hearing room was strengthened. McShane said. He said spectators carrying briefcases and cameras have been asked to leave them outside the room.

Press photographers were asked not to congregate directly in front of the witness table as they have been doing. "It makes him kind of nervous," McShane said, referring to Valachi.

McShane said other precautions were taken which he would rather not describe.

The underworld is reported to have placed a price of $100,000 on Valachi's head.

The session was billed in advance as one with hundreds of top criminals and members of Cosa Nostra, the secret crime organization Valachi belonged to.

CLOSE DRUG HOME

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's interior ministry has ordered the closing of a rehabilitation centre for drug addicts. It said the time for testing has passed. The rehabilitation centre, opened when Thailand banned opium dens five years ago, will be turned into a child welfare home.

Will Ask Planning Director To Make Study of Area

The city planning director, Mr. J. C. Beavis, will be asked to make a study of the proposed greenbelt area along the Bay of Quinte west of the filtration plant with the view of determining for what purpose this waterfront area is best suited.

Originally the area was zoned as a greenbelt area, but since there were applications from property owners in the area asking for re-zoning to permit construction of cottages, and a request was forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for a zoning change.

However, the area cannot be economically serviced by sanitary sewers and Board of Health officials say the area is too close to the city water intake to be serviced by septic tanks.

WANT ZONING CHANGE

As result there was a recommendation in to council yesterday to withdraw the proposed by-law amendment and leave the area zoned as park-land.

But residents of the area still want the zoning change and several waited on council yesterday with representation by legal counsel.

Mr. Don Templeman, representing a client who has a firm offer for the sale of his property, asked council not to sharpen what it had approved last June.

He said it was fallacy to zone much of the area as parkland, claiming it's width varied from zero to about 100 feet and much of it was totally unsuited for this purpose.

Mr. E. F. Fallwell made a similar request to council, claiming that if council now re-zoned the area as parkland it should be prepared to pay property values obtainable for a private sale for residential use.

ALREADY ZONED CLAIM

Alderman Les Digby said it was not a matter of re-zoning as the area was already zoned as greenbelt.

Myron A. M. Haig felt it would be a mistake to call for a blanket use of the entire bay front area as greenbelt, claiming that this would be a "complete injustice" to property owners.

Alderman Jack Ellis said the city planning director should be asked to consider the area and bring in a recommendation.

Realty-Concerned Council Votes to Purchase, Sell Land

TRENTON — Very much concerned with real estate last night, Trenton council voted to sell land and buy and other land.

Provided that he will agree to install sanitary sewers and sewer facilities are made available, Leroy realtor D. R. Fraser's offer of $720 for four lots on the north side of Edward St., will be accepted. Mr. Fraser enclosed a cheque for $79.30 with his offer.

The sewer on Edward St., when it comes will be installed under Local Improvements.

Council also agreed to permit the Trenton Public Utilities Commission to sell two lots on North Queen Street. A third lot to the PUC's request for permission to buy, stipulating that the money from the sale of the lots would be used to build a garage on land where such things as the watering machine would be housed.

Letters from council's official representation to sell as the councillors felt the deal could be pushed thru something to be thought about.

Councillor Ross Burtt asked however, that he was far from opposed to having a new shed replace the present one, the building as he "lived next door to it."

In two cases, council voted to buy land from individuals in order that the widening of Dundas St. East.

The purchase had yet to be arranged.

And still to do with the buying and selling of land, a letter was read from Gatineau Sander-cock, MLA for Hastings West, in which the member assured council that the Ontario government would buy the site for a new technical school in the area, if such a school is placed in this area. Further to this, the province will build and equip the school.

The Trenton area, said Mr. Sandercock, is being considered by the province as a possible area for a technological institute. (Area representatives will meet in Trenton tonight to put the finishing touches on a brief asking the province to do more than "consider locating a school").

Still with the land question, and this time concerned with the acquisition by annexation of parts of Murray Township, council considered a letter from the law firm of Mason, Foulds, Armup, Weir and Bain which did the town want the firm to represent it at proceedings before the Ontario Municipal Board. Murray Township council is far from satisfied with the town's offer to pay part of the high school debenture debt but refusal to pay anything towards the road grants the township will lose when the land is turned over to the town, Trenton's OMB meeting. "Yes," councillors decided, "Mason, Foulds, etc. could represent the town at the meeting . . . after the lawyers had been rebriefed about the town's stand in the issue."

Land of a sort was discussed when Mr. Lyle Carr came before council with a problem.

Mr. Carr has been engaged to draw fill from the reconstruction site on Sidney St. to the yacht basin causeway in the sanitary landfill area. Mr. Carr's problem is this: it is becoming increasingly difficult (if not impossible) to get his dirt-filled trucks anywhere near the landfill area, let alone a specific part of this area.

For a couple of weeks, Mr. Carr has been forced to detour his trucks around road construction projects. The truck drivers start out, only to find roads cut off for one reason or another. Curbs are being built; ditches are being dug.

Further and further eastward move the accesses to the landfill area. Now, trucks are entering from a point close to the sanitary disposal plant.

"It's not a cricket," commented Mr. Carr last night.

"It's been suggested that I find another way of getting the fill into the area. Well, all I can think of is to haul it at the dock and float it into the area on a barge."

Town engineer Eric Aldersay said that he hadn't been aware that there was a problem until yesterday. He said that he had arranged for the fill to be placed in the vicinity of the Community Gardens for the time being and that Mr. Carr could run his trucks down Sidney St., straight into this area. It really wasn't necessary, said Mr. Alderson, to place the fill specifically on the causeway, there were several other areas where it could go.

The suggestion, advanced in a letter from Fire Chief Cecil Ellis that an addition be built onto the present fire hall to house the aerial ladder truck, met with very little if any response from council.

The chief first thanked the council for buying a new King Seagrave pumper for his department. While the old truck was out of service and the new truck not yet delivered, the aerial truck, ordinarily stored in the town sheds in east Trenton, spent its time in the fire hall, being serviced every day. If it could be kept in the hall, saving daily attention, said the chief, it would keep it in "A1 shape."

"I'd rather see a new fire hall on the east side of the river," said Councillor Weaver.

"Yes, but the people voted that idea down at the polls two years ago," said Councillor Burtt.

Wants Engineer To Refrain From 'Whistle'

TRENTON — Councillor Ross Burtt, the ex-railroad man himself, pushed through a by-law at last night's meeting of municipal council that will ask the CNR engineer on the ore train that passes through downtown Trenton several times a week, not be asked to refrain from blowing his whistle.

Councillor Burtt claims that blowing of the shrill whistle at and between four different crossings within a stone's throw of each other, is "absolutely foolish and unnecessary."

The councillor pointed out that each and every crossing is equipped with bells and lights and he thinks that this is sufficient warning for motorists and pedestrians, both on cross ing the tracks.

"I'll support your resolution" said Councillor Gerald Weaver, "but I'd like to know how many people have been killed when passing through towns where there is no railroad".

Councillor Burtt refused comment.

Family Cat Sets Record For Production

TRENTON — Georgie has done it again!

Mrs. Bloomfield O. W. Larry's family was increased by two recently when Georgie, the family cat, brought into the world her 108th and 109th kitten. And surely this is something of a record.

"Georgie", so named, optimistically when first acquired by the Larry's is fine fettle despite her long record for reproduction.

There's never any problem in the Larrys home about having too many kittens around under foot. Never. Kittens are always spoken for well in advance.

It would be interesting to know just how many grandchildren Georgie has and how many Larrys answers call her "Great Grandma".

Woman, Son Hurt in Crash

TRENTON — A Trenton area woman, Mrs. Edith Anne Case of bo and her 19-months' old son, Kevin Kevin, suffered minor injuries as the result of a two-car collision at the intersection of Dufferin Ave. and Henry St., Monday afternoon.

The cars involved in the collision were driven by Mrs. Casalbo and Douglas Frederick Dunning of 14 Sunset Dr., Belleville.

Damage to the Cassibo car was set at $500. and to the Dunning car at $300.

HUNTERS' PARADISE

The Kenora district had the best moose hunting in Ontario in 1962 with more than half the hunters bagging one.

Town Council Backs Protest By Waterloo

TRENTON — Trenton town council last night endorsed a protest by the city of Waterloo concerning the designation of the city of Brantford as a "depressed area."

The Waterloo city council feels that the nearby city of Brantford gains an unfair advantage over surrounding municipalities by being able to offer industry certain inducements under "depressed area legislation.

At the same time, Trenton town council put wheels in motion to find out just how Trenton could be declared a "depressed area" and thereby gain the advantages given by the federal government for such areas.

A letter will be sent to the Department of Industry at Ottawa asking what constitutes a "depressed area" and how Trenton could qualify.

Trenton council has been the recipient of many communications from other municipalities in the past and has endorsed or rejected them as it saw fit.

Now, the town has taken a new step.

Trenton council last night sponsored two resolutions which will be sent on their rounds to other municipalities and will finally wind up in the hands of the government agencies involved.

One resolution calls for each municipality in the province to be granted funds for the building of school zones in school areas if it so wishes. In Trenton's case, such zones would result in the town having to hire fewer school crossing guards. Next year, it is contemplated that Trenton will pay out upwards of $6,000 in school guards' salaries.

Resolution number two calls for the relaxation of provincial laws concerning conflict of interests.

Along with many other men in public life in the province, the councillors felt that businessmen are dissuaded from running for office by the fact that once in office they are open to criticism or worse if they do business with the corporation.

Trenton's mayor, D. James MacDonald also spoke in the hardware store; one councillor, C. V. Graham, operates a taxi business; another Donna Dee is general manager of Central Taxi. Councillor Gerald Weaver sells motor cars and trucks; two councillors, Edward Bateman and Duncan McDonald work for the Canadian National Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway respectively and all companies concerned could conceivably do business with the town at one time or another.

Recently, council accepted the low bid from Weaver Motors for the supply of a police truck, in spite of a warning from town solicitor Roderick Campbell that such action on the part of the town fathers might be construed as a conflict of interests if applied to Councillor Weaver, who did not vote on the purchase.

Before being sworn in as a member of council last December, Councillor Weaver sold a building which had been leased by the town for the use of Probation Officer Dennis Atkins.

Service Station Question Still "Being Considered"

To limit or not to limit the number of gasoline service stations in the city.

That is the question still before city council as result of the recommendation tabled two weeks ago which would have raised the permissible number of stations from 55 to 60 outlets.

The recommendation was turned back for further consideration two weeks ago and yesterday council was told the matter was still under consideration by the finance committee.

Mayor A. M. Haig hoped he would be a report from the committee by the next council meeting.

Although the present regulation limits the number of service stations to 55, there are 54 in operation, and a Trent Road resident, G. H. K. Chalmers, would like to have the permit.

He told council he had applied for a permit 18 months ago but it was not granted.

He said the 55th permit was held by an oil company which was not using it.

"I feel I am entitled to the permit. I need it, and I would like to have some consideration," he said.

Mayor Haig told Mr. Chalmers the matter was under consideration and a report from the committee was expected at the next meeting.

Later under enquiries Alderman Jack Ellis asked what would happen if an individual asked for a service station permit.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds replied that under the circumstances the 'application would be referred for consideration.

The local Garage Operators Association want the number of outlets to remain at the present limit of 55, while on the other hand the owners would like to see more outlets.

Mayor Haig said the recommendation expected from the finance committee would be fair to all.

Mr. Day went on to explain a new program starting the first year in which all of the Rotary Clubs across the Dominion will be taking part.

The speaker also went on to say that he would urge all of the Rotary clubs to start in a youth for leadership program which would be known as an inter-act club, in which youths would be trained for leadership.

The meeting was chaired by President Ronald Cass.

Motorists Take Large Toll Of Wildlife

Conservation Officer Ed Sisson, working from the White Lake Deputy Ranger headquarters near Sharbot Lake, reports on the number of wildlife species killed by motor cars on a 100 mile stretch of road in his patrol zone during the period August 27th to September 27th, 1963.

During this one month period the following wildlife species were reported killed: rabbed grouse, 8; porcupine, 24; rabbits (snowshoe, jack, cottontail), 17; raccoon, 8; squirrel (black, red, chipmunk), 23; beaver, 3; muskrat, 2; skunk, 7; red fox, 2; mouse, 1; snakes, 25; turtles, 5; domestic cats, 4; domestic dogs, 3; black birds (grackles), 6; robins, 5; unidentified mammals, 19; unidentified birds, 15.

Conservation Officer Sheare points out that motorists using roads in areas frequented by wildlife could possibly avoid this needless killing of birds and mammals were they to exercise a little caution.

Power Blackout Caused by Falling Tree

A badly-rotted maple tree was the root cause of power blackout to Belleville's downtown area and parts of the East Hill district last evening.

Scene of the failure was Dundas Street and Foster Ave., where the tree, rotted with age, toppled across a Public Utilities feeder line about 4:15 p.m.

Repair crews worked for nearly two hours clearing wreckage and splicing broken cables. In the interim, supper hours for scores of homes in the area were interrupted, while power was also off in stores and restaurants along Front Street south of the Four Corners.

Meantime, PUC manager K. L. Burnham says other power lines in the city face a similar threat from decayed trees — one nearby the scene of yesterday's mishap.

"It's a pity we can't find some other way to get rid of them other than this," he commented this morning.

"Something should be done to remove these old trees," Mr. Burnham added.

Wants Church Exemptions Removed From Income Tax

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—A suggestion that charitable gifts be no longer exempt from income tax was advanced today by the Canadian Protestant League. It saw the move as a means of eliminating "inequalities" and "irregularities."

The league said in a brief to the royal commission on taxation that such a move "would be consistent with the democratic ideal that the state should not subsidize a taxpayer for his giving to his church."

As an alternative the revenue department could double basic personal exemptions, said the league.

The league, pointing a finger at Quebec, said the practice of claiming exemptions for charitable donations has been abused, and elimination of the system would put everyone on even footing.

In 1956, before the standard $100 allowance was introduced for donations, taxpayers in Quebec claimed "the amazing total of $122,942,000" for such donations, compared with $87,487,000 for all other provinces combined. The brief said there still is "a continuing pattern of Quebec's disproportionate claims."

"It is thus reasonable to suggestion that a section . . . of the income tax act is still being abused by many thousands of taxpayers with the possible aid of certain church authorities."

If excessive and invalid claims were abolished, said the league, the overall tax burden could be drastically reduced. "Should honest citizens be penalized by reason of the practices of the dishonest?"

'VIOLATES AN IDEAL'

An estimated 40 per cent of Canadians do not support any church, but because of these exemptions, they are being forced indirectly to give financial support and "this violates the ideal of separation of church and state."

The bulk of the league's brief dealt with a section of the income Tax Act that gives complete exemptions to members of religious orders who take the vow of perpetual poverty.

In 1961-62, said the brief, there were nearly 18,000 members of Roman Catholic orders teaching in public elementary and secondary schools in Canada. They earned about $54,000,000 and passed it on to their orders tax-free.

"Add to this the many thousands of dollars earned by professors, lecturers and demonstrators at state-aided universities and colleges, plus the salaries of thousands of nuns who work in scores of hospitals and other institutions throughout the country, and the total earning power of members of religious orders under vows of perpetual poverty reaches amazing proportions."

It is not the responsibility of the government to adjudicate how a wage-earner spends his money, said the league. No other citizen can claim more than 10 per cent of his earnings for charitable donations, even though he gives all of it away.

"It puts the federal government in the undemocratic position of indirectly subsidizing a particular form of religion by reason of these enormous tax exemptions. . . . This practice constitutes a definite menace to religious freedom. . . . These exempted taxes put an added strain upon every man and woman who is subject to income tax."

Mayor Haig Will Not Seek Another Term

Belleville Mayor A. M. Haig will not seek re-election for another term of office.

Mayor Haig made the announcement yesterday at the close of the day's council session.

He said he would have more to say on the matter later, but that statement yesterday was confined to the announcement of his intention not to seek re-election.

This leaves the mayoralty race for the early December municipal election wide open and already at least one alder man has hinted that he may contest the mayor's seat.

Alderman Jack Ireland, now completing his fifth year in council, yesterday said he was considering offering himself as mayor.

Next year's council will also see Alderman Stuart Robb missing. He is being transferred to Montreal by Northern Electric.

J. and J. Cash Property Sale Is Announced

Sale of the J. and J. Cash property on Grier Street to a group of unnamed local and United States industrialists, has been announced by Donald J. Whalen, Belleville realtor.

Neither the sale price of the former Cash building, nor the use for which it was intended, was announced.

Mr. Whalen said, however, that the purchasers hoped to open the building for its new use in approximately one month's time.

The J. and J. Cash factory was closed down some months ago when its owners moved their company operations to Montreal.

Air of Optimism Begins to Spread In Hanover

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — An air of optimism began to spread through this community of 4,500 today with the news that negotiations are resume Wednesday in an effort to settle a 4½ month strike which flared into violence here last week.

"This is the best news we have had yet," Mayor Max Williams Bueglas said at a special town council meeting Monday night.

H. Landon Ladd, Eastern Canadian director of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC), told the council he hopes the negotiations will lead to a contract settlement by the end of the week with Hanover Kitchens (Canada) Limited.

The decision to resume negotiations was announced in Toronto earlier Monday following a 3½-hour conference between Mr. Ladd and A. E. Starke, general manager of the strike - bound Hanover Kitchens plant.

New Regulations Termed 'Ridiculous' by Alderman

City Lawyer Heads Complaint Day at Council

Yesterday was complaint day at city council with objections being aired about the "filthy" condition of Front Street, unwarranted dumping of garbage along the Bay Bridge road, and the condition of the Moira River.

Belleville solicitor, Mr. E. E. Folwell, appearing officially at council on another matter, said he had never seen Front Street in such a disgraceful condition as it was on Sunday.

"It was an absolute disgrace," he said.

Mr. Folwell said the Bay Bridge road was also in a filthy condition from garbage dumped along the ditches.

"They must have extended the garbage dump east to as far as the Corbin Lock," he said. "Garbage is being dumped along the roadway."

"You have got a lot of complainus," observed Mayor A. M. Haig. He said he hoped Mr. Folwell didn't stay at council all afternoon.

And Alderman Ross Bailey put in a word about the Moira River, which, he said, was badly in need of cleaning up in places.

The Belleville city council traffic and light committee has changed its mind about creating a four-way stop system at the intersection of Station, Albion and Emily Streets but instead will establish a "no left turn" regulation for motorists emerging from Albion Street.

Yesterday council voted to rescind a previous recommendation calling for a four-way stop system at the three-way intersection.

At the same time it approved the erection of a "no left turn" sign from Albion Street onto Station Street.

Sandbags will be placed as a temporary island for division of traffic and if the idea works out these will be replaced by a concrete island.

But the idea didn't receive the unanimous blessing of council with Alderman Jack Deacon terming the left turn from Albion Street onto Station as "ridiculous".

Deputy Mayor Ben Corke noted that under the proposed regulation traffic coming down Albion Street would have only one way to go — up Emily Street.

But Alderman Jack Ireland as chairman of the traffic and light committee, said the proposal had been fully discussed by his committee and the police traffic department. He said it had been recommended in the city traffic survey report "which cost us thousands of dollars."

Thursday Shopping Till Nine In Nov. and Dec. Approved

Belleville merchants want Thursday night shopping, as well as the present late closing on Friday night, during the forthcoming Christmas "shopping season.

Representatives of the, Downtown Merchants Association and the Belleville Plaza Merchants' Association appeared yesterday before city council asking that their closing bylaw be amended to allow for Thursday evening openings from November 1st until December 31st.

Nine o'clock closing was also asked for the Thursday night before Good Friday.

The request for Thursday night late closing apparently received unanimous support of the merchants, but the majority feeling was that the present closing bylaw should be changed to allow Thursday night opening for those who wished.

Ed Tomsett, speaking for the Belleville Plaza merchants said their association was entirely behind the downtown merchants in the request.

Irvine Dulmage, president of the downtown merchants, said he hoped this was the last annual time insofar as store closing hours were concerned.

Stuart Robb Is Transferred To Montreal

A resident of this city since 1947 when he came here with the opening of the Northern Electric plant, Stuart Robb is being transferred to Montreal as administrative officer for the apparatus division of Northern Electric.

He will move to Montreal about the first of November after reporting to the vice-president and general manager of the company.

His position with N/E here has been production service manager and in charge of business machine development.

Since coming to the city Mr. Robb has taken an active interest in municipal life. He served for three years on the former Board of Education and is now in his second year of a two year term on city council.

He is also active in the affairs of Bridge Street United Church and has been finance chairman for the committee on the Church's new extension, and three years ago was chairman of the Belleville United Appeal.

Mr. Robb is also chairman of the Alcohol College Board of Governors.

"I will miss a lot of things here," Mr. Robb told The Ontario Intelligencer. "Our stay in Belleville has been one of the happiest periods of our lives."
